Tijuana, Mexico, Dec. 24—(AP)—Screams of dying children and women left the city gripped today in the horror of a Christmas party fire that took a toll officially estimated at 41 or more lives.

Burned and broken remains were still being examined in an effort to complete an accurate count. Unofficial estimates ranged up to 90 or more.

District Attorney Francisco Gastanon Jr., who announced the official estimate, said he believed it was the highest toll of deaths in a single fire in the history of Mexico.

Eighty-eight who escaped from the three-storey building downstairs through a single doorway were treated for burns. Officials said the only fire escape was not only locked but boarded up.

Thirty-three were still in hospital, five or six on the verge of death, doctors said.

Among the 33 were children. Officials said this probably indicates the ratio of little ones among the dead.

Only 26 of the bodies had been identified early today.

The annual party for needy children was in full swing when its joy was turned to terror at 11.15 p. m. Saturday.

There were different accounts of how the fire started. Fire Chief Gill Chidez said that someone was criminally responsible. He did not elaborate. Everyone agreed the flames spread with terrible speed from near the location of a Christmas tree.

All Was Madness

As panic took hold among the 300 or 400 people in the hall of the old coliseum building, three blocks from Tijuana's gay main street, the lights went out. "Then all was madness," said Luis Alarid, radio station announcer. "A lot of people were trampled to death before they were burned."

Many of the bodies were found in two rest rooms into which the victims had apparently been pushed by the crowds surging toward the exits.

Others piled up and died on the stairway.

The confusion was increased by frantic mothers and fathers trying to get into the building to save children. Firemen arrived but there was no pressure in the water mains.

Some of the survivors said two rowdies knocked over the Christmas tree on the stage and that the flames apparently started from shorted electric lights.

OVER $13,000,000 SPENT

Washington, Dec. 24 — (AP)—The Red Cross estimated yesterday it spent more than $13,768,000 for assistance to 24,033 families in last July's floods in the midwest United States. More than $5,000,000 came from the public after a special appeal following the disaster. The Red Cross added $8,768,000 from its emergency funds.

One Survivor Brought to Surface In Bad Condition

Five More Men in Mine But All Believed Dead

West Frankfort, Ill., Dec. 24—(AP) — A miner entombed in an explosion-shattered mine for 46 hours was found alive today, and a hospital official said he learned seven more entrapped miners were found alive.

Rescued from the mine 550 feet below the surface was Cecil Sanders, 44, of Benton. He was taken to the United Mine Workers hospital in serious condition.

Foster said:

"There are five men down there — no more alive. We believe that is all."

With 119 dead, the West Frankfort blast is the nation's worst mine disaster in 23 years.

Earlier a report said others trapped below may still be alive. However, later inspection led to Foster's statement that no more survivors were in the explosion which rocked the sprawling mine last Friday night.

Talked With Husband

At the hospital, Sander's wife and 23-year-old son Paul, were waiting.

Mrs. Sanders talked briefly with her husband and then to friends and hospital attendants.

"Oh my God, we've prayed and prayed for this," she muttered. She referred repeatedly to the "miracle".

Paul, who talked with his father earlier when he was brought to the surface, said he "seemed to be in good shape."

Helsie Sanders, the elder Sander's cousin, said he understood Cecil Sanders was lying down in an air passage when rescuers came across him, at about 5:45 a.m. CST. (6:45 am EST).

The tunnel in which Sanders was found was said to have been parallel and about one-quarter mile away from a passageway in which 22 bodies were found earlier. How Sanders escaped death was not learned.

Start Investigation

A 12-man federal team, headed by interior secretary Oscar Chapman, yesterday started an investigation into Friday night's blast.

Most officials agreed that methane gas, often found in coal mines, touched off the blast. But Omar Lingo, county mine inspector, said he believed coal dust explosions helped spread the destruction.

Lingo said the explosion covered too large an area to have been just gas.

He said the mine apparently hadn't been rock-dusted properly. But Foster vehemently denied that.

Lingo explained that rock dust, made of powdered limestone, is spread in mines to keep down coal dust. Coal dust when mixed with air is explosive.

'Rubber Roads' Some Day May Carry Traffic from Coast to Coast

Baltimore, Dec. 24 (AP) — The ribbons of concrete that carry traffic from coast to coast may some day turn into rubber bands.

Highway engineers in at least 13 states and some parts of Canada are keeping a critical eye on experimental strips of "rubber roads."

A 2,000-foot stretch of test road was laid 15 months ago in Baltimore. Today the highway engineer's office terms the rubber-asphalt road the "best we've got."

Supporters of the rubber-and-asphalt mix claim such roads provide a surface that is smoother and more resistant to skidding. They contend that because of elasticity, rubber roads resist the destructive expansion and contraction brought on by temperature changes.

Deputy engineer William L. Chilcoate said the test road was constructed in this fashion:

The entire strip was laid out over a section of old pavement that had a concrete base with brick surfacing.

The road was levelled with asphaltic-concrete binder, and another course of binder was placed over the entire road to an approximate depth of one inch.

Sections of standard sheet asphalt pavement topping were poured at either end of the test strip to provide a comparison under identical traffic conditions.

Between those strips the rubber mix topping was laid. The proportion of rubber used was 5½ per cent to the weight of asphaltic cement required.

Laboratory tests are to be conducted each year to determine the hardness and elasticity of each piece of the test strip.

Chilcoate says a rubber road replacing a standard asphalt road with a life span of 20 years would have to last about 23 years to be economically desirable.

He puts the construction cost of rubber mix roads at 21 per cent higher than the standard asphalt variety.

Allied Soldiers Show Plenty Of Christmas Spirit

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 24 (AP) — Allied soldiers today prayed for peace but fought scattered skirmishes on the frosty Korean battle front.

There was plenty of Christmas spirit along the 145-mile front. United Nations troops had religious services, wrapped gifts for Korean orphans, gathered around trees decorated with home-made baubles and opened packages from home.

But for many a soldier the day before Christmas meant "business as usual". With the mercury around the freezing level, U.N. forces repulsed a series of small communist probing attacks early today.

The heaviest action of the 24-hour period ending at midnight Sunday was a stiff two-hour fight between an allied tank-infantry raiding party and Chinese reds southwest of Chorwon, in west-central Korea.

The Allied armored column rumbled about 2,000 yards into red territory looking for targets. The reds opened with a hail of small-arms fire. When they added mortar and artillery fire, the raiding party withdrew.

In the air, Allied pilots flew 269 sorties by noon today—mostly in attacks on red rail lines and supply facilities.

F-86 Sabre Jets roamed up and down MIG alley for half an hour this morning, but failed to see any of the Russian-made jets.

Series of 15 Sharp Quakes Jolt Philippines

Manila, Dec. 24—(AP)—A series of 15 sharp earthquakes jolted the south-central Philippine Islands of Negros and Panay early today.

There were no reports of property damage.

Two of the shocks had an intensity of six on a scale of 10. The others were less severe.

A Weather Bureau geophysicist, Arturo Alcaraz, said inhabitants of Camiguin Island were warned to stay away from the vicinity of Hibok Hibok volcano, which erupted Dec. 4, kiling at least 500 people.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CHILDREN ATTEND SERVICE IN CHURCH

Departing from the usual custom of playlets, St. Thomas' Church Sunday School held its Christmas observance in connection with a service on Sunday.

The classes assembled at the Parish House at three o'clock and with their teachers paraded to the church where a special Children's Service was conducted by Archdeacon Arthur Smith.

Following the service the children were taken back to the Parish House where they saw four seasonal motion picture shorts and were given treats consisting of ice cream, fruit, candy and special presents.

STIRLING RESIDENT WINS DOLL, ROCKER

The winner of the Kinette walky-talky doll and rocker was Mrs. Howard Juby of Stirling. The draw took place at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday evening. Mr. Mascaro, manager of the theatre, drew the winning ticket and Kinette Jean Smith, chairman of the project, read the winning number.

President Maude Rollins thanked all who supported the project, assuring them that the proceeds would be used for community service work.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS LOOTED FROM CAR

William Stammitt, Toronto, is going to have to do some hurried and unexpected last minute Christmas shopping today. And he can indirectly blame the weather and slippery highway conditions.

With his car laden with Christmas packages Stammitt was on his way home for Christmas, Sunday, when his car slid off the highway near Speedway Park east of Shannonville. He walked down the highway to secure the services of a tow truck and when he returned he discovered that his Christmas parcels had been stolen from the car, including a new portable radio.

ESSAY WINS PRIZE

Mrs. Thos. H. Wren, 152 MacDonald Avenue, was the lucky winner of a General Electric floor polisher for her essay submitted on the A. and P. Stores fall festival contest. Another person in the city won a chest of silver in the same contest.

RECEIVES SEVERE INJURIES IN COLLISION

Result of a head-on collision five miles south of Madoc Friday night, Robert Ray, of Harold, is in Belleville General Hospital with a fractured jaw and severely lacerated tongue.

Ray was passenger in a southbound vehicle driven by his brother Arnold which was in collision with another vehicle driven by Donald Bronson of Crookston. Larry Bronson, 17, passenger in the Bronson car suffered concussion and is also in hospital.

Drivers of both cars received lacerations to the face, while the vehicles were badly damaged.

Firemen Repair Donated Toys For Children

Belleville firemen have been working part time for Santa during recent weeks in the role of repairmen for donated toys which will go out to needy children in the city on Christmas eve.

In fact the local fire hall on Moira Street could be termed Santa's workshop as both shifts of firemen have turned to, with a will to get toys in shape. Trikes, wagons, all sorts of mechanical and other donated toys have been donated and are now repaired and painted ready to make the hearts of deserving children happy.

A list of needy children has been supplied the firemen and any toys left over will be turned over to some worthy organization for distribution.

The firemen's Christmas spirit is showing outside the firehall as well as inside. Three Christmas trees that glow with colored lights at night have been fixed atop the firehall. Other strings of colored lights also decorate the front of the firehall presenting a delightful picture of Christmas.

Many Worshippers Attend Various Churches Sunday

Triumphant melodic tribute to the birth of our Lord resounded in church and chapel, hall and home yesterday, as worshippers thronged religious edifices in all parts of the city.

The thunder of mighty organs augmented by the tuneful harmony of choirs and other choral groups echoed and re-echoed the beautiful music that is part of the Christmas religious observance.

From various pulpits came the glad Christmas message ever old, ever new. In Sunday Schools the beautiful Christmas story was retold.

For shut-ins the radios carried Christmas services of various denominations while throughout the day from all parts of the country and the United States, choral, groups, orchestras, vocal artists and instrumental virtuosos brought the familiar carols and other lovely Christmas music.

Anglicans of the city will attend carol services and partake of Holy Communion at 11.30, while Christmas Day services will be held at 8 and 10.30 a.m. at St. Thomas Church; 8 and 10.30 at Christ Church and 9.15 at St. George's; 9.00 at St. Margaret's-on-the-hill.

At St. Michael's Church, midnight mass will be celebrated by the parish priest, Very Rev. Dean L. B. Garvin.

POLICE BLOTTER

The Reward Shoe Store was entered during the weekend with a small amount of cash reported missing from the cash box. Police investigation revealed the premises had been entered by forcing the rear door.

Several instances of petty thievery were reported to police. Snow shovels are apparently in demand in the East Hill district with at least three having been reported stolen during the past week. The last shovel missing was reported by an Ann Street resident.

A trailer was entered on South Foster Ave. with a number of bottles of Christmas wine reported stolen.

Slippery street conditions resulted in a number of minor motor accidents. However only small property damage was reported. Several cars blocking traffic as they were left parked on the street were ordered towed away by police.

Color Film Called 'Royal Journey' To be Shown Christmas Week

Ottawa — (CP) — Canadians who only caught a glimpse of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh in their recent coast to coast tour, now will be able to see the entire journey on the screen.

Thousands who struggled in the crowds to get a peek at the royal couple can see a 55-minute color film entitled "Royal Journey" produced by the National Film Bioard Board. It will be shown in all major Canadian cities during Christmas week.

The film was photographed by a basic camera unit and two auxiliary units which followed the royal progress across the country. In all there were nearly a score of persons in the field for photographic and electrical work.

The production got under way when Director David Bairstow, on location in Ungava, was ordered to return to the N. F. B. laboratories in Ottawa to undertake direction of the "Royal Journey."

In Ottawa Mr. Bairstow was briefed by executive producer Tom Daly, 33-year-old Toronto University graduate. It was decided the film should be laid out in sequences, each having its own special theme.

In Quebec City the theme was the color pageantry of the ancient capital. In Ottawa the ceremonies were photographed against the background of the peace tower and the National War Memorial. Toronto's surging crowd disclosed the traditional loyalty of one of the great cities of the new world. At Niagara, the falls told their own breath-taking story. The undefended border was Windsor's theme.

The grafting of ancient arts in the young nation was shown in the Winnipeg ballet scenes where the royal couple appeared in full evening dress. Regina tells of the R.C.M.P. and wheat. Calgary's Stampede is the voice of the west. In British Columbia the camera rides with the royal train through the Rockies.

Nautical Touch

In Vancouver, the theme was nautical with the duke aboard "H.M.C.S. Crusader," and an injection of a more solemn note with the reading by the duke of the lesson at the church service Sunday morning. In Victoria the camera follows the royal couple as they view totem poles and Indian dances. In Edmonton it was oil and in Montreal another vast welcoming crowd showing their love for their princess and her prince charming. In Washington, the theme was Canada's good neighbor; at Ste. Agathe it was winter holiday. In the Maritimes, Sydney and the destroyer "Ontario" in a whipping gale underlined the navy theme, once more. In Newfoundland the waves of Portugal Cove waved out their farewell as the camera caught vanishing glimpses of the tender taking the royal couple to the Empress of Scotland.

One of director Bairstow's problems was that the actors in the film could not be controlled. They were the Canadian people. It was Daly's job to avoid the affect of a glorified newsreel.

The technical processes — cutting, editing, color correction, scoring, commentary — all had to be stepped up in order to meet the Christmas season deadline. The five-reel film was completed in less time than normally alotted to one reeler. This meant long hours of night work and Saturday and Sunday overtime for laboratory technicians.

Chief Cameraman

"Royal Journey's" chief camera man was Osmond H. Borradaile, who comes from Winnipeg. At present he is dividing his time between film work and his herd of dairy cattle near Chilliwack, in the Fraser Valley.

Borradaile, who filmed such notable pictures as "Sabu", "Elephant Boy" and "Four Feathers" was called out of retirement for the job. Photographing "Royal Journey", Borradaile had the advantage of personal acquaintance with the princess, having photographed her on numerous occasions since her childhood at Buckingham Palace.

During the royal couple's holiday in the Laurentians Borradaile hired a horse and cutter and followed the pair along woodland trails. On one occasion Princess Elizabeth walked back to Borradaile's sleigh and inquired how the photography was progressing. This scene shows the princess patting the nose of the horse.

Borradaile has an anecdote about Prince Philip at Niagara Falls. Returning from viewing the falls, Borradaile took off his drenched slicker and tossed it to a photographer behind him.

"What did you get?" Borradaile asked.

"I got bloody wet," said the other photographer. It was the Duke of Edinburgh.

Theatre Guild Members Discuss Recent Plays

Undeterred by the weather, the many seasonal distractions, and even the breakdown of the city hall furnace, a stalwart band of Theatre Guild members assembled in the council chambers on Wednesday evening.

Principal topic of conversation was the successful presentation of plays put on by the Guild earlier in the month. The president read a number of comments which had been submitted by the audience, the majority of which were pleasantly enthusiastic. The treasurer announced that a profit of nearly $50 had been made.

During the business portion of the meeting, the question of which play to be entered in the Eastern Ontario drama festival was discussed. A secret ballot was held, resulting in a comfortable majority for "The Voice of the People", a satire on life in a Canadian small town by Robertson Davies, who is expected to be in attendance at the festival. The cast, under the direction of Sid Rose, will have the honor of being the Guild's first representatives afield.

An interim constitution was discussed with several amendments being drafted and prepared by vice-president Bert Simpson. This constitution will hold until the annual general meeting next May.

Mrs. McKinnon, assistant program convener, outlined a most interesting series of lectures, workshop plays and participation programs for next year's meetings. With the entry of the one-act play in the Peterborough festival and the preparation of a full-length play for presentation in Belleville during the early part of next year, it is clear that the Guild has a very full schedule.

In spite of the lack of heating, the members decided to continue the program which had been prepared for the evening by Mrs. McKinnon. This consisted of a pantomime game and proved to be both entertaining and instructive.

SEPARATED BY SNOW

Goderich, Dec. 24 (CP) — A groom and his bride-to-be were separated from each other Friday by 12 miles of snow-drifted roads as a blizzard swept this district. Alvin McGee, 21, was to have married Bertha Popp, 20, awaiting him in church, 12 miles northeast of here. His parents had to restrain him from attempting to reach the church on horseback.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 24—(CP)—Traders yawned their way through a two-hour pre-holiday session on today's stock exchange, and the relatively few transactions showed slightly easing tendencies for want of interest. Volume was about 500,000 shares.

Golds showed virtually no reaction to announcement that the federal emergency assistance legislation, due to expire at the end of the year will be continued for another two years.

The gold list was divided about equally between small losses and small gains. Wright-Hargreaves was ahead in the senior list and Lakeshore and Teck-Hughes slightly off.

Base Metals weakened, with Consolidated Smelters trading down about a point.

Western Oils showed most strength, with a slight edge in gains. Anglo-Canadian was among the losers.

Not enough industrials appeared to establish a trend, but there were more losses than gains. Great Lakes was ahead in the papers, as were Bell Telephone and Gatineau in utilities. Burns B declined in the foods and Walkers in the liquors. Aluminium was ahead.

9,000-Mile Trip To See His Bride

The Canadian army promised to have Pte. Jean Carriere, Windsor, Ont., home for Christmas. He was 9,000 miles away in Korea 14 days before Christmas, went by boat to Seattle, Washington, by plane to Malton airport, Ont., by train to Windsor. He was back home to see his bride, whom he had married on his embarkation leave last year and with whom he had spent only seven days. — Central Press Canadian.

150 Arrested During Weekend In Toronto

Toronto, Dec. 24 — More than 150 persons were arrested in Toronto during the weekend as police went all-out against drinking drivers.

Police said 127 persons were charged with being common drunks. There were 62 accidents. Ten persons were injured.

Three persons were charged with drunk driving, one with being drunk while in charge of a car, and 27 with driving while their ability was impaired.

There were 28 minor traffic rule infractions and 31 cars were taken off the road.

ICE BRIDGE FORMS

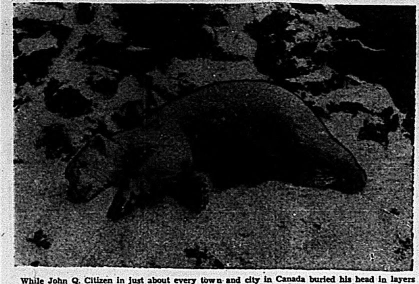
Niagara Falls, Dec. 24 — (CP) — The first ice bridge of the season — and one of the largest in history for this time of year — spanned the Niagara River today.

At the same time, game conservation officers rescued 40 wild ducks in danger of being crushed to death in river ice floes.

HISTORIC HOSPITAL

The first hospital in Canada, the Hotel Dieu at Quebec, was opened by a religious order in 1639.

It's All Right if You're Not Going Anywhere



While John Q. Citizen in just about every town and city in Canada buried his head in layers of mufflers and wrestled with mountains of snow, this whitecoated fellow shed his summer lethargy and sighed, in polar bear language, of course: "This, my friends, is for me!" After a hard day of frolicking in the snow. Mr. P. Bear stretches out for a snooze on the snow blanket the kind weatherman provided at the zoo. — Central Press Canadian.

Albert College's 'The Alibi' Not Published

The regular college annual "The Alibi" of Albert College will not be published for the school year 1951-52, it has been announced.

In its place will appear three amplified issues of "The Alibiette". The first is just off the mimeograph while the second and third will be published at Easter and convocation.

The Christmas issue is a colorful one full in keeping with its parent publication although of a miniature size. In contains a special Christmas message by Principal Dr. Bert Howard — newsy notes of student happenings, much of it in humorous vein, the records of school sports activities and an original and exceptionally well done cover.

Canadian Scene Featured On Royal Cards

London, Dec. 24 — (CP) — Memories of their Canadian tour still fresh in their minds, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh selected for their personal Christmas cards this year a photograph of themselves driving in an open car between lines of cheering Canadians.

The scene depicted is reminiscent of the enthusiastic acclaim extended to the royal couple in every community visited on their tour of the Dominion.

While no attempt has been made to identify the photograph, its background indicates it may have been taken at Charlottetown, P.E.I., as the princess and her consort were leaving the province's experimental farm.

Forecasts Weather Can't Improve It

Having a good average at calling the score these days is the weatherman at Malton, where meterological forecasts are made for southern Ontario. Wilfred E. Turnbull, chief forecaster, is modest about the whole thing. "The weather still plays tricks and always will," he says, but admits he is right about 70 per cent of the time. In forecasting, that is, not in providing good weather. — Central Press Canadian.

Canadian-Style Dinners Will Be Served Troops

Hannover, Germany, Dec. 24—(Reuters)—Real Canadian style dinners will be served tomorrow and on New Year's Day to officers and of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade group.

But hardly any of the trimmings will be from Canada.

Christmas supplies, purchased from the British navy, army and air force institute, come from the four corners of the world.

Each man will be given a bottle of beer with his dinner.

Turkeys come from France and Holland, cranberry sauce from Denmark, plum pudding from Britain, fruit cake from Germany, grapes from Italy and Spain and mixed nuts from almost everywhere.

The men will be served their Christmas dinner by officers and senior non-commissioned officers.

A total of 475,000 cigarets which arrived here yesterday as a gift from the people of Ontario, will be distributed among the soldiers tomorrow.

Ski Conditions Said Perfect For Holiday

Its an ill wind that blows nobody some good and by that token the recent heavy snowfalls have given city and district skiers the best tracks in years.

The Hastings Ski Club is operating its runs one quarter mile west of Wallbridge during the holiday and a report today says hills are in excellent shape. The icy crust that sheathed the snow last Friday was tramped down over the weekend and everything is in readiness for a perfect skiing holiday unless the weather man has another change of heart.

The tow is in operation and skiers are advised it can be used only on a membership basis. Memberships can be obtained at the tow, Jack McNab's Sports Centre, or the MacDonald Hardware, Trenton.

The list of memberships has been limited to prevent unnecessary crowding of the run. Skiing will be in operation tomorrow and Wednesday afternoon, the weekend and every weekend, and New Years Day. It will be operated on Wednesday afternoons in the future if attendance warrants it.

C. A. S. Meets

The Children's Aid Board held their monthly meeting on Thursday in Bridge Street Sunday School. Mr. Lockyer, the superintendent, reported that five new cases were opened during the past month, and three had been reopened. Ten adoption cases had been completed. He outlined special cases which had needed careful consideration and decisions, and spoke of the tragedy confronting the workers when it had been necessary to remove children from their homes.

He presented the problem confronting the society in providing interim homes for children awaiting placement in foster homes.

In concluding the meeting Mr. Wilson, the president, thanked the members of the county council who had served the board so faithfully during the past year.

Course of Action In Fliers' Case Puzzles Govt.

Washington, Dec. 24 — (AP)— President Truman indicated today that the government is puzzled over what action to take to help four United States fliers held by Hungary.

A military court in Budapest yesterday convicted the four of violating the Hungarian border to engage in spying. They were given the choice of a $30,000 fine each or three months in jail.

Truman was asked if the airport before leaving to spend Christmas at home in Missouri, whether he planned any move today in the case. He said "No."

"What can you do?" he inquired solemnly.

There were signs that state department officials were casting about for some course of action to follow. So far, the department had not been informed officially of the court action.

Real Christmas Spirit Shown In Nazareth

Nazareth, Israel, Dec. 24 — (AP)—There was a solemn atmosphere today in this tiny town in the hills of Northern Israel, where almost 2,000 years ago Mary was told by the Angel Gabriel:

"Hail, Thou art highly favored, the Lord is with Thee; blessed art Thou among women."

There is a real Christmas spirit in the town where Jesus was reared by his father, Joseph the carpenter.

In many houses of Nazareth—now inhabited by 15,000 persons—Christmas trees are being decorated.

In the 24 Christian churches and chapels of Nazareth, great stocks of candles are being prepared for the sacred night of Dec. 24.

A nativity play, performed in Nazareth's great Anglican Church, will be given in Arabic, the language many prayers are chanted in. Seventy children between five and fifteen years of age will take part. Christmas carols will be sung. The children have been rehearsing them for the last six months.

The Protestant-Anglican community here is also commemorating the 100th anniversary of their school, founded by the Church Mission Society and the first Christian public school opened in the Holy Land.

In the nearby Roman Catholic Church of the annunciation, built over the spot where tradition says Gabriel stood when he brought the good tidings to Mary, the manger scene of the nativity has been placed to the left of the great altar.

A huge crowd is expected to attend services in the church of the annunciation. Those who can't get in will make their devotions in one of Nazareth's smaller churches or chapels after visiting in the town the various sites connected with the life of Jesus.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH

Youngstown, O., Dec. 24 — (AP) — A 24-year-old mother and three of her four small children died yesterday in a fire that destroyed their small home in nearby Austintown. The mother, Mrs. Margaret Youngblood, managed to push five-year-old Donald out of the door, and he ran naked to a neighbor's house for help. Before the child could awaken anyone, the house was a mass of flames. The bodies of Mrs. Youngblood and the three children were found in the embers.

WELL TIMED LEGISLATION

Because it is sponsored by the government, legislation banning resale price maintenance, which means the fixing of the retail price of an article by its manufacturer, is likely to be passed within a few days and become effective immediately afterwards — probably by the end of this year.

Resale price maintenance has many adherents, but it has also many enemies. Both were extremely active in trying to influence the parliamentary committee which studied the subject and which recommended the legislation now under consideration by the House of Commons.

We leave it to others to argue about whether resale price maintenance is desirable, also whether a law banning the practice is necessary or likely to prove effective. But there is one point in connection with this matter which has apparently escaped notice — the time element.

January is traditionally the month of sale, the month when retail merchants, by offering price reductions, try to reduce stocks of slow-moving merchandise. During the last year, due to buyer resistance created by high prices, retail sales have probably been down from those of last year. Many merchants and probably many wholesalers have bigger stocks than they care to carry. Thus, many "big bargain sales" are likely to be held in January — just after the government's legislation banning resale price maintenance has been placed upon the statute books.

It may be a coincidence that this legislation against resale price maintenance is going to become effective just before the January sales, when it could just as well have been put on the statute books six or eight months ago.

When the merchants begin advertising their January sales, some people will say that these sales were caused by the law banning fixing. Let us all remember that these January sales have been held annually for decades.

THE IMPORTANCE OF NICKEL

Some idea of the importance of Canada's nickel mining industry in the scheme of things is conveyed by an article prepared by Nickel Information Service and published in many daily newspapers, the other day.

The article discloses that ninety per cent of the free world's supply of nickel is produced in Canada. Of the free world's production of 275,000,000 pounds of this valuable metal the last year, Canada produced 247,000,000 pounds.

The two big Canadian companies are the International Nickel Company of Canada Limited, with headquarters at Copper Cliff, near the city of Sudbury in Sudbury District, and Falconbridge Nickel Mines, with headquarters at Falconbridge, also only a few miles from the city of Sudbury.

At its mines, smelters, refineries, offices and laboratories around Sudbury, Inco employs about 15,000 men. It owns properties elsewhere in Canada and in other parts of the world.

Although Falconbridge is smaller than Inco, it is still a large concern. Falconbridge has properties in Norway and elsewhere as well as in Sudbury District. Falconbridge now produces about 25,000,000 pounds of nickel annually, and plans by 1954 to be producing about 40,000,000 pounds annually.

Inco has recently been expanding its productive facilities too and presently is producing at the rate of about 252,000,000 pounds annually. Inco plans to step up production sufficiently so that by 1953 it will be operating the largest non-ferrous mining operation in the world.

Nickel ore was first discovered in the District of Sudbury when the Canadian Pacific Railway was being built through that area about eight decades ago. It was at first believed to be useless. Later, a few uses were found for it. In recent decades, more and more uses for it have been found. It is especially useful in manufacturing stainless steel and in preparing alloys which resist heat and corrosion. Inco's large staff of metallurgists and research chemists at Copper Cliff are constantly engaged in seeking new and improved nickel products.

In the last two or three years, much research has been directed toward finding ways of reducing the civilian use of nickel in order that more may be available for the production of certain types of steel and other material needed for the western world's defence program. Various nickel alloys for civilian use have been downgraded in order to make more nickel available for such purposes as the making of jet engine alloys.

Although the nickel-producing companies may have difficulty in keeping production abreast of demand for the next few years, there is no danger of nickel supplies running short. Both Inco and Falconbridge have huge proven reserves of ore; also, it is believed that there are other and undiscovered deposits of the metal around Sudbury. Further, Sherrit Gordon Mines Limited, another company, has nickel-bearing properties in Manitoba which it plans to bring into production in 1953.

CHRISTMAS EVE

I can remember Christmas
Eves when dad and mother said:
"Much sooner Christmas Day will come if sooner you're in bed.
So up you go and get to sleep!
The slightest noise don't make,
For Santa Claus will never come as long as you're awake."

We tried so hard to get to sleep, but every sound we'd hear
The ring of sleigh bells seemed to be, with Santa drawing near.
Sometimes we'd tiptoe to the stairs to see what we could see
Then "Back to bed," they'd shout, "or there will be no Christmas tree!"

I'm sure 'twill be the same tonight with all the young and old:
"No Santa Claus while you're awake!" the children will be told.
"But, when at last you're fast asleep and every sound is stilled,
Then down the chimney he will come and leave your stockings filled."

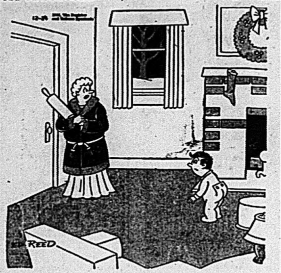
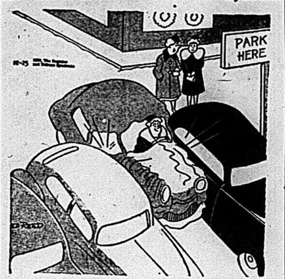
OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed



"You run along to bed, Junior - - - I'll wait up for Santa Claus!"

OFF THE RECORD By Ed Reed



"Jennifer's a wonderful driver - - - she can get into the smallest parking space of anyone I ever saw!"

Pension Cheques, Christmas Parcels Burnt in Blaze

Brantford, Dec. 24—(CP)—Fire broke out early Sunday in a mail car on a Canadian National Railways train bound from Toronto to London.

A dispatcher at Copetown who saw the fire flashed an alarm to Brantford and firemen were at the station when the train pulled in.

The burning car was uncoupled and firemen salvaged as much of the contents as possible.

Destroyed were many Christmas presents, thousands of Christmas cards and an uncounted number of old age pension cheques, done up in large bundles.

230,000 SMUGS FOUND

Montreal, Dec. 24—(CP)—The R.C.M.P. reported last night finding 230,00 untaxed American cigarets in an automobile from which the driver fled.

Two officers reported seeing the car Saturday night stuck in the snow along a country road just north of the United States border. When police approached, the driver ran south across the boundary.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE SHOPPERS

My wife was talking to Judy, our oldest. They were in the bedroom, but I could hear her plainly. She was talking for my benefit. You know that special ventriloquist pitch they have?

"Oh, if you could have seen your father today!" she said, laughing fit to kill. "The salesgirls' dream boy! My goodness the little jokes and witticisms! Everyone a bluebird, too. How lovable your father is with the salesgirls, chuckling and giggling just like old St. Nick himself!"

"Did he dimple at them?" Judy asked. She too, had raised her voice to carry.

"Dimple!" my wife cried. "Why, he is a regular Frankie-boy with the girls, a dreamboat!"

I could stand no more. I called Judy into my corner.

"It is true that I was extra nice to the salesgirls," I said. I raised my voice to carry. "I was extra nice because your mother is the veritable were-wolf when she goes shopping, a fiend who makes life miserable for the poor little girls behind the counter. Sure, I try to be pleasant with them! But it is only to let the salesgirls know that one of us is human. . ."

All we were after were two dolls for Jill and Jenny, a deal I could have personally completed in eight minutes at the most. It is a three-minute escalator ride to toyland and a matter of no more than five minutes to select the dolls themselves.

But this is not the way my wife chooses to shop. Oh, no. This would be too simple. If she were to shop this way when she would have nothing to talk over with Mrs. Testar, our neighbor, when she got home. It has to sound like Stanley looking for Livingstone before my wife is satisfied with a shopping expedition.

To begin with, we did not go directly to the escalator. We never do. The instant my wife gets inside the doors of a department store she begins to graze.

"Oh, there are those Italian-made hat boxes Susan was telling me about!" she cried and we were off on the side trails. Beyond the hat boxes were the tree decorations and beyond them the glassware and, between us and Toyland, four floors of diversions. Suddenly the afternoon seemed little enough time to buy a couple of dolls.

Having reached Toyland, more dead than alive, we headed for the doll section. I say we headed for it. En route my wife was winding like fury. She is a winder from away back, physically incapable of passing a mechanical toy without tensing its innards and forcing it into activity.

She is also a plinker on the keys of toy pianos, a blower of kazos and tiny trumpets, a tester of dump trucks and a self-appointed research council on every form of movable gadget. In her wake she leaves hundreds of scurrying mechanical mice, donkeys, crawling bears and busy vehicles while I try to pretend I am by myself.

It is this that causes me to engage in conversation the harrassed young ladies behind the counter, trying to bring a little shaft of sunlight into their lives. If it is true, as my wife claims, that I tend to select only the peaches, that, I submit, is merely a human foible. I'm not perfect, am I?

Now we had reached the dolls and it was then, Judy, that I made your mother mad. I said to the girl—and what a fine, big girl she was, too!—I said, "I hope you have your step-ladder handy."

It made her mad because sure enough, there was one doll high, high up above the others on a shelf all by itself. It looked exactly like the dolls on the lower shelf, but I knew that was the one my wife would want to see. Indeed, I said as much.

"They are all the same," I said, winking broadly at the sales girl. "They are stamped by huge machines so that there is no choice of expressions or hair style or anything else."

My wife gave me the quick freeze look. "I'd like to see the one up there," she told the clerk, as I had known all along she would.

Now, it wasn't that my wife wanted that doll. It was just that she'd never have been happy if she hadn't rejected it. The dolls she really wanted were the ones in the storeroom where the clerk would have to excavate to a depth of 40 feet. . .

"Now you come here, Judy." I heard my wife sing out. "I want to tell you about how your father scored such a smash success with the girls at the electric trains. Oh, poor Valentino must be spinning in his grave. Oh, brother."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When Christmas falls on a Tuesday, as this year, leaving Monday sticking out like a sore thumb between Sunday and the holiday, it serves to point up the great disparity between the servers and the served. In another few years, the way things are going, Christmas on a Tuesday might be suspected of having a subversive effect. It might be banned. The cautious authorities may decree Christmas to fall on a day that won't cause discord between the privileged and the underprivileged.

Railroads, buses and air lines have been almost paralyzed, as usual, all over the continent by passenger traffic, and the highways have been furious with the Christmas stampede. Who are all these people who have been on the move since Friday?

The served. These people, professional, managerial, executive, who are able personally and privately to declare Monday a holiday, together with the wives and families of thousands of poor devils of servers who can't get away with them. Maybe Daddy can catch a late train, tonight, and get there tomorrow in time for the turkey.

The served include also any number of factory hands, store clerks, salesmen, who just privately decided, aw, to heck with it, and didn't come in to work today. The served, obviously, are any of those who by reason of money, opportunity, prestige or just plain nerve, have done what they wanted to do this Christmas.

And who are the servers? The hundreds of thousands of clerks and staff in the stores big and little; the hundreds of thousands in factories who have machines to keep hopping so that schedules can be met; all the services, railway, bus, street car; the throngs who keep our lights going and our telephones ringing, our water taps running; the cops, the service station crews, the newspaper staffs, compositors, pressmen . . .

A Merry Christmas to all, both served and serving.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

WE DON'T USE TOBACCO, DO YOU KNOW WHAT WE THINK

Way, way back in the halycon days in Canandaigua, that is, we boys on Chapel Street, or perhaps I should say we sissy boys, attended regular classes of the Band of Hope conducted by the W.C. T. U., of which my mother was an active member and officer. We had a kind of class song, which ran in part: We don't use tobacco, Do you know what we think? That boys who do use it Are quite sure to drink.

I feel great respect for the W. C. T. U. and even though I may not approve of some teachings or activities of some members or representatives of the organiztion, I despise the vermin that try to ridicule the W. C. T. U., for I feel that in spirit my mother is still a member.

There's more truth than poetry in the little song. I can recall several boys who regarded us Band of Hope boys as sissies and who began smoking cigarets, not so much for any smoking pleasure they derived from it as for the satisfaction they derived from defying the teachings of the W. C. T. U. and Band of Hope women, and perhaps also the doubtful satisfaction they derived from being tough, spitting through their teeth and the like. Most of the boys who 'showed off' in that way developed into typical alcoholics before they were old enough to vote and several turned up their toes prematurely.

The pledge which mother asked all of her sons to take when we were old enough to go to school and renew on birthdays or other formal occasions from year to year thereafter was a promise that we would not use tobacco or alcohol before we were 21—a promise which, of course, we kept.

I have smoked a pipe since the fifth year of practice, when I moved from country to city and for dreary months had little work to do—a clergyman who dropped in frequently seemed to get so much enjoyment from his smoking that I took it up, and I have never regretted it. I mention this to show I have no prejudice on smoking by adults. But I do not believe growing children can smoke without injury to their health and development of character. And I still believe that boys (or girls) who begin smoking before they have attained adult development are quite sure to drink—especially in these cocktail days.

So once more I plump with all earnest for children taking the pledge not to use tobacco or alcohol before they are grown up.

And I still wonder why parents, teachers, pastors, grandparents, uncles, aunts, big brothers and sisters, guardians, athletic coaches and every one else with the welfare of a boy or girl at heart fails to give the youngster this boon. Even if the pledge is not faithfully kept can it do any kid harm?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Every Saturday Night

My husband read somewhere that people over fifty should bathe only two or three times a month because more frequent bathing removes the natural oil from the skin . . . (Mrs. S. H.)

Answer—You should settle for a soap and water bath, preferably shower, once a week and between times only such brief plain water showers or sponge baths as the man takes of his own free will. It is true that too much bathing tends to dry out and irritate an old skin. But aside from that, there is little or no relation between bathing hygiene or health. In the booklet Save Your Health (for which send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope) are recipes for home made balms to restore the skin oil after bathing.

Difference in Circulation

Is there a difference in the circulation of a man who sits at a desk all day and gets no exercise out of office hours and that of a man who walks two or three miles to and from his office nearly every day and plays the last Brady Symphony on his metabolism every night before retiring. (P. P. C.)

Answer—Yes, the first man doesn't get the stagnant blood out of the great splanchnic pool (the thousands of vessels in the abdomen). The second man probably has an efficient circulation.

Blackheads and Pimples

I am 16 and it seems in the last two months my face has broken out more. Our family doctor told me to go easy on sweets and pop. I seldom eat sweets or drink pop . . . . (Dorothy A.)

Answer—Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on Acne—Blackheads and Pimples.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WE ARE WAITING

Few people realized on that holy night in which our Lord was born that anything unusual was about to take place. But we can imagine the Host of Heaven brooding and waiting for the event. A Baby was to be born, and He would turn the tide of history. A Teacher was to appear among men, who would cause the wisdom of philosophers to appear as withered grass and as the sterile sand blown by a hot, desert wind.

But what realy gave vitality and purpose to the eager expectations of that night was the realization that in this Babe was incarnate the Person of the universe. A Savior was to be born.

How arresting the realization that His entrance upon human affairs was imminent! The very heavens lay in solemn stillness, contemplating the transcendent circumstances which was soon to occur in the stream of human history.

Waiting, waiting, waiting! The Host of Heaven waited on that night. The shepherds waited. Joseph and the blessed Mary waited. And two thousands years from that time we are waiting—waiting for the world to raise its eyes and recognize Him; waiting for His spirit to come into power and transform the affairs of men; waiting for Him to lay His hand upon our restless hearts and bid us to be at peace.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING IMPORTANT

We are only as important as we are or do. As a matter of fact, it doesn't matter whether we are acclaimed as important or not. We are important if we perform honestly and conscientiously whether anyone talks about it or not. Anyone who does anything that is well done is important.

In my city I note scores of men with big wagons cleaning up the garbage from the streets, and I say that each one of these men is important, and perhaps more important than many a one in high office who betrays those who elected him and who depended upon him to do an honest job. Importance is always relative. The player of a piccolo, the smallest instrument in an orchestra, is important. It would be noted by the leader if its player struck the wrong note!

You can't be important by merely thinking you are. The great men of this world never give thought to their greatness. That's one thing that makes their greatness significant. Life Magazine once stated that Dr. Albert Schweitzer was "the greatest man in the world." Only a comparative number, however, know of the important work that this unselfish man is doing among the natives of Africa. But that does not matter. His greatness lies in the service he is rendering among those who have been so neglected. This man is happy in his work.

Genuinely important people never realize their importance because they are so busy doing important things. God has His own idea of importance. Among the most beautiful of all are flowers and plants He set out to bloom in the desert, and among our most beautiful and gorgeously gowned of all birds are those in the marshes and hidden away places of the jungle! Why was this?

In my library is a very beautiful story written many years ago, by Dr. Henry Van Dyke, called "The Mansion." A wealthy man fell asleep and dreamed he was in heaven, and as he was shown arodnd he had pointed out to him the homes of the humble of his community, the washer woman, the shoe maker and such. Theirs were among the most beautiful of all the mansions there. "But where is mine?", the rich man asked. He was shown a simple shack that shocked him. He learned that in Heaven, importance did not count—only simple service which those on earth had once rendered!

Santa Claus Burned in Effigy In French City

Dijon, France, Dec. 24 (AP) — Santa Claus was burned in effigy on the steps of Dijon Cathedral yesterday. About 250 children cheered.

A figure wearing the traditional red costume and white beard was hoisted to the wrought-iron grille of the great gothic church.

A young man in a top hat called out:

"Does Santa Claus deserve death?"

"Yes, yes!" roared the children and pelted Santa with orange peels.

A fire was set and Santa Claus perished in the flames. Only his gloves remained.

The children belong to the Roman Catholic patronage of St. Benigne parish, the cathedral's parish. After the ceremony, an anonymous communique was posted on the church door. It read:

"United in all the Christian homes of the parish, 250 children who want to fight against lies have burned Santa Claus. This is not a vaudeville act, but a protest against lies which are incapable of awakening the religious feelings of children and are in no sense a method of education. To a Christian, Christmas is the anniversary of the Saviour's birth."

Several French Catholic prelates, including Jules-Geraud Cardinal Saliege of Toulouse, recently denounced the "paganization" of Christmas, specifically assailing Santa Claus.

LOOK TOWARD

clear and almost as palpable as at the crib of Bethlehem. The infant lying there is the eternal Son of God made man, and his name is 'Princeps Pacis,' Prince of Peace. His sublime mission is to establish peace between each man and God, between men themselves and between peoples."

"This year once more," he said, "the church kneels before the crib and receives her mission from the Divine Infant, the Prince of Peace."

The Pope criticized "poor short sighted men, whose little field of vision does not go beyond the possibilities of the present hour, beyond statistics of military and economic potential.

"How can they form the slightest idea of the worth and importance of religion's authority for the solution of the peace problem?"

Referring to the babe of Bethlehem, the Pope said that once again from His crib, the church assumes her mission of peace. It is only love, he asserted, that can give men the ability to gain peace.

Justice For All Advocated

The church, said the Pope, unlike the worldly powers that from time to time leave their neutrality to enter one camp or another, "holds herself far from such changeable combinations." It is not for her to leave her divine mission, he added.

If war is truly to be avoided, he said, there must be a return to spiritual values which alone can assure peace.

The Pope, as he has stressed in recent speeches and especially in all of the last Christmas messages to the world, again spoke of need for social reform and social justice for all men.

But referring in impassioned tones to the persecution the church has experienced and is experiencing in the communist-dominated countries, the Pope said the church could not be an institute of silence.

Millions of men, he said, can not speak out for peace; millions of men are deprived of their "moral liberty" and can not practise their faith.

The Pope spoke for 37 minutes, ending with an apostolic benediction to the city of Rome and the world.

He urged a peace-seeking world to fix its attention on the Christian way of life to solve the problem of peace.

He said an armed peace, a peace based on armed force, would give the solution that would depress the economic forces of the people of the world.

He Has Learned How to Relax

Winston Churchill, Britain's prime minister on whose shoulders rest a multitude of ponderous political and international problems, gives a lesson in relaxation as he settles back in his limousine, lights up his favorite smoke and waits to be taken to 10 Downing Street on his return from Paris. Churchill conferred in Paris with General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and French political leaders on the Schuman plan for integrating Western Europe's heavy industry and the European army plan. On both issues, observers report, Churchill had not yielded an inch or at most had not yielded five-eighths of an inch from the traditional British attitude of keeping a respectable distance from both plans. $100,000 Fire Loss at Hearst Hearst, Dec. 24 — (CP) — For more than nine hours firemen Sunday fought flames which threatened to destroy the Chalykoff business block in this northern Ontario lumbering centre.

Damage was estimated at $100,000. No one was injured.

The blaze swept through Bourdon's drug store, the town's only pharmacy, and damaged the Chalykoff dry goods store.

The L. P. Ainsley grocery store and two apartments on the second floor of the building also were damaged.

The fire is believed to have broken out in the basement of the drug store.

Hearst is 150 miles northwest of Timmins.

Reject Request UN Inspection Of POW Camps

London, Dec. 24—(AP)— The communist commanders in Korea today rejected General Ridgway's request for Red Cross inspection of prisoner-of-war camps and told him to get the armistice settled first.

"This will enable all prisoners of war, who are now in the prisoner-of-war camps of both sides, to get back home quickly," the communists said.

The text of the communist letter, broadcast by radio Kaesong and monitored here, was delivered this morning to United Nations headquarters in Korea.

Family Christmas For Dionne Quints

North Bay, Dec. 24 (CP) —It will be a family Christmas for the Dionne Quintuplets tomorrow.

The entire family, with the exception of Rose-Marie, a married sister living in Waterloo, will be be around the table for turkey dinner.

The 17-year-old quintuplets have received hundreds of greeting cards and messages from all parts of Canada, the United States France, Germany, Italy and England.

There will be a wrist watch for each of the girls under the Christmas tree tomorrow—gifts from their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olivia Dionne. The Quints will give their father a tape-recording machine, and their mother, a set of kitchen knives.

Stone of Scone Closely Watched

London, Dec. 24—(AP)— England is taking no chances on Scottish marauders walking off with her stone of scone this Christmas.

Detectives last night began a yuletide watch in Westminster Abbey, where Scottish nationalists last Christmas seized the stone from under the King's coronation chair. The stone is concealed in a vault beneath the Abbey.

The 336-pound block of masonry was brought to England by Edward I in 1296 from the old Abbey of Scone in Perthshire, Scotland. It is regarded by Scottish nationalists as the "Stone of Destiny".

All Canadian Troops Will Have Christmas Dinner

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

West Sector, Korea, Dec. 24—(CP)—A United Nations infantry company commanded by Capt. Clement Buffard yesterday became the first front-line troops in this sector to celebrate Chirstmas.

(No hometown was given for Capt. Buffard. Censorship precludes mention of troops' nationality in forward positions until some days after events reported. But Boss has been with the Canadians.)

Because U.N. positions in this area are too exposed to permit a simultaneous Christmas dinner for all the men in the line, a five-day scheme has been worked out to enable a selected number daily to be replaced long enough for all of them to eat turkey, mince pie, plum pudding and the trimmings in a leisurely manner.

After the meal they will see a movie, get some sleep and then return to the trenches, allowing others their turn.

Buffard pulled his men off their posts at dawn yesterday. They shaved and showered and then slept preparatory to a feast at high noon at rear headquarters. They went to bed after the evening movie and by tomorrow's dawn they'll be looking out over No Man's land again.

Gunner Says Charges Laid Could be True

Seoul, Dec. 24—(CP)—Gnr. Robert Walter Stirling of Vancouver told an army court-martial today it "could be possible" that charges against him are true.

A member of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, Stirling testified in his own defence on charges of attempted murder, assault causing bodily harm and molesting Korean civilians.

Stirling said he had been drinking heavily Sept. 30, the date of the alleged offences, and had only a vague recollection of what hapepned to him.

"I know I fired shots and the sound kind of sobered me up," he said, recounting two visits to a Korean house. He is accused of wounding a Korean civilian in the night visit.

Capt. E. W. Berthiaume of Yarmouth, N. S., an officer in Stirling's battery, said in character evidence Stirling "was an average soldier."

"He was not a trouble maker but on the other hand he was not known in the battery as a model soldier."

21 Persons Killed In Iran Crash

Tehran, Iran, Dec. 24 (AP)— Dr. Henry G. Bennett, United States point-four program director, and seven other Americans were among 21 persons killed Saturday when their plane crashed in a heavy snowstorm north of here.

The crash came when the four-engined plane, owned by Egypt's Misr Airlines, struck the base of a 10,000-foot granite range north of Tehran.

No one survived the disaster, worst in Iran's air history.

Among the victims was Bennett's wife, who accompanied him to Tehran on an official visit in connection with the program of technical aid to underdeveloped countries.

Another of the victims, Benjamin H. Hardy, was chief public affairs officer of the program.

Other victims included six Iranians, five Egyptian crew members, one German and one Indonesian.

War's Landmarks Line Route To Bethlehem

Jerusalem, Dec. 24—(Reuters)— Pilgrims following the traditional four-mile route to Bethlehem from Jerusalem will pass new land marks this year—concrete dragon's teeth, lines of barbed wire and death-trap of mines.

Since last Christmas, Bethlehem has been incorporated into the enlarged Hashemite Jordan kingdom, ruled by King Abdullah Ibn Hussein.

His desert legion sentries will mount guard tonight over the oldest shrine of Christendom as pilgrims, expected to number upwards of 2,500, brave icy winds to attend sacred midnight celebrations.

The pilgrims will march through the cold night air of the Judean hills past the Well of the Magi. It was this well which, legend says, mirrored the star of Bethlehem for the three wise men.

In the east of Bethlehem stands the Church of the Nativity with the star shining above its roof.

Inside, the eyes of the pilgrims will be on the entrances to the grotto in the east of the church. Two worn semi-spiral stairways the traditional birthplace of Christ.

The grotto is a small cave lighted by 52 silver lamps to guide the select few who can enter with the Roman Catholic Bishop, Msgr. Albert Cori who will conduct tonight's service.

20 Die Violently In East Canada During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Thirteen Christmas holiday travellers died in accidents during the weekend, bringing the Canadian toll of violent deaths to 20.

A Canadian Press survey early today showed that four other persons were burned to death, two died of starvation and one was smothered.

Eight persons were killed in Nova Scotia, one in New Brunswick and five each in Ontario and Quebec. Manitoba reported one fatality.

Near Stewiacke, N.S., five young navy men on Christmas leave were killed when their automobile smashed head-on into a truck.

In Ontario, George Mongrain, 38, a trapper who lived 48 miles northeast of North Bay, was burned to death when his small cabin caught fire. Near Brantford, the three-weeks-old unnamed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Jacobs was killed by flames that levelled their home.

Isaac P. Small, 52, was killed at Toronto while working in a railway coal bunker. The coal fell on him, smothering him.

Michelle Laroux, 8, was killed at Timmins when she ran in front of a taxi. In Hamilton, Robert P. Wright, 59, died of injuries suffered in a car-bus crash.

WEDDINGS

BENNETT—HARTLEY

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Ivanhoe United Church parsonage on Saturday, Dec. 15, when Miss Elsie Irene Hartley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Hartley, of Battersea, Ontario, was united in marriage by Rev. Boyd Beckel, to Mr. Reuben Bennett, son of the late Mr. C. A. Bennett, and Mrs. Florence Bennett, of Battersea.

The bride wore a lovely azure blue taffeta afternoon dress, with nylon net yoke and matching nylon net headdress. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Lila Hartley, of Battersea, in a street-length gown of gray taffeta, with grey veil headdress and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mr. Douglas Williams of Battersea, was groomsman. The happy couple will travel westward, and will reside at Battersea, Ont.

ADAMS—WELLMAN

A quiet, but pretty wedding took place in the United Church parsonage at Ivanhoe, when Rev. Boyd Beckel united in marriage, Lila Jean Wellman, of Crookston, daughter of Mr. Lorne Wellman, of Halloway, and the late May Wellman, to Mr. Albert Adams, of Madoc, son of Mrs Mary Adams, of Madoc, and the late George Adams.

The bride wore a street-length dress of sapphire blue taffeta, with blue accessories and a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Her sister, Miss Donnah Wellman, of Halloway, was bridesmaid, dressed in mauve taffeta with dark accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. William Kellie, of Foxboro, was the groomsman.

After a short wedding trip, the happy couple will reside at Crookston.

Bulletin Says Lady Workers Need Good Care

Ottawa. (CP)—Canadian industry might as well try to keep its women employees happy because it has a lot of them. And—as the government says— it probably will have more.

In the latest issue of its industrial health bulletin, the Health Department says that more than 1,100,000 women now work in Canadian industry. Further "in all probability there will be more of them as national needs require a greater and greater industrial effort."

The department warns that women usually are more critical than men of workroom and sanitation conditions. They are ill more frequently and lose more time from work. On the other hand, their absences are shorter than those of men.

Women entering industry for the first time, says the article, often require a period of adjustment to the new environment. During this they may be subject to fatiguing mental stress.

Experience during the war showed that properly trained women were capable of performing almost all types of work except those involving excessive muscular work.

"Excessively long hours of work if maintained for any length of time have been shown to lead to a decrease in output, an increase in time lost because of sickness, an increase in absence without permission, an increase in spoiled work and an increase in accidents."

"Most authorities recommend a maximum work week of 48 hours for women and a reduced work week of 36 hours for those with heavy household duties," said the article. It added that married women appeared to have somewhat higher sickness rates than single women. This might be because married employees usually had more household duties than single women. This placed an extra strain on them and led to greater fatigues.

"Experience seems to indicate further that a rest interval of about 10 minutes in the middle of each four-hour shift increases output and reduces fatigue of women workers," it said. "Minimum of 30 minutes is essential for the lunch period."

Revives Folk Dance On Maritimes Shore

Lockeport, N.S., (CP)—Community folk-dancing and square-dancing has been revived on Nova Scotia's south shore, thanks to a Chinese-born physical training instructor and his American wife.

James and Helen Chan came here last year from Springfield College, Mass., after Mr. Chan accepted the position of physical instructor for the elementary and rural schools here.

Since then they have completely revived folk and square dancing.

James Chan, born in North Vancouver, later moved to Hong Kong. He returned to the United States and studied at several folk training institutions.

All their classes and dancing session here are sponsored by the local Home and School Association.

"Ours is a wonderful and rare opportunity. . . to see the miracle of folk and square dancing as it brings parents and young people together, rekindle the glow of courting days for the older folks and make grandparents realize they are not as old as they thought," says Mrs. Chan.

"In an age when movies and radios keep the masses sitting and watching, instead of participating, there is particular need for folk and square dancing."

When working as a team the Chans wear colorful folk costumes and Mr. Chan does the calling. They have a large collection of folk recordings and a complete amplification system for holding dances or giving instruction.

YOUNG ADULT GROUP

The Young Adult Group of Ivanhoe United charge met in the Orange Hall on Wednesday evening.

The worship service was conducted by Mr. Kenneth Holland of Bethesda group.

The worship service was conducted by the singing of Onward Christian Soldiers.

A short business period followed. Rev. J. B. Beckel suggested the offering of $4.32 go to the missionary and maintenance fund.

Program

The program in charge of the Salem group was conducted by Mrs. Harold Holden and was as follows:

Hymn, "Oh Master Let Me Walk with Thee." Reading, Mrs. Ivan Sarles, . "No Saloons Up There," (Ernest Broadworth), solo, "The Stranger of Galilee", (Grant Davenport) reading "Cold Chills," Mrs. George Sine.

Recreation was in charge of Mr. Harry Lovibond.

Refreshments were served.

Christmas Concerts

ST. PETER'S PRESBYTERIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL

Madoc—The Christmas concert of the Sunday School of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, was most interesting. The teachers were assisted by Mrs. J. H. Atkinson, Mrs. Lloyd Blue, Mrs. Walter Armstrong and Mrs. Ken Nicol.

The openinf number was a pageant of the Christmas Story, "Come Let Us Worship" in which every member of the school took part.

A special feature was a choir composed of the tiny beginners and the older girls. They sang the old familiar carols with Mr. Stan Hawthorne at the piano.

The Bible story was read by Mrs. Walter Armstrong and the parts were taken by the children, Mary and Joseph, the herald, the angels, the shepherds and the wise men were all there.

Recitations and music and dialogues and short plays followed. The recitations were by Sharon Reid, Margaret McCaffrey, Gayle Pitts, Linda West, Leona Woods, Billy Love, Bobby McCaffrey, Grnet Wannamaker, and Gordon Pitts. Piano solos were by Gayle Pitts and Tom Blue.

All the classes had a special number, Miss Cecilia Heslip's class, "Happy Birthday, Dear Jesus"; the junior girls, "Lullaby and Goodnight"; junior boys, "What's in a Name?"; Mrs. Wood's Class, "Uncle Jim"; the senior boys, "Enter the Tramp"; the girls of the C.G.I.T. in old-fashioned costumes presented "The Order of Independent Unmarried Women."

Choruses, "Frosty, the Snowman", "Rudolph", and "Jingle Bells" and "Here Comes Santa Claus" preceded the arrival of Santa Claus who brought gifts and candy for all the children.

Though the night was stormy the Sunday school was filled with parents and friends.

Deseronto Presbyterian S. S.

Deseronto—On Tuesday evening the Presbyterian Sunday School held their Christmas concert in the church parlor.

Parents and friends of the children, as well as the adult members of the congregation, formed an appreciative audience for the children's entertainment. Songs and recitations by the children and a reading by Mrs. T. L. McCullough filled in the evening until the arrival of Santa.

After a joyous welcome by all, Santa, assisted by the superintendent, Mr. D. Cassie and Mrs. A. Lickerish, distributed a gift, candy and orange to each child.

Prizes for regular attendance were given to Florence West and Keith Brand.

Rev. Mr. Fowlie expressed the regret of all present of the absence of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Rathbun, due to Mr. Rathbun's illness.

The success of the evening was due to their efforts and interest in the Sunday School.

The films loaned by Mr. Rathbun, were greatly enjoyed especially by the children.

At the conclusion of the evening, refreshments supplied by the ladies of the congregation were served.

Candlelight Service

On Sunday evening the Canadian Girls in Training, held their annual candlelight service in the United Church. The service was conducted by Mrs. T. F. Townsend with all the girls taking part under their leaders, Miss Florence Gonyou and Miss Delores Gardiner.

Rev. J. Townsend delivered a short talk suited to the occasion.

Miss Bernice Kimmett was pianist and Miss Florence Gonyou sang 'Christmas Night," during the service.

FRANKFORD UNITED CHURCH

Frankford — The Frankford United Church held their annual Christmas concert in the Community Hall Friday evening. Despite unfavorable weather, nominations for town offices in the council chambers and three other concerts in the village a good attendance was reported.

Rev. MacEachern acted as chairman for the evening and welcomed everyone to the concert.

First number on the program was a recitation by John Beach. This was followed by a tableau, "Hark The Herald Angels Sing" by the pupils of Grade 2 of the Frankford Public School. Mrs. Couture's class then brought their number, "Don't Open Till Christmas".

Judy Carlisle gave a recitation, which was followed by a pantomime by Anne Harrington's class. Next number was an acrostic by Marilyn Wannamaker's class. A recitation was given by Lyle Williams.

Helen Rose's class combined with Mrs. Carlisle's girls in a number called "Silver Bells", featuring a song by the older girls, and a drill by the primary girls. Marilyn Spencer favored with an accordion solo.

Cyril Smith gave a recitation, which was followed by an exercise by two girls from Mrs. Powell's class. Mrs. Rabel's class brought musical numbers, followed by "Frosty the Snowman" by Dorothy Moran's class.

Mrs. Stickle's class presented a dialogue, "Christmas for the Woman in the Shoe."

Beautiful Pantomime

A beautiful pantomime was presented by the girls of Mrs. Moore's Mrs. Carlisle's and Mrs. Beach's classes, in which they formed a large cross, lighted by candles.

Lillian Williams gave a recitation, following which the junior department of the Sunday School sang two choruses. A recitation by Eleanor Beach completed the concert.

A few moments later, Santa Claus arrived on the scene, to distribute gifts and treats to the children.

A special tribute is due to Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Couture, Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Ed Tomecek for the splendid job they did in organizing and planning the concert. The Sunday School is also grateful to Mr. William Rose, of Frankford Radio Electric, for the use of his public address system.

ST JOHN'S PARISH

The parish of St. John, Madoc, held its annual Christmas tree and party on Wednesday night in the Orange Hall as the parish hall was considered not large enough. There was a large attendance of parents and well-wishers present and over 60 Sunday School children received presents, oranges, candies and balloons from a well-laden tree.

The party opened with Carol singing followed by three films which everyone enjoyed thoroughly. Santa was then announcedand his arrival acclaimed by delighted and cheering children. He had a cheery word and handshake for each child, and the gift-laden tree was soon stripped of all its treasures.

Good Work Appreciated

Tea over, the rector, the Reverend T. H. Good, complimented the teachers, Miss Waring, Mrs. Heyworth and Miss Ruth Danford on the excellent work they are doing for their church and for the children. He said that they had teachers in St. John's second to none and he hoped that the parents would take care that their children would receive instruction in the things that will really matter to them in the days when they will have to go out into a world that will not have much sympathy for those who know not what they are or what they stand for.

Mr. Good said that as he looked through the Sunday School roll book there were a few, children, but he was thankful to say, "only a few, who had no reason to be proud of their attendance record, yet, he was glad that there were many of whom, he, himself, the parish and the parents could be justly proud; they were boys and girls who would not in days to come be blown and kicked about by the winds of fate. When they reach manhood and womanhood they will neither be overbearing nor proud in their own conceit, but they will be men and women whose anchors will be grounded in a firm foundation and good citizens and leaders of their generation."

Fine Attendance Record

Mr. Good then presented the teachers with gifts from the children, and to Phyllis Plane and Nancy Griffin with special prizes for good attendance during the year, they had missed but one Sunday. Pat Plane was also presented with a special prize for 100 per cent attendance during the year, as was Barry McCann for two years' 100 per cent attendance.

The rector tendered thanks to the Ladies' Guild W.A. through their presidents, Mrs. E. T. Naylor and Mrs. Bigelow, for providing such a sumptuous supper; to Mr. Rothwell, principal of the public school and too all who worked to make the evening such a success.

With the bursting of balloons and the laughter of children, the party came to a close.

Cannifton-Corbyville P. S.

In observance of the Christmas season an enjoyable concert was held at the Cannifton-Corbyville Public School on Thursday evening and despite the unpleasant weather there was a large attendance of parents and other community residents.

The program was as follows:

Recitation, "Ring a Tinkle," song "What Do We Have at Christmas Time?" and a playlet by the pupils of the primary room, song "Toy Maker's Dream," by grades 2, 3, and 4, reading "Charitable," by Billy McDonald, song, Frosty the Snowman" by the senior pupils, play, "Presents for Santa," by grade 2, play "Hail the New Year," by grades 5 and 6, The Virginia Reel was daintily performed by grade 3 and 4 girls. A monologue "Easy Christmas Shopping," by John Plumpton, drill "Magic Tapers" by senior pupils, monologue "Why the Chimes Rang," by Carol Post. "Viewing Christmas in Other Lands," a play by the senior pupils, song, "Angels We Have on High," by grades 5 and 6, play, "Strike in Santa Claus Land" by grades 3 and 4, song "Thirty Two Feet and Eight Little Tails" by senior pupils. dialogue "The Littlest Christmas Card," by grades 5 and 6 and a rhythm band selection.

Mrs. Boyd kindly acted as piano accompanist for the musical numbers.

At the conclusion of the program the jovial prophecies of the chairman, Mr. Clarence Bird, were fulfilled by the arrival of Santa with presents and treats for all the children.

Alexanders Reveal They Have Adopted Daughter

One of the best kept secrets of the governor-general's family is a secret no longer. For two and a half years little Susan was a member of Viscount Alexander's household but no one knew she was the adopted daughter of the Viscount and Lady Alexander. At a Christmas party at an Ottawa convent reporters found the family together and found out the relationship. So, the Alexanders, none too happy about the revelation, but resigned to the fact it would be known some day, posed for this photo with daughter Susan, now aged four. She was adopted at the age of two. — Central Press Canadian.

Centenary-Aikens Home-School Assoc. Enjoys Christmas Party

After a short business meeting, a most successful Christmas party was enjoyed by the Centenary Aikens Home and School Association.

A program prepared by J. Sargeant, H. Hollomby and Charlie Smith consisted of community singing of carols from slides operated by W. Slavin and accompanied by Mrs. Harold Hollomby.

The Aikens school rhythm band directed by Miss McEwan, presented "In a Winter Wonder Land" and "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

Charlie Smith sang "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise" and "Bye Bye Black Bird" using bones and castinets, and accompanied by Mrs. Hollomby at the piano and Mr. Keith Roblin with the banjo.

Five little girls of Centenary, Dawn Woods, Donna May, Ruth Slavin, Barbara Vader and Helen Hart in costume, sang, "Decorating the Christmas Tree."

Miss R. Marshall sang "O Holy Night"; Mr. Smith, Mrs. Hollomby and Mr. Roblin entertained with "Four Leaf Clover," "Heart Breaker" and For Me and My Gal."

A series of games, passing the box, a relay over and under, a blindfold obstacle race, a balloon volley ball game, and a clothes line relay, kept everybody busy and in gales of laughter.

The final item was the mesmerizing of Elwin Hart by 'Swami' Harold Hollomby.

Britain's Norah Herdsman Has Full-time Job Making Yule Verses, Fairy Tales

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)—For grey-haired, 60-year-old Norah Herdsman, the Christmas season has a special meaning.

In millions of homes throughout Britain and the Commonwealth, products of her year's work bring happy smiles to the faces of adult and child alike.

On every December journey from her three-roomed apartment in a London suburb, to her office near Hyde Park, this short, rosy-cheeked woman sees holly-trimmed windows displaying Christmas cards with rhymes she has created. And in every toy shop or bookstall with a child's book counter, there are fairy tales she has written or edited.

For 23 years now, Oxford-educated Miss Herdsman has been editor for a British firm that produces greeting cards and illustrated booklets.

Big Export Business

Every year, throughout Britain, people buy cards she has worded to send to friends and family in Canada and other countries. Products of her work are exported to agencies throughout the Commonwealth.

It still gives her a thrill of pleasure to open greetings from her own friends and relatives and find the card is one she has had a hand in creating.

But like any other, the job can have its difficult moments. Imagine being asked on a sweltering July day, when close-by Hyde Park looks invitingly green and cool, to rattle off a Christmas carol for a new snow scene just going into production.

"Cards run in fashions like anything else," Miss Herdsman said in an interview. "Sometimes the vogue is long sentimental verses, other years a humorous card may be the best seller." A popular choice now is a card for relatives.

Pay Big Prices

"I've known people who obviously couldn't afford it, pay up to 5s. for a card to mother," she said.

One of the most difficult tasks in editiong is to fit such fairy tales as "Little Red Riding Hood" into small illustrated booklets measuring about four inches square. The story must be worked around pictures carried in the corner of every page.

"We sometimes have to count every letter to make it fit," she said. "The logical precision of a child's mind demands that the picture should illustrate the words on the page." This means cutting the story fine in places and padding in others.

Another headache is fitting a story under a picture that takes up two-thirds of the page.

"You've no idea how difficult it is to write "Jack and the Bean Stalk" in about 100 words," said Miss Hardsman.

REJECT MAJORITY REPORT

Toronto, Dec. 24—CP—A mass union membership meeting of Consumers Gas Company employees yesterday rejected the majority report of a conciliation board which recommended no wage increases.

They left the calling of a strike vote in the hands of the executive of Local 161, International Chemical Workers Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C,) The union made it clear that it was determined to win a wage increase, by a strike if necessary.

Best Thing to Do—Relax and Enjoy it

MARMORA

Home-School Association Holds Christmas Party

Marmora—The December meeting of Marmora Home and School Association, taking the form of a Christmas party, was held in the public school on Wednesday evening. Mrs. R. Frost, president, occupied the chair. There was a good attendance of parents.

The meeting opened in the customary manner with secretarial and treasurer's duties being carried out by Mesdames L. McGinniss and M. Kouri.

The president announced that there would be a bake sale and white elephant table at the January meeting to augment funds. Following attendance being taken by Principal E. C. Prentice the chair was turned over to Mrs. E. Manchester for the entertainment period.

The school choir under the direction of Miss Wurm, music teacher sang three seasonable numbers in fine manner.

Christmas Contest

Prizes for best answers to a Christmas contest went to Mrs. C. Paranuik and W. J. Cottrell. A panel discussion in "What we do not know about Christmas" followed with the following ladies participating—Mrs. B. McKenzie, Mrs. L. McGinniss, Mrs. H. Rennie and Mrs. R. E. Neal.

Miss Georgina Cole of the public school staff then recited the Christmas story which was interspersed by the rendition of four carols.

An earnest and descriptive talk on "Christmas Time in Holland" was given by Mr. W. Bakker, who has been a resident of Canada for only five and one half months.

A vote of thanks to all taking part in the program was voiced by Miss H. Taft, of the public school staff.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served.

MERRY MAKERS

The fourth meeting of the Merry Makers Working with Wool girls club, was held at the home of Marilyn Fritz, recently.

Following a business discussion, patterns were laid on the material and pinned in place ready, for basting at the next meeting which will be held at the home of Joan Wood, on January 4th.

Refreshments were served.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Prayer for Peace . . at Christmas-time

An appealing message, like a prayer, on a serenely beautiful Christmas card this year:

"May the Joy and Hope of long ago
Be yours on Christmas Day,
And Peace like a benediction,
Go with you on your way."

"I wish you good cheer, and a Happy New Year!"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Instead of sending Christmas cards this year I'd like to send New Year's messages to my most intimate friends. I've been very ill, have now fully recovered, and want to begin the New Year by seeing my friends again! I have bought some cards that have no messages either on the cover or on the inside pages—only a quite lovely etching of a beautiful doorway, which I thought I might make the idea of the "door-way" into the New Year. I have saved so many lines of poetry you have quoted from time to time in your column, and I am wondering if in your "collection" you have some lines that I might use, adaptable to the cards. Thank you so much for any suggestion.—Helena B.

I have some lines tucked away in my heart which I do think would be most particularly and delightfully appropriate for just the use you want. . . I've always cherished these lines, for their quaint charm and engaging simplicity. They were written, I believe, by the beloved Kate Greenaway. And here they are:

"Once more, once more I knock at your door;
I ring your bell and hope all's well;
I wish you good cheer, and a
Happy New Year!"

Wedding-rings Questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In a double ring ceremony, in what order are the rings given? And do I wear my engagement ring during the ceremony? If so, where?—Bride-to-be.

Before the ring part of the ceremony the best man hands the bride's ring to the bridegroom, and then your attendants hands the bridegroom's ring to you. (Or sometimes the best man takes charge of both rings.)

During the ceremony the bride usually wears her engagement ring on her right hand (although she may, if she prefers, leave it at home). She must not, during the ceremony, wear her engagement ring on "the" finger of her left hand. . . . for the wedding ring must be put first on this finger, in the ceremony and "forever after."

DELIGHTFUL self detail makes the trimming on some of the season's best afternoon dresses, designs that can appear season after season and always look right. One such dress is shown here, a model in tissue faille. Crush pleated self bandings that terminate in bows are inset at the sides of the bodice and there are little jeweled buttons and a contour belt. A front panel flares away from the overwise slim silhouette.

London, Dec. 24 (Reuters) — British customs officials are checking all parcels of Christmas tree glass balls arriving from the United States. Reason—when a parcel burst open in a London post office some balls broke. Inside each was a pair of nylons.

Food for Thought

'Twas the Day Before Christmas

By Mary Moore

Have I your permission today—Christmas Eve—to step a little way out of my role of cook, and instead of trying to entice you to strive to be ever better cooks, have a friendly one-sided chat on entertaining your friends and putting your heart in it?—whether the food be biscuits or ambrosia.

Guests sense whether the welcome is genuine or not. Christmas is the ideal time to go "the second mile". Everybody in the family should go along to meet the out-of-town guests at the depot, or rush to the curb when a carful drives up in front of your house. Don't be an arm-chair receptionist.

At this time of year we forget completely the cynic who mutters into his overworked mouldy old beard "They wouldn't come unless the food was better here than in their own house? Forget that tiring old line.

They come because they love you and you love them and both of you crave some top quality sociability.

These are the occasions you have been slaving all month for—over the cookies and cakes you have been making by the millions (if your letters are any guide).

So be quick to snap on the kettle and start passing those cookies—don't let the first part of a visit lag. Start some fun at once so that the entire visit is exciting.

The gal who wrote the following paragraph in a letter to me has the idea:

"Again I am coming to you for help. This time instead of ice cream recipes for Labor Day weekend guests I'd like to have some menu that would be dainty and "Different" when some friends come in unexpectedly for lunch and I am rushed for time. . ."

I think I have the ideal little gem of a meal for her. Most of us can have or have all the required supplies on hand most of the time.

Lobster Newburg on Toasted Crackers or Toast Triangles
Stuffed Celery Sticks
Carrot Slivers
Dills
Apricots on Blanc Mange
Swedish Cookies
Tea

This little meal was served to me—out of two cans of lobster I had brought to my hostess when I came back from Halifax. She was thoughtful in producing something just perfect for the occasion from something I had given her months before. It was a pleasant experience all round.

LOBSTER NEWBURG

Two one-half lb. cans lobster, 1 cup cream or 1 can evaporated milk and 1-4 cup water, 2 beaten egg yolks, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, paprika. In top of double boiler put the coarsely broken up lobster (from which you have removed the flat bones) and 3 tablespoons of the butter and heat over boiling water. Stir the flour into the other tablespoon of butter in another small saucepan and when mixed stir the cream into them until thick. As soon as it boils remove from heat and pour over the beaten yolks. Quickly add the hot lobster, butter and seasonings, stir and serve at once. Do not reheat—it might curdle.

SUPERIOR BLANC MANGE

In top of double boiler heat 2 cups milk. Mix together 1-4 cup milk, 4 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt; stir slowly into hot milk until thick. Cover and cook 30 minutes over boiling water, stirring every 10 minutes. Remove from heat and add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Chill in serving glasses; serve generously covered with canned apricots.

If we all remember Whose birthday it is we are celebrating we can't fail to have a Merry Christmas!

PRESERVING YOUTHFUL LINES

Don't wait until you are forty to think about your figure, you thirty-year-olds. Forty is an attractive age because, by that time, a woman has learned a lot about the power of charm and amiability. But it is a danger period as far as the silhouette is concerned. Unless a girl is naturally slender, or has had a real interest in physical education and outdoor sports, it may happen that last year's frock won't zip for sour apples, a few inches may be added to the hip measurement and the reflection in the full-length mirror will not add to the joy of living.

Do something before those forty candles twinkle on the birthday cake, especially if you are a career girl, sitting all day at desk or typewriter. If there is no time for getting out in the open, devote a few minutes each day to a simple calisthenics workout. You'd hate it? You'll hate middle-aged bulges worse, so why not have a little foresight and beat Old Meanie Time at his obnoxious game of spoiling feminine figures?

It is the woman of normal weight and normal proportions who has the light step and moves with grace. Even a small amount of excess adipose luggage will slow up movements. Normal weight is conducive to health. Take pride in keeping to the right figure. If the bathroom scales report that you are gaining, take warning. A few pounds now, a few more later on, and you are on your waddling way.

Women of the stage and screen, for whom good appearance is necessary, realize the need of proper diet, good health habits, long hours of sleep and a certain amount of exercise. These things not only keep the body young, but have a vitalizing effect upon the spirits. Regard exercise as a form of play and you will look forward to a daily workout of five or ten minutes.

To keep the midsection from following a policy of expansion, lie on your back on the floor, placing your feet under a heavy piece of furniture. Lift the upper portion of your body slowly, until you are in a sitting position. Back slowly to first position. It may not be easy at first. You may bump your head on the downward movement, but what is a bump or two in the grand and glorious cause of pulchritude?

The movements pull hard on the muscles of waist, thighs and hips and it is precisely on those areas that fat cells build their colonies. Fat cells will not abide on strong muscles.

Fashion Flashes

A NICE SOFTENER for a silk or velvet theatre suit fashioned on simple lines is a jabot of nylon tulle, in a wide butterfly shape, sprinkled with rhinestones or sequins.

OF COURSE there is plenty of color in the new resort collections, but black is a big favorite. A charming evening dress has a short-sleeved, deep V-necked bodice of black net with white lace overlaid in a cross-bar effect—the lace worked into points below the waistline. The lace is spattered with tiny rhinestones. The skirt is of black net, short and billowy.

GOOD for all-day wear is a dress of wool in a tiny checked pattern—in black, blue, yellow and pink—which gives a pretty, colorful effect. Dress fastens to below the waist with jeweled buttons, is slim of line, has hidden pockets in the slightly peg-top skirt, and is a budget beauty.

A SURE-FIRE HIT for Spring is bound to be the tailored suit in heavy silks, many of them ribbed or corded. Nearly every good house is showing many such suits, and buyers are ordering well. Mainly they are done on soft, classical lines and come in pastels and jewel colors as well as the more conventional hues.

AT EASE clothes are prettier than ever, making home life even sweeter! Huge marabou cuffs that extend from elbow to wrist add charm to an otherwise quite simple robe o fsheer wool. Robe comes in pastel colors, and has a chiffon lining. Tiny stand-up collar, full skirt and self tie belt are other details.

LONG ABSENT from the Winter scene, the muff is staging a nice come-back, perhaps because of the popularity of the all-fabric coat. Anyway, muffs—in the inexpensive, middle, and luxury brackets—are all moving well, say the stores. A beauty is a long, narrowing muff of mink with little cuffs finishing the ends.

A CHARMER is a short-skirted evening dress of gray nylon net over white. The deep-necklined bodice has a wide fichu that forms sleeves and is gathered into a cluster of white pique, rhinestone-spattered flowers. Similar flowers, small and large, are scattered over the bodice and the full, stiffened skirt.

MUCH MORE FORMALITY than has been seen in many seasons seems to dominate new resort fashions. A typical ensemble includes a princess coat of heavy silk shantung in gray with a matching dress trimmed with gray lace over pink satin.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This father doesn't want his children to have a Christmas

What kind of quirk is it in a man that makes him want to deprive his children of things every normal father wants his children to have? A young married woman of 25 thinks the reason her husband behaves in this way is because he is jealous of his children.

"We have two wonderful children, four-and-a-half and three," she writes, "but my husband has very peculiar ideas about the way to treat them.

"He doesn't seem to understand that it is only right to give children loving. It isn't that he does not love them. I wouldn't say that. But he claims I overdo it and says that I treat the children better than I do him. I just can't understand how a father can be so jealous of his own children. He also says that the less you give them, the more they will like you."

This curious attitude on the father's part goes a long way beyond a mere reluctance to show them any affection, since it extends even to providing them with actual necessities. Psychologists, however, would probably say that his depriving them of material things is merely the outward and visible sign of his unusual mental slant.

Jealous of Children

"He gets angry when I buy things for the children," the wife continues. "If I get them shoes, he tells me I spend too much for them and that I could have gotten them cheaper at the second-hand store. I want my children to have new clothes, and I don't think it is fair of him to want them to wear second-hand things all the time. He says 'They don't work; why should they have new things?'. He buys himself new clothes, though, and if I say anything about that, he says he bought them with his own money. As for myself, I haven't had any thing new since I have been married."

What seems worst of all right now, however, is that this troubled mother says, "He won't let the children have a Christmas." Then she continues: "He says he never hung up his stocking or had any toys, and never knew what it was to have a Christmas himself. Last year, the children didn't have anything at all for Christmas that Santa Claus is supposed to bring. They got a few gifts from others but nothing from us. But my husband bought himself two expensive shirts, and said he had a right to do it because he is the one that works.

"Should I go against him and give the children a Christmas this year, or disappoint them?"

If I were this mother, I would not think of disappointing my children at Christmas, no matter how much trouble it caused with my husband. If necessary, I think I would take the children and go to some relative's house, if possible, where they would have a chance to really get into the spirit of Christmas, and be treated as children should be treated on that day. I hope this mother will find some way of doing this.

As for the husband, it seems pretty clear that he is taking out on his children the frustrations of his own childhood. He never had a Christmas, so that early deprivation takes itself out in a refusal to give his children one.

Obviously, such a state of mind needs a thorough overhauling by some one qualified to do the job. I advise this young woman to seek help for this most unhappy family situation from some welfare organization in the big city near which she lives.

2nd Cub Pack Holds Annual Christmas Party

Belleville's 2nd Cub Pack held its annual Christmas party in Christ Church Parish Hall on Thursday evening with a fine attendance of Cubs, parents and friends.

The program consisted of a variety of songs, skits, recitations with the highlight of the evening being the Christmas story, entitley "Holy Night". This was followed by a film, "The Littlest Angel" presented by Mr. J. Churchill, of Foxboro, and was much appreciated.

The Pack's good turn for Christmas was the presentation of a basket of food to Canon J. B. Creeggan to be distributed to the needy.

Santa Claus made his most welcome appearance and soon the lovely Christmas tree was stripped and its colorful gifts presented to the eager recipients.

Refreshments provided by the Cub mothers, brought a happy evening to a close.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

I found her aboriginal simplicity anything but refreshing. She must have felt my restlessness for she grew quiet.

"Cetan, within me your son struggles to be free. You will not see him born. You shall reach Yellow Hair, and live to see your son.

"You think I am light of head and heart in this sad time but I am not. Yunke-lo stands by our tipi flap but you will live."

"You said Death stood by the tipi flap?"

"He stands there," she answered, gravely "but I am not afraid. Yunke-lo always stands by the tipi flap when the young are born. Sometimes he enters. Mostly he stays outside. But I am not afraid."

You may put it down to anything you will; nerves, ignorance fear, hysteria; but when Star saw Yunke-lo standing outside our tipi, I knew he was standing there. I knew why he was standing there. And I knew for whom he stood.

He stood for Star.

With dawn I left her before the guards might come for me, striding off up the village street, alone and free.

Behind me, materializing out of the ground mists, trotted Sitting Bull's watchdogs, 30 silent Hunkpapa, grinning like a pack of waiting wolves trailing a wounded buffalo bull.

I halted before the somber lodge of the medicine man, calling out in a voice which carried the length of the sleeping camp. "Come out, Tatanka Yotanka! I am ready for your yellow dogs! It is the son of Tashunka Witko who waits here."

Within seconds the camp was alive, warriors tumbling half-dressed from their tipis, squaws hurrying up the street tugging on deerskin dresses, children running naked. Soon the crowd was hundreds deep and old Sitting Bull, probably all the while peering narrowly through his tipi flap judging the proper dramatic time, made his entrance.

No time was frittered away. Sitting Bull led the crowding pack out of the village up onto the flats east of the river. I could see the course had been carefully selected. As far as I could see over the area into which I must flee, the ground was covered with the small, flat, needle-spined cacti the Indians call "little green quill-pigs." I found my dislike of Sitting Bull enjoying a healthy enlargement.

Tatanka Yotanka was not the foe to overlook the leastt refinement of the odds in his favor. of the odds in his favor.

The 50 braves who were to pursue me were selected on a volunteer basis. It is enough to say the number of those willing to have a try at heaving a lance into me were legion.

I was pleased to note the first to leap to the call was my erstwhile chum, Yellow Bird.

It is an odd quirk in the human make-up but a true one that when a best friend turns against you, you hate him for it with a genuineness reserved above all other hates. On his part Yellow Bird may have felt the same way, though I could see nothing personal for him in my declaration-of-intention to go to Custer.

"Take off your moccasins," the reedy voice of Sitting Bull ordered. I did his bidding, disdainfully kicking the skins free, being careful to shy them at him. My medicine was good. The second of the flying footgear took him full in the face.

Someone guffawed, for the Indian democracy is a real one, the followers having no fear of the leaders.

"Take your 10 steps." His voice was level, controlled. My nerves tightened in response to it.

I began to step and the Indian crowd to chant the count aloud: "Wance, nunpa, yamini, dopa—"

I thought, easing into the tenth stride, if anyone jumped the gun it was going to be—

"—wicksemna!" yelled the crowd, as my reaching foot touched the ground. And "A-ah!" came Sitting Bull's signal shout, so close on top of it as to seem unseparated.

But neither the yelled count nor Sitting Bull's shout came soon enough. Before either reached my ears I was running, that tenth step, far from anticipating the expected pause, being in effect my starting jump.

It gained me five yards over the pack at my heels, each yard at the moment measuring not space but life-span.

The first driving strides of my bare feet among the carpeting cacti brought stabbing, searing pains. But I had more than pains stabbing me soon enough. At least a score of lances whistled by me to ricochet crazily off the stony ground or stick quivering in the sun-baked earth. Two of them grazed me, one my thigh, one my side, bringing blood but no retarding injury. Instead they brought hope, for I knew their owners, over-anxious for the kill had literally thrown away their chances with their lances, any weapon-retriving stop at the present pace being enough to force them out of the contest.

After the first flurry, no more lances were hurled. Either the weapons or I had opened up sufficient ground to put me out of range. An overshoulder glance as I topped the first ridge of the foothills, confirmed the latter hope. The main pack was 100 yards behind. Fifty yards back ran a clump of five Cheyenne headed by Black Wolf, a famous runner among them. These braves were all running well but using so much wind in uttering their tribe's frantic wolf howls, I felt they would tire.

A scant 25 yards behind me loped a lean Sioux, running easily yet with speed to match my own, stride for desperate stride. As this one saw me throw my look, he yelled, "Fly fast, Hawk. Yellow Bird flies faster!" Five miles were covered then 10.

I figured if Custer had made an early start I had 40 miles to go. I had no illusion about running that far and knew no Indian to be capable of it either. My first objective had been accomplished: the outdistancing of the main pack. The six Cheyenne were still in the race as was Yellow Bird, but the latter had fallen 100 yards behind while the former were a good mile back. In fact I hadn't seen them for several minutes.

The country ahead began to flatten out. Five miles of open prairie lay between me and the next range of hills. At the base of this range a ribbon of foliage announced a stream, the Sweetwater. To reach it became my next goal.

In the flat, I began to falter. At the same time Yellow Bird came on stronger. At three miles he had closed to 50 yards. At four to 25. With the river a short mile ahead, 10 yards separated us. Nothing I had been able to do, no effort of mind or muscle, had staved off his closing rush. Behind him, also coming stronger, Black Wolf and his Cheyenne had closed to half a mile.

My bones, muscles, every fiber and tendon strained. But Yellow Bird had me. Ten yards fell to three.

"You are going to die now, Cetan!" His voice screeched with exhaustion.

The urge to look was too much.

As I turned it was to see Yellow Bird's lance-arm drawn far back, the razor bladed weapon speeding toward my back even as I stumbled and fell. The lance whistled through the space where I had been a moment before, hurtled over my head, shattered itself on an outcropping of granite not three feet from my face. Yellow Bird's momentum of both running and throwing carried him into my falling body, his knees striking my back and side to send him flying over me to smash into the dirt practically on top of me. Had the manoeuvre been rehearsed I couldn't have sent him sprawling more beautifully.

My pursuer had thrown and missed, collided with me and gone down in turn, and the lance had been broken in two, leaving three feet of the haft on the blade end.

Perhaps Yellow Bird struck his head on the ground in falling. Perhaps the fall knocked the wind out of him. At any rate, I clawed my way over his impeding form, seizing the spearhead of the lance before he could recover. As he got his hands under him to come up, I raised the lance blade high over my head, grasping the shortened haft in both hands.

His head came up, following his body. For one startled second his gaze mirrored the picture he was to take with him to another land.

"Woyuonlhan," groaned Yellow Bird.

"H'g-un," I answered. "You ran better than I."

"No one ever appreciated me the way you do!" He grinned, and he died.

I looked up at the sound of slogging moccasins. Black Wolf was upon me, his five companions not 200 yards behind him. The Cheyenne was weary. He made a bad lunge. As I rolled over the body of Yellow Bird to escape Black Wolf's lance, I ripped the dead brave's knife from his belt—the same lean Spanish blade I'd used against Slatemeyer.

Black Wolf saw it coming, saw the blue arc of the knife sweeping up at him. But he was off balance following the missed plunge of his lance-stroke. The Cheyenne lacked the iron of a true warrior. He screamed like a woman.

For a weird minute I considered taking on five Cheyenne lancers with an eight inch blade. Now my mind cleared as I ran toward the river, wondering what I was going to do when I reached it.

The question was still unanswered when I hit the bank of the Sweetwater, turned right, scurrying down its edge for a clump ofwillowandcott clump of willow and cottonwood. Then, as I staggered up a rise, I saw beyond that grove the stream was backed up by a beaver dam. Perhaps 50 of the animals' stick-and-mud lodges dotted the pond's expanse. Here was my last slim chance. I could not run on. I was done.

Claims Instinct Not Enough To Choose Mate

New York, (AP)—A woman marriage broker said recently the trouble with matrimony in America is "the helter-skelter romance."

Miss Edna Wilder makes a business of bringing together wife-seeking men and husband-seeking women.

It's a booming industry, and she believes it deserves more respect than it often gets from the general public.

"Many people who laugh at the idea of going to a marriage broker are the ones who most need to go to one," she said firmly.

Miss Wilder said the high divorce rate in the United States is due to the fact that too many young people depend on instinct alone in choosing a mate.

"The marriage broker eliminates the helter-skelter romance," she said.

"Arranged marriages are three to four times as enduring as marriages based solely on instinct, because the people who go into them are more sincere. They know what they want, and they have gone to a lot of trouble and expense to get it."

Miss Wilder is executive director of the American Association of Marriage Brokers. The organization recently held its first annual convention here to adopt a code of ethics and launch a drive to win greater public confidence.

"Sixty per cent of our clients are women, and about 40 per cent are men," she said. "This is because there are more women than men, and also because women are more marriage-minded. They take it more seriously. It is the men who are most interested in superficial romance."

Variety of Clients

Who goes to a marriage broker? Well, they don't usually announce it, but—

"Parents with 18-year-old daughters or sons in college come to us. So do people right up into the 70s and 80s. We've had widowed clients looking forward to a third or fourth marriage. They're sold on the marital status.

"But mostly they are women in their late 20s or early 30s, and men in their early or late 30s. Usually they have become weary of frivolous dates, the rat-race of ordinary social gatherings. They want help in finding someone with their town tastes in life."

The rates of marriage brokers vary. In New York they contract to arrange 10 appointments between people of similar background for a set fee. In other sections they limit their services to a period of time—such as three months—after which a new contract must be made.

The fees? The average: girls from 20 to 30—$100; from 30 to 40—$150; from 40 years up—$200. Men, the lucky creatures, only have to pay a flat $50. That shows who is looking for whom.

The most common complaint made by a woman client after her first arranged date:

"Do you really think it's worthwhile going through all this just to get a husband?"

But Miss Wilder says the marriage brokers have a high batting average.

"About eight out of every ten people who come to us get married," she said. "The other two are probably adventurers. We make an honest effort to check our clients, but sometimes fortune hunters do creep in.

"But the fortune hunters are among the men. The women are looking for more than money in marriage."

That's what the lady says, and she's looking for the right man herself.

Anne Gray, Blind Musician, Gets Diploma

Toronto, CP)—Anne Gray, organist and pianist, has earned an associate certificate from the Royal Conservatory of Music. Other young persons received certificates too, but it was a special event in the life of Anne. She is blind.

To pass the test, which qualifies her as a teacher or solo instrumentalist, she played four difficult compositions.

Anne was born 23 years ago in Westport, near Brockville, Ont. She has had only a small percentage of vision since birth.

Ten years ago she began to study music. For seven of those ten years she was a student of the pipe organ.

Anne transcribes the notes of printed music into a Braille text. The strenuous mental exercise involved impressed the scores firmly upon her memory.

She not only had to play the organ, but know the mechanics of the instrument as well. She learned this by running her fingers over the instrument's mechanism.

Her immediate ambition is to become a church organist. A week's preapration is sufficient for her to offer several new compositions.

Anne's laugh is as gay as a summer day. She was almost as proud of her white gown and corsage as of the parchment that crowned 10 years of hard work.

School Opening At Barrhead Is Celebrated

Barrhead, Alta. (CP)—Opening of a new library is usually a cut-and-dried affair but the youngsters really whooped it up in this small community north of Edmonton.

More than 1,300 students and many parents attended the opening of the second regional library in Alberta. The contention was that the opening was most important to young people, and it was the young people who turned out in force.

Twenty-six school buses brought them to the modern Barrhead school. It was a school holiday in the district and the boys and girls made the most of the opportunity.

They swarmed through the corridors, inspected the art exhibits displayed by various districts, had their fill of hot hot dogs and soft drinks and heard speeches by government officials. It was topped off by a program of basketball, boxing, tumbling, movies and dancing.

The library, in a section of its own in the new Barrhead school, serves a wide area. Persons who attended the opening bought library memberships at $1 each, and the money will be used to expand the original stock of books.

WASSAIL RECIPE

Seventeenth century concoctions served in "wassail bowls" are still being used in Britain. One old-time recipe (favorite of pre-ration days) for "lamb's wool" calls for a mixture of ale, roasted apples, sugar and spice, eggs, thick cream, and pieces of bread.

Wide Range of Gifts Problem To Male Shoppers in London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—Jostling crowds of menfolk, hunting Christmas presents for wives and sweethearts, seem more worried this year by the wide range of possibilities than over previous shortages.

At most gift counters this festive season, men are seen frowning in concentration over perfumes, cosmetics, jewelry, handbags and other bric-a-bric. This is one time when many of them would be glad if things were as scarce as they are, say, in a butcher shop.

Each lunchtime, men, and even boys under 20, stand before handbag counters choosing from displays ranging in price from 35s to around £20.

Many attractive bags can be bought for less than £3 and good leather models costs less than £6. A handy gift is a zipper travelling jewel case in colored morocco or pigskin leather, lined attractively with satin padding. These are priced from 38s 6d. to around five guineas, depending on size.

For those who can afford an outlay of around £20, one of the most attractive jewel sets is a bracelet and earrings in handet marcasite and silver—a thing of delicate design and craftsmanship. Jewelled with synthetic sapphires or emeralds, the set has the low-brilliance look, which is the latest Paris choice, and the price is $18.

Elegant umbrellas with a mayfair look and down-to-earth price tag are long, slim and metal-tipped, in a wide variety of targans and small checks.

Costing little more than the umbrellas are cocktail gloves in soft leathers and delicate pastel shades. One example is an elbow-length glove in rich purple, notched attractively up the arm.

A useful innovation for suede gloves are knitted wool linings. Costing nearly £1 a pair, the gloves are made with contrasting wool linings—wine with pink, mauve with blue, and so on.

For the woman who travels a lot, a good choice is a collapsible hat box costing less than £1. With plastic, detachable sides, the boxes can be packed into a space only one inch deep.

Flexible cosmetic containers, which can be squeezed but are not breakable, solve the problem of packing liquid cosmetics. And for the men who prefer to give the cosmetics themselves, there are myriads of attractive gift boxes and cosmetic cases, many prices under 10s.

A good choice is six fragrant sachets, lovely for wardrobes and clothing drawers, and a perfume bottle cosily cased for travel in a satin-lined, green leather case.

Elinor Lipper Says Russians Can't Escape

Montreal, (CP)—Elinor Lipper, an attractive brunette who spent 11 years in Russian prison camps, in an interview here told reporters some of her experiences behind the Iron Curtain. A native of Switzerland, she said she found that citizens of Soviet Russia have "almost no chance of escaping" their country.

"The west is receiving between 20,000 and 30,000 refugees each month from Soviet satellite states but there's only a one to a million chance for any Soviet citizen to come over."

Miss Lipper, visiting Canada and the United States under the auspices of the International Rescue Committee, a group which seeks to help refugees from Iron Curtain countries, was a prisoner for eight years in Siberia and three years in other Russian prisons.

She said she went to Russia as a member of a communist youth organization. She was arrested shortly afterwards and sent to prison. She was released in 1948 and made her way across the Soviet Union back to Switzerland where she now lives.

Miss Lipper said prisoners in Siberian slave-labor camps never discuss the possibility of escape because no such possibility exists.

"We in the slave camps were no different from Russians who were living freely in various areas. Nobody anywhere talks of leaving. . ."

Miss Lipper, who looks much younger than her 39 years, was Russian zone of Germany by American troops.

DEVIL'S KNELL TOLLED

Seven hundred years ago in the English town of Dewsbury, in Yorkshire, a boy was murdered and his body thrown into a nearby stream. The crime was discovered and the murderer, a rich man name Tmosa e Soothill, presented as a penance a tenor bell to Dewsbury Church. The bell became known as the Devil's Knell and every Christmas eve it is tolled once for each year of the Christian calendar.

ANCIENT CUSTOM PRESERVED

Carolling Yorkshire children still carry a "milly-box," lined with sugar and oranges and containing two small figures. This custom dates back to ancient times when figures of Our Lady and the Holy Child were carried in procession by carol-singers in the northern counties of England. The word "milly" is a corruption of My Lady. In some parts of Yorkshire the box in called a "bessel cup" and the children "go a-wassailling."

HOW CRACKERS BEGAN

When confectioner Tom Smith visited Paris some 70 years ago he saw a French colleague wrap his candles in tissue-paper. Back in Britain that Christmas Tom applied the idea to his sugared almonds and, later, included "loving bessages" in each package. Thus originated the cracker as we know it today.

3.00—EMMANUEL—BBC

A Christmas play written for broadcasting by James Forsyth, telling of the Birth of Christ. It is written in verse and poetic prose, and portrays Herod as a tragic, self-destroying figure, unable to adjust himself to the birth of Emmanuel, which is Hebrew for "God With Us."

4.45—CBC CHILDREN'S PARTY

Byng Whitteker, emcee of a children's show on CJBC Toronto for the last three years, will present stories and music for young listeners. Advance details about the program were not available, but Byng says he plans to play one recorded story and tell another one himself. By the sound of it, the show should please anyone from three to seven.

5.30—JAKE AND THE KID

A special Christmas edition centring around the Crocus Community Christmas Concert, at which Old Galenby is to recite The Shooting of Dan McGrew. Script by W. O. Mitchell (whose writing will be discussed on Friday at 7.45 by Arthur L. Phelps.) Trouble starts when Crocus decides it's had enough of McGrew and Jake refuses to take part in the "old shaganappy concert."

6.25—WEATHER FORECASTS

6.30—SUNSHINE SOCIETY

From Toronto. With Bert Niosi, George Murray, Billy O'Connor, and Dorothy Alt. For this special occasion the other chapters of the society (in Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver) will get into the act via three-minute recorded inserts sent to Toronto for inclusion. Producer Drew Crossan doesn't know what sort of shenanigan the other chapters have planned for their contributions to the show, but the Toronto gang is lining up some snappy Christmas greetings for listeners.

7.00—CHRISTMAS AWAY FROM HOME

The CBC microphone tours the world, from Korea to Hannover, from Gander to Herschel Island, to visit Canadians who are obliged to spend Christmas away from their homes. In Canada there will be broadcasts from the Far North by Liston Burns and Alec McDonald (airborne from Winnipeg) and Bill O'Reilly (airborne from Montreal.) A feature will be a visit to the Eskimo children at Grenfell Hospital serving the St. Anthony North-west River region of Labrador.

11.30—PRELUDE TO DREAMING

RAWDON

Rawdon—Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Bedford, Rawdon, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morrow, Sidney, were among those who attended the Morrow-Robinson wedding in Barrie.

The Rawdon hockey league held an organization meeting in Springbrook Orange hall. The officers elected are: president, Cecil Bateman; secretary treasurer, Rev. H. E. Beare; executive, Messrs. J. Mumby and J. Reid.

Mrs. Carl Clancy attended a Rebekah meeting in Peterborough on Friday evening.

Mrs. E. Chisholm visited at the home of her brother, Mr. German Vandervoort, Wellington, who is ill.

Mr. Lewis Pauley is slowly recuperating from his recent illness.

A few Rawdonians attended the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Reid. Mrs Reid was formerly Annie Ruth, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sine, of Rawdon.

Mrs. Everett Grills spent a few days at Havelock.

Mr. Keith Clancy has been holidaying at Madoc Junction with Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy.

A large number of folk from Rawdon and Sidney township attended the special choral service presented by St. Paul's senior choir on Sunday evening in St. Paul's United Church.

Three Mothers

During the service three mothers with their babes depicted three great conceptions of the Madonna and child, "Madonna Enthroned," when Mrs. A. E. Baker sang "The Slumber of the Madonna;" and Child," when the ladies choir sang, "Jesus is Born," and "Madonna of the Torches" with Miss Irma Campbell and her mother, Mrs. J. Black singing, "O Holy Night."

Mr. R. A. Patterson led in singing Christmas carols.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T., chose "Festival", as prelude, "The Faithful Shepherd" as offertory interlude and "The Shepherd's Watch" as postlude.

The choir rendered Simper's number "Let us Now go Even Unto Bethlehem." and the selection by Smart, "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night." Handel's "O Thou that Tellest" and "The Hallelujah Chorus."

Mr. W. Aylsworth contributed a cornet solo and Mr. Douglas Pyear sang "Star of Bethlehem".

The church was decorated with Christmas greenery, red bows and two lighted Christmas trees. At the close of the service St. Paul's Women's Association served refreshments to the choir in the dining hall and all enjoyed a half hour of fellowship.

Several members of Carmel church are members of the choir, also others from Bethel, Rawdon and Madoc. The choir have been faithful every Sunday and often this means two services.

Mr. William Leury, Bonarlaw, who resides with his son Mr. Ward Leury quietly celebrated his 90th anniversary of his natal day last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Bray of Rochester, N.Y., spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brooks.

Born at Campbellford hospital on Wednesday, December 12th, 1951, to Mr. and Mrs. Don Brown of Hoard's Station (nee Audrey Robson), a son, Rodney Jack.

Mrs. Russell Johnston is ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hubert Andrew, tenth concession.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe, Hoard's, recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMaster and family of Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Paul Sharpe spent last week with Mrs. Clarence Douglas and family, White Lake.

Mrs. Wilmot Maybee received word of the death of her mother, Mrs. Hayes Smedley, Canton, Ohio.

Springbrook Mission Band held a delightful Christmas party at the church and the children entertained their mothers. Gifts and treats for everyone were distributed at the close of the program.

Mrs. Thomas Andrews is spending the winter months in Oshawa, with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Higgs and family.

Miss Jean Post, Fuller, spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Blake Sharpe and Bert.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Campbell attended the Rollins - Matthews nuptials in Christ Church, Belleville.

Over a dozen friends tendered Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver a surprise party at their home last Tuesday evening, and all enjoyed the fun.

Among the relatives who attended the funeral of the late Mrs. John Johnson (one of Rawdon's pioneers) in Mount Pleasant United Church on Saturday afternoon were:

Mr. Ernest MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Freeburn, Norwood; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald MacDonald, Apsley; Mr. Harvey Donald, Mr. Ernest McCook, Mr. Archie McCook, Mr. Gordon Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dunham, Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. John Bateman, Mr. Arthur Bateman, Mrs. Carl Sine, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Blakely, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. A. Young, Gardenville; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rannie and Mrs. Frank Potts, Menie, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs Dave Smith, Glen Ross.

Mr. Jack McEathron is spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Nelson, Ridge Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Summers sang a duet on Sunday evening at Mt. Pleasant United Church.

Mrs. Thomas Andrews spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Scott and family.

Miss Ruth Linn was a recent guest of Miss Barbara Fargey, of West Huntingdon.

Mrs. A. Waring spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. Will Potts. She returned to her home in Picton on Saturday. Mrs. Waring has been holidaying with relatives in the North West.

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Wrightman, Walter and Allan attended a birthday party Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Gray, Trenton.

Christmas greetings to editor, staff, correspondents and readers.

PUNCHES BUS DRIVER

Oshawa, Dec. 22 — (CP) — Vincent McCabe has his own way of drawing attention to his complaints of inadequate bus service for surburban Oshawa residents. He punched a bus company inspector in the jaw.

He was fined $5 and costs on a charge of assault.

McCabe said he 'knew he was going to be up for assaulting some of these drivers" and said he didn't see why he had to walk half a mile to catch a bus every morning.

Magistrate Frank S. Ebbs told McCabe he should have spoken to city council instead of slugging the inspector.

PEACE ON EARTH

There's so much more than expensive gifts and festive parties to make a Christmas merry! More than anything, it is the warmth and cheer of neighbors and friends who join in wishing you the hearty, sincere greetings of the Season.

It is the spirit of brotherhood expressed by the Day itself . . . the hopes and aspirations of mankind for peace on earth, unto all men good will -- to which we would like to add our best wishes for a very Merry Christmas!

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Another milestone along the track to Eternity has been reached. May the spiked shoes of adversity stay not your stride and as the Great Umpire waves you across the Yuletide plate may you be greeted with the merriest, happiest of all Christmases. And may your journey around the base-paths of another year be not halted by the foul tips of a world wallowing in the throes of uncertainty.

Compliments of the Season

Last-Minute Touchdown Wins Pro Football Title for Rams

By PETE ARTHUR

Los Angeles, Dec. 24 (AP) — Pro football's three master passers met in Memorial Coliseum Saturday, but two of them ganged up on the third. As a result, the Los Angeles Rams are the new champions of the National Football League.

It was just about a standoff between Otto Graham of Cleveland's Browns and Bob Waterfield of the Rams. Between them, they had fashioned a 17-17 tie in the waning minutes of a great ball game.

Then young Norman Van Brocklin, the Flying Dutchman from Oregon, took over from Waterfield. And on one great toss, gathered in by Tommy Fears for a net gain of 73 yards, the Rams busted a long-standing jinx wide open and whipped the Browns 24-17.

First In Five Years

It was the Rams' first victory over Cleveland in five tries, and their first championship since 1945—although they have been in the playoff three years running.

Despite a bruising clash which left 59,475 spectators limp, the Rams still had a little left — enough to pack their 275-pound coach, Jumbo Joy Stydahar, off the field on their shoulders. "Great, great—great boys," muttered the mammoth one.

It was a game full of highlights and tense moments. The record crowd saw passing wizardry, fine running, a 52-yard field goal, a touchdown called back by a penalty, just about everything a football game can offer.

Pay-Off Pitch

But the payoff pitch was the big play of the day. Cleveland had just tied it up, and Van Brocklin had stepped in to give the tiring Waterfield a rest. With the ball on his own 27-yard mark, the lanky quarterback dropped back. He had perfect protection as Fears raced downfield, then veered toward the sideline.

Two Baron backs were waiting. But Fears wasn't to be denied. He went into the air, took the ball away from both defenders, and came down at full speed. The goal was nearly 40 yards away, but he made it without breaking stride.

"That Fears," said Cleveland coach Paul Brown afterward, "was the difference today." And Brown had a point. Tommy took three other passes during the afternoon, for a total of 146 yards.

Of the crowd, which topped the 58,346 who watched the Giants and the Chicago Bears play off at the Polo Grounds in 1946, 57,540 were paid.

Gross receipts, including nation wide television (except for a local blackout) and radio, hit $325,970; the net was $223,644 and the players took down 70 per cent, or $156,551.

This means $2,108 to each of the Rams, $1,482 to each of the Browns.

Gerry Desjardin Has Broken Leg; Trumble Wears Cast

Gerry Desjardins, speedy winger of the senior Hawks hockey club, is probably lost to the team for the season. Desjardins' injury in Peterborough Friday night turned out more serious than was at first thought. He has suffered a broken leg and has had the member placed in a cast.

Ernie Trumble also has a leg in a cast as a result of injuries received in the Eagle-Hawks game.

British Bookies Say They Are Misunderstood

By ALVIN STEINKOPFF

London, Dec. 24 (AP)—Bookies—illegal characters in most of the United States and in Canada but law-abiding citizens in Britain—met the other night to protest that they are misunderstood.

Several members of parliament and some of the leaders of the horse racing and dog racing world attended the bookmakers banquet and praised the bookies as virtuous indeed.

Many bookies are alarmed because Britain is confounded at the moment by horse doping scandals. It is alleged that several distinguished horses with names that are household words ran in a peculiar manner lately.

Some obviously were slower than they should have been and some ran faster than anyone could believe.

Dirty Work With Pills

Charges being aired in the newspapers say that some unscrupulous fellows did dirty work with pills which made the horses run below or above their form, depending on whether it is a slow pill or a fast pill.

Suspicion was cast on the bookies, and the secretary of the bookies association, D. H. Summers, vigorously defended his colleagues.

"One newspaper this morning provides its own simple solution of the (horse doping) problem with a blaring headline, 'Ban the Bookies'," said Summers. "I do not put it beyond the realms of possibility that tomorrow's headlines will invite readers to 'Jail the Jockeys', 'Terrorize the Trainers' or 'Hang the Horses'."

The hanging of the horses or the banning of the bookies is a stupid suggestion," Summers continued.

"After all, who are the losers, indeed the victims when a fraudulent betting coup is brought off? The bookmakers and the bookmakers alone."

"Unless racing is kept clean and this canker removed from our national sport we shall all be out of business. We are deesperately anxious to cooperate with the authorities in helping to clear up this blot on racing and to take our part in restoring the good name of racing to the pre-eminent position it has held throughout the world for centuries."

Maxie Bentley Scores Four As Leafs Split With Bruins; Habs Divide; Hawks Drop Two

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Red Wings was the only National Hockey League club to pick up ground in weekend games. The league-leadings Wings played a single, a 4-0 shutout over Montreal Canadiens Sunday night that gave goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk his seventh goose egg of the season.

Second-place Toronto Maple Leafs played a doubleheader with Boston Bruins, winning 3-2 at home Saturday and losing 4-2 to coach Lynn Patrick's surprisingly-strong Bruins at Beantown last night.

Canadiens also split. They walloped Chicago Black Hawks 5-1 at Montreal Saturday and then bumped into the hot Sawchuk. The Hawks dropped into last place Sunday as they were beaten 3-2 by the Rangers at New York last night.

Bentley Scores Four

Max Bentley led the weekend goal-scorers with four—two in each game.

His double Saturday saved the evening for 12,472 Toronto fans who turned out to honor the veteran goalie, Turk Broda, given a night by Leaf officials. Max opened the scoring and, with the game tied 2-2 early in the third period, he pushed another past Sugar Jim Henry.

A crowd of 12,002 saw the Wings blank Canadiens. The victory boosted Detroit's lead to 11 points.

It was the seventh consecutive game Detroit has played Montreal this season without losing. They've whipped Dick Irvin's team six times and the other ended in a tie.

Sawchuk was the hero of the game. Canadiens took the play for the middle 40 minutes but the league's leading goalkeeper made 33 saves, a dozen of them outstanding, as he kicked out labelled shots.

Maurice Richard aggravated an old groin injury and left the game early in the first period. Marty Pavelich, Metro Prystai, Gordie Howe and Red Kelly were Wing marksmen.

The Boston-Toronto Saturday game was one of the best in Maple Leaf Gardens this season. Bruins led 2-1 at the end of the second period on goals by Sullivan and Ezinicki and they were true value for the margin until Harry Watson and Bentley scored within 3½ minutes of the final session.

Rookie Jack McIntyre, robbed a couple times in the Saturday tilt against the Leafs, came up with a two-goal effort in the Sunday game. Sullivan and Dunc Fisher netted the others.

Wally Hergesheimer, rookie Ranger, scored twice in the New York victory over Chicago. Don Raleigh netted the other Ranger tally while Pete Babando and Al Dewsbury scored for the Hawks.

Ironmen Nip Vancouver 2-1

(By The Canadian Press)

Goalie Freckles Little came within less than five minutes of scoring his first shutout in the Pacific Coast Hockey League Sunday night as the host Seattle Ironmen defeated Vancouver Canucks 2-1.

The loss gave Canucks a split in their week-end games. They won 3-1 against Tacoma Rockets in Tacoma Saturday night while Victoria Cougars came to the mainland to hand Westminster Royals their second home-ice defeat of the season, a 4-2 loss.

In the other Saturday night game at Calgary, the Stampeders tied Saskatoon Quakers 4-4 with a disputed goal by Jack Miller with less than four minutes to play.

Broda Receives Gifts Valued At Over $7,000

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP)—They fattened up the Turkey for Christmas with about $7,000 worth of dressing Saturday night.

The bird was pudgy Walter (Turk) Broda, 37-year-old goalie with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. The dressing was presents from admirers from coast to coast.

The directors of Maple Leaf Gardens broke a long-standing rule against "nights" for individual hockey players by honoring the balding veteran of 13 seasons with the Leafs. And the 12,472 fans showed their approval by clapping virtually every minute of the between-periods presentation.

Their show of affection for the great performer now in the twilight of his hockey career made the game itself, Toronto's 3-2 victory over Boston Bruins, a sidelight.

Broda's gifts included everything from a wallet to a new automobile.

The wallet was from patients at Muskoka hospital in Gravenhurst, the automobile from a brewing company. That typified the scope of his friends.

A few of the other presents included: an eight-piece dining room suite (from the Gardens), 85 pieces of Sterling silver flatware, a 56-piece set of dishes, a grandfather's clock (from the Broda fan club), a chesterfield suite (from his team-mates), silver tea service, a pair of diamond socks (from the boys of Queen Mary hospital, Weston), a set of souvenir ashtrays (from Lewis Hollett of Newfoundland), an armchair (from Toronto hockey writers) and a five-day free trip to Nelson, B.C., next July from the citizens of Nelson.

Toronto Argos Will Invite 12 Yankee Imports

Toronto, Dec. 24 (CP)—It isn't Christmas yet, but Toronto Argonauts are going all out in preparation for the 1952 football season.

President Bob Moran and Coach Frank Clair said Saturday that they are getting in touch with players in the United States "every day" as they line up their team for next year.

Moran said Clair "will attend the coaches' skull-session in the U.S. again this year and will establish important contacts regarding players while there."

After a post-season huddle, Clair and Moran decided to invite all Argo U.S. imports back for another season with the exception of Marvin (Stretch) Whaley.

Alan Pfeifer is waiting to be inducted into the U.S. army and won't be back until his service is completed.

Or Joe Krol, veteran Canadian back, Moran said:

"Joe wants to play. If he proves good enough, he'll be signed to a contract."

Moran said the Argos will invite at least a dozen imports to their training camp.

Signing of players for next season starts Jan. 15.

Japanese Lady To Compete For Billiard Title

San Francisco, Dec. 24 (AP)—A tiny, twinkle-eyed Japanese woman has former billiard champion Welker Cochran ecstatic over her prospects in the world three-cushion tournament opening here March 5.

"She's the most marvellous thing I ever saw," said Cochran after watching Masako Katsura in a private exhibition. "She's liable to beat anybody, even Willie Hoppe."

Miss Katsura, wife of air force sergeant Vernon Greenleaf, will be the first woman ever to compete in the tournament. She arrived Friday with her husband from Japan.

She was invited to compete in the tourney against nine of the world's best billiard players after Cochran watched her click off strings of 300 and 400 at Caroms; switch to balkline "and make almost unbelievable shots;" then score consistently at three cushions.

Miss Katsura, 38, was three times runner-up for the Japanese three-cushion championship.

Her opponents will include the perennial world champion, Hoppe; Joe Chamaco, Mexican national champ and runner-up to Hoppe in the world tourney last year, and Art Rubin of New York and Joe Procita, third and fourth in the 1950 tourney.

Czech Hockey Players Re-united

Two years ago the Sudbury Wolves, playing in the world hockey tournament in Europe became acquainted with three Czech hockey players when the Czech team came close to beating them. Since then, two of the three, Darry Tirik and Boris Janda, spent eight months in a refugee camp in the U.S. occupation zone of Germany after they fled from their communist-dominated homeland. They managed to make their way to Toronto where they teamed up with their third player, Otto Kratochvil who had come to Canada via Italy. Tirik and Kratochvil are shown with Johnny Popaduik, left, and Norm Kellas, right, of the Perth-Royce team for whom they hope to play hockey.—Central Press Canadian.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

A rose by any other name. . .

The University of Western Ontario has its Mustangs and Colts, to designate its senior and intermediate football teams, McMaster has its Maurauders and Buccaneers, McGill, the Redmen and Indians, Queen's the Gaels and Comets, what has U. of T. got? Just plain "Blues."

So from now, an announcement said, Toronto's senior teams will be known as the Blues, as heretofore, but the intermediate teams will be known as the Junior Varsity—or J.V.'s or Jay-Vees. The announcement did not indicate a preference. It said:

"Out go the intermediates, seconds, Little Blues and Baby Blues and in come Junior Varsity, J.V. or Jay-Vee teams."

Three Czechoslovakians who last played hockey together in Europe two years ago make up one forward line of a team in the intermediate group of the Toronto Hockey League.

Darry Tirik, Otto Kratochvil and Boris Janda were on the Czech team that almost defeated Canada's Sudbury Wolves in the world hockey championships two years ago. They came to Canada seven months ago.

National champion Sonya Klopfer of Long Island City, New York, Saturday night in Indianapolis won the top spot in women's single on the United States Olympic ice skating team.

Two other girls also made the Olympic team—Tenley Albright of Newton Center, Mass., who placed second, and Virginia Baxter of Detroit, third.

Both Miss Kopfer and Miss Albright are 16 years old and Miss Baxter is 18.

Charlie Burr, the leading United States jockey, rode his 301st winner in the eighth race at Miami's Tropical Park Saturday.

The 17-year-old Arkansas City, Kans., rider booted Buffer home in front of his field too pay $10.10, $9.10, and $5.10.

Burr, who rode his 300th winner Friday, is the seventh jockey to enter the select circle.

A 17-tournament winter schedule with an aggregate of $150,000 in purses was announced Saturday in Chicago by the Professional Golfers' Association of the United States.

The tour begins with the $17,500 Los Angeles open Jan. 4-7 and closes with the $10,000 Greensboro, N.C. open invitational April 11-14.

All tournaments except the Los Angeles Open are worth $10,000.

A four-day ski-jumping school will be held at the Chicopee Ski Club at Kitchener from Dec. 26-30. Costs of running the school are paid by the Ontario government and instruction is free. The instructor is Pete Petterson, born and trained in Norway, who has been conducting similar schools in Ontario for the last few years.

Outfielder Bert Haas and first baseman George Byam, last season with Montreal Royals of the International Baseball League, are going to St. Paul Saints of the American Association, it was announced Sunday night in Montreal.

Eight officers have been named to complete the new Kitchener senior baseball executive,

Don Gallinger, new owner of the Legionnaires' franchise in the intercounty league, is the new president, Art Sandrock, a member of the Legion baseball committee last year, is vice-president. Secretary-treasurer Ivan Metz continues in that position, while Matthew Wagner, Mort Bezeau, Walter Weber and Gordon Thompson are directors.

A new weightlifting class first used in this year's world championships will be included in the 1952 Olympic games at Helsinki beginning July 19.

Oscar State of London, secretary of the British Empire weightlifting association, said Saturday he had been notified by Helsinki organizing committee that the program will include the 198¼ pound class.

Three young apprentice jockeys escaped serious injury Saturday in a three-horse spill at Tropical Park in Miami. A crowd of 9,183 saw Iltis, with Marshal Wilder riding, stumble and fall as he passed the quarter-pole in the sixth event. Then Chureo, with William Jewell aboard, and First Tenet, ridden by John Heckmann, banged into the fallen horse.

The victorious Los Angeles Rams collected $2,103.44 each for winning the National Football League championship from Cleveland Browns Sunday. Each losing Cleveland player got $1,483.12.

Marlies Regain Junior A Top Slot; Stratford Extends Senior Race Lead

(By The Canadian Press)

The sparkling Toronto St. Michael's College club had a soft touch and a tough struggle during the week-end and came up with two important wins in Ontario Hockey Association junior A games.

St. Mike's fired four straight goals in the last period at Windsor Saturday night to down the last-place Spitfires 7-3. Back in Toronto Sunday they edged their city cousins, the first-place Marlboros, 6-3.

The wins jumped St. Michael's ahead of Galt into third place. Marlboros earned a 6-5 decision in Waterloo Saturday over the Hurricanes to break a first-place tie with Guelph Biltmores but were unable to extend their lead Sunday although the Bilts were idle.

In two other O.H.A. junior games Saturday, St. Catharines Teepees defeated Oshawa Generals 2-0 at Oshawa to break a sixth place tie with Barrie Flyers, and Galt Black Hawks earned a 7-2 won over Kitchener.

Indians Win 3-2

Stratford Indians Saturday pushed farther into the lead in the O.H.A. senior A circuit with a 3-2 win over third-place Hamilton Tigers at Hamilton. Weather conditions forced postponement of a scheduled meeting between Owen Sound and Sarnia.

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds lengthened their lead in the Northern Ontario senior A group with a 17-7 trouncing of Sudbury Wolves. North Bay Black Hawks scored five goals in 10 minutes to defeat Sudbury Miners 7-4.

Windsor Spitfires, who gave up goalie Terry Sawchuk to Detroit Red Wings, may have found another good netminder. Fifteen-year-old Dennis Riggin kicked out 31 shots by St. Michael's in the last two periods and was given credit for keeping the Toronto score from double figures.

In Sunday's Toronto game, Jim Logan scored twice to lead St. Mike's and Neil Buchanan, Bill Dineen, Ted Toppazzini and Art Clune got the rest. Marlboro goals were scored by Parker MacDonald, with two, and Eric Nesterenko with one.

The senior A game saw White, Dinny Flanagan and Ron Aitken notch the Stratford goals. Ron Kemp and Doug Maher tallied for Hamilton.

The two O.H.A. circuits remain quiet until Wednesday. Sarnia will play in Stratford in the senior A loop then and junior A games will see Marlboros at Windsor and Galt at Waterloo.

Caps, Mohawks Battle to Tie; Player Breaks Leg

(By The Canadian Press)

Two American Hockey League clubs fought to a 3-3 overtime tie last night with the game winding up with a broken leg.

Cincinnati Mohawks and Indianapolis Capitals failed to score in overtime. A Mohawk defenceman, Winnipeg's Wally Stanowski, caught his skates in the boards after 47 seconds of the overtime period and was taken off the ice with his left leg broken above the ankle.

In other Sunday games, Pittsburgh downed St. Louis Flyers 3-1 and Syracuse Warriors downed Providence Reds 3-2. Cleveland Barons nipped Buffalo Bisons 6-5 in a penalty-ridden game before 5,089 fans.

Jean-Paul Denis and Jack McLeod put the visiting Mohawks ahead 2-0 in the first period but the Caps came back with a pair of goals by Enio Sclisizzi and Earl Reibel.

Gus Schwartz put the Mohawks ahead 3-2 with less than two minutes of the third period left. But 24 seconds later Bert Geisebrecht tied up the score for the last time.

At Providence, a pair of goals in 41 seconds of the first period gave Syracuse their victory over Providence before 3,448 fans.

Ken Hayden and Doug McMurdy drove the two tallies. McMurdy scored another goal in the second period.

This was the Warrior's eighth victory in their last nine games They won seven straight until losing 3-2 to the Reds in Syracuse Saturday night.

Lester Patrick was named president of New York Rangers of the National Hockey League and president of Madison Square Garden 18 years ago today. Hockey player, coach and executive, a master ice strategist, he received a great tribute from a large gathering of hockey notables at Kingston, Ont., in 1947 when presented with the scroll of membership in hockey's Hall of Fame.

Lindsay Juniors Trim Kingston 8-4

Lindsay Kinsmen extended their junior "B" group lead to five points on Saturday night defeating the Kingston Vics by an 8-4 score in Kingston.

The Kinsmen now have 20 points for ten wins with the Belleville Hawks in second place with 15 points for seven wins and a tie. Kinsmen however, have played two more games than the Hawks.

'Crackpots' Lead Bowling League

Frankford — The Frankford Bowling League finished their activities for 1951 Thursday night in David's Bowlodrome, with a new league-leader being temporarily crowned. This time, it's Ross Huffman's Crackpots, who dethroned the Fireballs, beating them 4 to 3. The Pinpoppers finally broke the charmed life of the Rockets, dropping them 4-3, to retain a tie for second place. The Inkspots broke out of their slump by beating the Skeeters 5 to 2, while the Hotshots dropped into seventh place, being taken out by Bobsmob.

Margaret Hogg of the Pinpoppers rolled ladies' high single among the Frankford and 6 R.D. bowlers for the night, and received as her prize, a fine turkey from the management of the alleys. Joan McCrea of Bobsmob won a Christmas cake for the hidden triple.

Standing at the end of 1951 is as follows:

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 24 (AP) — The Oscar season is rolling around again, so it's time for a chat with Walter Brennan, the only actor who has won three of them.

Brennan won three of the first five Academy Awards presented for a supporting actor (the practice was started in 1936). I asked him what effect they had on his career.

"None that I could see," he replied. "I was under contract to Sam Goldwyn at the time and I didn't even receive congratulations from him. Later, someone asked him about it, and he said he'd do something about it. So the next time he saw me, he said, 'Say, Walter — I'm glad you won that prize'."

But Brennan has managed to keep working regularly ever since receiving his Oscars. He now limits himself to two or three pictures a year.

There's nothing pretentious about Brennan. He has no starring ambitions — and claimed he never has.

Capsule Review

"Decision Before Dawn" is movie-making at its best. No other medium could capture the sweep of Germany in the last days of the war. By using the real German cities and people, this film has created a stirring and realistic picture of a dying nation. The story concerns the infiltration of German lines by agents seeking military information for the allied forces. Two of the agents are former German soldiers and one is a United States officer. Their story makes a constantly exciting chase. Richard Basehart and Gary Merrill, the only Hollywood actors in the cast, are fine. The German cast is excellent, particularly Oskar Werner, whose sensitive face evokes rare sympathy.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Consign that mug to Alcatraz who always bids when he should pass. He robs your faith. He maims your pride. He kills the chances for your side. Electrocute or give him gas, the mug who bids when he should pass.

South passes. West opens with a heart. North passes. If you are east, pass. At least, you should. Because in answer to an opening of one you need two high cards among three tricks. Have as much as here suggested in each department or you will be wrong if you bid.

You have three tricks; one for the king, one for the short card in hearts, and one for the short card in diamonds. But you have not two high cards. A bid by you in that spot is doing your partner wrong.

This brings the bidding back to south. He has denied having enough for an opening bid. But that does not mean he may not have enough for a defending bid of some kind.

An opening bid needs five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks. A defending bid of one needs five tricks, two high cards, one sure trick. If a defending bid is two, it needs six tricks instead of five.

South has six tricks; three high cards and three short cards (the void in clubs). He has enough high cards and sure tricks. He has all he needs for a simple overcall (non-jump defensive bid) of two diamonds.

That puts the bidding up to west again. West has already shown his heart suit. He has a spade suit to show. Also, his heart suit is rebiddable. To bid right there, his bid must be as high as two.

To do that, he needs six tricks. He has seven; five high cards, a short card in diamonds, and a short card in clubs. So the west bid in that spot is two spades.

Unless a longer suit is two cards longer, do not rebid it before showing the shorter suit. It saves future moaning.

FIND PURE GOLD

Vienna, Dec. 24 (Reuters) — Children playing near the ruins of an old Austrian castle found a lump of metal weighing more than two pounds which local authorities say is pure gold, according to the newspaper Tageszeitung. The children found the gold near Taxenbach castle, about 30 miles south of Salzburg. Local experts suggested it might be part of the treasures of the castle which was destroyed during the peasants' war in the 16th century.

Expansion, Action Is R.C.N. 1951 Record

List of activities in 1951 by the Royal Canadian Navy, include the maintenance of three destroyers in the Korean theatre, the training of hundreds of officers and men in sea war technique, development of a fleet air arm operating from the aircraft carrier Magnificent, and the launching of the first of 14 ultramodern destroyer escorts. In the training program, R.C.N. ships were on every ocean. Here members of the crew of H.M.C.S. Ontario are shown at a New Zealand zoo during the ship's stop there. Left to right, P.O. Good Health THE CANADIAN WAY

Sleighride . . . country style

The sleigh's coursing happily along, with its bells a-jingle, its runners squeaking out merry sounds in the crisp snow. The air's tingling—and it's filled with laughter and shouting, music and singing.

It's a sleighing party—a carefree event that provides just as much wholesome enjoyment today as it did in Great-Grandfather's day.

Sleigh-riding is a typical Canadian recreation . . . rewarding in fun, good fellowship and healthful fresh air. It's another Canadian Way to Good Health.

What is the Miracle of Canada?

The miracle of Canada is the reward of its thrifty people; it is a standard of living wrought by men and women who believe in spending and saving wisely. The average Canadian, for example, owns his own car and his own home. He pays his bills when due. His pattern of living is excellent.

When the pattern breaks

But unexpected emergencies do break the pattern. Usually the emergency requires more money than he has available. This can happen to anyone. Then help must come from a dependable outside service.

3 out of 4 choose Household

HFC feels that no one should borrow unless a loan is the best solution to a money problem. Because HFC service is friendly, dependable, 3 out of 4 Canadian families prefer to borrow in amounts of $50 to $1000 from HOUSEHOLD FINANCE. Your telephone book lists the office nearest you.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — The Ladies' Auxiliary of Branch 387, Canadian Legion, held a Christmas party in the Legion Hall, Wednesday evening. All gathered around the piano for a sing-song. Following this a contest was conducted. Reta Chard was the winner. Ina Acton gave two readings, and another contest was won by Irene Young. Gifts were exchanged, and bountiful refreshments enjoyed.

The Frankford Lions' Club held their annual Christmas party for kiddies of the village on Wednesday evening. Films were presented through the courtesy of Mr. Arthur Duncan, of Batawa, with Mr. Ben Long operating the projector. Door prizes were won by Clinton Hanna, Mrs. J. Patrick and Mrs. Dick Acton.

Santa Claus dropped in on the scene, and distributed treats to the kiddies.

Mr. Raymond Lohnes, of Belleville, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and and Mrs. Harry Lohnes.

Misses Ruth, Irene and Helen Tomecek spent the Christmas holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Tomecek.

Miss Joan McCrea spent the Christmas holidays with her parents in Tweed.

Miss Shirley Fox spent the Christmas holidays with her mother in Cooper.

JOHNSTOWN

Johnstown—Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Harry spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harry.

The Johnstown school entertainment was held Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyers and Eddie spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Alf St Hilaire.

The snow plows are working overtime in this neighborhood.

Harder's school was to have had their entertainment on Thursday night but it snowed so much that it was impossible to have it. The teacher had to be taken home from the school with horse and sleigh. They are intending to have the concert sometime in January in the afternoon so that the children will not be so disappointed after practising for it.

Freddie, Darla and Larry St. Hilaire spent the weekend with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyers.

Mr. and Mrs. K. J. McKinnon spent Christmas day with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Archie McKinonn of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McKenna were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Stickle on Sunday.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mountain View—Mrs. W. Hamilton, of Belleville, accompanied by Miss Pearl Hamilton Reg. N., spent several days recently in Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Mrs. Henry Sallans, of Demorestville, spent a recent day the guest of Mrs. Clarence Sprague.

Miss Mary Huff and her pupils assisted by Miss Lois Doxsee at the piano presented their annual Christmas entertainment at the church on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilson and children spent the supper hour on Sunday with Mr. J. G. Sprague and Miss Elizabeth Jordan.

Miss Pauline Sprague has arrived home from Toronto University to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sprague and family.

The second euchre party was held at the school on Thursday evening with Miss Mildred Hall and Mrs. Clifford Barber acting as sponsors. There were eight tables in play.

At the close of the game, the prizes were awarded as follows: high score, Mrs. Eddie Hall and Mr. Donald Hall; low score, Mrs. J. Cretney and Mr. Hudson Huff; lone hands, Mr. Charles Watering.

The collection amounted to $9.90 which was donated to the Women's Institute.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the game.

The next party will be held on Jan. 3rd with Mrs. S. Barber and Mrs. W. Baroer as sponsors.

CROFTON

Crofton—Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Munro and Keith, also Mrs. S. J. Munro, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr at Burr's.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lefort, Shirley and Paul of Belleville, called on their mother, Mrs. W. J. Gray on Sunday.

Miss Beverley Collins of Belleville, is spending some time with Mrs. Milton Schmidt.

Mrs. W. J. Gray spent Sunday with her son, Mr. John Gray, at Kingston hospital.

1951 Witnesses Continuance Of Canada's Transformation Into Big Industrial Producer

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP) — The spectacular mid-century transformation of the Canadian economy, turning Canada from an obscure nation to one of the world's industrial giants continued to carve out economic history in 1951.

It is expected to exert even more powerful influences in 1951.

Rooted in the bustling development of Canada's natural resources, the prosperity created new wealth and new millionaires — and new high marks in the production of such essentials as oil, newsprint and iron ore.

Though inflation ate away at some of his earnings, the white-collar worker and the factory man benefited too, through higher salaries and wages and through the creation of new jobs, which goes hand-in-hand with economic development.

Switching to defence production caused a few false starts and breaks in the economic machine, but the basic expansion in the oilfields, the mills and the mines continued unabated, helping Canada as she piled up a record-smashing $21,000,000,000 total value of all goods and services produced during the year.

This is an increase of about $3,000,000,000 from the previous high in 1950 — and government economists predict that in 1951 the gross national product may go even higher — possibly to $23,000,000,000 or $24,000,000,000.

Huge Oil Output

Records were piled up in the oilfields, where Canada produced an estimated peak 47,000,000,000 barrels of oil — almost double the 27,600,000,000 in 1950. Next year it is expected to be higher and only a fraction of Canada's oil potential is yet harnessed.

Iron ore production rolled beyond the 4,000,000-ton mark for the first time and there are indications that in 1952 production may reach more than 5,000,000 tons, bringing increased employment and wealth to Ontario, Quebec, and Labrador — heart of new iron-ore developments.

Canada's leading commodity, newsprint, which almost caused an international squabble in 1951, was boosted to a record 5,525,000-ton production — an increase of 214,000 tons from 1950. Next year producers are hopeful of a 165,000 ton increase to a new high of 5,690,000 tons.

The trouble with newsprint, as with all other scarce items, was that everyone wanted a share of the pie. The entire world was short. The United States which obtains about 90 per cent of Canada's production, protested bitterly, however, when newsprint mills boosted the price on short notice.

The squabble over the price increase had an echo in parliament, but Production Minister Howe backed the increase on the basis of higher production costs, and the wrangle faded into the background.

Wheat Shipment Slow

Elsewhere on the economic scene, bright and dark spots were combined. Canada produced a near-record crop of 562,000,000 bushels of wheat in the fall of 1951, but bad weather and lack of transportation slowed harvesting and movement to market. Much of the wheat still was on prairie fields as snow covered the fields.

The world was waiting for Canadian wheat, and Canada was committed to export almost her full quota of 233,000,000 bushels under the international wheat agreement, but up to the end of the Great Lakes shipping season in December, only about 80,000,000 bushels had been shipped to seaboard.

Wheat, while bringing a measure of prosperity to Canadian farmers, created a major political test for the government. The four-year Anglo-Canadian wheat agreement had drawn to a close and farmers felt they had an extra final payment due.

This developed out of the controversial "have regard" clause in the agreement. Farmers felt they had shipped wheat to Britain at below market prices and that they should be reimbursed for part of their losses.

Britain said she felt her obligations were met when she agreed to buy a fixed amount of Canadian wheat in the new crop year beginning August 1, 1950. The Canadian cabinet was reported to have split on the issue, with Agriculture Minister Gardiner favoring a final payment to the farmers and Trade Minister Howe opposed.

The issue was resolved with a payment of $65,000,000 from the public treasury, but farmers felt they should get even more. A great deal of prairie resentment of the government's attitude still remained as the year ended.

Two Aged Sisters Found Dead At Lingan, N.S.

Lingan, N. S., Dec. 24—(CP)—The bodies of two aged sisters were found last night where they had lain dead "from two days to a week" while their blind and infirm brother groped helplessly about the home.

A whining, starving police dog was the only other living thing at "Hermit's Nest," the bungalow in which David Gracie, 82, lived an eccentric, secluded life with his two spinster sisters.

Dead from malnutrition and exposure are Ellen, 81, and Mary, 83. Part of Ellen's left calf was eaten away, apparently by rats.

The scene within the barren, four-room home was grisly and desolate. The only sound as horrified neighbors viewed the remains was the lapping of the Atlantic close by.

The dog, almost mad from hunger and fear, was shot by R. C. M. P. officers.

David was taken to hospital, where his condition was described as critical.

Employer Wins Appeal Against Labor Union

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 24—(AP) — Kentucky's court of appeals ruled yesterday that labor unions call employers "unfair" at their own risk.

The court also held that newspapers publish such charges of unfairness at the risk of libel suits.

In refusing to reconsider and reverse its previous approval of $5,000 damages awarded against the Paducah Central Labor Union and $1,000 against Paducah Newspapers, Inc., the Appellate Court said labor has no "special immunity" to call anyone "unfair," and that each cause must be decided on its merits by a jury.

The opinion set out that Gerald Wise, about the time he opened a place called "Wise's Ice Cream Castle" in Paducah, hired a Negro to clean up and paint.

Appellate Court Commissioner Watson Clay added that "apparently the painting job was offensive to the local painters union."

Some six weeks later the Central Labor Union published a notice to labor unions in the Paducah Sun-Democrat that Wise's ice Cream Castle and a lunch stand, not involved in this suit, "are unfair to you."

Wise sued the Central Labor Union and the newspaper, claiming a "substantial loss of business" as a result of the ad.

HURDLES CLEARED

Chicago, Dec. 22 — (AP) Final financial hurdles were cleared yesterday for the 42-storey Prudential Insurance Company building scheduled to be built at Michigan Ave., and Randolph Street, in downtown Chicago. Checks totalling nearly $7,000,000 changed hands in offices of the Chicago Title and Trust Company between Prudential, the Illinois Central Railroad and the Michigan Central Railroad.

Christmas Spirit Shows Itself Time and Again

(By The Canadian Press)

Across most of Canada there will be enough snow for Santa Claus' reindeer to leave hoofprints tonight.

Snow covers nearly all the country and weather forecasters predicted sunny, cold weather almost from coast to coast tomorrow to maintain the traditional Canadian Christmas.

The weekend saw an extra-heavy movement of holiday travellers, but that was expected to slacken today. Chief activity is last-minute shopping, and stores predicted a heavier rush than Saturday.

Meanwhile Canadians in every province warmed up to tomorrow's celebrations. The Christmas spirit cropped up time and again in kind acts.

Some women in Quebec collected toys and food and threw a party for 309 lonesome immigrants at the grey stone immigration quarters beside the St. Lawrence River. A similar party was held in Hamilton's Armenian community centre for 181 new Canadians.

Residents of Wheatley, Ont., took up a collection and sent one of the town's favorite citizens, Mrs. Barbara McNeilage, 74-year-old widow, on a plane trip to her native Scotland to visit her relatives.

The weather will continue cold in the Maritimes, although last week's rain washed away much of the snow. But homes were brightly decorated despite the bare ground.

On the west coast, hundreds of fishermen have returned to their homes, leaving their boats at anchor with Christmas trees at the masthead. Some 13,500 lumbermen and construction workers crowded into Vancouver from the interior.

Even farther west, the 57-man crew of the weathership Stonetown, anchored 900 miles out in the Pacific, prepared a turkey dinner for tomorrow.

French-Speaking Troops Not Badly Treated in Korea

Montreal, Dec. 24—(CP)—Lt.-Col. Jacques Dextraze, commander of Quebec's famous Royal 22nd Regiment (Van Doos), Saturday branded as false reports that French-speaking troops were badly treated in the Korean war.

Col. Dextraze, who just flew in from the battle-front, said: "Our troops were not used for any menial tasks, nor were they placed in the most dangerous front-line positions.

"There has never been any question of our French-Canadian troops being mistreated. No Canadian would stand for mistreatment—let alone. French-Canadians."

Col. Dextraze was one of more than 70 Korea veterans who arrived by plane here Saturday en route to their homes across Canada for Christmas.

Bodies of Ten Are Recovered

Astoria, Ore., Dec. 24—(CP)—The bodies of 10 persons—five of them Canadians—were recovered yesterday from the fire-swept motorship Erria.

One body remained to be found. Searchers said the body of steward A. S. Iversen of Copenhagen was likely on a lower deck, where the fire still smoldered last night.

All but two of the bodies recovered were in the lounge of the Danish vessel, which caught fire Thursday.

The body of six-year-old Elizabeth Brunlees was found seated on the lap of her dead mother, Mrs. Kathleen Brunlees of White Horse, Y. T.

The other Canadian dead were from Vancouver.

Birthday of The King

The First Christmas

By Rev. William Howey

As shepherds watched their flocks by night
Out on the hills of wild Judae',
Behold! a star that was dazzling bright
Shone out above the Western Sea,
And flooded the earth with a glorious light,
Till the shepherds quaked in fear and fright.
"Fear not!" said an angel, "Behold! I bring Good tidings of joy—the birth of a King;
The Babe ye shall find in swaddling clothes,
And laid in a manger to take His repose."
Then suddenly came there a Heavenly choir
All lifting their voices up still higher,
"Glory to God! On the earth be Peace!
And a reign of Love that shall never cease!"
"Come now," said one of the shepherd men,
"To Bethlehem let us go, and then
We'll search and see why the angels sing
Of this new-born Child who shall be a King."
So they came with haste and were not dismayed,
For they found the Babe in the manger laid,
For there was no room in the Inn for Him,
So His birth-place was but a stable dim;
And then in the joy that Christmas morn
Each shepherd blew on his shepherd's horn
To tell the world that the King was born.

And three Wise Men out of the East afar
Beheld the light of the blazing star,
"What's this? What's this?" said the Wise Men three,
"A sign! A sign! It must surely be!
Make haste! Make haste! Let us go and find
The reason why God has warned Mankind."
And all through the night as they rode along,
They heard sweet snatches of angels' song.
So the Wise Men came from the East afar
By the friendly light of the guiding star;
Till they came in Judah to Bethlehem,
In wonder of what would be shown to them;
Till they came to the place where the Baby lay.
In His manger crib on a bed of hay;
And bending low they worshipped the Child,
As He lay in the arms of His Mother mild;
And presented Him gifts of gold and myrrh,
As He looked on them and smiled at her.
The treasures they gave were rich and rare,
For ne'er had they seen a Child so fair.
"'Tis true," they cried, "what the angels sing
For the Child is Christ! We have found the King!"
Then back to their homes which the East adorn,
Proclaiming the news that the King was born.

Political Upheavals Compete With Phenomena of Nature To Make Headlines in 1951

By JOHN TRACY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A group of men negotiating an armistice in Korea held the world's attention during a troubled and stormy 1951.

Scarcely a corner of the world failed to make news during the year. The violence of nature vied with political upheaval for front-page space.

Guns of assassins brought a resurgence of nationalism in the middle east. Britain, facing economic difficulties at home found new troubles in Egypt and Iran. The west quickened its rearmament against Communism but reports of atomic explosions behind the Iron Curtain indicated that Russia was building her strength too.

There was good news also. Alarm which spread across the commonwealth in September at the news of the King's serious lung ailment turned to relief as he successfuly underwent an operation and headed for recovery. Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh made a triumphal tour of Canada, while Australia and New Zealand prepared to welcome them on another tour early next year.

Eyes on Far East

But the issue of peace or war in Korea kept the eyes of the world on the far east. United Nations troops, driven back by invading Chinese late in 1950, surged back across Korea's 38th. parallel last March.

Three months later the Soviet delegate to the U.N., Jakob Malik, made a radio speech in New York calling for a cease-fire in Korea. Trygve Lie, U.N. secretary-general, observed in another broadcast that a Korean cease-fire might well be the prelude to a real world peace.

The first steps toward such a peace were taken when the Communists accepted the U.N. command's proposal for talks and the first cease-fire parley opened in the Korean town of Kaesong July 10. Concessions from either side were hard won as the talks continued, off and on, month after month, with mingled despair and hope. But as the year drew to a close the parleys had brought almost a complete halt to ground fighting.

East Versus West

The larger struggle between east and west continued in the United Nations general assembly at Paris where a western peace plan was ridiculed as a "dead mouse" by the Soviet Union. Later Russia treated western disarmament proposals in a more serious vein but secret talks among the big four failed to resolve the basic issue.

In Britain, the Labor party's six-year rule was brought to an end by the October 25 election victory of Winston Churchill's Conservatives. For those who thought the new Conservative regime would end Britain's economic troubles resulting from rearmament and world inflation Churchill had sobering words. He told Britons their country was heading toward bankruptcy and proposed harsh economic restrictions to stop it.

Britain's chief trouble abroad began in oil-rich Iran in March when an assassin from a fanatical sect killed the pro-British premier, Gen. Ali Razmara. The killing opened the way for nationalization of the oil industry and Britain pulled out of Iran, cutting loose a lucrative source of dollar income.

Abdullah Assassinated

The assassination July 20 of the pro-British King Abdullah of Jordan seemed another blow to British support in the middle east.

In Egypt the nationalist ruling party abrogated treaties alowing Britain to keep troops in the Suez Canal area and sharing rule over the Sudan. The British troops stayed in Suez but the struggles that followed with Egyptians led to Egypt's recall of her ambassador from London.

Other events during the year included the return to power of Prime Minister Menzies' coalition government in Australia and the re-election of the National government in New Zealand. Peiping announced incorporation of little-known Tibet into Red China. The western nations ended their state of war with Germany and Japan. The Atlantic council set an European defence goal of 100 divisions by 1954.

Nature made news in 1951 when 4,000 died in a volcanic explosion in New Guinea in January. Near the end of the year a similar blast in Camiguin Island in the Philippines killed at least 800. In the United States, only 27 died but the damage was estimated at $1,000,000,000 in the huge Arkansas flood in July.

Foot-and-Mouth Disease Destroys Many Animals

London, Dec. 24 (AP)—Western Europe's veterinary authorities are fighting to save the continent's meat supply from an epidemic of livestock-destroying foot-and-mouth disease.

The battle has been going on for almost two months. Thousands of animals have been destroyed.

This outbreak, the worst in many years, must be stamped out before spring or the food supply of many countries will be jeopardized. The bacon ration in Britain has been reduced from four to three ounces a week partly as a result of the disease.

Serious as the picture is, information collected by the Associated Press reveals that in many countries the authorities feel the epidemic has passed its peak and soon will recede.

Foot-and-mouth disease is a highly-contagious sickness of animals. Outbreaks can be checked only by the slaughter of all diseased animals, complete disinfection of all places where the sick animal had been, and vaccination of unaffected cattle.

Europe has experienced numerous identified outbreaks of the disease for several centuries.

There is no information on the incidence of the disease behind the iron curtain.

Presumably the outbreak is heavy in east Germany for that government has called for strict observance of measures to combat the disease.

Switzerland has been one of the hardest-hit countries. Its federal veterinary office described this as the most severe outbreak since 1938. Up to Nov. 20 some 2,000 head of livestock had been destroyed.

Britain has had 75 outbreaks in the period from Nov. 14 to Dec. 19. Most of these have occurred in Norfolk, Suffolk and the east riding Yorkshire. Authorities have destroyed 4,327 cattle, 2,322 sheep, 1,870 pigs and four goats.

The health ministry said this was "the worst year for the disease since 1947 when there were 104 outbreaks resulting the destruction of 5,485 cattle."

Works Himself Into $90 Worth Of Trouble

Port Arthur, Dec. 24—(CP)—Between trying to see the girl he loved and eluding police, Allen Neal, 24, worked himself into $90 worth of trouble on three consecutive days last month.

Nov. 24 he was refused permission to see the girl, a nurse at a hospital here. He drove to the hospital armed with a loaded rifle. A friend took the rifle away from him.

Nov. 25 a detective went to see Neal. Neal got into his automobile, drove off and finally eluded police pursuers in a 60-mile-an-hour chase after colliding with a parked car.

Nov. 26 Neal again tried to get to see his girl. Police Sgt. D. McLeod found him hiding under an empty hospital bed on the second floor.

"He was beside himself," said McLeod.

Yesterday Neal was fined $50 for having an offensive weapon, $40 for dangerous driving and was put on $1,000 bond to keep the peace.

British Forced to Admit Inability to Re-arm Fully Within Time Allotment

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP) — Britain acknowledged in 1951 that she could not carry out her £4,700,000,000 rearmament program in the three years originally allotted, but will arm as quickly as she can "with the idea of deterrents rather than the idea of danger."

The announcement came from Prime Minister Winston Churchill at the close of a year in which the British lion found its tail energetically twisted in Iran and Egypt, looked uneasily at growing United States air strength in East Anglia and came into conflict with her own western partners over the question of arms standardization and military commands under the North Atlantic Treaty.

As 1951 drew to a close, Britain also found herself under growing criticism in Europe and the United States for her standish attitude toward European federation.

On the credit side, the United Kingdom won recognition in an official North Atlantic report as one of the few countries judged to be contributing all possible support to the common defence effort. This report said it was felt Canada could do more.

Domestically, the country showed its determination to be prepared with announcement that the wartime home guard is to be revived and that a naval mine-watching organization will be recruited.

Far-Flung Battlefronts

British troops were on the move throughout the year. In Korea, exploits of the gallant Gloucestershire Regiment and the King's Own Scottish Borderers went far to support a statement by Field Marshal William Slim, chief of the general staff, that the British soldier is the best in the world. First man to win the Victoria Cross in Korea was Major Kenneth Muir, Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, who received the award posthumously.

Paratroops flew into Iran in mid-summer but were flown out again as the Iranian government insisted on its law nationalizing the oil fields and the refinery built by the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. Loss of the oil revenues caused a sharp strain on Britain's balance of payments.

In the steaming jungles of Malaya, the "bandits" who for more than three years have been waging guerrilla warfare in the rubber-rich peninsula intensified operations, ambushed and killed the resident high commissioner, Sir Henry Gurney, and caused planters to abandon outlying estates. Oliver Lyttelton, colonial minister in Britain's new Conservative government, flew to Malaya to investigate conditions on the spot and came back with a seven-point plan to make things really hot for the terrorists.

Tension in Egypt, caused by Egypt's decision to break her treaty with Britain and to claim sovereignty over the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, boiled over into crowd demonstrations of anti-British feeling, occasional riots and the shootings and stabbing of British soldiers. But Britain said it would stay on in the canal zone.

The year's final review of British defence was given to the House of Commons early in December by Premier Churchill. His general message was that the danger of war seems to be reduced, although the country will not be able completely to fill all its target under the original three-year £4,700,000,000 arms budget.

Home Defence

On home defence, the prime minister said the country should conjure up for any potential paratroopers the picture of "the back of a hedgehog rather than the paunch of a rabbit."

He said the greatest concern in rearmament is caused by the slow progress in developing the R.A.F., particularly in the supply of the latest machines. In this respect it had been previously hinted that aircraft production was lagging, largely because of a lack of skilled manpower. One of the country's big problems is to find the 500,000 workers need far various armament factories.

On the vexed question of a supreme commander for allied forces in the Atlantic, Churchill showed himself still unconvinced by American arguments. Churchill said it wasn't a question of national pride but of good working arrangements on which salvation might depend.

On Anglo-American differences of opinion over whether the allied armies should adopt the British or American rifle, Churchill emphasized the need of a harmonious long-term. But he did say he thinks the British .280 may be the best yet made.

Churchill closed with an unexpected tribute to the "sterling patriotism" of Emanuel Shinwell, former socialist defence minister and long one of his principal foes in parliament. The kind words to Shinwell, coupled with Churchill's soft treatment of former Labor Minister Aneurin Bevan, led political observers to believe one of the premier's principal objectives is to win national support of defence policy.

He may also be seeking to clear himself of charges of "war-mongering" — charges levelled by some socialists before the October general election, and criticized by many responsible commentators as among the most unscrupulous in modern British politics.

Reds Unaware They Captured Maj.-Gen. Dean

Pusan, Korea, Dec. 24 — (AP) — The communists were unaware they had captured Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean for some time after he was taken prisoner, a South Korean official who saw Dean in a prison camp said today.

Lee Byung Ho, prosecutor for the South Korean Ministry of Justice, was in the prison command at Chanju when the former commander of the U. S. 24th division was questioned.

Lee escaped and bought information given him by Park Whan Sang, a South Korean pressed into service as an interpreter by the North Koreans. At the time, his data about Dean was not believed because of the general opinion that Dean was dead.

Lee's account:

Dean hid in the hills for more than a month after he was cut off from his troops after the fall of Taejon.

On Aug. 25, 1950, he approached a Korean farmer on the road near Sedong to ask for food. Dean's face was swollen. He was tired and dirty.

As he was talking with the farmer, two communist guards happened by and took him prisoner. But they did not recognize him.

Dean was taken to the Sang Chun police station near Chinan where security police questioned him at length.

Lee said the general refused to answer questions and told his captors:

"I am an American soldiers—a professional soldier. All I need to give you is my name and rank."

The reds thought they had an important man, but for a long time they had no idea he was a general, even though he had a calling card in his pocket.

The general was taken to the prison commander's own home and kept there until Sept. 3, 1950. Then he was moved to Taejon and later sent to Seoul and on into North Korea.

CRASHED TO DEATH

Bisrop, Calif., Dec. 22 — (AP) — Dr. Karl Ovgard, 38, holder of Sweden's glider endurance mark of 21 hours, has crashed to his death in the Sierra Nevada mountains. His body was found yesterday 45 miles south of here near the wreckage of the glider in which he had sought a new altitude mark. Searchers said the left wing of the glider apparently collapsed in the air.

A Merry Christmas To All

Miss "Merry" Christmas

By Maud McCurdy Welch

Meredith Harris, known as Merry, sat at her desk in the big insurance office and fought back her tears.

A voice startled her. "Why are you here working? Are . . . you crying?"

It was Hugh Mallory, the agency head. Merry said. "Just finishing up. Everybody's in such a hurry."

"It's Christmas Eve. Let everything go." Hugh started to his office. Merry's eyes followed his tall figure. She liked him very much.

He turned back. "You didn't tell me why you were crying."

"It's nothing. My sister and her family have gone to California. I guess I . . . I'm lonely."

"That may be my good luck," he said surprisingly.

He was alone, too, he explained. His sister-in-law who had looked after his little daughter since the death of his wife four years ago, had left unexpectedly. His Aunt Amanda was still with them, but she was getting old. There was no one to do the things to make a little girl happy. Would Meredith help him?

It took them three hours to finish shopping. At seven o'clock, Hugh's luxurious car turned on the drive of an imposing house.

A little girl sat in a big chair looking lonely. She held out her arms and cried a little. "We're not going to have a Christmas tree or anything."

Hugh Mallory swung his little daughter up in his arms. "Oh, yes, we are." He put her down. "This is Miss Meredith Harris. She's going to see to everything."

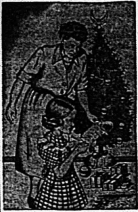
And it was the most wonderful Christmas Dee had ever had and the most beautiful tree. But Merry's gift was best of all. A beautiful Siamese kitten.

After all the presents had been distributed. Merry and Dee sat in a big chair, Dee stroking the kitten's head. "How did you know I wanted a kitten more'n anything?"

"Because I was a little girl once myself."

Hugh went uptown on an errand in the later afternoon. Soon after a handsome woman in rich furs and jewels came in.

"Aunt Hilda, you . . . came back?"



"No . . . No!" Dee cried in anguish. But Hilda tore the cat from her.

"Yes, Dee, I know my duty, even if your father and I . . ." Hilda broke off staring at Merry. "Who's this?"

"It's Merry Christmas . . . that's what I call her. She fixed my beautiful tree, did everything."

Hilda looked at Merry coldly. "You can go now. And take that cat with you. They're full of germs."

"No . . . No!" Dee cried in anguish.

But Hilda tore the cat from her thrust it in Merry's arms. The next thing Merry had been ushered out the front door.

She went to her small apartment sat down in a chintz chair. holding the kitten. "Well, after all, it was fun even if it is over," she confided tearfully to the cat.

But it wasn't over. Two hours later Hugh Mallory knocked on her door. "I hunted through a hundred office files for your address and I found you at last."

Merry was flushed. "Your sister-in-law came back."

He nodded. "She's gone for good now. We'd had a disagreement. You see, I found she was teaching my little girl to be a snob." He broke off, smiled again. "Dee wants you to come back and so . . . do I. For good. Do you understand, darling?"

She was afraid to believe he'd really said that. But he took her hands, drew her closer. "Look, Merry, I've been searching for the right girl for a long time. I knew I'd found her when I saw you sitting in that big chair with Dee and the cat. Oh, my dear, say you love me, say you'll marry me. Dee and I need you so."

Meredith lifted her face and he read his answer in the sweet sincerity of her eyes.

Salmon Pool On River Makes Bangor Famous

Bangor, Me. (AP)—It may be hard to believe that a stretch of wild water less than 300 yards long could bring world-wide fame to a city.

It isn't a place where gold is washed from the sand, nor is the water a cure for human ills. Nothing like that. But it has long been a hot spot for sportsmen who seek fish with bamboo rods and feathered barbs.

This turbulent water is known as the Bangor salmon pool, which is created by the waterworks dam at the head of navigation of Maine's big Penobscot River.

It was more than 75 years ago when a sportsman whose name has been lost walked to the shore of that part of the river and cast his fly on the rushing water.

Almost instantly the fly disappeared, the reel screamed, and the stout rod buckled.

Gets Big One

He lifted the rod to set the hook, and a bulging-bellied Atlantic salmon of nearly 25 pounds leaped high into the sunlight.

The Penobscot Indians had speared salmon there many years before when only a barrier of boulders created the pool. Salmon coming up from the sea to spawn liked that place of fast, shallow water.

In the old days, Bangor was a two-fisted settlement of lumberjacks and those who hired them to harvest the great white pines that grew in the north. Saw mills whined day and night and ships from all parts of the world were jammed into this part of the river. Bangor was then the largest lumber port in the world.

But the news that a salmon had been taken on the fly in that frothy stretch of water led to the gradual development of one of the great sea salmon sport fisheries in the world.

The pine was soon gone. The bonanza was just a memory, but the river remained. More and more fishermen came to the pool, taking the hard-fighting silvered aristocrats on the fly.

The salmon, from 10 to 30 pounds, swarmed up the river from the sea in great numbers in the early spring on their journey to the spawning beds 200 miles to the north.

At the Bangor pool they rested before leaping over the dam and continued on to the headwaters.

Big Catch

And as they rested, hundreds of them were taken every year by men who rode the boisterous rapids in pea-pod boats of canvas and cedar, and others who fished from the rugged shores.

The news of that wonderful fishing spread like a forest fire before the wind. Soon sportsmen from many parts of the United States and foreign countries, too, came to visit Bangor and enjoy the sport.

Finally a group of local sportsmen decided to send the first salmon taken from the pool each year to the President of the United States. That was well over a half-century ago. Nobody can seem to remember the year, or the name of the president who received the first fish.

Presidents still dine on the sweet, pink flesh of the first one of the season.

President Truman and friends feasted on a 12-pounder this year that was caught by a Bangor man on opening day, April 1.

RETURN

By Nancy Plyler

The small boy pressed his face closer to the window. Outside the snow lay a white blanket over the community, and darkness had drawn its curtain upon the day's activities. Johnny had been standing there since dinner.

His mother and father sat nearby. "He hardly touched his dinner!" his mother explained.

"It's too bad! He was very fond of that dog," his father said seriously.

"I'm so sorry this happened. It's just two weeks until Christmas and there's so much to do. Scouring the neighborhood for the dog at this time will interfere with our other plans," the mother said.

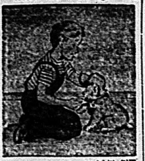
While they were talking, the doorbell rang. The wife went to answer it and found two teen-age boys on the porch.

"Yes?" the wife questioned.

The boys seemed to be out of breath from running. "Mrs. Porter we saw two men take your dog into their car. They drove away with him," one of the boys explained.

"What? When? the wife was beside herself.

"About two hours ago. We were taking the groceries to Mrs. Jane; we couldn't turn back to tell you. Beside the car was gone before we knew what had happened. I think we'd know them if we saw them again," the boys finished.



[illegible] back to me, Mommy?" was all he asked.

"Don, will you come here?" Mrs. Porter called to her husband. "Now will you please tell my husband what you have just told me?" she turned to the boys.

They reiterated the same facts to Mr. Porter.

His first statement was, "Don't say anything about this to Johnny."

He questioned the boys further, thought for a time, then asked the boys if they would agree to go around the neighborhood with him to see if he could trace the men.

Agreeing to this, the two boys left with Mr. Porter.

Mrs. Porter was sitting in the living room when Mr. Porter returned. Her eyes questioned what her lips could not say.

"No luck!" he sank into a chair. "I didn't really think there would be any use to go out and look for them. There just wasn't anything else to do. Poor kid! With Christmas coming on and everything." Mr. Porter was very solemn.

On Christmas morning Mrs. Porter was up very early. The Christmas tree was trimmed to perfection. The wreaths were hung. The living room was very picturesque. Johnny's stocking was hung over the mantel; it was brimming to the top. All kinds of toys that would delight the heart of a five-year-old boy were under the tree. His mother took one last look before she called her husband to awaken Johnny.

A sleepy, tousled-haired boy crept down the steps to behold the wonders of another Christmas day. After viewing the scene, he gave one leap to the hobby horse that waited for him. By now he was no longer sleepy, but had mustered energy to open all his gifts without any help from his parents.

And for a time Johnny seemed so engrossed in the many toys that he never mentioned about his dog. But their hopes were short-lived! For while they were planning for the day, they noticed that Johnny was watching at the window. Mr. and Mrs. Porter looked at each other and knew that they had lost in their endeavor to make Christmas Day a happy time for their boy.

When Mrs. Porter was nearly on the verge of tears, Johnny gave one scream from the window. They ran to it and looking out, saw a small white dog scurrying up the path. Mr. Porter never opened a door more gleefully and the dog dashed into the room, into the arms of his master. Johnny was laughing and crying at the same time. "Did Santa Claus send him back to me, Mommy?" was all he asked.

"Yes, dear," she whispered.

"The dog either broke away; or, the spirit of Christmas must have worked in those men's hearts," Mrs. Porter smiled to her husband.

Mrs. B. G. Lapier Of Trenton Hits Life in England

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

North Luffenham, Rutland, England (CP) — Forty Canadian families live in a trailer camp on bleak grasslands near this new RCAF station, and some of them don't like it a bit.

Lac. Leonard Brame of Vancouver and Stettler, Alta., his Scottish wife Doreen and three young children occupy a rented caravan which affords living space about equal to that of a hall in a small Canadian house. But smiling Mrs. Brame says cheerfully "we know we just have to put up with it."

Others are less stoical. For Mrs. Beverly Greig, wife of Lac. D. M. Greig of Toronto, life in North Luffenham has been "two months of misery".

"Tell them we want to go home," said Mrs. Greig. "Canada was never like this."

With two visiting friends nodding approval as she spoke, Mrs. Greig claimed that her 15-months old daughter Donna has to sleep on a damp mattress; that rats had torn the baby's buggy apart; and that there is "no real supervision" at the trailer camp.

Climate Atrocious

Mrs. Freda Smalley, whose husband comes from Leaside, Ont., and Mrs. B. G. Lapier, of Trenton, Ont., with her corporal husband, chimed in with complaints about the atrocious English climate, primitive bathing facilities, lack of transportation and lack of water.

Mrs. Kathleen King, who formerly lived in a four-roomed flat with her husband, Cpl. A. J. King of Montreal, disagreed. She said there is "certainly no hardship" and added she likes being able to get cheap milk for the baby and plenty of canned fruit.

Most RCAF officers deplore conditions at the trailer camp, which they admit is hardly a paradise. But they can't see any alternative. Soon, they hope, conditions will be improved by a barracks and community centre.

The camp stands in flat grassland rendered damp and dispiriting by rain and fog. The caravans may be modern or their yellow paint may be peeling, but all are tiny. Gas stoves leave a faint, unpleasant smell. Yet the Canadians pay rents ranging from £3 to £5 a week.

Some In Hotels

Not far away are clean, whitewashed, prefab-style emergency married quarters, housing 16 families, and 30 brick permanent quarters which formerly provided accommodation for 79 RAF families. These are all full. Some Canadian families live in nearby hotels.

Generally, the decision seems to be to accept the housing shortage at "Little Canada," as North Luffenham is sometimes called, as just part of the growing pains inevitable in moving to a new air base. But there is considerable resentment among all ranks because the RCAF paid passage from Canada for most men's families—but not for all.

Those who paid their own way not only suffer financially but their names are low on the housing lists. The feeling is that this represents a genuine breach of faith.

CHRISTMAS SECRETS

By Hal Marquette

Midge and Bill were standing in front of Landsbury's department store, window wishing. Suddenly, Bill looked down at the sidewalk as his foot nudged the object he had droppeo.

"Fumbler," he said under his breath and glanced toward Midge. She was gazing intently at the toys and did not seem to notice when he stooped to pick up the billfold and slyly put it into his pocket. Otherwise . . .

"Bill, look," Midge was saying as she pointed to a large doll dresser.

"Why the interest in toys . . . Now if . . . " He was hunting for words to hide his agitation.

Midge felt a slight warmth come to her cheeks and her heart began to pound. For a second she wondered if she could finish his 'now if' and tell him here and now. She wondered if they could be thinking of the same thing.

They continued on their way back to the apartment.

Bill was glad and relieved when Midge suggested coffee. That would give him time to examine his find in privacy. That's what he'd planned to tell her if she ever questioned him. He'd never kept anything from Midge before, excepting . . . But, he'd been young and had paid society . . .

"I didn't find that billfold, Midge," he stammered.

Bill trembled as he thought of the "fumble" back there on the street. What if . . . He waited until he was sure Midge was busy with the sandwiches before he got the billfold from his overcoat pocket. Finally, after what seemed an eternity, he was examining its contents. Here was more money than he'd ever had in his hands before.

Suddenly Bill heard Midge's voice. It seemed to come from far away and then to crash in his ears.

"Bill, why don't you answer me . . . And whatever have you there?"

He tried to get the billfold into his pocket before she came to his side. But again there was a fumble.

"Oh, oh . . . Midge, I . . . " He stopped short and brought the billfold back to view and slowly handed it to her.

"I found it tonight . . . Landsbury's corner . . . Meant to surprise you . . . " he said lamely.

Midge fingered the contents excitedly.

"Bill, you must call the man immediately . . . He must be worried."

"Do you think I'm a fool . . . It's . . . And Christmas only five days away . . . I have so little . . . This could be our happiest Christmas . . . "

Midge stared at him as he spoke. He was talking in a tone she'd never heard from him before.

"How could we ever have a merry Christmas . . . We'd never forget . . . Don't you see . . . "

There was a brief tense silence as Bill looked at the billfold in her outstretched hand.

"Bill, the phone number is on the licence . . . "

The lights on the tiny Christmas tree were blurred as Bill put his packages beside it. Lately, everything seemed to blur thru a mist of tears whenever he thought of Midge and Christmas. Why hadn't he told her everything the night that he returned the billfold instead of waiting until now. He looked up to see Midge standing in the doorway.

"Midge dear, sit down . . . I've something I've got to say . . . "

"What, darling . . . "

"I didn't find that billfold, Midge . . . I . . . " he stammered, "I did that once before . . . long before I met you . . . "

Her lips began to quiver and big tears began to tumble down her cheeks but she was smiling.

"Say something, Midge . . . Ask me what I mean . . . "

"There's nothing to ask, darling . . . The doll dresser in the window at Landsbury's had a mirror and . . . And, darling, as of this moment it is the merriest Christmas ever . . . I had hoped and prayed that you'd tell me . . . and you have . . . Now, let's open our Christmas

North Alberta's Cold Weather Fails to Halt Investigations Of Oil Exploration Crews

Peace River, Alta (CP) — There's three feet of ice on the rivers and the bears have been in hibernation for weeks, but winter doesn't halt the work of the "doodlebug" crews.

They are the new explorers of this sparsely-populated area of Northern Alberta. Known officially as seismograph crews, their self-chosen nickname more aptly connotes the spirit in which they go about the business of seeking oil.

The "doodlebuggers" are not the only oilmen here now, for as computers in Calgary and Edmonton evaluate the results of geophysical exploration, the "big rigs" move in.

But the seismograph workers form the vanguard of the oil company invasion. They are the first into hitherto untouched areas, bulldozing trails through muskeg and bush to test for likely new fields.

Peace River, (pop. 997) situated in the hills bordering the Peace, is the hub of supply lines in the "middle north".

Now outlying farms are stark and lonely, but the horse-drawn school vans — covered sleighs, stovepipes jutting from their roofs—jog by to remind that the children have not left.

And from Edmonton, some 300 miles southeast, Alaskans travel through to the Alaska highway and home after a vacation in California, a business trip to Chicago.

From Edmonton, too, come the trains and trucks bringing nylons to an outpost school teacher, repairs for a snow-plow. Only the trucks, however, can reach isolated points out of here. Even at night, they roll along the snow-rutted roads, often to an almost inaccessible oil camp.

Cosmopolitan Touch

Hotel accommodation here is as scarce as in Toronto or Chicago during conventions. The register reads with cosmopolitan variety—a geologist from Texas, a driller from Alabama, Oklahoma, Venezuela, a salesman from Montreal.

After a month or more of uninterrupted 10- or 12-hour days in the bush, the oilmen hit town for a spree that overflows restaurants, beer parlors and dance halls. When the "jug hustlers" and "ground stompers"—seismograph field workers—return to work, garages and food wholesalers can't keep up with demands.

Some return to camps that consist only of banked tents. Others live in large trailers.

A kitchen trailer houses refrigerator, deep-freeze and butane gas stoves. A washroom trailer is equipped with hot and cold water, showers, flushing toilets and an automatic washing machine. Auxiliary power plants provide light, oil stoves heat.

But for all these comforts, there is only a book or a poker game at night for entertainment. Kidding and good-natured rough-house dwindle as days pass. The next "going out" day is circled on the calendar.

Most companies see that mail from "outside" gets in regularly. Some even build an airstrip beside their camps and keep a small plane on hand, but bad weather often makes "seat of pants" navigation in the all but uncharted areas impossible.

Come rain, snow or 40 below, however, the "doodlebug" crews continue their search. The result can be seen in the growing number of derricks keeping lonely vigil in this land of the oil explorer.

A Real Christmas After All

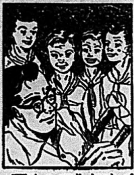
By Dorothy Boys Kilian

"This household is in for a lean Christmas, all right," Bill Robinson said bitterly to his wife who had just come into the living room, dressed for marketing. Seated in an easy chair, he looked disgustedly down at his still-bandaged leg stretched out straight on an ottoman.

Margaret leaned over and brushed her cheek against his. "It's enough for us to see you getting well again, honey. When I first saw you after that auto accident, I was plumb scared for your life."

Bill squeezed her hand. "You're a brick, dear. But we can't expect our three- and five-year old offspring to understand that doctor and hospital bills have completely stripped us. Why we can't even afford a tree, let alone presents."

Margaret was quiet for a second. Then she stood up and, turning toward the door, said, "Speaking of the children, Bill, they're out in the kitchen with their water colors, and the two little Johnson girls are with them. Mrs. Johnson had some last minute shopping to do, and I knew you wouldn't mind watching them again."



"What a swell bunch of fellows," he managed to say.

"O.K." Bill answered. "That's the least I can do after the neighborly way they treated us through all this mess."

"I'll try to be home before your Cub Scout group descends upon you. Seven lively boys are a terrific handful, I know."

Voices from the kitchen broke into the silence, Judy Johnson was saying excitedly, "I think I'm going to get a doll buggy."

Back came his own little Margie's answer. "I'm going to get a doll house."

"How do you know?"

"Oh, because I asked for one for my birthday last summer, and Daddy smiled and said probably one would come at Christmas."

Bill winced. It had been so easy, promising things for six months ahead.

Just then he heard Mrs. Johnson's hearty voice at the kitchen door. "Where's Mr. Robinson? I have something here for him."

"Oh, a Christmas tree!" The shrill voice of a child exclaimed.

Mrs. Johnson was laughing as she appeared at the living room door. "Did you hear, Bill?" Yes, I went shopping for our tree, and picked one up for you folks at the same time. It isn't so very tall, but it's big enough to cheer you all up."

Mrs. Johnson went on talking, to cover Bill's embarrassment. "I'll take all the youngsters over to my house for awhile." And she was gone.

"Some neighbor!" Bill glowed. "Still," his face clouded over, "That tree may only point up the lack of much under it—"

A loud commotion at the front door drew his attention. "Come on in, the door's not locked," he called recognizing the voices of his Cub Scouts.

A whirlwind of blue-clad boys swept into the room, their eyes sparkling with happy mischief.

"Oh, Mr. Robinson," the smallest one shrieked. "We've just finished all the—"

"We've been working after school every day at my house, making toys for your children," a second Cub burst in. "You should see — a doll house for Margie, and a doll bed and a kitchen cupboard!"

"And for little Bill, guess what!" The smallest boy couldn't keep quiet. "A wooden sled, and a garage for his little cars and some big blocks, all sanded and waxed and everything!"

Bill tossed his head to get rid of the drops of mist in the corners of his eyes. "What a swell bunch of fellows," he managed to say. "But why—"

"Why not?" the biggest Cub said happily. "You're the one who taught us how to use tools in the first place, aren't you? And besides, we just like the Robinsons!" He stopped suddenly, embarrassed.

"Well, fellows," Bill said, after a deep breath, "I certainly didn't think so a while ago, but this is going to be one of the happiest Christmases of my life!"

Soap Flake Snow

Trimming the Christmas tree with fluffy snow is easy if you use soap flakes. It won't melt either.

Here's how it's done: Use three or four cups of soap flakes to one cup of warm water. Beat with electric beater or hand beater until smooth and fluffy. Then spread immediately over branches of tree, scattering it on with hands.

For sparkle, spread on some artificial glistening snow.

d Love

According to the familiar old carol, St. Joseph was an old man. He probably was considerably older than Mary, but people may have thought of him as being older than he actually was because he enjoyed earnest conversation and the companionship of selected friends rather than boisterous pleasures.

When Joseph thought of Mary, he forgot the difference in their ages; she was the girl he had waited for, his beloved. They were espoused — or, as we would say, engaged — which was almost as official as being married. His heart soared on wings of the aproaching wedding day, and then . . .

What Mary insisted had come to pass, simply could not be! Joseph wanted desperately to believe Mary, but such things just didn't happen, and if they did, they happened to somebody else.

Much as he loved Mary, Joseph was a righteous and God-fearing man and while he couldn't even think of making her a public example, he had just about made up his mind to put her away privily. That is, he thought he had made up his mind. In his heart, he knew he couldn't; what would become of her . . . of her child . . .

Then one night, after he had exhausted himself with tortured thinking, he fell asleep and the angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream, saying:

> "Joseph, thou son of David, fear not . . ."
> And when Joseph awoke, he did as the angel had bidden him, and took Mary as his lawful and cherished wife.

"Fear not," the angel had declared unto Mary.

"Fear not," the angel said unto the shepherds of Bethlehem.

In 1937, a Waukegan, Ill., minister and the residents of one city block decided to do something about the disposal of the family Christmas tree. Nothing is more forlorn than worn out Christmas trees. They deserve better fates than being dumped in alleys and vacant lots; and they constitute fire hazards on back porches and in basement areaways.

So, Waukegan held its first annual Twelfth Night observance committing the trees to a community bonfire amid the chorusing of carols.

And the custom has waxed. Residents of several communities, choruses, soloists, etc., participating as the spirits of the Christmas trees are dispatched to some fir Valhalla to return to bless a future Yuletide.

SUFFER Little Children

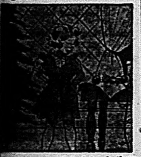
By Vera Tarpley

Standing on her tiptoes, Mandy could see the whole bright array of them — shiny red, blue and silver ornaments spread out on the table, waiting for Santa's nimble fingers to arrange them on the tree.

"Pretteeee," she murmured longingly. If only Santa would let her help him. Just handing them to him one by one would be wonderful. She turned to Gerald, who was busily fumbling with train tracks and getting nowhere. "Gerry, you touch?" she asked, looking back at the ornaments.

Gerald looked up despairingly from his train tracks. "Sure, I touched them lots of times," he said carelessly. "Only you can't," he added. "You're too little."

Voices floated into them from the kitchen. "The kid's old enough to know there isn't a Santa Claus, anyway!" That was John Martin who said that. John Martin, the most wonderful Daddy in the world.



If she could just touch them —just touch one—then nothing else would matter.

They must still have been talking about what happened before supper. Mommy had fixed hamburgers — they always had hamburgers on Christmas Eve, and this was the first year Mandy could have a hamburg like everybody else.

There was really nothing to get mad about. Mandy and Gerald had been standing in the kitchen smelling the wonderful smells, while Mommy was fixing supper. The basement door was standing open to let out some of the smoke from frying, and up the stairs he came, one step at a time, and peeked his little head around the door.

Mandy saw him first and screamed in happy delirium. Gerald ran over and picked him up — he wriggled and squirmed and licked Gerald all over the face. Gerald knew it was a fox terrier pup — he knew all the names of the different dogs, but he had always wanted a fox terrier.

Daddy came into the kitchen at that point. He acted even more queerly — he was mad! And he started saying terrible things to Mommy — terrible things that made Mandy cry and Gerald want to run far away so he wouldn't hear.

"I told you to keep the basement door closed!" Daddy roared. "It's just plain stupid carelessness on your part!" And he snatched the puppy from Gerald's arms and carried him down the basement stairs.

Mandy was still looking over the edge of the table at the beautiful ornaments. If she could just touch them — just touch one — then nothing else would matter.

She hadn't meant to jerk the newspapers under them so hard —she just wanted to pull the ornaments a little closer to the edge of the table. But there it was — broken ornaments all over the floor — still shiny red, blue and silver — but broken. "Pretteeee," she said.

"That does it!" shouted Mommy, bursting into tears. She swept up the pieces and dumped them into the wastebasket. "You put the kids to bed, John. I'm going over to Mother's for awile —maybe there'll be some Christmas spirit left over there."

But John lay down on the sofa in the living room and fell asleep. He didn't wake up until Martha shook him frantically, screaming, "The children! the children are gone!"

There was no anger — no accusations now. Just terror. John was the first to recover enough to start thinking. He ran down to the basement and found the puppy gone. He went outside, and Martha was left sobbing alone.

She was picking up the telephone when she saw it. A light in the garage. John was standing at the garage door looking in —just standing there.

A small pine branch was propped up in one corner — John had snipped it off himself that afternoon because it made the tree look lopsided. From each twig of the pine branch hung a bright shiny piece of ornament, laboriously tied on with a string.

At the base of the Christmas tree slept a huddled mass of legs and arms and a tail. The tail twitched a little and brushed Mandy's forehead. "Pretteeee," she murmured softly.

CHRISTMAS CAMELIA

By John Scott Douglas

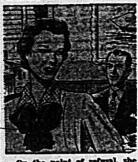
Stenographers hovered around as Marta Manning unwrapped the package that had just reached the law offices. There were startled gasps of admiration when the paper fell away, revealing a potted camelia. Large and pure white, except for crimson-touched petals, its heart was filled with delicate golden stamens.

"Oh, how beautiful!" Tessie gasped. "Who sent it, Marta?"

"My boy friend," Marta said, her tone warm with happiness.

"I didn't know camelias bloomed in time for Christmas," said Bess.

"The Dai Baugura does," said Marta. "But it's all crimson. This must be a new hybrid that Colby Blake stocked for the Christmas trade."



On the point of refusal, she remembered the broken date. "I'd be glad to, Mr. Ladd."

Could Colby have developed it himself? she wondered. She remembered the day, when he had been showing her around his nursery, that she started to enter a small, new lath house at the back. "Don't go in there, Marta!" And then he'd been embarrassed as only a big, redheaded outdoor man can be embarrassed by his own rudeness "Forgive me for speaking so sharply, darling. You'll understand, some day."

In the two years since then, he'd never explained his strange words. It was but one of the things that had marred a more perfect understanding. The many broken dates were another. Engagements he could not keep because a truckload of plants must suddenly be delivered, or a customer must be seen about the laying out of a new garden.

"For you, Marta," said the switchboard girl. The girls dispersed as she picked up the phone. She heard Colby's voice.

"I feel terribly to beg off on another date, darling. But Roberts sprained his back lifting a tubbed tree, and had to go home. About twenty customers are coming in to pick up Christmas plants this evening, and someone must be here. Let me explain about that camelia—"

Sick with disappointment, she said, "Never mind," and hung up. Tears pricked her eyes. Wasn't she ever as important as a customer?

"Garral Ladd wants you to take a letter," said the switchboard girl.

Any of the other girls would have gone into a tizzy if he'd suggested a date. Only Marta had had the chance to refuse him, not once but many times. For to her, he wasn't quite real.

Now, with a confident smile, he dictated: "To do the town on Christmas Eve with a lovely young blonde like you would make this my most wonderful Christmas. Will you say, 'Yes'? Devotedly, Garral Ladd."

"To whom shall I address it?"

"To Miss Marta Manning."

Her cheeks grew warm. On the point of refusal, she remembered the broken date. "I'd be glad to, Mr. Ladd."

That evening on her way home to dress, she stopped at a nursery to buy a small tree for her apartment. The tree, she recalled with a pang of disappointment, that Colby had promised to bring when he called. A woman loaded with bundles was leaving the nursery with a plant identical to the one Marta had received that morning.

"Isn't it lovely?" the woman asked, noticing Marta glance. "It's the new hybrid developed by the Blake nursery." And she told Marta its name.

Marta stood stunned when the woman left. Then, abruptly, she turned back to her car, thinking. "I can call Garral Ladd later."

She found Colby wrapping red paper around a pot holding one of the new Christmas camelias.

"Can you forgive me, Colby?" she asked humbly. "I'll help wait on customers so we can be together Christmas Eve. "You've made me so proud and happy."

"It was the only name for a flower so beautiful, darling."

She felt a touch of awe as she stared at the camelia he was wrapping. How like Colby to express his love by naming it the Marta Manning!

Legends Associate Mule, Gentle Camel of Jesus With Gift-Giving Custom

Syrian legends have associated the Magic Mule and the Gentle Camel of Jesus with gift-giving, for reasons that are at once different, and yet similar in their association with the Christ Child.

It seems a certain traveller tied his mule to a tree when he went into an inn for refreshment on Epiphany Eve. Just at midnight, when the boughs of the tree bowed down in homage to the Holy Infant, the mule was caught up on the rebound and found cradled high up in the branches by its returning master.

The youngest camel of the three ridden by the Wise Men was exhausted by the pressing journey and was blessed with immortality by the baby Jesus as it lay moaning near the Nativity scene.

Danger of Fire Is Greatly Enhanced By Christmas Tree

The average Christmas tree can go up in smoke in only two minutes. That doesn't leave much time for the fire department to get there.

A live tree with roots packed in a bucket of earth is the safest. Be sure and keep the dirt moistened. A small tree is safer than a large one and festive trimmings can make up what it lacks in size.

Keep the tree outdoors until you are ready to set it up inside. When you bring it in, keep it in the coolest part of the house with the radiator nearest it turned off.

Use non-inflammable aluminum foil — not cotton or paper— to conceal container in which tree is "planted." Use non-inflammable trimming on the tree.

Don't use lighted candles (This may seem an unnecessary precaution in this day of electric lights, but lighted candles contribute to tragic fires every year.)

Check the wiring for the tree to see that it's not frayed and is in perfect condition. The switch for turning off and on electric lights should be at some distance from the tree. Don't plug or unplug lights beneath the tree.

Don't leave tree lights on when it isn't necessary and especially when the family is away from home. From time to time, check over the tree and see if needles near the lights are turning brown. If they have, move the lights.

Watch the calendar. New Year's is the day for the tree to go down. If you should extend the time, don't leave the lights on the tree for more than a half hour at a time.

Hawaiian Christmas Is Elaborate Affair

Although many Hawaiians have seen ice only as frozen in mechanical refrigerators, the trees used by the islanders for Christmas decorations are painted white to simulate snow.

Christmas dinner is an elaborate affair, enjoyed in the privacy of the home behind locked doors and drawn blinds. Any open-house hospitality is an economic impossibility; if the shades were not drawn and the doors not locked, homes would be invaded by hordes of strangers — all expecting food and drink.

Santa Claus Hit As 'Sugar Daddy' Instead of Saint

Assailing the Santa Claus myth as 'foolish fiction' and rival of the Holy Child, the Rev. John S. Martin, editor of the Catholic Review, declared in a 1949 editorial that Santa the saint has been lost in Santa the sugar daddy — and that the whole idea is bad psychology and bad pedagogy.

"Our children learn about the reindeer, but have never heard of the ox and the ass," Father Martin continued and recommended that we:

"Leave the man in the red suit to those who have nothing better . . . for whom life must end in disillusion and despair."

Father Martin's sentiments are reminiscent of Martin Luther's vigorous campaign against neglect of the central idea of Christmas, which is the birth of Jesus. So, German children have been taught that the Christkind bring the presents — Christkind being depicted as the messenger of the Infant Jesus sent earthward at Christmastime to bring happiness to good children.

The modern conception of Santa Claus is, of course, 99 per cent fictional and strictly American. But the spirit of generosity and thoughtfulness as typified by Santa Claus is neither sugar daddy-ish nor essentially American. Unfortunately not all children who await Santa have learned from their mothers' lips the story of the Holy Child.

CURRIER AND IVES CARDS

Commercial production of Christmas cards in the United States began about 1835 with the founding and developing of the partnership of Currier and Ives in New York.

For more than a century American painters have aided the industry by painting Christmas themes on order or by selling reproduction rights to the art which is now conservatively estimated as worth $10,000,000 annually.

The favorite Nativity theme is represented by hundreds of interpretations. Winter scenes are next in popularity, some of them dating back to the Puritans of New England, the German forests whence St. Nicholas emerged; and even to the Druids of pre-Christian England.

Christmas Candles Have Been Used By Many Peoples

It would be astonishing, indeed, if no candles appeared in homes throughout the nation on Christmas Eve. The legend which surrounds the custom is believed to have started in Ireland.

There on Christmas Eve a large candle was burned which could be snuffed out only by one named Mary. As the Irish put it: "Who knows, on some Christmas Eve, Jesus and Mary may come again, not to Palestine, but to the Holy Isle on the farthest edge of Europe?"

Their first use for Christmas is not recorded in the annals of any nation, but that the "Christ Child Candle," burned in the window of Christmas Eve is, according to an old legend, placed there to light His way if He makes an earthly visitation and in atonement for the night of His birth when there was no room for Him.

Also among the legends is one about bayberry candles burned on Christmas.

During the early history of our country, animal fats were relatively scarce. The branches of the bayberry shrub were covered with wax-[illegible] berries and children were given the task of gathering the berries when candles had to be made so that the fats could be conserved.

According to tradition, one who burned a bayberry candle on Christmas Eve or Christmas Day would have long life and a happy one.

An old verse reads:

"To learn your luck for the year they say,
Burn a bayberry dip on Christmas Day.
If the flame burns bright and the light shines clear,
Good luck will be yours
throughout the year."

When Bustard and Frumenty Were the Fare for Christmas

By FRANK LAMBE

Gargantuan and outlandish as may seem some of the Yuletide menus of olden times, two items which today many people in different lands consider indispensable at their Christmas table — turkey and plum-pudding — were unknown in England to the Elizabethans who, instead, feasted on swans, peacocks, bustards, and larks in hot sauce, as well as on strange-sounding dishes like dowset, frumenty, pottages, and chewets. There were occasions in history when the chief course was dormice stewed in poppy juice, and boars' heads decked with rosemary leaves, and there was also the time when the people could buy a hen for sixpence, and twelve eggs cost one penny.

London, England — There is an old Italian proverb, often applied to an unusually busy person: "Ha piu di fare che i forni di Natale in Inghilterra" ("He has more to do than the ovens of England at Christmas time.) It was meant to denote furious energy, and up to about the early part of the present century there was certainly some point in the saying.

The advent of Puritanism in England tended to drive a wedge between kitchen and pew; to discriminate sharply between what was considered food for the mind and nourishment for the body. Previously it was thought no crime to praise God in hearty fashion at Christmas by feasting and gaiety, and no less sincere and reverent a grace was often said by an Elizabethan husbandman over a gargantuan and mouth-watering repast than by a long-faced Puritan divine who thought it sinful and gluttonous to go straight from chapel to a meal of roast swan, spiced beef, cheese, apples, and nuts.

John Evelyn said that the Christmas of 1655 was "the mournfullest time that in my life I have seen," and in London and all over the country people had to observe great secrecy if they wanted to celebrate Christmas in the traditional way.

Strange as it may seem to us today for people to eat swans and peacocks, the ancient Romans (whose ten-day Saturnalia coincided with the Christian festival of Christmas) delighted also in eating tender dormice cooked in honey and poppy juices.

Swans and peacocks, incidentally, were esteemed as table birds for centuries after the Romans had claimed to have discovered their edible virtues, and we find them the principal dishes on English Christmas menus up to about the 16th century. The bustard also figured as a delicacy until it became extinct in Britain towards the latter part of the 19th century, by which time the turkey had firmly established itself as the main Yuletide dish.

Both Kings Henry III and Richard II were renowned for the prodigality of their feasting. At Christmas 1379 Richard gave a mammoth dinner at Westminster Hall for 10,000 guests. It lasted three days; 28 oxen, 300 sheep and fowls without number were killed and roasted; the dinner started at three o'clock in the afternoon and lasted till just after midnight.

Sixteen principal dishes constituted the Christmas dinner given by Robert Devereux, Second Earl of Essex, in 1593 in honor of Queen Elizabeth. The first was "a shield of brawne, with pudding and souse and good mustard withall," followed by a boiled capon, boiled beef, roasted chine of beef, roasted ox-tongues, roasted pig, chewets (a kind of savory mince-pie) baked with eggs, sugar, lemon and orange juices, forcemeat balls of crab, crayfish, lobster and prawns and "all kindes of spicery."

The second half of the meal consisted of a swan "well drest" a haunch of venison roasted, a pasty of veal with a "sublety" made of paste, jelly, blancmange (moulded in the shapes of various animals), rabbits, parboiled "with puddings in their bellies," an olive pie, a custard or "dowset," a whole chicken, larke in hot schow (sauce), and just to fill in the any odd corners, a dish of frumenty (hulled wheat boiled in milk and seasoned with cinnamon). Mead, sherry, and ale were, of course, imbibed in huge quantities.

Sire Henry Grey, baronet, of Hertfordshire, held a modest Christmas feast "for sundry of hys friends" in 1770, and his household accounts record that the following supplies were ordered by his chief cook for the occasion: eight bushels of flour, 20 pounds of butter, four geese, nine wild ducks, 16 rabbits, two woodcocks, six snipe, four partridges, two whole neats' tongues, two curlews, seven blackbirds, and nine pigeons. There was also a piece of beef so big that three men were required to carry it to the table.

Plum pudding is a comparatively modern dish. It seems to have replaced the many kinds of milk porridge or pottage which were so popular in mediaeval times; these were eaten before the main dish, with cherries, citrons, and various salads; then came the famous boar's head garlanded with bay or rosemary leaves, followed by various kinds of game birds, another roast, generally of venison, and then a final fruit course. Dishes of hot cockles were often eaten at supper-time.

Here is a menu of the Christmas dinner you might have eaten had you been a guest at the Bush Iinn at Bristol on December 25, Inn. Beside beef, mutton, lamb, veal, pork, and venison in every conceivable variety, there were hares, rabbits, 39 sorts of birds, 16 sorts of fish, three varieties of shellfish, ten different soups(including turtle, boar's head, and vegetable), with mince pies, jellies, and trifles, all washed down with rich spiced ale.

There is no mention of Christmas pudding in this menu, but the Christmas pie, made of pheasant, pigeon - liver, and pickled mushrooms, was a meal in itself. This was made from an ancient recipe handed down from 1394.

Some idea of food prices in mediaeval times may be gained from a royal proclamation by Edward III (1327-77). This fixed the prices of all foods generally eaten at that time. From it we see that a swan cost fourpence, a hen sixpence, a river mallard fivepence, and a dozen fresh eggs, believe it or not, one penny.

Not only at home did Britons celebrate Christmas in former times with much feasting. Here is another menu — this time of the Christmas dinner eaten by officers of the 10th Hussars when they were stationed in the Khyber Pass in India in 1878:

Soup—julienne. Fish—whitebait from the Kabul River. Entrees — cotelettes aux champignons, poulets a la mayonnaise. Joints — ham and fowls, roast beef, boiled leg of mutton and caper sauce. Curry — chicken. Sweets — lemon jelly, blancmange, apricot tart, plum-pudding, gilled sardines, cheese-fritters, lemon curd biscuits.

Between every two men stood a portly magnum of champagne. So even in the Khyber Pass as late as 1878, "i forni ingles[illegible] a Natale" were apparently as busy as ever.

Lucia Day Starts Christmas Season In Swedish Custom

Celebration of Lucia Day on December 13 inaugurates the Christmas season in Sweden. It takes its name from St. Lucia, or Lucy, martyred for her faith and virginity in Syracuse in 304, A.D., and venerated by the church each December 13.

The prettiest blonde in every home, office, factory, village and town is elected a "Lucia" and visits the sick, leads carnivals and processions and attends banquets and balls accompanied by her "handmaidens."

The ancient custom coincides with the winter solstice, when the sun swings toward the earth once more and the days begin to lengthen.

In addition to beauty, other qualifications for "Lucias" or "light queens" are fair hair, a nice disposition and high character.

Dressed in long white robes, wearing crowns of lighted candles (the traditional costume for "Lucias") the girls present gifts and the traditional Lucy Day coffee and rolls to hospital patients, etc. The queen and her maidens, enthroned in a star spangled horse-drawn chariot, lead festive processions around the village squares and through city streets.

Parade participants depict alternate scenes from Sweden's picturesque Lapland and the Wild West of the United States, while musicians in multi-colored costume alternate playing northern folk tunes and American jazz.

Letters To 'Santa Claus' Come From World Over

Post office officials in Santa Claus, Ind., are accustomed to overloaded sacks of mail during the pre-Christmas rush. Senders want their cards and gifts stamped with the famous Santa Claus postmark, plus thousands of wistful letters "Santa Claus, Santa Claus, Ind."

And then there is the annual crop of "Santa Claus" letters written by youngsters in far away places who haven't heard about Santa's permanent address in Indiana, U.S.A. At least a dozen versions of the time honored note-in-the-bottle story find their way into metropolitan newspapers every year.

The notes, sealed in small bottles and securely tied to Christmas trees, are discovered by Christmas tree dealers, housewives; and even enlisted men at naval centres and military barracks: they come from places like Renous, a village in New Brunswick, Canada, boasting a total population of 85 inhabitants.

The notes range from the wistful to the desperate, requesting such things as a mamma doll, a sled, a sweater, or a pair of overshoes.

Devon Observes Yule in Own Way

Old Christmas Day, or Twelfth Night (January 6), has its own celebrations. In Devonshire in the south of England, famous for its apple-cider, the custom of "charming the orchards" has been handed down. Local farmers and their men go to their orchards after dark on Twelfth Night, carrying guns and a great jar of cider, with a large piece of toast or cake floating in it. No gun is considered to be too old, if it is able to hold the priming, and the more noise it makes the better. When the party reaches one of the largest apple trees, the farmer addresses it while the guns are discharged. The cider is then handed round, and the sop of cake eaten, care being taken that a good-sized piece is left in a fork of the tree for the robins, for if this is left undone the charm has no effect.

Finally the men return to the farmhouse to drink more cider and to tell tales round the fire until morning. Like many old superstitions, this custom was founded on a practical belief: the shot was supposed to tear the bark of the tree and to quicken the fruiting in a similar manner to the English technique of beating a walnut tree.

'Hoodlands' is Scene Of Rugby's Origin

Many hundred years ago Lady Mowbray, when riding to church at Haxey, near Doncaster, had her hood blown off in a gale of wind and twelve laborers rushed to capture it.

She was so delighted with their good manners that she gave a piece of ground, now called "The Hoodlands," to provide a hood to be thrown up annually on Christmas Day and to be fought for at the place where her hood had been blown off.

The game into which this developed is said to have been the origin of rugby football.

'Grandpa Frost' Helps Russians Celebrate Midwinter Festival

Although Christmas is no longer a holiday in Soviet Russia, a non-religious midwinter festival is celebrated and children receive gifts from "Grandpa Frost."

In Czarist Russia, it was customary for well-to-do families with large homes to entertain lavishly on Christmas Day. The invitations were extremely formal and begged the invited to consider that

". . . for thousands of years it has been so; with us it has not commenced, with us it will not cease. Do not, therefore, disturb the festival; do not bring the good people to despair. Without you there will be no maiden festival at Anna Karpowna's."

In planning these houseparties, hostesses gave particular attention to the selection of partners for the young ladies. The selection was sometimes very satisfactory and sometimes left something to be desired.

Arrival of the "fair maidens," each with her mother and retinue, bringing cake and sweetmeats and gifts for everyone, proceeded according to prescribed ritual: the guests sooner freezing in their sleds before the gate than to alight before receiving the greeting of the host and hostess.

Having been ceremoniously welcomed, the guests offered prayers before the icon (sacred picture) and then proceeded to the feasting and festivities arranged for them.

"ALL HE WANTS . . . Young Edward Hospisa of New York makes known to Santa his Christmas wish. He said, to coin a phrase, "All I want for Christmas is my two front incisors." Whether he'll get them is another story.

King Richard's Christmas Feasts

Once upon a medieval Yuletide, King Richard III of England celebrated at Litchfield — and during the festivities 2,000 oxen and 200 tons of wine were consumed.

Of course, the feudal set-up wherewithal for magnificance — the lords received gifts from their tenants and kings received gifts from their nobles; and the graduated scale for giving and receiving was as well ascertained as the quiddam honorarium of any barrister or physician.

Queen Elizabeth received a large part of her wardrobe as gifts from her courtiers, and if the quality and quantity was not satisfactory, the donors were unceremoniously informed of the situation.

When Henry III entertained a thousand knights, peers, and assorted nobles who came to attend the Yuletide marriage of the Princess Margaret, his majesty received a royal Christmas gift of 2,700 pounds, plus 600 fat oxen from the Archbishop of York.

With similar assistance, whether exhorted or given in the spirit of generosity appropriate to the season, his majesty could well afford to give Christmas feasts for the poor like the one given in Westminster Hall in 1248, which lasted a week.

Striving to outdo his predecessors and give his successors something to shoot at, Henry VIII kept one Yuletide at which the cost of gold cloth that was used amounted to 600 pounds alone. He had tents erected and artificial gardens plotted within the spacious hall of his palace. Knights came out of the tents to joust in tournaments and fantastically dressed dancers, covered from head to foot with gay ribbon streamers, emerged from the gardens to entertain the guests.

Preparation for the feasting on such occasions is perfectly appalling to epicures of the 20th century — and can only be vaguely comprehended by considering that Richard II normally employed 2,000 cooks to prepare food for the 10,000 persons who dined — irrespective of special feasting — at his expense every day.

Lots of Mail and Writer's Cramp for Christmas

SANTA CHECKS ONE OF HIS STEEDS . . . Rodney, who might be a stand-in for Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer, gets an early briefing from old Saint Nick as the bearded old gent prepares for his annual visit. Rodney normally inhabits a Chicago zoo.

A lonely French-Canadian soldier who has received only three letters in the seven months he's been in Korea, will have writer's cramp early in the New Year answering his Christmas mail.

He's Pte. Gabriel Carmouche, 24, from St. Victor, Que., a front-line signaller, with the Royal Canadian Regiment in Korea.

Too old to still believe in Santa Claus, Carmouche is in for a big Christmas surprise. Twenty Vancouver women, all members of the Y.W.C.A. "Y-HI-YAS" club have "adopted" him for Christmas and perhaps longer. Already they've sent him parcels and letters for Christmas.

An unidentified R.C.R. officer, husband of one of the women, wrote the club outlining Carmouche's plight and describing him as "a lonely, shy, French-Canadian boy whose parents died some time ago."

Members of the club immediately decided to brighten his stay in Korea and picked Christmas as the most auspicious time. This week some 20 letters and parcels, addressed to Carmouche, were on their way to Korea, timed to arrived at Christmas

Only drawback is that they all have to be answered. Carmouche probably will start them all "Unaccustomed as I am to writing letters . . . "

Nativity Theme Dominates Cards

Modern Christmas cards feature literally hundreds of interpretations of the popular Nativity theme. Many of these are reproductions from the old masters, while many others have been created especially for the Christmas card industry.

The Nativity theme, which naturally lends itself to an almost endless variety of interpretations and a wealth of detail, long has been a favorite subject of Christian artists. Many of the details, based upon certain Bible texts, have fostered various legends—such as those concerning the Magi — which grew until the Wise Men were identified and given kingdoms.

The Annunciation is among the earliest subjects represented in Christian art, antedating the Madonna and Child theme by several centuries, and it is interesting to note that the fathers of the Church determined how the Madonna should be portrayed: her dress and mantle are usually blue and red.

Royal Navy Stages Yule Masquerade

The Royal Navy tries to assure that as many as possible of its ships are in harbor on Christmas Day. For the unlucky ones on patrol or on passage — and there are a good many this year in Korea and elsewhere in the Far East — the best that can be expected is "Sunday routine," with work reduced to a minimum. Festivities have to wait till harbor is reached. For the navy in harbor, the big event is "captain's rounds," when the commanding officer of each ship, attended by his officers, goes the rounds of the whole ship, greeting his men and being offered hospitality by them on each of the gaily decorated mess decks.

He is preceded by the youngest boy in the ship, dressed in the uniform of the ships' senior petty officer, the master at arms (or police chief of the ship.) Men are allowed to wear improvised fancy dress on that day and may even "impersonate" the captain.

The youngest boy has his hour of glory again on New Year's Eve when he "rings out the old and rings in the new — with 16 bells instead of the traditional eight which mark the end of a four-hour period at sea.

PIONEER BOTANIST

Peter Kalm, Swedish botanist who died in 1715, was the first scientific observer of natural phenomena in Canada.

Oxford Celebrates Boar's Head Feast

Some 500 years ago, so the story goes, an Oxford University student was studying Aristotle while taking a walk, when he was attacked by a wild boar. He calmly despatched the brute by thrusting the volume down its throat. His feat is commemorated annually at Queen's College by the Boar's Head Feast on Christmas Day.

Although the 90-pound specimen under whose weight two attendants used to stagger is today replaced by a papier mache model, the spirit of the ceremony remains unchanged. As the choir sings the last notes of a traditional carol, the head is placed on the table of the provost, the principal of the college.

The provost then presents the ornaments and embellishments one by one to the choirboys and visitors, the solo singer receiving the orange.

SCENTED FIGHTERS

Warriors of ancient Babylon combed their hair with aromatic oils before going into battle.

Yule Sees Mummery In North England

Every year in scattered villages in the north of England, shepherds, farm hands and others perform the ancient pace-egg or mumming play at Christmas. With blackened faces and fancy clothes, they repeat the words handed down for centuries.

Chief actors are King (or Saint) George, a quack doctor and Father Christmas. In the play, the king slays his enemies one by one, but each in turn is resurrected by the doctor.

One of the oldest of the "mumming" troupes is that at Alderley Edge, bordering on Cheshire and Derbyshire.

ATTACKS COCKTAILS

Maritzburg, South Africa (CP)—"Hundreds of parents are perturbed at the growing popularity of the cocktail habit," said Mrs. E. P. Smither, an official of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, addressing the liquor licensing board here.

TOO TOUGH

Auckland, N.Z., (CP)—Nylons are really tough, according to J. Gill, who operates a commercial compost scheme. He has banned nylons, along with plastics, because they will not decompose under the processes that decompose such things as metal shavings and tinfoil.

Wuppertal Celebrates Yule As in Days Gone By; Main Street Like Fairyland

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Wuppertal, Germany, Dec. 24—(CP) — It's Christmas time in the Ruhr valley, land of the great, tall industrial chimneys, land of the "iron barons," the great grey, reviving industrial heartland of Europe.

It is a bright Christmas time, probably brighter than any since the war which brought ruins and devastation to the Ruhr. On Sunday in Wuppertal, a major city near the Rhine, the streets blaze with Yuletide lights.

The lights are strung from one side of the street to the other, hundreds of them in chains that run the whole length of the main street until it looks like fairyland. To the sides there are lights again, bulbs pinpointing the corners of Christmas trees and evergreen stars and all along the street, for several miles, the store windows blaze with lights and are thick and gay with goods.

Beneath the myriad lights the people walk, thousands and thousands of them. The whole city seems to be in the street for it 's a German custom to come into the streets on Sunday and this is an "open Sunday" when the shops are open for shopping.

In the shops, there is great variety. Clothes, shoes, cameras, clocks, watches, many, many things. Some of them are cheap by Canadian standards, cameras for instance. Others, considering quality, aren't.

Throngs at Fair

The people, by Canadian standards, are well but not fashionably dressed. They are not shabby, they are not smart. They are in between. They walk and walk, looking into the windows, going into the occasional store. But many just look; they do not buy because they haven't the money.

Down the street they come to a Christmas fair. It's like a fair back home. Hot dogs — big ones for 25 cents—candied apples, games of chance, open booths, thronging people, thronging children. Across the street is a gaping, wounded church but much of Wuppertal has been rebuilt over the ruins of war.

There is a candy stand. A Canadian buys a chocolate bar and, seeing a red-cheeked, handsome German boy, gives it to him. The boy is pleased. He is surprised. He starts away and then he returns and asks with great politeness whether the bar was really meant for him.

He is told it is. He goes away happy, into the bright, gay fairyland of Wuppertal's main street.

In a Germany which to a Canadian sometimes seems a complexity of resurgence, of sceptical remoteness alternating with lively happiness within itself, within its own people; of great revival which could lead in any one of several directions. It is a happy street. It is a happy time.

England's Puritans Banned Christmas As Frivolous Time

Christmas was outlawed in England by the Puritan government of England in 1643 and, although the restoration of the Stuarts brought a revival of Christmas customs and traditions, Christmas never regained its former prestige in England.

It is observed religiously in the churches and as a day for family reunions and social gatherings, in contrast to the lavish feasting and boisterou merry-making of olden times.

Merry-making and gift-giving come in for their share, however, on December 26 which is Boxing Day.

The origin of Boxing Day antedates Christmas and can be traced to the custom of gift-giving during the Roman festival of Saturnalia.

In Christian liturgy December 26 is observed as the feast of St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr, and during the centuries when journeymen and apprentices were in the habit of levying upon their masters' customers, 'Christmas Boxes' were collected on St. Stephen's day.

Thus, the children receive their presents, in boxes, as do old servants, the postman, and everyone else. And reminiscent of the Roman Saturnalia, householders dance with the servants and, toward evening, there is revelling in the streets as groups of merry-makers gather on street corners or ride about London-town dancing on the 'flats' of trucks.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Tuesday, December 25

TO ALL WE WISH A JOYOUS CHRISTMAS AND GOD'S BLESSINGS

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)— This is a day and season for rejoicing though we have anxiety for the world. Let us turn our thought to the Savior as the brave and wise did in the great tribulations of the past.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)— Aspects stress unselfishness, kindliness to those in need of cheer. And how much better more content we feel when we have helped another in even a small way.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)— Jupiter, the Beneficent, in very favorable position today augments our desire to give gifts, alms and encouragement where we can.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)— The world pays tribute this great day to the Christ Child Who, loving us, came to earth to show us the example by which we can live to gain heaven. Stars' positions are wondrous today.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)— Wherever you buoyant folks are: we know you will make those there happier, more hopeful. Every sacrifice for good brings good.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Let no clouds dim your true vision of the intrinsic importance of this day. And let us not forget to pray for the fredom obtained through active faith.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—We may have to exert more to do all the good we planned, but we must not mind the effort nor the sacrifice while others' lives are being expended.

October 24 to November 22 —(Scorpio)— Your Mars position urges gentleness, patience. A day for friendliness, thanksgiving to God, charity, and good works.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Jupiter is for a happy day, especially for us in free lands, be most grateful. No thought of money gains; There are many other wise concerns. Spend for the poor!

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — No doubts, no worry; put aside fear discouragement. Let your heart be full of the hope of a better future; that is the only way all men will live in peace, good will.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Attend to top things first, punctiliously. Be your chuerful self. After church services, join family and friends in the true Christmas spirit for whatever we can make a gaad holiday.

February 21 to March 20 —(Pisces)—Same holds for you as for most of us now. Be guided by wishes of those to whom you are obliged, your conescience guiding. Start day at church paying homage to the Christ Child.

YOU BORN TODAY: Serious, industrious, innately honorable, dependable, kindly and charitable. May have to correct tendency to moods at times to feel discouraged if you don't accomplish all you wish or work for. Keep faith in God and in the fine attributes He gave you. Cultivate your talents to use not only for temporal advancement but for the glory of God and spiritual gain that makes us happier beings. Special talent for medicine, surgery, law, politics, diplomatic career.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Monday, December 24

..March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Encouraging influences. Taking right advantage you can better your all-round position. Co-operate with the right sources; be tactful, and don't go off half-cocked at trifles.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Semi-generous aspects all day. A little extra push, some "inside" effort for the true Christmas spirit needed. Well-chosen words, kindness a leading recipe now.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Achievement for you who will be gracious Geminians this all- inspiring time of year. Don't allow over-confidence, smugness to spoil things. Heart and home interests rate care.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Figures often deceive. Don't rely entirely on what you hear or think. Study, research may change whole outlook, bring greater results than expected. Avoid anger, ponder upon Christmas.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Opportunity for you good thinkers who start early and are concise. Side-step schemes, unwise activities. Shun hasty decisions; take care of property, and your soul's needs.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—A craving to do something big in your sphere? Be cheerful to begin with, and thankful for what you have. It will help you think easier, make surroundings brighter. Won't that be big?

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — While problems may seem larger when first appraised, they fade perceptibly once you attack. Remember, "the bigger they are, the harder they fall" holds. Honor Christmas.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Open the throttle but within reason. Healthy aspects for a healthy outlook and wise determination. Making contracts, dealing wtih children and superiors sponsored.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Carefully gauge matters before making first move, but when set, let nothing stop you from honest endeavors. Carry on without tension or irritation; be diplomatic, charitable.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn)—A serious, crowded albeit, holy period. Can be productive of gains that lighten man's soul. Discuss problems with those who know, take suggestions openmindedly.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) Meet with others, confer, and carry on with sociability, tact. You may find a happy new way to help others. Little things and a smile are no small items.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—No time to listen to rumors or take haphazard advice. Get facts, work for surer methods and means. Romance, social and family affairs favored in fresh manner.

YOU BORN TODAY: Ambition, system, and thrift are outstanding assets. Could become able leader, organizer, will reason problems before attempting to solve them. Are persistent, cautious; take advantage of any opportunity to aid progress. Rather dislike routine, more interested in directing and, though keen about affairs generally you especially resent anyone prying into private ones. Avoid worry over faiures. Look at things all year with the hopefulness of Christmas spirit.

OLD SCOTTISH CUSTOM

At Killin, Perthshire, Scotland, the villagers pull rushes each Christmas from a nearby stream to make a resting place for a number of stones taken from the gables of an ancient corn-mill. They are not ordinary stones, for the villagers believe that they were used centuries ago by their patron saint, St. Fillian, to cure ague, sprains, and other ailments and injuries.

'Traditional' Christmas Not So Old

By A. G. MATTHEWS,

F.R.S.A., F.C.C.S.

We take for granted many "traditional" features of Christmas that are in fact of very recent innovation — indeed, Christmas itself has only been a popular festival for the last 800 years! This article tells of such recent introductions as "Good King Wenceslas," the custom of giving gifts, Christmas cards and Christmas trees, mince-pies, pudding and turkey, pantomime and mistletoe.

London, England:—The Christmas Festival celebrates an incident that is more than 1,900 years old. Yet many of the Christmas customs are of very recent innovation.

Most surprising, perhaps, is the fact that the Church tried in vain for some 1,300 years to make Christmas a popular festival. It met with no success until the agricultural rites and customs of pagan times, later "transferred" to St. Nicholas's Day, became associated with the birth of Christ. These celebrations were held on December 6, and a pre-Christian feature of them was the giving of apples, pears and nuts.

The Church having succeeded in transferring the St. Nicholas customs to December 25, it naturally followed that they became associated with the birth of Christ, but it was not until the 17th century that the celebration of Christmas was established throughout Europe.

The Christmas we know is thus unexpectedly modern, and the practices associated with it are, in many instances, of very recent date. "Good King Wenceslas" is quite a modern carol although the tune itself is very old. The words were written in 1850 by the Rev. Dr. Neale, and it must be recorded that the good Doctor allowed his thoughts about Christmas to distort the truth about the Good King.

For Wenceslas, who was a German, was anything but good. He was, on the best estimate, quarrelsome and short-tempered, and his clergy and nobles regarded him as being very much of a nuisance. Indeed, on two occasions they found it necessary to put him in prison.

Although the giving of presents at Christmas had been popular in some parts of Europe for generations, in England the custom had not been established by the beginning of the last century. It was, however, very popular in Germany, where the giving seems to have been confined to children, who saved and schemed to provide suitable gifts for their parents.

Charles Dickens, who did so much to make the modern Christmas, mentions that Scrooge, having suffered his change of heart, gave away a huge turkey. It was, however, by no means customary to make such presents, and the gifts that were provided seem to have been made to groups of people — a family or a part — rather than to an individual.

Neither Christmas cards nor Christmas trees are of any great age as far as Britain is concerned. The Germans used to have a large branch of yew lighted by tapers and decked with colored paper. When the German Prince Albert became Prince Consort to Queen Victoria he introduced the trees to England, the first occasion being in 1844. This he had prepared secretly at Windsor Castle as a surprise for the Prince of Wales.

There seems to be some doubt about who can claim the credit for the first Christmas card. Some maintain that it was drawn by J. C. Horsley, a member of the Royal Academy, in the year 1843. There are others, however, who insist that the first was designed by W. M. Egley in the year 1842.

Whoever had the honor of preparing the first card, there can be no doubt about who has the credit for sending it out. Once more the British Royal Family was responsible for this innovation, their invitations to a Christmas party being completed with greetings and good wishes.

The practice rapidly established itself throughout the country, and Christmas cards became as popular as Valentine cards. Today, while the Valentine greeting has almost completely disappeared, Christmas cards have achieved an incredible popularity, despite the burdensome purchase tax which makes them so dear.

Mince-pies, which were once made with minced mutton, plums and sugar, were popular in England in 1596. The Christmas pudding — also beef and mutton thickened with brown bread, to which raisins, currants and prunes were added — has been associated with Christmas for several centuries.

The turkey, however, is a fairly recent comer to the festival board. The traditional dish was a boar's head, but when Cromwell came to power and made it illegal to celebrate Christmas, the boar's head disappeared and did not return when Charles II revived the feast. The peacock took his place, but when the American turkey was introduced to Europe by the Spaniards it soon became the accepted dish, being easier to procure than the peacock.

Pantomime appeared for the first time in the year 1717. It was staged on Boxing Day at Lincoln's Inn Theatre, the producer being Mr. John Rich. For 44 years Rich brought out a new pantomime each year, and the Christmas entertainment has gradually grown in popularity until it now keeps alive the spirit of the festival until the month of April.

The custom of hanging up the stockings on Christmas Eve is by no means universal. In Britain 95 per cent of the children hang up their stockings, but Dutch children place their wooden clogs by the fire and Danish children are given their presents by their parents on Christmas Eve.

The custom of decorating the home with evergreens seems to be one of the oldest traditions associated with Christmas. The mistletoe, of course, was held in great veneration by the Druids. It was sacred, and regarded as possessing remarkable powers. Enemies meeting beneath it laid down their arms for 24 hours, and a bough was hung over the doorway of the home so that every person entering could only come as a friend.

It is, therefore, easy to see how mistletoe inspired the kisses which have been customary for centuries. As the plant was so intimately associated with a pagan religion, the Church resolutely refused to have it as an interior decoration. They could not, however, banish it from the homes of the people, where it provides a pleasing decoration and an excuse for a great deal of innocent fun.

London Hospitals Enjoy Special Yule

London's hospitals observe Christmas Day in their own special manner. As the day begins the nurses move through the wards in double file, carrying lanterns and singing carols.

By the children's beds are hung stockings filled with gifts and the wards are decorated with snow scenes or figures out of pantomimes. Father Christmas, laden with gifts, visits each ward and each patient also receives a gift from the ward sister. The doctors add to the gaiety of the occasion by clowning about the wards in fancy dress.

Dinner, served at midday, includes the traditional turkey and Christmas pudding. Carving is done by the senior surgeon.

In one of the big London hospitals every nurse is presented with a Christmas posy of violets which she wears pinned to her uniform.

Santa's Requests

Santa Claus still gets letters from youngsters with the same cherished requests — bicycles and dolls. But last year a child wanted a live cow. He told a department store Santa so.

Another kid wanted a new daddy because hers was "wearing out on top."

Christmas Tree Blaze Takes Three Lives at Montreal

Mother and Two Children Victims of Flash Fire

Montreal, Dec. 27 (CP) — A mother and two of her children died today when fire, started in a Christmas tree, razed their nearby Ville Jacques Cartier home.

Dead are:

Mrs. Emiliene Dugga, 40; Carol 5 and Donald 9.

Mrs. Dugga was found under a bed in the one-storey wooden house, her body covering Carol in a futile effort to protect the child. Donald was found in bed.

Two other children, Denise, 15, and Paulette, 12, escaped when the Christmas tree burst aflame in the living room. Within 20 minutes, the house was levelled.

Denise and Paulette, almost hysterical when found, explained that there was nothing they could do after fleeing from the house.

There is no telephone within more than a mile of the house and help could not be summoned until they saw an automobile drive by on the highway.

They stood in front of the house watching flames eat through the wooden structure until help arrived.

Their father, Michael Dugga, was away on a construction job.

Lawyers Propose Mass Settlement Of $19,000,000

Cleveland, Dec. 27 (AP)—The Cleveland Plain Dealer said last night it has learned lawyers will propose a mass settlement of $19,000,000 worth of claims which resulted from the Noronic ship disaster.

The Noronic, a cruise ship owned by Canada Steamship Lines, Ltd., burned at her dock at Toronto Sept. 17, 1949, with the loss of 119 lives. Many of the 524 passengers on the pleasure ship were from Cleveland and Detroit.

The Plain Dealer says the mass settlement will be proposed in federal court here next week by lawyers representing the ship's owners and a committee of lawyers who represent 75 per cent of the claimants.

The proposal will be made, the newspaper continues, to head off years of litigation. Claimants, it adds, would share in a settlement on the basis of awards by a special court commissioner who would hear testimony.

The Plain Dealer says it understands that lawyers will propose settling all claims for between $2,000,000 and $2,500,000.

Deranged Gunman Slays Constable

Shawinigan Falls, Que., Dec. 27. Constable Louis Langevin, who had but 30 minutes duty left before going home for Christmas, was shot to death early Christmas morning by a deranged gunman he sought to arrest.

Sgt. Mathias Lachance, his companion in the police cruiser, who went to Langevin's aid, was hit by a bullet that grazed his head. A second buried itself in his shoulder. He is in hospital but will recover.

Seven hours after the shooting police found the body of Jean Marie Trottier dead behind his ramshackle home.

Langevin had just left his wife and daughter after attending midnight mass. He was to have joined them again after completing his night's duty.

Police received a call shortly after 1 a.m., Christmas morning, that a man was walking up a street firing a rifle. Langevin and Lachance, in the cruiser, rushed to the scene. Langevin got out and asked Trottier: "What are you doing with that gun?"

Seconds later a bullet hit his head, another, his stomach. Lachance rushed out and was greeted with another volley.

Trottier then fired two shots into the police car and fled. An all-night search failed to locate him. At daybreak police found Trottier's body in the snow by his home.

Police said Trottier was loose with the gun almost an hour before they got the first call. Residents first believed Trottier was a pre-Christmas celebrant.

Police said Trottier had been collecting guns for many years.

He used a 303 hunting rifle. Langevin was less than six feet away.

New York, Dec. 27. (AP)—Gus Hall, one of the 11 convicted communist leaders, was sentenced today to three years in prison for criminal contempt of court.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 27 (CP)— Synopsis: Cold air from west of Hudson Bay is flowing southeastward across Ontario. Temperatures were well below zero in northern Ontario early this morning, while in southern regions they were around 10 to 15 above.

Snowflurries are frequent south east of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, while elsewhere the weather is mainly sunny.

A storm developing over Wyoming is expected to move eastward rapidly bringing snow to the Windsor region Friday morning and spreading to central and eastern regions by evening.

Claxton, Lapointe Off to Korea

Ottawa, Dec. 27 — (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton and Veterans Minister Lapointe left Rockcliffe airport today in the RCAF's C5 aircraft for a visit to Canadian forces in the far east.

The big plane which carried Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on the royal tour took off at 9:30 a.m. EST. It was scheduled to make two-hour stops at Saskatoon, Anchorage, Alaska, Shemya in the Aleutians and Haneda, near Tokyo. The party is due at Tokyo at 2 p. m. Tokyo time Dec. 29.

The two ministers will visit the Canadian troops at the front and in hospitals, and the three Canadian destroyers in the threatre, returning to Ottawa Jan. 11.

Pilot of the plane is Flt. Lt. Les Hussey of Ottawa.

Hurricane Batters Canadian Steamer

London, Dec. 27 — (Reuters)—The 7,115-ton Canadian steamer Islandside today was reported hove to in a mid-Atlantic hurricane, with two starboard lifeboats carried away.

The Islandside, en route from Narvik, Norway, to Baltimore, Gave her position well out off the southwest Irish coast.

Old Wind Jammer May Sail From Britain to End Days in Australia

Greenhithe, Kent, England, Dec. 27—(Reuters)—The Cutty Sark, sleek, fast-moving ocean greyhound of the last century, may sail from here to end her days in Sydney harbor.

Known as the fastest clipper on the Australian wool run in the 1890's, the Cutty Sark has been passed as sound following a drydock inspection.

Hugh Vaudrey, president of the Thames Barge Sailing Club, is leading a group of part-time seamen who have a hankering to "sail before the mast," recapturing past glories on the Australian run.

"The cost of refitting the clipper for the voyage would be high," he said. "The lowest estimate I have been given is £10,000."

But he believes the prosperous Cutty Sark societies in Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania would help bear the cost.

Most of the crew would have to come from the Pacific where there are sailors still experienced in handling square-rigged windjammers. But many amateurs would be willing to pay for the privilege of serving on the 82-year-old ship.

She is at present owned by a nautical college for boys, but is no longer an economical proposition as a training craft.

Frank Carr, director of the National Maritime Museum, thinks the plan to put the Cutty Sark on the high seas again "completely impracticable." He wants the clipper cradled in a concrete berth in Britain and preserved but cannot find the necessary money.

Spurred on by Britain's legendary seadogs, Capt. Dick Woodget, the Cutty Sark in her day whipped everything on the high seas.

The clipper once did 1,050 miles in three days and in one trip completed the London-Melbourne run in under 70 days.

In 1889 she had a race with the steamer Britannia and passed the steam ship—whose passengers lined the decks and cheered the clipper — reaching Sydney four hours ahead of her rivals.

But her greatest rival was the Thermopylae, another clipper, built on Britain's east coast in 1868. Scottish shipbuilders built the Cutty Sark—Scottish for short shirt—a year later to prove their craftmanship was Britain's best.

The great race began in 1879 from London. The Thermopylae, picking up a favorable wind, raced into the lead and was eight days ahead at the equator.

But the irascible Woodget would not admit defeat. The Cutty Sark picked up powerful winds and not only regained the lost eight days but just managed to head her rival at Sydney. The race lasted 80 days.

HINTS INDICATE 4 U.S. FLIERS HAVE BEEN FREED

Washington Will Pay Fines Totalling $120,000

Vienna, Dec. 27 (AP)—A Hungarian government official told the United States legation in Budapest today that he could not disclose when four Americans held by the communists will be released.

Walter J. Donnelly, U.S. Ambassador to Vienna, told reporters he talked to the Budapest legation this afternoon.

He spoke to American officials there after George Abbott, U.S. Charge d'Affaires in Budapest, returned from a conference with Hungarian foreign office officials.

"Mr. Abbott was told by the Hungarians that they cannot give the Americans any information on the plans to release the four airmen," Donnelly said.

Despite the announcement by Washington that it will pay a $120,000 fine levied against the fliers, the Hungarian communists remained secretive about how the iron curtain would be lifted to permit the Americans to return to freedom.

A Hungarian military court secretly convicted them four days ago of deliberately crossing the border with intentions of dropping spies later.

The American explanation is that they got lost on a routine flight and had no idea of flying cloak-and-dagger missions.

George Abbott, U. S. charge d'affairs in Budapest, said at 10.20 a. m. (4.30 a. m., EST) there still was no news that the airmen had been released.

U S. air force authorities in Germany assumed the flyers would be sent back through Vienna, where American officials and troops are stationed nearest the Hungarian border.

Offered to Pay

Cryptic dispatches from Budapest, the Hungarian capital, said yesterday there was "certain signs" that the men had been freed or would be freed last night. But reporters there could not amplify that reference or describe events immediately.

The state department offered on Christmas day to pay. A spokesman at the Hungarian legation in Washington said the offer was accepted. But Hungarian banks, through which the money might have to be transferred, were shut down until this morning by a three-day Christmas holiday.

The four fliers' twin-engined cargo plane was forced down by Russian fighters at Papa, Hungary, Nov. 19 after being fired on by Hungarian and Romanian border guards.

MANY DIE OF MENINGITIS

Geneva, Dec. 27 (Reuters)—An epidemic of cerebro-spinal meningitis is sweeping the regions south of the African desert belt, the world health organization reported here today. The report says that in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan there were 51,296 cases, with 6,877 deaths during the first half of 1951.

End of 30-Day Cease-Fire Line Brings Up Question: Will Fighting Start Again?

Seoul, Dec. 28. (Friday)— (AP) Expiration of the 30-day cease-fire line period last midnight (10 a.m. Thursday E.S.T.) raised the question: will heavy fighting break out again in Korea?

There is some evidence that it will not—at least not right away. There has been no large-scale ground fighting in the last month.

The agreement on a provisional cease-fire line signed Nov. 27 said nothing about stopping or starting ground fighting.

It simply said that if either the communists or the United Nations took any new ground on either side of the line, and if an armistice was signed in 30 days, each side would have to give up its gains.

The line was based on the battle front as it existed then, and there have been no important changes since.

The agreement discouraged full-scale fighting because no one wants to fight and be killed for real estate that has to be turned back at the end of the month.

It provided that after 30 days, each side would be able to keep any gains it made and held until an armistice.

That might seem to throw the door wide open for an offensive. But that door has been half-open —and there has been no serious fighting in the last month.

No Big Attacks

It became pretty obvious about Dec. 15 that with all the good-will in the world—which was lacking—there wasn't going to be any armistice by Dec. 27.

That made it seem practically certain—barring a formal extension of the trial period—that, subject only to the fortunes of war, either side could keep any gains it made.

But even with this opportunity, neither the communists nor the United Nations launched any big attacks.

All during this time the war in the air was going full blast, with almost daily jet battles and extra heavy U.N. bombing attacks, averaging 700 sorties a day. This was the U.N. way of twisting the communist arm for a quick armistice.

But on the ground front there were only harassing artillery fire, clashes of roving patrols, U.N. prisoner raids and communist probes.

Perhaps the best reason for thinking that no new "big war" will start up again is the fact that neither side has any real hope of gain any more.

In 18 months of war rival armies have shoved each other back and forth on a 100-mile football gridiron—with neither able to score.

Each side has proved its point: the communists, that we can't march to the Yalu with our present forces; the U.N. that the communists can't conquer South Korea with theirs.

There may be more savage fighting and small advances and retreats. But logic points toward an eventual armistice.

Tension in Middle East Growing Despite U.N. Efforts

Paris, Dec. 27 (CP) — The turmoil in the middle east is making a big noise in the United Nations and the volume is expected to increase.

Morocco, Iran, Egypt, Palestine and Kashmir are names which raise blood pressures as well as many words in U.N. meetings and corridors. The U.N., however, has not been able to do much, if anything, to settle any of these tense problems.

Russia is taking every propaganda opportunity in the U.N. to pose as the protector of middle east countries and the western powers are having a tough time keeping what goodwill there is left for them among those states.

Egypt has made the loudest noise on middle east and other questions at the present session. She has not yet brought the present Anglo-Egyptian situation before the U.N. but is expected by many diplomats to be ready to do so.

The Arab states are hitting at France as well as Britain in their complaint that French policy in Morocco violates human rights. That's the declared topic of their complaint but in effect they have been arguing for Moroccan independence. Moreover western powers take a dim view of complaints about human rights from states where only a few people enjoy the civil and political privileges enjoyed by all in western countries.

Turns Wrath on West

Egypt has apparently turned her wrath on the west in fields other than strictly middle-east problems. That country did an about face at the present session of the question of atomic energy control—in effect supporting the Russian thesis for a paper declaration of atomic prohibition where formerly she backed the west's plan for international control before prohibition is put into effect.

Renewal of conflict between Israel and the Arab states is always a fear hanging over the U.N. At present there is an armistice but a special Palestine conciliation commission has reported failure to bring peace between the opposing powers and the assembly is due for another long haul on the problem.

Another impasse is the conflict between India and Pakistan over the princely state of Kashmir. There, too, is a truce but troops are lined on both sides of a cease-fire line with some politicians in both India and Pakistan making threatening noises. And a U.N. conciliation attempt reports no progress towards a settlement.

The Iranian oil problem is in the long process of a decision by the international court—as far as the U.N. is concerned at the moment. But the question might well be brought before the U.N. assembly by Iran before the session is over.

Post-Christmas House Session Resumes Today

Ottawa, Dec. 27—(CP)—Parliament, after a brief five-day holiday, goes to work again today in an extraordinary post-Christmas sitting.

In recess since Friday, the Commons and Senate are convening to resume consideration of the controversial anti-price-fixing bill that got bogged down in the lower chamber during the late stages of the fall session.

A few other items of business are on the order paper—at least one of them contentious—but the main debate was expected to centre about the Progressive Conservatives' continuing attempt to have the prices bill over until the regular 1952 session.

There has been no indication of how long the sitting will go on, though an expected low attendance may tend to cut down the length of the debate. Membership from outside Quebec and Ontario may be thin. Only 17 western members took up an R.C.A.F. offer to be airlifted yesterday.

A further damper on extended debate will be a government threat to apply closure—a shutdown of discussion—if the prices debate strings out much longer.

The prime minister told the house Thursday he was planning closure in the resumed sitting. He had not given the necessary notice by the time the Commons arose, but the shadow of the drastic move still hung over the house.

Prisoner Recaptured

Hamilton, Dec. 27 — (CP) — Edwin O'Connor, 30, who escaped from Barton Street Jail Christmas Eve to visit his family, was recaptured yesterday, asleep in his trailer home. A convicted shopbreaker, O'Connor told police he fashioned a key from a spoon to open his cell door and scaled the 35-foot jail wall with the help of a ladder. He spent Christmas Eve in a hay stack and when he got home the next day, found his family away visiting.

CAR PRICES RAISED

Hamilton, Dec. 27 — (CP) — Price increases of from four to nine per cent on 1952-model Studebaker automobiles were announced today by D. C. Gaskin, vice-president and general manager.

Mr. Gaskin said the increases are not as great as those Studebaker had incurred in labor and material costs over the last 12 months.

POLICE FIRE ON RIOTING EGYPTIAN STUDENTS, 15 HURT

Resent Entry of Palace Into Power Politics

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 27—(AP)—Police fired on rioting Egyptian students today as protest demonstations broke out in Cairo and Alexandria for the second day in a row over the apparent entry of the palace into power politics.

Buckshot fired from police riot guns injured 15 students at Alexandria.

Several students and police were reported injured in Cairo. The students overturned and set fire to a streetcar near the parliament building and police waded in with clubs.

Ten students were arrested and Cairo traffic piled up for blocks before several hundred police restored order.

The disturbances spread to secondary school students today.

Four secondary schools in Alexandria were ordered closed, including the Abbasio school, near the Alexandria main railway station where police fired on the students.

Universities Closed

Thousands of secondary school students in both of Egypt's major cities were involved in the demonstrations.

Fouad and Mohammed Ali Pasha universities in Cairo and Farouk university in Alexandria were ordered closed indefinitely yesterday after collegiate riots against King Farouk's appointment of pro-western advisors on his palace cabinet.

Police used tear gas against a mob of 5,000 in Alexandria yesterday. Seven police were reported injured by stones and two students were hurt. The students shouted slogans against Hafez Afifi Pasha, powerful banker and industrialist who was named by Farouk Monday to head his royal cabinet.

Afifi has declared himself publicly in favor of a defence link with the west—a policy Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha's government hastily turned down in mid-October.

Plane Missing With 8 Aboard

Travis Air Force Base, Calif., Dec. 27. (AP)—An air force plane with eight persons aboard was missing today, believed down in storm-blown Northern California.

The air force withheld identity of the five passengers and three crew members, returning on a round-trip flight to Fairchild Air Force Base, Spokane, Wash.

The C-47 plane left Spokane yesterday afternoon. It had fuel to operate until about midnight (E.S.T.).

Storm and darkness blocked air search last night.

ESTIMATE 350 WILL DIE

Chicago, Dec. 27. (AP)—The National Safety Council estimated today that 350 persons may die in traffic accidents in the United States during the New Year's holiday period. The estimate was for the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Tuesday. The total number of traffic deaths for a similar period over Christmas, as compiled by The Associated Press, was 535.

Science Has Sure Way to Tell How Tall Your Child Will Be

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE

Philadelphia, Dec. 27 (AP) — If you want to know how tall your child will be, science has a sure way of telling, beginning just before the 'teen years.

The method was explained today by Dr. Nancy Bayley, Dr. Alta Gordon and Edward Bowes of the University of Califnoria Institute of Child Welfare at a session of the 118th annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The scientists reported they take X-ray pictures of the joints of hand, wrist and knee. The bone development at these three points they said, tells a child's maturity better than any other available test. These connections at joints mature at various rates but never uniformly.

The studies with X-ray begin at the age of eight. At about 12, these bones become a quite accurate predictor of the final height of a boy or girl.

Science is also on the way to new and better substitutes for the arms, legs and hands of amputees. Experiments are being made with electronics, hydraulics suction and all the latest devices of engineering to improve substitute limbs.

The experiments were explained by Dr. Sidney Fishman, of New York University College of Engineering.

Teams of amputees, men chosen because of their success in using the common false limbs try the improved arms, legs and hands. If the new ones prove safe they go on a national trial by 100 amputees, usually arranged for the veterans' administration.

If the new limb works for these 100 it is offered to everyone.

Fire in Business Block Drives Families to Street

$35,000 Estimated Damage To Farrar Furniture Store

A splendid job by the Belleville Fire Department held loss to a minimum early Wednesday morning when fire swept through the top floor of the B. B. Farrar building at 37 Bridge Street East, forcing at least a dozen persons to the street many of them in their night clothes.

Fire loss to the third floor apartments was held to an estimated $10,000 while smoke and water loss in the three business establishments on the first and second floors was estimated at $25,000.

The blaze started shortly after seven o'clock when George Walker, tenant in a top floor apartment, plugged in a hot plate. He was quoted as saying there was a sudden flash and the room was afire.

Seeing that he could not control the blaze Walker immediately began to rouse tenants in the other apartments. Many of them were still sleeping.

Pounded on Door

Mrs. W. K. Edgar and her three daughters, Carol, 15; Marilyn, 13 and Linda 8, were roused by Walker pounding on their door. They jumped out of bed and ran downstairs in their night clothes and in their bare feet.

Others forced from their apartments were Mr. and Mrs. Les Smith and their son Robert 18; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Powley, and Mrs. Ray, proprietor of the Brenmore Beauty Salon, and her two children.

Two other families living on the top floor, Mr. and Mrs. John Clements, and Mrs. Bertha Dafoe, were said not to be home at the time of the fire.

Two of the families, including Mrs. Edgar, lost practically everything in the blaze.

Father in Germany

"I wasn't so much scared, but we really got out fast", one of the Edgar girls said later. "When we ran out our door into the hall we could see the flames in the Walker apartment."

The father of the Edgar girls, Pte. W. K. Edgar, is a member of the Canadian Army and is stationed at Hannover, Germany.

The fire department was quickly on the scene and went promptly to work to subdue the flames. One firemen poured water in through front windows from the aerial ladder spotted on the street. Other firemen fought the blaze from a roof at the rear, while still others crawled up the main stairway and braved heavy smoke to fight the blaze from inside.

Quickly Under Control

Despite the fact the blaze ran rapidly through flimsy partitions, the fire was quickly brought under control before the flames got out through the roof.

Tons of water poured on the flames cascaded down through the floors and flooded the offices of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation and the Brenmore Beauty Salon, while furniture at the Farrar Furniture Company on the ground floor was also water-soaked. Firemen covered furniture and office equipment with tarpaulins while holes were drilled in the floor to allow the water to get through into the basement.

At one time there was three inches of water on the floor at Farrar's Furniture Store.

The fire out, firemen worked for several hours at cleaning up operations and in sopping up water to hold water loss in the business establishments to a minimum.

Family Given Shelter

Water was scooped out of second and third floor windows, while shavings were procured and scattered on floors to soak up the moisture.

Owner of the building, Mr. B. B. Farrar, paid tribute to the work of firemen. "They really did a fine job", he said.

The Edgar family was given shelter at the home of Mrs. George Hammett on a third floor apartment at the corner of Bridge and Front Street and a radio appeal through the Red Cross went out for clothing for the destitute family.

Residents responded quickly to the appeal and by last night sweaters had been donated to the girls and their mothers as well as slacks, skirts and other clothing.

All New Clothing

Also new clothing including shoes, overshoes, pyjamas, blankets and bedding were purchased by the Red Cross and the city welfare department. Eaton's, McIntosh's and Leslie's, opened their stores to secure the needed apparel, the stores also making a contribution.

The Salvation Army, through Major H. Honeychurch, gave a cash donation and was able to secure a two-roomed partly furnished apartment for the family at 53 Cannifton Road. The Canadian Legion donated groceries.

Russia Agrees To Accept Kennan As Ambassador

Washington, Dec. 27— (AP) — Russia has agreed to accept George F. Kennan as the new United States Ambassador to Russia, almost at the same time denouncing him as a foe of the Soviets.

President Truman announced at Kansas City last night the selection of the 47-year-old career diplomat, who is credited with being a principal author of the present American policy of containment to counter the threat of communist aggression.

Kennan will succeed Rear Admiral Alan G. Kirk, whose request for retirement presidential secretary Joseph Short said Truman accepted with reluctance.

The announcement was made after the Kremlin said he would be acceptable. There had been some speculation that he would be turned down after attacks on him by both Pravda and radio Moscow, the latest only yesterday.

Kennan, former state department counsellor and recently chief of state Secretary Dean Acheson's policy planning staff, now is on leave with the Princeton University Institute for advanced studies. He is expected to take over the ambassadorship probably in April.

Short said his nomination would be submitted to the Senate for confirmation soon after Congress reconvenes. There has been no indication of opposition to Kennan.

SPELLMAN GIVEN MEDAL

Pusan, Korea, Dec. 27 (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman today was awarded the first National Medal of the Republic of Korea for his "selfless service and devotion to the alleviation of human suffering." President Syngman Rhee pinned the medal on the Cardinal in a ceremony at the presidential home.

City and District News

NO FURTHER DONATIONS ARE NECESSARY

Officials of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross today paid tribute to the splendid response to their appeal for clothing for the fire-stricken Edgar family.

"The public," a Red Cross spokesman said, "was little short of magnificent in its response to the appeal. Such in fact that no further donations are necessary."

THEATRE STAFF ENJOYS PARTY

Employees of the Belle Theatre were guests of the management at a Christmas party dinner held over the weekend at the Golden Acre Inn. The 32 employees and the families enjoyed a turkey dinner with all the trimmings with Theatre Manager George H. Forhan handing out Christmas bonus cheques to employees. James Corradi favored with piano selections.

WARNING BY POLICE HAD DESIRED EFFECT

Warning of the police chief for householders to refrain from offering deliverymen drinks to help celebrate the Christmas season had the desired effect according to comments from local dairymen today. Almost without exception drivers returned to the dairy without the offer of a drink.

"It was the best Christmas in 20 years," was the comment of one dairy owner.

HEARING LAID OVER FOR ONE WEEK

Facing two charges of false pretences and one of fraud, E. H. Ryan, 38, of Pembroke, had his hearing laid over for one week when he appeared for trial today in county magistrate's court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Ryan is charged with passing two bad cheques, one with a city merchant, and the other with a Point Anne bus operator. He is also charged with beating a board bill at Trenton.

$47 IN SILVER TAKEN FROM REGISTER

Black's Meat Market on Bridge Street, was entered during the Christmas holiday with approximately $47 in silver being taken from the cash register. Police said the entry to the premises had been gained by smashing the panel out of the rear door.

TWO BABIES BORN ON CHRISTMAS DAY

To Mrs. Marie Storms, 83 South George Street came a bouncing baby boy while Mrs. Joyce Walker R.R. 1 Belleville, was presented with a lovely baby girl.

Officers, Senior N.C.O's Serve Station Troops

Officers and senior non-commissioned officers of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Trenton acted as the traditional waiters at the Christmas dinner held on the station on Tuesday.

NCO's from sergeants up and officers looked after the needs of the troops with Group Captain G. P. Dunlop, AFC, commanding officer of the station, leading the culinary parade by carrying in a specially decorated "bird." Flying Officer Barbara Ross, Winnipeg, ladled the dinner to the waiting waiters.

The airmen had turkey and all the trimmings with plum pudding ice cream, nuts, candies and cigarets.

John Manning Of Ottawa Hurt In Freak Mishap

Slippery highway conditions on a curve immediately west of Deseronto were responsible for a chain reaction mishap Wednesday which sent one motorist to the hospital and saw four vehicles damaged.

Injured was John Manning of Ottawa, passenger in one of the cars, who suffered facial lacerations and an injured hand. He was taken to hospital in Bush's ambulance.

Start of the accident was when a car driven by Walter Chyzuk of Weston skidded partially into the ditch, only to be struck by the trailer of a Smith's transport as the heavy vehicle slued when braked by the driver.

Then William Elliott of Willowdale drove up his vehicle skidding as he tried to stop to avoid striking the transport. His car slued around only to be struck by still another car driven by Aylmer Ellis of Ottawa.

Before the mixup was cleared away several other cars had skidded into the ditch on the slippery curve.

The accident was investigated by O.P.P. Constable McLeod.

Traffic Situation During Holiday Pleases Police

With only one drunk driver being apprehended and with no serious street or highway accidents reported during the long Christmas holiday weekend the city police department and the Ontario Provincial Police were "highly pleased," today.

The city police reported the apprehension of one motorist on Saturday who was charged with drunk driving while any accidents that occurred were only fender dents with street conditions mainly responsible.

The provincial police reported an even better record as far as drunk drivers were concerned, with none reported over the holiday.

Farm Income Higher

Ottawa, Dec. 27 — (CP) — Income of Canadian farmers was up 25 per cent in the first nine months of this year compared with the corresponding period of 1950. The Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday farmers got an estimated $1,864,900,000 from sale of farm products and from grain adjustment and participation payments on previous years' crops during the period. This compared with $1,487,600,000 in the first nine months of last year.

Corby's Hold Christmas Party For Children

Over 300 children of the employees of H. Corby Distillery Limited were entertained at a Christmas Tree held in the auditorium of the Masonic Temple on Foster Avenue.

Mr. R. Farquharson Jr., acted as master of ceremonies for the evening. Mr. George Gulliver opened the program with accordion selections, followed by several numbers by the Rhythm Ranch Riders. Miss Brenda Archer, talented young dancer, gave two numbers accompanied by Mrs. Barbara Barlow. There were two Christmas readings by Mrs. Ralph Plumpton and Mr. Charles Tillbrook gave two very enjoyable accordion selections. Two Christmas Films were shown by Mr. Bill Parm.

Greetings of the management were extended by Mr. George MacDonald, assistant distillery manager, on behalf of Mr. Wilfrid Laporte.

Following a treat of cokes, Santa Claus arrived and presented each child with a gift and a bag of candy.

The thanks of all were extended to the committee and their assistants for the many hours of planning to bring about another successful Christmas party for the children,

Shot Through Heart

Meaford, Dec. 27—(CP)—Coral Moore, 21, of Detroit and Meaford was found shot to death through the heart in the family's summer cottage near here last night. Police said it was suicide.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Moore, of Detroit had gone to the cottage in the afternoon. When she failed to return at night, her father went looking for her, and found her body. A .22 calibre rifle was nearby.

Only Half Show Up

Ottawa Dec. 27—(CP)—About half the membership of the Commons turned up today for the opening of the post-Christmas sitting that is to deal with legislation stalled at the fall session.

A count from the gallery showed an attendance of 130 of the 261 sitting members of the House.

The count showed 95 Liberals, 24 Progressive Conservatives, eight C.C.F. and three Social Credit members.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Duncan Ketcheson of Green Rest Home, Stirling, extends season's kindest greetings to all friends and wishes to thank, most kindly, all friends for many cards and gifts sent to her at this Christmas season. D27

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Carson wish to thank Dr. Gibson, Dr. Lyons and nurses of the Belleville General Hospital for kindness shown Shirley during her illness and also the many friends who sent flowers and mass cards during our recent sad bereavement. Also thanks to Belleville Burial Company and staff. D27

To our many friends and neighbors we wish to express our sincere appreciation of your presence and sympathy which means so much to us at this time. To the bearers, to those who brought floral tributes and expressions of sympathy received, to Rev. Mr. Giffin, the soloist and the choir. We are truly grateful. We also wish to express our appreciation to the Duffin funeral directors at Stirling. Mr. Fred Searles, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Elliott. D27

Two Red MIGs Shot Down, Another Damaged

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 27. (AP)—American Sabre jets shot down two red jets and badly damaged another in a renewal of air battles over northwest Korea today.

The MIG-15s were shot down in a 30-minute battle between 32 Sabres and 50 MIGs.

Earlier 100 MIGs had run for cover when a flight of Sabres opened up on them. No American planes were reported hurt in either encounter.

The air war broke out anew in clear skies as Allied infantrymen fought in knee-deep snow and sub-zero temperatures near Heartbreak Ridge to regain an advance position cut off by the reds.

The communists have been fighting intermittently since Christmas night to capture and hold the outpost.

A company of reds attacked again shortly after last midnight just 24 hours before the end of a 30-day trial period. By 7 a.m. the reds cut off the position.

United Nations troops counter-attacked, the U.S. Eighth Army reported, and at noon "were fighting in knee deep snow to regain the position".

It was the only fight reported on the ground.

IN MEMORIAM

BURLEY. — In loving memory of a dear father, Harry W. Burley, who passed away three years ago, December 23rd, 1948.

Three years have passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon his grave
May wither and decay.
But the love of him who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.

—Ever remembered by son Harry, Goldie and Shirley. D27

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 27 — (CP) — Slightly firmer mid-session support today erased about half the morning losses on the Toronto stock exchange.

Industrials opened mixed and trendless following yesterday's irregularity but prices reversed during the first hour.

Utilities led the market with four fractional advances. Constructions and foods drew firm support while papers, agricultures, steels and retail stores held gains and losses in balance. Banks and textiles were unchanged but liquors, refining oils and manufacturing companies weakened. Miscellaneous industrials dipped sharply.

Leading base metal issues showed little trend but Chromium and Opemiska strengthened. Mackeno and Mindamar dipped pennies.

A scattered list of lower-priced western oils showed sporadic activity. Canadian Atlantic and General Petroleum and American-Leduc strengthened while Anglo-Canadian, Calvan Consolidated and Western Homestead weakened.

Senior golds were mixed. Hollinger climbed fractions but Lake Shore and Tech Hughes eased. Secondary issues showed little trend.

New Major Oil Discovery Made In Middle East

New York, Dec. 7—(AP)—The New York Journal of Commerce says today that "a new major oil discovery— possibly one of the more important in a decade of fabulous strikes — has just been made in the Middle East."

The oil showings were reported made after the start in October of a wildcat well known as Magwa No. 1, about seven miles north of the northernmost known part of the 80,000-acre Burgan field in southern Kuwait, tiny sheikdom on the Persian Gulf.

The oil concession for the entire sheikdom is held jointly by Kuwait Oil Co., Ltd., owned jointly by Gulf Oil Corp., and by the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

It is still uncertain, the newspaper says, whether Magwa No. 1 was drilled into an extension of the Burgan Field that geologists did not know existed, or whether the new oil showings are the first of a new pool. Proven reserves of the Burgan field have been estimated at close to 15,000,000 barrels.

The Journal of Commerce describes the strike as of special significance in view of the ouster of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company from its holdings in Iran, which it said makes the Kuwait concession Britain's chief source of oil in the Middle East.

Optimism Grows Steel Union Will Postpone Strike

Pittsburgh, Dec. 27. (AP)—The steel crisis came to a head today with union policy makers meeting to decide whether to strike or work. The United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) although they gave no hint what kind of action they may take, it was believed generally they will vote to delay the country-wide strike set for New Year's Day.

The union's 36-man executive committee meets first (10 a.m. E.S.T.) and then the 170 member wage-policy board (2 p.m.).

The executive committee makes decisions; the wage-policy board accepts or rejects them.

As the sessions are secret, no announcement is expected before the larger group completes its session, probably late today.

Possibilities before the union seemed to be:

1. Acceptance or rejection, complete or conditional, of President Truman's demand that the wage fight between the 700,000-man union and the steel industry be turned over to the wage stabilization board for study or settlement.

2. Postponement of the strike at least until Jan. 3 when a special international convention will be held at Atlantic City to plot the union's future course.

Since Monday when Philip Murray, president of both the C.I.O. and the union, called for the meeting there has been a virtual cessation of strike preparations in the local unions. Talk of a walkout has been at a minimum.

The union has asked an 18 1-2 cent hourly pay boost for workers averaging $1.93. It also wants a guaranteed annual wage, a union shop, elimination of geographical pay inequities, improved premium and incentive pay, and other benefits. Some authorities have estimated the entire package would run to 30 or 50 cents an hour.

The union says the pay raise is necessary because of increased living costs.

BANCROFT

Bancroft -Today where the transit and custom planing mill of Bancroft Lumber and Fuel was before the fire early Friday morning reminds one of the pictures of Hiroshima and Nagasaki after the atom blasts. Not one board, stringer, scantling or stud is to be seen. You cannot find any charred skeletons above the ground or where you would expect to find partially-burned foundation timbers at or below the snow line.

All that remains are three machines—the hi-speed planer, the re-saw [illegible] the jeep that was used to shunt carloads of lumber. And these appear to be scrap metal.

As the office, coalshed, and lumber storage shed were not damaged business is being carried on in every branch of the firm's activities except their custom and transit planing work.

Although he could not give a date, president and general manager, J. N. Brown stated that he hoped that the new mill would be in operation in approximately eight weeks, as the company was making plans to build again.

FRANKFORD

Lively Session At Nomination

Frankford—Although attendance at the annual nomination meeting in Frankford council chamber was not as well attended as last year, it was a lively session at times. For reeve of the village, Reeve George N. Spencer will oppose Mr. Oscar Farrar. Both are merchants in the village. The last year's council will all stand, these being Carman Mikel, Preston Chase, Earl Bonisteel and Smith Osterhout. In addition, Leonard Reid, who was barely edged out last year in the voting will run for councillor.

For the school board, three trustees will be elected from Messrs. Carman Westlake, Roy Lockwood, Grant Patrick and George Flindall.

THOUGHT 112 YEARS OLD

Elko, Nev., Dec. 27. (AP)—Billie Mose, an Indian who said he could remember when Salt Lake City's population of ten persons lived in a single log cabin, died Tuesday night. He was believed to be 112 years old.

Two Mothers, Three Children Perish in Fire

Kenora, Ont., Dec. 27 —The charred bodies of two mothers and their three children lay in a funeral home in this northwestern Ontario town yesterday victims of a Christmas morning fire that trapped them in their two storey log and frame house.

Dead are: Mrs. Louis Pero, 22, formerly of Fort William; her son Jackie 3 1-2, and her daughter, Linda, 17 months; Mrs. Delia Haller, 39, and her three-year-old daughter, Catharine.

Caesar Caron and his two young grandsons, Peter and George Caron, sleeping on the ground floor when the fire broke out, escaped.

Peter helped his grandfather from the building while George made a valiant attempt to reach those trapped upstairs, but was driven back by smoke and heat.

Steve Konoby, a neighbor, placed a ladder against the wall and tried to enter the burning home through a window, but flames also drove him back.

"They never had a chance," said Coroner Dr. D. J. Mason. "The building was enveloped in flames by the time firemen arrived."

The alarm was turned in by a passerby at 8.30 a.m. when he noticed smoke and flames shooting out a side window, but Police Chief John Pike said the fire could have started as many as three hours earlier. He said an overheated stove may have caused the blaze.

The bodies were recovered from the smoking ruins three hours after firemen were called.

Members of a volunteer fire brigade halted their unwrapping of Christmas gifts to answer the alarm. The flames were fanned by a 10 miles an hour south wind.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION

According to the New York Times News Service, the International Court of Justice in The Hague has just handed down a judicial decision which will have far reaching effects.

Norway and Great Britain were the two disputants in the case. The Norwegians had contended that they had a right to fix Norway's territorial limits at sea by a method which the British contested.

By a vote of ten to two, the court held that Norway had exclusive fishing rights within a zone four miles deep, based on the line connecting the outermost land points along Norway's jagged coast. The court upheld Norway's claim that using this method of measuring how far out to sea Norwegian territory reached was in accordance with international law.

The decision came after two years of litigation and a 45-year controversy, during which British fishing trawlers were frequently arrested, their catches confiscated and their skippers fined for fishing in the disputed territory.

The court took a broad view of territorial waters. It held that the limits "must follow the general direction of the coast," but rejected any system that would interpret this strictly, and stressed that "a state must be allowed the latitude necessary in order to be able to adapt its delimitation to practical needs and local requirements."

The court's decision means, in effect, that each country has a good deal more authority than has previously been recognized in defining its own territorial waters, and that these territorial waters extend farther from the shore than has sometimes been acknowledged.

It means that those nations which have valuable fishing shoals close to their coasts have a good deal more control over those shoals than has been admitted by some other nations.

Canada has extremely valuable fishing shoals off both Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Since the British-Norwegian case will be accepted as a legal precedent, Canada will have a good deal more legal right than in the past in expelling non-Canadian fishing vessels from waters close to the coasts of Labrador, the maritime provinces, the British Columbia mainland, Vancouver Island and Queen Charlotte Islands.

In days gone by, when the Japanese were much more arrogant than they are today, there was continual trouble along the west coast with Japanese fishing ships. The Japanese fishermen were frequently accused not only of fishing inside Canadian territorial waters, but of smuggling and of landing Oriental immigrants, mostly Japanese.

If the Japanese should become obstreperous again, the Canadian authorities will have more legal right in taking punitive action against them.

CANADIAN SOLDIER BEST PAID

According to the weekly news magazine Time, the recent pay hoists which the Canadian government gave its 160,000 civil servants raises their average income from $2,770 to $2,991.

Time also points out that, under the new Canadian army pay scale, a Canadian private receives $87 per month, plus subsistence, as compared with the American private's monthly pay of $75, plus subsistence.

Time estimates that this latest series of pay-hoists adds $46,000,000 annually to the Canadian government's payroll.

BIG PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT

According to the Ottawa Journal, the new printing establishment which the government is building in Hull, across the Ottawa River from Ottawa, is going to cover thirteen acres and will cost $11,000,000.

The Journal estimates this new establishment will be ready to begin operations by 1953. "So far, the huge excavation has been filled with thousands of tons of concrete and steel and the ground floor has been started," the Journal adds.

"THE IDEA REPELS"

The idea of a Canadian as governor general repels us. Only the greatest citizens should be eligible for the honor, and greatness is usually measured partly in terms of political activity. The governor generalship would become the biggest political plum of the nation, the greatest prize. When judgeships, lieutenant governorships and almost all other senior appointments are made with politics a partial consideration, what reason is there to expect the governor generalship to be different. — (Calgary Albertan.)

NOW THE WRECKAGE

Now the train is off the track
And the drumhead shows a crack.
Something happened to the wagon
We had planned on taking back.
Where the Christmas tree is standing,
Toys are strewn about the floor;
But when New Year's Day is over
We shall tidy up once more.

Of a dozen candy canes,
Not a single one remains.
On the walls and on the sofa
There are sticky finger stains.
Still upon the parlor table
Mother's gifts are on display;
But the ties and shirts for father
Are already put away.

Now the turkey's three days old.
In my fingers I must hold
Little scraps of light and dark meat,
But I like it better cold.
Soon the mistletoe and holly
And the wreaths will disappear;
Then we'll put the home in order
For about another year.

WE CAN WILL TO LOVE

The Bible commands us to love. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God. . . and thy neighbor."

But how can we will to love? Love is something spontaneous. We have love for some people and no love for others. Isn't that the natural way of things? Yes, the natural way but not the divine way.

We can love anybody if we will to do so, for love is not primarily a sentiment but a purpose. There are as many kinds of love as there are objects of love. A man has one kind of love for his wife, another kind for his parents, another kind for his children, another kind for his friends. And miserable is the person who believes that these loves conflict and who grows jealous over brooding.

God would not have commanded us to love if it were not possible for us to love by the exercise of the will. The words are not "Thou shouldst love God and neighbor," but "Thou shalt." Love for one's neighbor is not a sentimental gushing emotion, but a resolute purpose on our part always to strive for neighbor's good. We may come to have a warm feeling of friendship for a neighbor, and again we may not. But if we are truly Christian that will make no difference in our determination to have good will for this neighbor.

Love may be an emotion which overwhelms us. But often it isn't. We can, however, will to love.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

LIGHTS OUT

At about 8:15 each night, just after the kids have gone to bed and a luxurious hush has fallen over everything, I tense myself for disaster.

It always seems at this time that my wife remembers that the basement is flooded or that it's time to wash the dogs or could I give her a hand in rearranging the furniture, starting with the piano.

Thus I was braced and prepared for the worst at 8:15 last night when the domestic chaos struck one more.

Reading from left to right, the words which ruined my evening were these: "Wouldn't it be a good idea to check over the Christmas lights?"

"I'd rather planned on devoting the evening to brushing up on the Early Mycenaean Civilization," I said, pushing my copy of "Sir" under the chesterfield cushion.

But I could tell by the pressure on my nosering that no ruse would be successful.

The trunk containing the lights for the tree proved to be located at the rear of the basement directly beneath a low beam. The lights themselves were at the bottom. When I'm looking for something it promptly starts to burrow under.

As I commenced to excavate for this buried treasure my eyes landed on an old, dusty album of photographs.

This of course, would bear some careful examination so I took it out under the light, at the same time donning a gay paper hat, relic of some happily forgotten New Year's Eve. My wife went on digging in the trunk.

"Come and get a load of this," I cried, slapping my thigh with glee. "Here's a picture of you at Lac La Hache that summer you borrowed that cotton bathing suit."

There was a muffled grunt from the rear of the basement.

"And look at this!" I carolled happily, "Here's that candid camera picture Harry took of you on New Year's morning. Gosh, this looks like an exhibit at an embalmers' convention. Come here and see this!"

There was a scuffling sound from the vicinity of the trunk.

"And, hey!" I cried. "Remember that beach picture? The one before you took the reducing treatment? Boy, is this you or were you wearing a life preserver?"

At this point I heard a familiar 'click". I looked up and saw that my wife held my .38 Army pistol in her hand.

"This was in the trunk, too," she was saying, "I'd hate to have to use it, but if you don't get moving there's liable to be a shooting in the house."

Once upstairs with the string of lights it was a simple matter to plug them in and even more simple to observe that they didn't go on. In the memory of the oldest living Iroquois no Christmas lights have ever been known to go on the first time.

Having at one time miraculously solved this problem by merely interchanging the small painted globes I began industriously to switch the lights.

With eight lights there are possibly 18,000 potential combinations and I was well on my way to trying them all when my wife interrupted.

"It's this Christmas we want them for, Mr. Edison," she said. "Just find out which bulb is burned out and we'll get a new one from the store tomorrow.

"I left my ouija board at the office," I responded. "I haven't any extra lights, so how can I find out which one is dead?"

"Why, just stick a screwdriver in each socket," my wife explained airily. "That completes the circuit, you see?"

The screwdriver in the first, second and third sockets caused no reaction at all.

I stuck the end in the fourth socket.

Instantly there was a sharp buzzing sound in my ears. My toes curled up and a stream of blue sparks began darting from the end of my nose.

Simultaneously there was a sharp explosion from the vicinity of the fusebox and every light in the house went out. The pugent smell of burning rubber pervaded the room.

"Mery Christmas, one and all," I sighed and fainted dead away.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We are always talking about pioneers and the frontier, without it ever occurring to us that we are always pioneers, and that this is the frontier we are on.

Perhaps not each generation, but certainly each group of generations that lies between the revolutionary changes in our way of life, is on the frontier.

When we think of our grandparents and the way they lived, we instantly assume that we have got what they were after. What they had, of course, was just as smugly possessed as we possess the comforts and amenities of our time. Every time we chuckle at the purple plush overstuffed rocking chair of our Grandma, we should take a furtive glance around us to see what our grandchildren will be chuckling at.

Our grandparents, when they were young, did not know about a young fellow named Tom Edison scratching his big head in a railroad station while he waggled the telegraph key on his twelve hour day and wondered what else this stuff, electricity, could do besides buzz along a hundred miles of wire.

We have no idea what some other young head-scratcher is thinking about, not in dim railroad stations, but in fabulously equipped research labs all over the world. The era of industrial research is only about forty years old. It began, really, in a systematic way, about the time of the 1914-18 war. From that time on, science has come under the wing of industry, a much more profitable master than medicine or the colleges.

We sometimes have a funny, eerie feeling that we are pioneers on the frontier of the atomic age. Atomic physics will doubtless be as dull to our grandchildren as Mr. Faraday and his bottles is to us. Our pioneers shot Redskins with muskets. We blow up Japs with atoms. O pioneers!

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SAY NICE THINGS

How would you like to be known as the one who is always saying nice things about other people? Be like that and people will search you out. We hunger for kindness and appreciation next to the hunger of the body.

Be kind. Be pleasant. Be considerate for the feelings of others and you will be on the only road that leads to daily happiness. Say mean things, criticize unjustly, find fault with others, hurt their feelings and you will be sure to leave scars in that person's heart that may never heal. And remember this — the hurt to yourself will be the greater.

"Kind hearts," wrote Tennyson, "are more than coronets," and the poet Ella Wheeler Wilcox once wrote that "just the art of being kind is all this sad world needs." What an uplift it is to any of us to have someone be pleasant to us, to compliment us when it is merited, and to overlook our faults—though they may be ever so numerous!

Say nice things to people, and they will say nice things to you. Who among us is, or who can say, that he is superior to us? We are all of a common mold, but with variations of thought and character that stamp each one of us as unique. Life itself is a compromise. Usually behind every unhappy argument is a sense of personal failure, jealousy or selfishness. By saying nice things you add to the health of your mind and body, and God himself gives you a cheer!

One of the most beloved friends I have ever had is George Stimpson, a newspaperman and writer who lives in Washington, D. C. Thousands know and love him, and all because he is forever saying nice things about others. Presidents, Congressmen, Senators, other newspapermen — everybody who has ever met him—admire and love him. What a reputation to have!

A large proportion of our divorces would never have been had there been habitual nice things, instead of bitter and unhappy things said during marriage. I once heard a humorous story of a man who came running out of his house in great glee. A friend meeting him asked what it was all about. He said: "My wife almost called me honey." "Well, what did she call you?" "She called me old beeswax!"

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

MEDICINE IS HAUNTED BY LEGENDS AND MYTHS

Some years ago I sounded off here about the vicious practice of cauterizing dog bites. I characterized the practice as crude, unjustifiable and even more dangerous than no treatment at all.

This drew stern reproval in the form of a letter to the editor from a metropolitan health officer who declared that cauterization with fuming nitric acid is the only known way to destroy rabies virus in such a wound.

That declaration was obviously false—obviously to any one who knows what every physician or health authority knows or should know, namely, that no one has discovered rabies virus, and therefore no one can tell whether it is present in the wound or whether it is destroyed by nitric acid or anything else.

The health commissioner's arbitrary statement was characteristic of the attitude of most public health authorities and too many private medical practitioners. They are ignorant and hence afraid to depart from the course which they think the public demands. And the public has been thoroughly indoctrinated by just such false teachings as that of the health commissioner. I do not doubt that rabies occurs in animals, and I dare not deny that it may occur in man it is so very rare that it would be better for public welfare if we ignored it. I believe so-called Pasteur treatment in itself is a greater hazard than the remote possibility that rabies will develop after a wound by a rabid animal.

I am convinced beyond argument that laboratory "positive" diagnosis of rabies on the finding of Negri bodies are sheer guesswork—that is, the microscopist sees certain cell-like artefacts and guesses they are "Negri bodies." If these laboratory diagnoses were even half way accurate or reliable, rabies would be pandemic. The truth is rabies are so rare, if it occurs at all in man, that I have never seen a case and I know no doctor who has seen a case.

In Postgraduate Medicine recently Dr. Roald Vinnard protested against the cauterization of dogbites with nitric acid. He said ordinary soap and water cleansing of such a wound is better treatment. No reason why dogbite should be treated differently than any other flesh wound. Dr. Vinnard asked doctors in health departments, who recommend cauterization of dog bites, what for. He found that many doctors and hospitals cauterize dogbites because they think the law requires them to, and one nineteenth century hospital doing business in benighted Wisconsin still insists on this hideous maltreatment of victims of dog bite against the soap and water treatment advised by he enlightened health department.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Reducing

Most of my superfluous flesh is below the waist. Doctors say it is glandular. Any information or advice for reducing will be appreciated . . . (Mrs. M. F. D.)

Answer—Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet How to Lose Weight. Chapters on hypopituitary obesity in booklet Rules for Reducing. If you want the booklet too, inclose 25c for it.

Itching

Mrs. E. W. A. said she was cured of pruritus by using tetrachloride which you prescribed . . . I have consulted many doctors but have found no relief and I'm just about distracted . . . (K. B.)

Answer—Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet on Pruritus. Pruritis is the medical term for itching without apparent skin trouble to account for it.

Eyeglasses

I need stronger glasses and do not want to get prescription glasses if the ready-to-wear kind will not harm me. Never wore glasses until I was 50 and need them only for reading, sewing and other close work. (Mrs. H. A.)

Answer—If your job or recreation does not demand use of the eyes perhaps ready-made glasses will suffice. If you have any use for your glasses investment in correctly fitted glasses would be wise.

DEPARTURE DELAYED

London, Dec. 27—(Reuters)—One of the roughest gales of the year struck Britain's south coast early today, at times reaching a velocity of 80 miles an hour.

At Shannon airport, Republic of Ireland, a grounded air liner was blown across the ramp with its steps and refueling units. The wings were damaged and its departure delayed.

6,000 ITEMS REDUCED

Chicago, Dec. 27—(AP)—Sears, Roebuck and Company said yesterday it was mailing its 1952 midwinter sales catalogue throughout the United States listing price reductions on more than 6,000 seasonal items.

The firm said it was the largest sales catalogue ever issued by Sears. It stresses merchandise for the family and the home.

$560,000 FIRE LOSS

Tokyo, Dec. 27 (Reuters) — Seven American army barrack buildings at Camp Zama near Yokohama were razed today by a four-hour fire. Damage was estimated at $560,000. There were no casualties.

Trenton Fishermen Having Difficulties About Bait Supply

Trenton (Special) — Fishermen always seem to have their problems regardless how good the fish are biting.

Now Trenton shanty fishermen are finding a scarcity of live bait.

A minnow to a game fish is like caviar to a crown prince and local sportsmen have loads of trouble satisfying Mr. Big's appetite.

Those enthusiasts who had foresight gathered their minnows from closeby streams during the summer. Firemen Jess Baker and Gerald Lewis, for instance, stocked a winter's supply in the little fresh water creek that passes under the CNR right-of-way between King and Joseph Streets.

Those who failed to stock up now pay $5 a quart for small fry. But it wasn't so long ago that the same quantity could be purchased for $1.50.

Sources of supply exist at Trenton and Belleville and the most popular species are chub and shiners. If the minnows are small there would be around 50 in a quart. If they are larger, there wouldn't be more than two dozen to the quart.

Figure the bait the fish steal off the hook and ice fishing amounts to a rather costly sport. Little however daunts the stout-hearted ice fisherman who braves the worst blizzards and freezing weather to sit humped up in close quarters over a hole in the ice to procure his favorite food. And the thrill of fighting with a big one and bringing him up through the ice is well worth the hardships and high cost of fishing nowadays says the veteran who is right at home in his four by six shanty.

Pickerel whose white flesh is rated as the tastiest of all fresh water varieties is the prize that ice-fishermen go after mainly.

Christmas Sees Four Girls Born at Trenton

Trenton — (Special) — Christmas was a busy day in the obstetric ward of the Trenton Memorial Hospital when four baby girls saw light for the first time.

Mrs. Paul Kelly of 93 Spring Street, Trenton, gave birth to the first girl at 1.30 p.m. She weighed seven pounds and 13 ounces.

The other girls were born to Mrs. Claude Richardson, Hilton, R. R. 1; Mrs. Lawrence Claw, 20 Regina Crescent, Middleton Park; Mrs. Stamford Shottland, 281½ Dundas Street, East.

Trenton Firemen Make Two Runs

Trenton— (Specal) — Trenton fire department answered two calls over the weekend.

An overheated stove started a fire in the wall of Allan Young's home at 2 Wilson Crescent, Saturday. The reels despite icy roadways, made good time and the flames were subdued before they did much damage.

At 3.00 a.m. this morning firemen rushed to the aid of a transport reported to be on fire on the main street. The smoke eaters found no fire and great volumes of steam rising from underneath the hood of a stopped truck. A provincial policeman noticed clouds of what he thought was smoke pouring out of the engine of the transport and turned in the alarm.

Russell Moon, Trenton Actor, Home for Visit

Trenton—(Special)—A motion picture and TV actor from California, Russell Moon, is spending a few weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Moon, Wragge Street. Well known in radio circles in western Canada where he got a start as an entertainer. Mr. Moon has just finished a picture titled "Romance in the West" to be released early in the New Year.

Early this year the actor suffered a severe setback when his wife was killed in a freak crash involving a runaway box car and six automobiles. The wild train car loaded with 60 tons of sand raced through Los Angeles suburbs crushing a line-up of a half a dozen cars against a freight train passing through an intersection.

Mr. Moon was lucky to escape and owes his life to a sailor who had only time to warn him and the people in the two cars behind. Four others died from the crash and others are in hospital.

Besides being handy with the guitar and his voice, Mr. Moon, known as "Russ" totes a gun with even greater dexterity. So much so that it may be Russ' next adventure to play the lead role in a production about a sniper in the war.

After the holiday, Russ will head back south where he is slated to start work on the movie lot again soon.

Labor Minister Drafts Formula To Settle Dispute

Toronto, Dec. 27 (CP)—Labor Minister Daley said today he has drafted a formula for settlement of a wage dispute between management and employees of the Toronto Transportation Commission. The dispute threatens to develop into a strike that would tie up the city's transit system.

Talks resumed today in Mr. Daley's office between T.T.C. officials and officers of Division 713 of the Street Railway Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.).

In the first meeting between the union and the T.T.C. last Thursday, no agreement was reached. The day before, the 4,768 employees—who seek a 15-cent-increase over their $1.40 an hour—held a strike vote.

While results were not announced, it was reported that union members had voted overwhelmingly in favor of strike action if necessary.

The T.T.C. following a conciliation board recommendation, offered a five-cent increase to $1.45 an hour, which like the $1.40, included a 16-cent-an-hour cost-of-living bonus.

Should T.T.C. employees strike, a large part of Ontario's motor-bus service would be halted. The Gray Coach Lines is a subsidiary of the T.T.C.

BABIES ALL DIE

Catanzaro, Italy, Dec. 27. (Reuters)—Rosa Marascio, 21-year-old peasant girl, yesterday gave birth to four babies within half an hour. They all died in less than an hour. The children, all girls, were born before a midwife could reach the poverty-stricken little mountain village of Roccabernarda, near here, where Rosa and her husband live.

Man Gives Trenton As Home Address

Windsor, Dec. 27—Keith Fuller 24, believed to be from London or Trenton, was found suffering from exposure about 1:30 a.m. yesterday near Seven Mile Road.

Ray Lazaire, 759 California, spotted Fuller lying on the ground beside the road. He picked him up in his car and notified police.

Lazaire said Fuller was in a "half frozen state and unable to speak."

Inspector Willis Brumpton said he attempted to question the man but Fuller was stuttering so badly he couldn't be understood.

Inspector Brumpton asked Fuller twice to write down where he came from. Once Fuller wrote London and another time he wrote Trenton.

Fuller is being held at the Windsor police station.

Six Smart Ontario Girls Dwell in Boat on Thames To Reduce Living Costs

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Maidenhead, England, (CP)—For six smart girls from Ontario, a 40-foot motor-cruiser moored on the Thames River represents a solution to the high cost of living in London.

The Canadians, all in their early 20s, arrived in Britain two months ago, brimful of wanderlust. They found living accomodation so expensive that they looked around for something cheaper. Result: a houseboat with six bunks, cooking facilities, and a weekly rent of just under £6, split six ways.

"So far we've had a simply wonderful time," said plump, jolly Donalda McPhee of Mount Forest, Ont., "with plenty of good weather for sunning on deck."

With an eye to business, however, the girls' first thought was to find jobs in the red-brick Berkshire market town, set in beautiful country 25 miles west of London. Now all are working in a local factory, helping to make linings for automobile bearings, at an average wage of £5 weekly.

"It's a wonderful way of getting to know people," said blonde, Toronto-born Beverly Britt, with her film-star grin and a New York polish to her Canadian accent.

Standards Different

First thing that struck the enterprising travellers was the difference in living standards. They thought it wonderful to get a full meal at a good hotel for the equivalent of about $1.50—until they found out how long it took to make that much.

Life on the Thames has its troubles, too. Once the river rose three feet overnight and willowy, auburn-haired Jeanne McLean, who comes from Toronto, stepped into cold water early one dark morning while starting for the factory.

The three-cabin cruiser is too small for more than one at a time to move around the 'dining-room' and kitchen. "So we draw lots for cooking and chores," said copper-heared Sheila Jarrett, also of Toronto. In fact, the girls draw lots for everything including weekend invitations, the four bicycles they bought here, and the food rations.

Going to London

Sometimes the Thames is a little hard to take on damp November days, and some of the girls plan to take jobs in London soon. These include Toronto-born Margaret Hurd and Claire Watts of Burlington, Ont. The others remain at the factory until Christmas—taking rooms in town. They will then all meet in London.

The girls wear jeans on the boat and at work in this provincial residential area, and are wondering what it will feel like to wear a smart suit again. Ages range from 20 to 23 and there are three Bachelors of Arts, two teachers and one prospective medical student among them.

"Right now we have no plans other than to be on the continent by April," said spokesman Donalda. They hope to see as much of Europe as possible before they return to Canada.

Gracie Fields Weds Radio Repairman

Isle of Capri, Italy, Dec. 17 —(AP)— Gracie Fields announced yesterday she is going to marry Abraham Morris Alberovich, a 48-year-old Romanian radio repair man. Her friends were so surprised you could have knocked them over with an aspidistra.

The popular British comedienne made the announcement to friends at her villa on the Marine Piccola, on the southern side of this island. Gracie said she had met Alberovich when she sought someone to repair her radio.

"I deliberately tampered with the radio set just to have Abraham come up to the villa and repair it," she said. "This went on until he saw that nothing was the matter with the set and asked me if I would marry him."

The marriage will take place in Capri's cathedral early in February. Gracie said she plans to become a Roman Catholic before marrying.

Gracie, 54, next month, said the meeting with Abraham was really casual but "love at first sight came immediately after for that blonde, sunburned, blue-eyed, thin Romanian-born man."

Monty Banks, Gracie's second husband, died in January, 1950. Her first husband was the late Archie Pitt, London theatrical manager.

The announcement was made at a party at her villa, "Canzone Del Mare," which means song of the sea. For her guests Gracie sang yyyfffrrrrgerrrr "I'm an old goat, but I'm so much in love with him".

G.T. Lanning Company Holds Annual Party.

The employees of G. T. Lanning Company with their wives, husbands, and friends held their annual Christmas party at the Moose Hall on Friday evening, with about 110 present.

The hall was beautifully decorated with Yuletide ornaments, while a large gaily colored tree adorned the stage laden with gifts for all.

A turkey dinner was served by the Women of the Moose (435) and was greatly enjoyed by all. Following the dinner a sing-song was held with Mrs. Ken Wensley at the piano.

Two spot dances were held; the winners being, Mr. Vincent Mulvihill and Miss Westlake, also Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams. The door prizes were won by Mrs. Eileen Allin and Mr. Laurence Slingerland.

Mr. G. T. Lanning acted in the capacity of Santa Claus in distributing the presents. Mr. Ken Wensley was master of ceremonies. The evening closed with the management wishing one and all a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Anti Tank Regiment Holds Attractive Yuletide Tea-Dance

Yesterday afternoon the 9th anti-tank regiment held an attractive Yuletide tea-dance in the armouries with a fine attendance of officers, their wives and friends.

Those in the receiving line were Lieutenant-Colonel G. C. MacGregor M.C., E.D., and Mrs. MacGregor; Brigadier A. B. F. Knight, O.B.E., and Mrs. Knight, and Major John Clarke and Mrs. Clarke.

The games room was seasonably decorated for the occasion with evergreens, pink and yellow 'mums, and a Christmas village scene depicting the arrival of Santa in his red sleigh drawn by white reindeer; while behind the lovely tea table with its appropriately appointed lace cloth centred by an exquisite arrangement of pink roses, pink carnations and glistening green sprays of British Columbia huckleberry, flanked by red Christmas candles in silver holders, was the tall Christmas tree, gleaming with many colored spheres.

Those presiding at the silver services were, Mrs. E. A. Geen and Mrs. Milt Davison,

Among the guests present were, Group Captain G. P. Dunlop and Mrs. Dunlop, of Trenton Air Station; Colonel and Mrs. Dunlop, of Kingston; Major and Mrs. Featherstone, of Kingston, Mrs. W. M. Ponton, Trent Road, wife of the late Colonel Ponton, former C.O., of the regiment; Col. Max Porritt, M.C., of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and Mrs. Porritt; Lieutenant-Colonel E. A. Geen and Lieutenant-Colonel G. M. Davison.

Refreshments were served by the officers of the regiment.

Music was provided by Dean Whalen on the Hammond organ and piano for the dancing which took place in the lecture room, which was also nicely adorned with Christmas scenes and regimental crests.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She Was Disloyal—Now She Wants to be Trusted Again

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For three years I had been going steady with a fellow and about a year ago we became engaged. Everyone was wonderful until I started going out with certain girls and before long I was breaking dates with my boy friend to go out with other fellows. All this finally resulted in my leaving my boy friend without explanation.

You see I thought I no longer wanted to go steady but to go out and have fun with others. But now every time I am out with a fellow, my other boy friend is always in my thoughts. About a month ago I finally called him up and told him I would like to see him. Since then we see each other occasionally, but he always says we can only be good friends and that he will never go steady again.

How can I get him to ask me to go steady with him, because I am really very much in love with him and realize how foolish I was to treat him the way I did. We are both 20 years old.

C. N.

Dear C. N.:

There is nothing you can do, or ought to do, other than to let things take their course. If this young man is ever going to trust you again, it will come about gradually, over a period of time in which you prove your loyalty to him, not through any words or protests of yours. In fact, I think the less you say about your feelings, the better. Obviously and naturally, you hurt him very much when you acted as you did, and you can't blame him for feeling very dubious about you.

Wait and see what happens, and in the meantime, if you change your mind again, be decent enough to tell him so and don't just walk off and leave him.

Three Parents Should be Able to Win Over the Fourth

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a boy for a month. He's 15 and I am 14.

I would like to meet his parents, and he would like to meet mine. His mother and father know about me because he and I write to each other and see each other weekends. My mother is very understanding, but not my father, and if I tell him about seeing this boy, he would ruin everything. I don't want my father to make us break up, so how can I tell him about going with this boy?

Jinny

Dear Jinny:

Since your mother is very understanding, and since your friend's parents know that you and their son are seeing each other, perhaps these adults in the case can help you solve the problem.

If I were you, I would talk this over with the boy and explain to him about your father. Then ask him if he could get his parents to invite yours to their house. Perhaps his mother could discuss it first with your mother, and figure out the best way to plan it so that your father would be willing to accept an invitation. It should be easy for his mother to call yours, and say that since you and her son have become acquainted, she thinks the parents should know each other, and then go on to some way this could be brought about. With his parents and your mother on your side, it seems to me they should be able to bring your father around.

Food for Thought

Cook Turns Sentimental Hostess

By Mary Moore

Strictly I-ey.

Since we had a party that was tops for flavor and fun I am describing it to you just as it happened.

It was the December meeting in the form of a Christmas Open House for the Press girls. There were seventeen of us, most of whom can all talk at once and still hear what everybody says.

The menu:

Cranberry Cocktail
Toasted Almonds
Baked Chicken Supreme
Broad Noodles with Poppy Seeds
Tomato Scallop
Citified Slaw
Toasted French Bread with Garlic Butter
Baked Alaska
Cherry and Pineapple Sauce
More Almonds Coffee

One of the beloved out-of-town guests arrived twenty minutes ahead of seven o'clock and the hostess was still in her slacks! Five minutes later three more arrived fifteen minutes early. It must have been a good omen—anyway we interpreted it that they came early because they were anxious to be in on the start of the fun.

We passed cranberry punch and almonds in shifts while each other got into best dresses and slicked up hair-dos.

BAKED CHICKEN SUPREME

We ordered 16 breasts and 16 legs and thighs from the Cut-up Chicken Shop (the chicken cut-up—not the shop), but 12 of each would have done. The breasts were cut into 4 pieces the legs and thighs separated, and all was dredged in salted and peppered flour.

We piled the chicken in the bottom of our large roaster which had been greased, then poured 2 pints sour cream over it. It went into the oven for 3 hours at 300 deg. Fahr., being rearranged completely once during this period. Cover and let stand in cold place overnight. Pour off liquid which collects into top of double boiler. Make this up to 5 cups by adding cream. Add salt and pepper to taste. Make into a paste 3-4 cup flour and 1 cup cold water and stir into the hot broth-cream mixture until thick. Add salt and pepper to taste and 1 can chopped pimineto to color. Reheat the chicken, covered, in slow oven of 250 deg. Fahr. until heated through, then arrange it in serving dish and pour chicken gravy over. Garnish with parsley and more pimiento strips.

BROAD NOODLES WITH POPPY SEEDS

Boil 2 1-lb. packages broadest noodles in 4 quarts chicken broth made from 4 chicken backs bought from Cut-up Shop. Add at least 2 tablespoons salt. Boil until very tender. If any, drain off excess broth and stir in at least 1-2 cup butter and 4 ounces while poppy seeds. You won't believe anything could be so delicious until you taste this yourself.

TOMATO SCALLOP

You alternate equal amounts of tomatoes and bread squares in a casserole and bake 30 minutes at about 375 deg. Fahr. To make the bread squares remove crusts from 6 slices (for every 28-oz. can tomatoes), butter the slices and cut each into 6 squares. Saute these in butter in the frying pan until both sides are golden. Pile on baking dish and dry out in oven from which heat is receding.

CITIFIED SLAW

It is the dressing that is slick. Into double boiler put 1 can sweetened condensed milk and cook over boiling water 10 minutes. Cool in mixing bowl. Add 1 1-2 teaspoons dry mustard, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, beat hard and add gradually 3-4 cup vinegar. Beat hard 2 minutes. Chill covered overnight. It becomes very thick.

The Toasted French bread is so popular I repeat it here for the umpteenth time. Slice French bread in 3-4 or 1 inch slices but do not cut through the bottom crust. Have ready about 1-4 lb. very soft, nearly melted butter, in which is soaking 1 very finely chopped clove of garlic. Brush this on the bread slices, by prying them apart, using a pastry brush. Bake or toast in oven for 20 minutes or a half hour at about 375, to heat through. Serve piping hot. If slices are too wide, make a long cut lengthwise of the loaf at centre slices just before passing.

When that course had been passed and eaten we made an announcement. Santa Claus (Doris my sister) said it would be one-half hour before dessert was served, as our special dessert-chef (me) needed to go into seclusion with a whole bunch of special ingredients in the kitchen and do some incantations over them—so they played Twenty questions, and incidentally digested their first course partially, to make room for the when I bore it in one-half hour later.

As you know it is sponge or white cake in a large sheet on top of which was 4 bricks ice cream completely buried under a 12-egg white meringue containing 1 1-2 cups white sugar, and bake on a board at 500 deg. Fahr. with both burners on for about 2 minutes. Work fast, watch closely and don't get flustered. If you want more specific Baked Alaska instructions write to me. The mixed fruits spooned over it took some of the over-sweetness out of the alaska mixture.

We were finished eating at ten o'clock, almost too happy and full to have even a short business meeting. There were four society editors present, so it has had more than its share of publicity.

Going to try it?

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Your Christmas Thank-You Notes

At Christmas-time your friends were kind to you..sent you presents. Now it's your turn to be kind to them...write them nice, prompt, enthusiastic notes to them for their Christmas kindness.

So let's get pens going now. Now. With hearty words of appreciation. Let's go!

It's fun to write a prompt thank-you note, for fresh and bright in your thoughts is the giver's kindness to you and your joy in receiving the thought and the present. Chat with your friends as informally on paper as you would face-to-face.

Want a simple pattern for your thank-you notes? Here's one .. in three easy steps:

1. First step: Thank for the thought behind the present. Your note will have a charming send-off when you bow your appreciation for the thought-that-prompted-the-present. Too many notes begin with the colorless "Trank you for the lovely handkerchief you sent me," or "I love the book you gave me for Christmas." Here's too much emphasis on the thing, not enough on the spirit-of-the-giving. On the other hand, such a simple beginning as "What a wonderful friend you were to make me so happy at Christmas-time!" gives a high-hearted up-beat to your note. You're on your way!

2. Second step: Thank for the present itself. With enthusiasm certainly. With gusto, if possible. Naturally the more enthusiastic your words, the more your friends will welcome them, cherish them. Mention the present by name.. don't vaguely (and maddeningly, to the giver) write about "your present." Best way is to have the present in front of you as you write ..then give with your words. Just writing how "beautiful" or "lovely" or "pretty" the present is, won't do. Do better than that. Be definite. Chat enthusiastically about special features of the gift. Have you always longed to have that kind of compact?.. Your friend will be enchanted to be told this happy fact. Is the gift of charming color, perhaps happily your favorite color?.. Your friend will be thrilled to be told this. Will it have a special usefulness in your life?.. That's a mighty comforting fact to tell the giver. Or comment discriminatingly on the interesting design.. or handsome material . or perhaps the exquisite or dramatic marking or monogramming. Suggestions there, to help you to make your friend happy, proud that he or she chose just that gift.

3. Third step: Your closing bow. Appropriate words of greeting to your friend, and high-hearted salutations and good wishes for the New Year. 'Dearest love to you, Joan dear. and deepest thanks for your Christmas goodness to me. And every good wish to you for your happiness in the New Year!"

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Watch your blood pressure today. You are going to have a big tussle with a technical backfield The subject is: Response to a simple overcall. It is both important and hard to understand. We are discussing this deal:

The bidding has gone this far:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 H	Pass	Pass
2 D	2 S

Now that south has shown enough for a simple overcall (non-jump defensive bid), north may have something to say. But he must not be too optimistic. His partner denied enough for an opening bid.

If south had started with an opening bid, he would have promised four high cards and two sure tricks among his tricks But his bid in defence showed only two high cards and one sure trick.

With so few high cards and sure tricks, what south help can north depend on if he bids clubs? Only the high cards and sure tricks the south bid has so far promised.

With so few high cards, the balance of tricks announced by south must be mostly in short cards. And with so few high cards, the tricks north sees in his own hand include some short cards.

If each partner has so few high cards and so many short cards, they have a worry. Their worry is in finding a trump suit that combines. Unless they find such a fit, the short cards in one hand are no asset.

If partners keep bidding and do not find a combined trump suit, they will reach a no-trump bid. And no-trump bids depend on high cards only. So partner of a simple overcaller should be wary.

Follow this policy: In answer to a simple overcall, unless you have a strong hand of your own, prefer to pass. Hold your horses.

BANCROFT

Bancroft Hit By Epidemic Of Measles

Bancroft—Measles swept Bancroft public school and North Hastings high school during the two weeks before school closed for the vacation.

The reddish rashes were breaking out so quickly that many pupils spent their spare minutes watching to see who would be the next case. In North Hastings high school the staff were placing the fresh cases in the home economics room as the rural pupils had to wait in the school until bus time to go home and the number became so large that it was necessary to place the boys in the teachers' room.

Teachers also were affected. At one time three were at home with the disease. The hard luck case was Catherine Gillespie of Teaswater, the home enonomics instructress who acted as chief first aid worker and supervisor of the temporary ward for the past two weeks. She broke out with a first-class rash during the last day of school and consequently had to be quarantined for part of her holidays.

Teachers to Get Hoist in Pay

Bancroft—Besides the annual increment of $100, a cost of living bonus will be given to the teachers of Bancroft-Faraday public schools in 1952. Final details of how the cost of living bonus would operate from year to year were not made but it will be $84 or $3.50 per pay period for next year, as salaries are paid twice a month.

However, it was decided that the bonus would be paid for the advance in living costs during the calendar year 1951-52 and that the 1953 payments would cover the fluctuations of 1952. This decision was reached by a committee of S. R. Walker, John Vance and Ralph Martin representing the board and Virginia Davidson, John Bleecker and Robert Watson representing the teachers.

Flood Waters Still Rising In Montreal

Montreal, Dec. 27—(CP)—The R. C. A. F. today will be asked to bomb an ice-jam causing floods in the north end of greater Montreal.

Mayor Rosario Fortin of Riviere des Prairies said he will call on the air force to break the cause of the flood, a massive ice jam at the rapids where the back river meets the Riviere des Mille Iles before flowing into the St. Lawrence.

The R. C. A. F. could not be reached for comment.

Meantime, some 200 homes have been damaged by the food waters which continue to rise at the rate of two to four inches an hour and more than 25 families were forced to flee their homes.

The water has already reached 10 to 15 feet above normal levels.

Mayor Fortin could give no estimate of damage but said he expected it to run into "hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Red Cross and volunteer relief workers have been called in to help the affected residents.

Many of the flooded dwellings are summer cottages along the river's bank. A church and a parish school which were earlier pumped out are again flooded with water.

Gouin Boulevard, a main street through the north end of the city has been crossed three times by water. Traffic has been halted and streets blocked off. In nearby Bout de l'Ile the riverside streets are under four to six inches of water.

Residents across the river from Montreal north began moving furniture to upper floors of their homes when water slipped over the river bank.

Other communities along both sides of the river said there was little possibility that flood water would spill over the power dam at Sault au Recollet, some distance downstream, but precautions are being taken.

The water began rising Tuesday afternoon but the situation did not become alarming until early yesterday.

PETES TAKE OVER

The senior Hawks battling a turkey hangover dropped their tilt to the Peterborough Petes by a 9-5 score in Peterborough last night, shorthanded and all. The loss gives the Hawks a 3-2 game edge on the Petes with the sixth game of the season coming up in Memorial Arena tomorrow night. Last night's victory pushes the Petes out in front of the pack by a two-point margin. Kingston two points in rear of the Hawks entertain the Peterborough Eagles tomorrow night and if the Hawks happen to lose their tilt with the Petes, and Kingston plucks the Eagles twill be a two-way tie for second spot. There are two solid months of heavy going in this hot group before the playoff whistles toot and there should be some neat pastiming when all four squads straighten away for the gruelling drive for the payoff spots. Thus far there has been no word regarding playoffs. Nothing was done about it when the schedule was revised following the withdrawal of the Queen's team.

SIGN WITH CARDS

Andy Herscbock, St. Louis Cardinals scout said yesterday in Brockville he had signed two members of the Brockville Memos, 1951 COBL champions to Cardinal contracts. The players are Art. Pierce, and George Galen, two of the better Memos squad. They will report to Albany, Georgia, a Class D club, in March.

President Joe Engel of the Chattanooga baseball club received a telegram from Washington saying a new pitcher would arrive Christmas Day. It did. Another piece for Mrs. Engel's china collection . . . Chuck Martin, vice president of the Sudbury Northland Boxing Club who was suspended recently with his club and tree other officials, hints there may be a shakeup in Ontario boxing officialdom. Martin and his club buddies were suspended for allowing a New York boxer to appear on a local card without getting an International permit . . . Andy Bellemer turned down the coaching job of the Windsor Spitfires because he's making more money as a sweater and whistle man. Mickey Drouillard, former Windsor pro succeeded Jimmy Skinner . . . Arsenal defeated the league-leading Portsmouth eleven 4-1 in English First Division soccer on Christmas Day to create a three-way tie in the titular race. Mighty Manchester United, 3-2 victor over Fulham, is the third team of the trio. Brighton and Hove took over the leadership of the Second Division with a clear cut 2-1 win over Crystal Palace while Plymouth had to be satisfied with a 2-all tie with Bristol City for second slot . . . The National Boxing Association rated Joe Louis as a "logical contender" in heavyweight boxing circles. Also listed as logical contenders are Ezzard Charles, Rocky Marciano and Clarence Henry . . . It also listed lightweight champion Joey Maxim, Harry Mathews, contenders; middleweight, Ray Robinson, contender, Ray Turpin; welterweight, Kid Gavilan, contender, Charles Hunez, France; lightweight, champion Jimmy Carter, contender, Luther Rawlins; featherweight, champion, Sandy Saddler, contender, Willie Pep, (we thought Pep was suspended after the last fight with Saddler) bantamweight, champion, Vic Toweel, South Africa, contender, Jimmy Carruthers, Australia; and flyweights, Dado Marino, champion, Honolulu, contender, Yoshio Shurai, Japan . . . He is Coach Harold Hunt, Southwestern College whose team tied with Central Missouri State 6-6 after refusing the TD . . .

Rangers Shut Out Red Wings; Canadiens Nudge Leafs 3-2

(By The Canadian Press)

New York Rangers, who haven't been doing too well in front of the home-town folks this National Hockey League season, presented the Broadway faithful with a delayed Christmas present last night—a stunning 1-0 victory over the league-leading Detroit Red Wings.

And for the Blueshirts, it could not have come at a better time. There were 13,556 fans on hand—largest of the season in New York. It was Detroit's first loss away from home this season and it was Ranger goalkeeper Chuck Rayner's first shutout.

In addition, it broke a last-place deadlock with the idle Chicago Black Hawks.

Slowinski Here

The loss for Detroit wasn't too tough a blow, the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs failed to take advantage of the Wings' set-back as they dropped a 3-2 decision at Toronto to Montreal Canadiens in the other game of the night. Detroit still holds its 13-point edge over the Leafs.

Winger Ed Slowinski was the marksman at New York, scoring early in the first period. The Blueshirts peppered Wing goalie Terry Sawchuk with 38 shots compared with 21 saves by Rayner as they outplayed the leaders almost throughout the 60 minutes.

Canadiens came from behind a 2-1 second-period deficit to gain their victory in a sluggish game before 13,155 fans.

Canadiens played without Rockett Richard, sidelined due to a groin injury. But his replacement, Dick Gamble, on the Elmer Lach-Bert Olmstead front wall, made up for his absence. The rookie from Moncton, N. B., scored the game-winning goal with less than three minutes remaining.

Paul Meger sent Canadiens into a 1-0 first-period lead at 18.55. Leafs came up with two goals in the middle session with Harry Watson and Tod Sloan the scorers. Geoffrion tied it up at 1:50 of the third.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Shaded Starry Performances Of Hockey Leafs, Grid Riders Other National Luminaries

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The story of Canada in Sport in 1951 belongs to a 108-pound 17-year-old, even with the hooo-to-do surrounding the Stanley Cup playoffs, east-west Grey Cup final and other major Canadian sports events. The youngster: Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont.

The grim kid—that's the way sports writers described her-burst into the sports limelight with as nifty an exhibition of big-time golf as this country has ever seen. Her youthfulness captured the imagination of the sports public from Newfoundland to British Columbia and her methodical mow-'em-down way with the business end of a golf club stamped her as a prodigy of the fairways.

Golfing Byword

Marlene's name became a golfing byword last June in Toronto when she won the Ontario women's open championship. Was the kid a seven-day wonder of the links, or was she "on" for the tournament, the experts wondered.

They received their answer six weeks later at Montreal when she won the Canadian women's closed title and followed up seven days later the the Canadian Women's open crown neatly tucked in her over-sized golf bag. A star was born just three years after she started playing the game.

Marlene was the youngest golfer in the history of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union to take the closed title and her name was placed alongside Ada Mackenzie as the only double winner of the closed and open tournaments.

It was the east all the way in major sectional competition in football lacrosse and hockey.

Ottawa Rough Riders, Big Four and eastern Canada football champions, defeated Saskatchewan Roughriders 20-14 at Toronto to take the Grey Cup. A record football crowd of 27,534 packed Varsity Stadium to watch the classic.

Hamilton clubs took the other rugby honors. The Tiger-Cats defeated Edmonton for the Canadian junior title and the Panthers whipped Norwood-St. Boniface Legionnaires at Hamilton in the first east-west intermediate final in history.

The senior football season was notable for its down-to-the-line finishes. In both the western Canada conference and the eastern Big Four three clubs finished in a point-tie, necessitating semi-final series.

It probably was the greatest year, at the gate, and certainly the wackiest for senior football. Large crowds were the order in east and west as the teams, with the exception of Calgary Stampeders and Montreal Alouettes, played through dog-eat-dog extra schedules that kept the fans in a big dither.

There was the usual hassle over Grey Cup tickets, but complaints over field conditions in the east-west final were squashed when the Canadian Rugby Union bought a $12,000 tarpaulin to protect the field. It was put down a week before the Nov. 24 game and, despite a heavy rain two days before the kick-off, the field was dry and fast.

Hockey Champions

In hockey, the Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec league became first winners of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's major series, open only to "super" leagues from the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and western Canada. The Braves were extended to the limit of the best-of-seven series by Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs before taking the major leagues title.

Clubs in the major series, all of senior A grade, were no longer termed senior. In effect, it made the Allan Cup, traditional trophy awarded annually to the country's senior champions the previous 42 years, a minor-leaguer.

The Allan Cup, open to intermediate teams, was taken by Owen Sound Mercurys for the first time in the history of the city. The Mercurys defeated Fort Frances Canadians our games to three in the best-of-seven series.

The Memorial Cup went to Barrie Flyers with a four-straight skein over Winnipeg Monarchs. It was the first time in history that Barrie has taken dominion junior laurels.

Incidentally, the major series now is confined to the east. Cape Breton, the Maritimes and Quebec leagues alone are in the running. Ontario and the western Canada senior league dropped out of competition this year with the westerners joining the professional Pacific Coast League.

Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League won their fourth Stanley Cup in the last five years by defeating Montreal Canadiens four games to one. Detroit Red Wings, league champions, were eliminated by Canadiens in one semi-final.

Peterborough Petes won the best-of-seven Canadian senior lacrosse championship over Vancouver Combines in a series that went the limit, and Mimico whipped Manitoba all-stars three straight to take the junior best-of-five series.

The 92nd running of the King's Plate, North America's most historic equine event, was taken by Major Factor, brown gelding owned by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor.

Nova Scotia won its first Canadian championship in 24 years when Doy Oyler's rink from Kentville ran out an undefeated string of 10 games. British Columbia placed second.

It marked the first time that Newfoundland entered the bonspiel.

International Victories

Canada had a big year in international competition.

The Davis Cup team breezed past Cuba to give the dominion its first shutout—5-0—since Canada entered the internation competition in 1913. The Americans, as expected, whitewashed Canada 5-0 to take the North American zone title.

Winnie Roach Leuszler, 25-year-old mother of three, became the first Canadian woman to swim the English Channel. The Toronto swimmer finished second among the women in the £7,000 London Daily Mail race, doing the 21-mile stretch from Cap Griz Nez, France, to the Dover beaches in 13 hours and 45 minutes. Mrs. Leuszler's time was 46 minutes faster than the mark of 14 hours, 31 minutes, set in 1921 by Gertrude Ederle.

Lethbridge Maple Leafs won the world amateur hockey championship at Paris, going through the round-robin play undefeated and untied. The Leafs practically coasted through European opposition.

Jack Guest, Jr., 18-year-old sculler from Toronto, was defeated in the first round of the Diamond Sculls at the Royal Henley Regatta. He crossed the finish line six feet behind Erik Lareen, Danish blacksmith who went on to win the prized sculls.

Young Guest extended the European champion over the one-mile 550-yard course and the winner's time was eight mminutes, 10 seconds—just eight seconds short of the all-time mark of 8.2 set in 1938 by Philadelphia's Joe Burke.

Marlies Score 8 in Overtime; Indians Lose

(By The Canadian Press)

The tail-end Windsor Spitfires were on their way to pulling the biggest upset of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A season last night—until the roof fell in.

In an overtime period after a 4-4 tie, the first-place Toronto Marlboros overwhelmed them at Windsor with eight goals in the 10 minute period. It spolled Spits' hopes of their fourth win in 28 starts.

Windsor had the individual star of the evening, however, in their 15-year-old goalie, Dennis Riggin.

Riggin kicked out no less than 52 shots in the 60 minutes of regular play. Ten minutes of overtime spelled the difference. Fourteen shots came his way. He stopped six, but fanned on eight.

Marlboros boosted their OHA lead to four points over the idle Guelph Biltmores.

Two junior A games were originally scheduled, but the Galt Black Hawks visit to Waterloo Hurricanes was cancelled until the Hurcs can settle the question of their future. Poor home crowds have threatened to send the club on the financial rocks.

In the single OHA Senior A tilt scheduled, Sarnia Sailors awed a Stratford crowd with a 9-3 victory over the league-leading Indians. The win moved the Sailors out of the league cellar into a tie with Owen Sound for fourth spot in the six-team circuit.

Sport in Brief

For the second time in three years, middleweight champion Ray Robinson has been named "fighter of the year" by Ring Magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer of the boxing publication selected Sugar Ray over heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott for his fine over-all record through 1951, the lift he gave to the sport, and for his sportsmanship and contributions to the public welfare.

At the same time, Fleischer named Harry Matthews, light heavyweight contender from Seattle, as the world's best all-around fighter of the year.

The awards and Ring's annual ratings were announced in a copyrighted article in the February issue of Ring.

Robinson was selected for the same honor for the 1949 campaign and last year he was awarded the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque as boxer of the year by the Boxing Writers Association. This year Walcott was picked by the boxing writers who never hvae voted anyone their trophy more than once.

No Canadians were listed in Fleischer's ratings.

Lack of funds may cause drastic curtailment of the United States Olympic ski entry in the 1952 winter games at Oslo, Norway, Feb. 14-25.

Cortland T. Hill of Los Angeles chairman of the Olympic Ski Committee, yesterday reported in Chicago only $21,000 of a projected $50,000 team funds had been raised to date.

Northern Kentucky's first gambling raid netted Pasquale Arcaro, identified by police as father of jockey Eddie Arcaro. The raid was conducted at Arcaro's restaurant and bar in Erlunger.

Pasquale Arcaro, listed as owner of the establishment, was cited to appear in court on a charge of permitting gambling on his premises.

Peterborough Petes Defeat Hawks 9-5 To Take Over Group Top Slot

Clean Fast Play Features Top-Flight Tilt Before 500; Teams Clash Here Tomorrow

Peterborough, Ont. — Roaring in to pile up an early lead here last night, the Petes trimmed Belleville Hawks 9-5 before 500 fans to take over undisputed possession of first place in their Central Ontario OHA Senior B grouping. They led 4-1 in the first frame, each side counted a pair in the middle beat, and the homesters had a 3-2 edge in the third of a fast-clean tilt. But three penalties each were handed out, though Ron Horton drew a minor and major together for roughing and fighting in the second when he mixed with MacDonald. The latter got off free.

Goalie Lefort turned in a whale of an effort for Hawks or the score would hae been higher. The Ellis outfit had more hard thrusts at goal than their rivals, though the visitors fought back furiously in the last two frames to make it interesting all the way. The Petes had fine netminding, a solid defence and nifty passing plays up front at top speed to earn the win. The same squads clash again in Belleville on Friday.

Dugan Scores Three

Jake Wade turned in a starry effort for Peterborough with two goals and two assists, while Arn Dugan was hot also with three markers. Single goals were counted by Ted Collins, Don Flody, Gus Leonard and Freddy Garvey. Two assists each were notched by Chum Fryia and Curly Mason, and singles by Floyd, Garvey, Collins, Junior West and Ron Horton. Vern Goyer of Hawks scored one and aided on two more, as Peter Jones assisted on three. Keith MacDonald sank two, as Doug Day and Don Barrett got one each.

Collins scored early from Garvey and Wade as he tipped in a forward pass in a scramble. Wade's hot shot later from defence caught a net corner to make it 2-0. The Garvey line pressed for space. With Vern Goyer off for hooking, Dugan counted in close on a ganging-up play. MacDonald hit the post by Harding, and then Floyd flipped one home on nice combination with Collins and Wade as Petes dominated. Horton went over for charging and Garvey followed for slashing to leave them shy two. Good checking held Hawks out till their return, when MacDonald finished off a play with Jones and Vern Goyer smartly to score.

Dugan dented the hemp early in the second on a picture play with Mason and Fryia. Their snappy standing in close passes pulled Lefort right out of the cage and Dugan tapped the disc into an empty net. Vern Goyer got that back soon on nifty combination with Jones as they ripped in fast, and play was speedy and even then. Garvey was robbed by Leforte and Belleville stood off an assault as MacDonald served a charging penalty. Gus Leonard finally got through with West on a smart bit of passing to score, but Barrett stickhandled right through defence with Jones' pass to get that one back. Horton roughed MacDonald to draw a minor and then threw a punch going off to have a major tacked on. Vern Goyer later went away for interference.

Harding Standout

Harding stood out early in the third with Horton off, the latter getting back with no damage done. Fryia almost counted and then Wade blasted in a passout on a play with Mason and Horton, Lefort only getting a piece of the rubber. The Dugan line pressed but Day got in fast from the side to slip a hesitation shot into the net corner faking the flip first. Lefort had his leg banged on a goal post and went off for several minutes for repairs. On resuming, the Petes pressed, though MacDonald got in quick and close with Vern Goyer's pass to tally. But the homesters kept driving in and Garvey scored from Floyd on a sizzling rush and shot, the goalie being hurt again, but staying in the game. Dugan got one more at the close from Fryia on a rebound off the netminder.

Lalonde Leads Junior Hawks Points, Penalties

Unofficial scoring and official penalty figures released today indicated that Hector Lalonde is leading the league in both the scoring and penalty departments.

The play-making centreman of the second place Belleville Hawks proves his versatility as a scorer coming up with 14 goals and a like number of assists.

Lalonde and a fellow Hawk, Bob Wilson, hold a monopoly on the penalties issued to the Moira entry in the Junior B circuit, having collected 58 and 56 minutes between them for a total of 114 minutes collectively.

Other individual totals are listed below.

Offer Matthews Shot at Maxim; No Answer

New York, Dec. 27 (AP) —The International Boxing Club has offered Harry (Kid) Matthews a title shot at light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim—but all they heard from Jack Hurley, Matthews' manager, was silence.

The I.B.C. has most big cities tied up, but Matthews and Hurley have been campaigning outside I.B.C. territory with great success and are in no hurry to come to terms.

Matchmaker Al Weill of the I.B.C. said yesterday he had jumped an offer to Hurley from 15 percent of the gate to 20 percent if he would take a Feb. 22 date with Maxim for the title.

Weill added that if Hurley does not agree to the fight b ythe end of the week he's likely to lose his chance.

69 Thoroughbreds Named for Race

Miami, Fla., Dec. 27 (AP) — Sixty-nine of the top thoroughbreds in the United States have been nominated for Hialeah Parks $50,000 Widener Handicap, racing secretary Charles J. McLennan announced today.

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable, top money-winning stable at Hialeah last winter and the national leader in 1950, heads the list with five horses, including last year's winner, Sunglow.

The 1 1-4 mile event for three-year-olds and up, to be run Feb. 23, promises to be one of the largest and most wide-open fields since the war.

Wonderful Trout Fishing in P.E.I. Recalled by C.P. Business Editor

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

An article in "Trade News", published by the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa, says, that "the excellent speckled-trout fishing in Prince Edward Island waters has long been appreciated, but the fishery has by no means been fully exploited."

It also refers to a 23-acre artificial pond at Montague, in King's County.

These are the things about which this writer has little present-day knowledge, but he thinks he should advise "Trade News" that there was a time when the excellent trout fishing of the Montague River, to take one place on the island, was indeed exploited to the extent that it could stand exploiting; and that maybe the reason an artificial pond is needed there, is to get it unexploited.

For there are men and women scattered over Canada and the United States who can testify to the fact that for the pre-teen and early-teen agers of quite a few years ago, trout fishing in the Montague River was, in a manner of speaking, big business. Particularly, it financed their 24th of May baseball picnics.

Sold Their Catch

Immediately after an early-closing of school—May 23, a score, maybe two-score, kids trudged several miles up-river and fished until late afternoon, and then came back to what was then the village (now the town) of Montague, and sold their catch. For big ones they got 12 cents a dozen; for average size, 10 cents; for smaller ones, eight cents; and sometimes they were beaten down to six cents.

In any event, the proceeds were enough to buy a freezer of ice-cream and whatever other supplies their modest wants dictated.

There was a "pond" there in those days, too, a natural one, and only a few knew about it; or so we liked to think.

There, indeed, was the meeting place of trout. No trout would think of going down river without dropping in; and probably none would think of going up without a visit—though it is the down-going ones which the writer remembers best.

One's equipment consisted of a 10-cent bamboo pole, a five cent line with float and sinker, some hooks, and a can of worms.

One dropped the line into the water until hook and worm were all but out of sight. Then one watched a trout come along to it, wrinkle his nose, flavor it, and then gently nibble. At that moment one either caught him or he got away.

This writer recalls one day when he played this game with 55 trout—that is, with 55 trout who lost the game and were landed.

Freed Big Fellow

There was one big fellow who was just barely brought in, and with whom the pre-teen-age hand of the writer must have dealt lightly, for he continued to flop around for a long time. Finally, the sympathies, or conscience, of the young angler were touched, and he put him back as a sort of thank offering for the four dozen or so that lay on the bank.

The trout wouldn't believe it at first, and he writer has never seen such a surprised look on a fish's face: but finally he shook himself and swam away. (The trout, not the writer).

The writer has tried to make it up to the victims of that day by hardly going fishing again. The only trout he has caught since was a lone one years later, at a place called Forbes' Landing, in from Campbell River, on Vancouver Island; and distance forbids that it could have been any relative of the 55 taken so prodigally from the exploited Montague River.

EARTH'S BOUNTY

Long-distance transmission of natural gas began in 1891 with two pipelines from northern Indiana to Chicago, about 120 miles.

Leaves Coast Coaching Job

Vancouver, Dec. 27 —(CP) — Coach Murph Chamberlain of Vancouver Canucks was given leave of absence yesterday to attend to business in the east and there were indications he may not return to the Pacific coast.

Coaching duties on the seventh place team were taken over, temporarily at least, by Hugh Currie.

In a statement, Chamberlain said:

"Recently I purchased a feed-mill business with another fellow in the east. We have just lost $12,000 in the deal and they want me back there to help straighten out a faw things.

"It might take 10 days, maybe only a week. It might take all my time. However, I will say this: I have no other hockey interests apart from the Canucks."

Hornets Edge Syracuse 4-3 To Extend Lead

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets strengthened their hold on top place in the western division of the American Hockey League last night when they eked out a 4-3 decision over Syracuse Warriors.

In the only other scheduled game, Cincinnati Mohawks battled Indianapolis Capitals to a 2-2 overtime tie.

Ken Hayden scored Syracuse's first goal in the opening period and Andy Barbe tied it up for the visitors late in the second stanza.

Goals by Armand Lemieux and Harry Pidhirny gave the Warriors a 3-1 lead early in the third period, but Pittsburgh roared back with markers by John McLellan and Phil Maloney to tie. The Hornets won the verdict on Frank Sullivan's long shot with less than eight minutes left.

At Cincinnati the scoreless overtime was delayed 15 minutes when Jean-Paul Denis of the Mohawks and Larry Zeidel of the Caps got into a fight. Both were banished from the game with misconduct and major penalties.

The Caps scored both their goals within one minute in the second frame. Larry Wilson deflected his brother John's pass into the nets for the first counter at 12:21 and at 13:13 Francis O'Grandy drove Larry's rebound in from 15 feet out.

Five-Year Plan by Russia For East Germany Moved Back Months for Lack of Coal

Berlin, Dec. 24—(AP)—A slowdown has hit Russian zone industry for lack of coal.

The communist-controlled land is discovering that big words are a poor substitute for fuel in the furnaces of industry.

The so-called five-year-plan which the red regime promised would make East Germany strong and independent was moved back in schedule by months.

The east zone's 18,000,000 people are caught in a two-way squeeze. West Germany is using most of its huge coal output for itself and for western European recovery and defence needs.

Eastward, the Poles were reported as reluctant to help out, despite Soviet prodding. Much Polish coal is moving into the Soviet Union anyway.

The Soviet zone of Germany is a poor coal producer by itself. According to official figures, the entire workings turned out only [illegible],800,000 tons of hard coal in 1950.

West Germany's Rhur is pumping out that much coal in a week. In November alone, the Rhur pits produced 10,310,000 tons.

East Germany once drew on both the Rhur and also on its own province of Silesia for a completely adequate supply of industrial coal. Silesia, now part of Poland, is producing for only the Poles and the Russians, except for a few handouts red leaders give the east Germans.

East-west German trade once included provision for hundreds of thousands of tons of Rhur hard coal to cross the east zone frontier. This was cut months ago after Russian refusal to guarantee safe conduct for West Berlin's exports and imports.

Halted Completely

Coal shipments eastward halted completely in mid-November.

Nervous communist industry leaders demanded increased quotas of output from workers without success. Mine foremen say there are too many obstacles and some have been fired for daring to challenge the red leadership with the facts.

Expert miners list the obstacles as:

1. Lack of technical installations of the type necessary in any up-to-date mine.

2. Soil-shifting, a geological occurrence that could be coped with if modern machinery were available.

3. Shockingly primitive ventilating systems.

All these factors contribute to a labor shortage. Despite conscription of workers, including women, the communists have been unable to build any top-notch supply of coal mining labor.

Good wages are paid, by German standards, but too often the housing has been bad so that the high pay is little inducement.

SMOTHERED TO DEATH

Teak Industry Getting Back On Feet in Burma

Rangoon, Dec. : —(AP)—Despite interruptions, dangers and the depredations of insurgent warfare, the teak industry is beginning to get back on its feet in Burma.

It still has a long way to go to equal the 450,000 tons (approximately 270,000,000 board feet) pre-war production, however.

Tung Ngwe, a Burma government forest conservator at a teak lumbermill and yard at Ahlone village near Rangoon, won't estimate what percentage of prewar teak was being produced now. But he doubted it was much more than one-tenth.

This is not due only to troubled conditions and the aftermath of the Second World War. It takes time to get teak production moving.

In the first place, you don't just send timber fallers out to fell teak trees and bring them to the mill. You send girdlers out to start girdling them. Girdling is cutting a slash around the base of the tree. Girdling kills the tree.

Why kill the tree first? Because in its live state it's too heavy. The logs won't float.

They kill the tree first and let it season on the stump for at least three years before they fell it. By that time it's dried out enough for an elephant to haul or heave on to a cold deck from where it is railed or rafted to a mill.

Also, said Tung Ngwe, the new Burma government is logging teak on a sustained yield basis which limits production to what is added by natural growth. There is still a lot of teak in Burma but the government means to see that the forests aren't depleted by too-fast cutting.

Teak is exported throughout the world for such special use as ship decking and fittings and furniture.

In Burma teak is an all-purpose wood—used even for fence posts and railroad ties.

SUBMARINE SUCCOR

At the height of its siege in the Second World War the island of Malta was supplied to a large extent by submarines.

Even Snowy Ground Looked Good to Plane Passengers

Passengers on the U.S. airliner forced down at Cobourg, Ont., trudge through the snow to the farmhouse of Charles Wilson after the plane belly-landed in the Wilson fields. They spent three hours at the Wilson farm, then took a bus to the U.S. All expressed admiration for the pilot's handling of the plane, were happy to be alive after a mishap that might well have taken all their lives. Pilot and co-pilot thought they were far out over the Atlantic when, after passing over Cleveland from Chicago, they lost all contact by radio and a high wind pushed them far off course. — Central Press Canadian.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

Pausing atop the rise, I screamed back at my enemies. "Cetan Mani is going to fly to Wanagi Yata from this very spot! You will never see him again. His spirit will haunt you. You have killed him."

Topping this melodramatic pronouncement with a silent prayer that there were no Indian atheists among my devoted followers, I took a short run across the top of the rise, leaped as far as I could and landed 20 feet away and below in a patch of matted wire-grass. From here I made my way through the wooded tangle employing every trick of trail hiding the Sioux had taught me.

The dry tangle persisted right up to the stream's edge, allowing me to dive into the water without leaving a toe track to point my passing. I swam under water as far as I could surfacing well out in the pond behind one of the beaver lodges.

Fortunately there was no one home. The last thing I wanted was to have a couple of evicted beaver indignantly making big, broad water tracks away from that particular lodge. The water was a bit cold but otherwise I was very snug, these lodges being from six to eight feet across with an air space on the inside about a foot and a half's height. My retreat was as black as the inside of a grizzly and fully as fragrant. But to me no more elegant castle could be imagined.

Ashore I could hear the Cheyenne crashing about the thicket, calling back and forth in challenge and puzzlement.

"You saw the leap, Cow Runner. Don't say you didn't."

"I saw it, but that is foolishness. He's around here somewhere."

Cow Runner was obdurate. For three hours he kept the others beating and re-beating the brush. But any chance they had of finding my trail was gone after the first hour of their passing back and forth.

With darkness crowding him, Cow Runner's enthusiasm faded. "I hate to do it," he blustered. "No one can jump all the way to Wanagi Yata. But the coyotes will be after Yellow Bird and Black Wolf. We must bear them home."

A realist showed up in the crowd. "What do we tell Tatanka Yotanka?" someone wanted to know.

"Tell him Yellow Bird slew Cetan. No, better make it Black Wolf. It might as well be Black Wolf."

"Sure. A Cheyenne, by all means.

"We'll bring him Yellow Bird's scalp. He won't need it where he's going.

So it came about that Yellow Bird lost his hair as well as his life; scalped and thrown in the Sweetwater by his stout comrades; not, I might add, an altogether un-Indian procedure from start to finish.

I found Custer's camp about 10 o'clock, only some 10 miles from the Sweetwater, not over 25 in all from Sitting Bull's war camp. It was a "dark" camp, fires out, men sleeping. Still, in circling it twice, coming in closer as I went, no guards were encountered.

In one tent a lone candle gleammed, showing me the occasional shadow of its occupant moving about. Watching, I caught a brief-held pose of the figure, limned sharply against the backing light of the tiny flame. It loomed misshapenly tall and twisting on the pitched angles of the canvas. As it moved to lean over the candle for some purpose, the head inclined showing a definite length of hair shadowed for a fleeting instant on the tent's wall. Journey's end! The question now was should I work on in, locating a picket and calling out "friend!" or should I go in unannounced?

The latter course won after very little consideration. Cavalry pickets are as triggery a group as I'd care to harangue with under any circumstances.

I was particularly proud of my approach to Custer's tent when, a few moments later, I learned no less than four hounds were sharing it with him. A notorious dog-lover, he always had a pack of hunting dogs with him on his campaigns. Not one of the brutes so much as woofed as I bellied up through the shadows.

A sentry nodding over his rifle was posted outside the General's tent, posing my first real problem. Tapping him behind the ear with a rock was no trick but catching him and his rifle, both falling simultaneously in different directions, was harder. Laying man and rifle comfortably out in the warm dust, I stepped over them to the flap of the general's tent.

"Colonel Clayton calling on General Custer."

"What the devil!" Custer's words were a combination of surprise and interest. He was, withal, about as cool a cucumber as you will find in many a patch of pickle plants. But soldier-like he backed his interest with a long cavalry pistol, scooped smoothly off a map table as he turned to face me.

I dare say we made a picture, he in his long underwear and a pair of moccasins, I stark naked; for when I say the Sioux stripped me for that race, I mean they stripped me. Remember, too, my skin was burned copper-bronze by years of Oglala life, my hair shoulder long in two thick Sioux braids with the scalplock of a Fox Lodge soldiers roaching up in front.

Custer may have absorbed my introductory line but for all practical purposes, six-foot-three of slit-eyed hostile Sioux, complete with eight-inch scalping knife, had just walked through 600 cavalry-men, appearing without so much as a polite cough, in his tent.

Such a moment should call for deathless words. They weren't forthcoming.

"Guard!" Custer called.

"I knocked him out with a rock just now. But I come in peace to save your life."

Sliding past me, Custer pulled the flap, bellowing out to the sleeping camp." Guard! Get a guard detail up here. On the double!" Within seconds a sleepy sergeant and four privates stumbled up.

"Bates," Custer ordered the sergeant, "send a man to round up the officers. I want every officer outside this tent in five minutes. And I want the camp ready to move in 10."

"Yes, sir!" stammered Bates, bug-eyed. "Do you want any more guards here, sir?"

"No. Get that man on his way. Come on, jump to it. The rest of you men stand guard on this tent. I've got a hostile Sioux runner inside. He's going to talk. If I call out, come in fast."

Custer dropped the flap and turned to me. "Let's have your story before the others get here."

"All right, General. First I'll tell you what you're heading into, then who I am.

"Twenty-five miles west you've got 10,000 Sioux and Cheyenne in camp on the Little Big Horn. Between three and four thousand wariors. Lots of modern rifles. They mean to wipe you out.

"They know Gibbon and Terry are down below and that you apparently intend to swing in and hit them before your support can come up. That's what you're doing, isn't it, General?" Without giving him time to answer, I went on. "Well, if you do, you're finished."

I could see his color mounting. His interruption was in tones of anger. "Who did you say you were?"

"Col. John B. Clayton, Fourth Cavalry, Second Division, Confederate Army. I did you a favor at Appomatox."

"The devil you say!" His gaze narrowed. "A favor? Not that I believe your crazy tale but just what kind of a favor was it, now?"

"A private of mine tried to shoot you. I knocked his rifle aside. You were coming over to our lines with our truce officer. You were Third Cavalry, then, with Sheridan. Remember? You said 'Colonel, my compliments. You have doubtless saved my life. Should our paths cross again I shall remember you.' Well, General, they've crossed again and I am asking you to remember me."

"I remember all right. Every detail. Except one. You. What I want to know right now is who you really are and where you got all this information. You're no more Colonel Clayton than you're General Lee. Clayton was a high-born gentleman, a white man. You are as red as a Sioux can get! Don't forget I know your people. You speak like an educated Indian. There's no hiding that guttural."

It was true. Ten years of living eating and breathing Sioux were coming up in my face like a red finger of accusation. I knew he was right. I did grunt and bark my words.

"You're clever," Custer went on, "but not clever enough. When you talk you make signs constantly, with your hands, Indian style. Your tongue is crooked but your hands are straight. You're an Oglala by your hair. Bad face, isn't it? Come on, now, what's your Indian name?"

"Cetan Mani. Walking Hawk."

"Aha! You're the smart Indian. The one with the big tongue. Always there with the right answer. Colonel Clayton, indeed." His voice was brittle as first-frost ice. "All right. What's become of Colonel Clayton? How did the Sioux pick him up? How did they get all this detail you've been giving me, out of him?"

"General, I don't see how any man would give up the detail I've given you. I mean, exact words you spoke 11 years ago, precise details of your bearing. Now I'll give you more. If you persist in refusing to let your intelligence stand over your apparent eagerness to lick the whole Sioux nation with 600 men, the blood of this company will be on your uniform so long as military history is taught."

Had Indigestion, Backache Headaches: Praises Syntona

"Felt Tiredm, Nervous and Rundown," Tells of Big Improvement in Health Just by Taking Few Bottles of Syntona.

In every section of this city and vicinity there are many grateful men and women who say they have found Syntona Herbal Compound to be just what they needed to help put new energy in rundown systems and relieve common disorders of stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels.

Just recentlv Mr. Albert Neve, 222 Edinburgh Street, London, Ontario, told of his experience with Syntona as follows:

"For the past two years I've been having trouble with stomach disorders and suffered all the time with gas, heartburn and sour acid risings after my meals. I got very bad headaches and couldn't get my proper sleep at night because my nerves were all on edge. Rheumatic pains set into my limbs, joints and muscles, my back was aching all the time and I felt tired and rundown from the beginning of each day.

"A friend of mine urged me to try Syntona. I'm afraid I didn't have much faith in it at first, however, I did take it regularly and now I have found this medicine so helpful that I cannot praise it highly enough. It relieved the trouble with my stomach. I sleep well and do not feel all tired out as I did before. Best of all, I am free of backache and rheumatic pains and I haven't had any trouble with headaches lately, so you will understand why I am so pleased with the results I got by taking Syntona."

Business Man Tells Tale of Woe

Hamilton, Dec. 24 (CP) — A Vancouver business man told a tale of woe today — because he had befriended a soldier.

Donald Yemen told police he met a soldier on the street last night and invited him up to his hotel room.

"I felt sorry for him," Yemen said. "He said he was alone and on leave so I gave him $25 and told him to pour himself a drink. Then I went to sleep."

When he woke up, Yemen said, the soldier was gone. So was $239 in cash, 11 quarts of whisky, 14 pints of beer, a $187 watch, a return ticket to Vancouver, $20 in cheques, and a $100 suit.

Note in Bottle Brings Christmas Tree to Writer

Rockville Centre, N.Y., Dec. 24. (AP)—Arthur H. Iles has a nine-foot Christmas tree in his home this year, and he says he owes it all to casting a whisky bottle with a note inside into the Atlantic.

Iles said he threw the bottle overboard while he was a passenger on a ship last Sept. 12 off Nova Scotia, which bristled with spruce.

Iles said he figured he was at the right place to get a Christmas tree, so he just wrote his name and address on the note and mentioned how nice it would be to have a spruce.

A couple of days ago, a crate containing a tree was delivered to his home. With it was this note:

"I aint much a penning but it is with pleasure I take me pen in hand to write you about your botel. I was cut codding Wednesday week and pulled in your botel fouled in me pel. I was not fur of plesure beech on Newfoundland shore so I have been some days getting to home.

"I'll git Joe Crouthers to see if he can find you a pretty tree for you and the young ones. You ought to have youre greens come next fortnight. You might have left a feller a taste in the botel agin the chill wind these days.

"Yours, Jim Saunders."

The note bore no address and no postmark. The tree crate bore the name of Jim Campbell, of North Sydney, N.S.

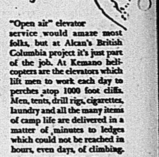
Air Liner Lands Safely

Milan, Italy, Dec. 24— (AP) — A four-engine air liner, named "Lock" caught fire and burned after an emergency landing in fog Sunday night. All passengers and crew escaped.

The DC-6 liner came down 23 miles north of Milan while en route from New York to Rome.

It was badly battered before it caught fire, but police said only five or six of the passengers were bruised.



"Open air" elevator service would amaze most folks, but at Alcan's British Columbia project it's just part of the job. At Kemano helicopters are the elevators which lift men to work each day to perches atop 1000 foot cliffs. Men, tents, drill rigs, cigarettes, laundry and all the many items of camp life are delivered in a matter of minutes to ledges which could not be reached in hours, even days, of climbing.

Already 36,000 helicopter miles — mostly vertical — have been flown. That's just one of the answers to a construction problem that will eventually step up Canada's aluminum output by a billion pounds a year. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

House Vote Will Close Long Debate On Price-Fixing Bill

Govt. Gains Showdown With C.C.F., S.C. Support

Ottawa, Dec. 28 (CP) — The government's contentious anti-price-fixing bill finally won approval in principle from the Commons today after a fight that lasted seven days and touched off parliament's post-Christmas sitting.

The House gave the measure second reading by a vote of 131 to 31 as three parties linked up to defeat the Progressive Conservatives, who battled against the bill since Dec. 17.

Ottawa, Dec. 28 (CP) — The long and bitter fight over second reading of the government's anti-price-fixing bill neared an end today when the Commons ordered a vote to be taken this afternoon on its principle.

By a vote of 135 to 30, the House adopted a government motion calling for the question to be put immediately, thus shutting off any more of the series of amendments that have stalled the measure since last Monday and brought on the post-Christmas sitting.

In gaining a final showdown on the question of approving the principle of the contentious bill, the government drew the support of the C.C.F. and Social Credit parties. J. L. Gibson (Ind-Comox-Alberni) lined up with the Progressive Conservatives.

PC's Give Up Attack

The Progressive Conservatives finally gave up their marathon debate after the government used the parliamentary device of calling formally for the question, which had the effect of staving off any further attempts to amend the bill.

Three Progressive Conservative amendments and one from the CCF were defeated by the House earlier, and there also had been a series of votes on procedural questions during the acrimonious debate carried on largely by the chief opposition party.

A final two-round of debate centred on the legislation, which would outlaw the "resale price maintenance" practice whereby manufacturers may set the retail price of their products.

With second reading out of the way this afternoon, the measure will go to the Commons' committee-of-the-whole stage, where the discussion could be continued at length in the detailed clause-by-clause discussion of the bills' provisions.

The move that finally got the bill to a vote was launched by transport minister Chevrier, who got the floor late Thursday night after the last of the amendments to it had been defeated. Today he put the motion.

HEAVY FINE IMPOSED

Sarnia, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Two Sarnia youths, convicted last September of taking a car without the owner's consent, today were fined $100 each and costs.

Sentence was postponed until today because Magistrate J. C. Dunlap said he would give the youths a chance to rehabilitate themselves.

Boss of Russian Uranium Mining May Be in U.S.

London, Dec. 28 (AP) — The London Daily Express said today the boss of Russian uranium mining in East Germany—a key man in Soviet atomic works — may have been taken to Washington after he fled to the west six weeks ago.

He was identified as Lt.-Col. Fedya Astrachov, whose scientific achievements once were honored with Russia's coveted Stalin Prize.

The Express said American intelligence agents were reported questioning a senior officer of the Russian army shortly after Astrachov reportedly fled the reds.

It also linked him with a recent trip to Germany by four leading American atomic scientists—Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J.; Dr. Walter F. Whitman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission; Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, president of California Institute of Technology, and Dr. Charles G. Lauristen, a rocket expert from C.I.T.

"It is now believed that the scientists were called in to size up the facts given to intelligence by Astachov," the Express said, adding:

"An Allied official guessed tonight that Astrachov has reached Washington."

In Washington, the justice department declined comment.

Communists Will Take Part In Iranian Elections

Tehran, Iran, Dec. 28 — (Reuters)—Amid a chorus of "long live our heroic friend Soviet Russia," a communist speaker announced today his party will take part in the forthcoming Iranian elections.

Thousands of steel-helmeted soldiers and police with fixed bayonets looked on at the meeting.

The communist party, known here as Tudeh and supposedly outlawed, will sponsor 40 candidates, mostly from the northern provinces close to the Soviet border. They will begin their campaign tomorrow.

The party has been forbidden since an attempt on the Shah's life in 1949. Since then it has been campaigning under cover of organizations like the National Society for Fighting Imperialistic Oil Companies for peace.

Named Commander

Ottawa, Dec. 28—(CP) — Lt.-Cmdr. J. Dunn Lantier, 35-year-old Montreal man twice torpedoed during Second World War, has been appointed to command H.M.C.S. Haida, the Navy announced today.

The tribal class destroyer, undergoing a conversion-refit job at Halifax, is to be ready for service early in 1952.

First lieutenant-commander of the aircraft carrier Magnificent during the past year, Lt.-Cmdr. Lantier served as aide-de-camp to the governor-general, the Earl of Athlone, early in the Second World War.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 28 (CP) —Synopsis: The storm centred over southern Minnesota is moving rapidly eastward. Light snow is falling from North Dakota eastward across the Great Lakes. Occasional light snow in southwestern Ontario this morning will move eastward into central and southeastern regions during the day.

Temperatures early today, were 5 to 15 above in southeastern Ontario and 15 to 25 below in central and northern regions where skies were clear. Today will be a little milder than Thursday in all regions. This milder trend will continue Saturday.

CONSERVATIVES RESUME FIGHT ON LEGISLATION

Three Non-Confidence Motions Defeated

Ottawa, Dec. 28 (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party's fight against the government's anti-price fixing legislation has been resumed in the Commons.

Returning from a brief Christmas holiday, Progressive Conservative members yesterday renewed a battle against the legislation which would prohibit manufacturers from fixing the retail selling price of their goods.

During the debate three motions of non-confidence in the government were defeated. The motion would have had the effect of killing the government's legislation.

The last, sponsored by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, would have referred the legislation to the Supreme Court of Canada for a ruling on legality. Mr. Drew said there was some question as to whether parliament had the power to prohibit price-fixing by manufacturers.

Before the House defeated the proposal by a vote of 137 to 26 Justice Minister Garson said the law officers of the Crown were confident that the government's legislation was within the competence of parliament.

Members voted 135 to 28 against a second Progressive Conservative motion which called for establishment of a fair-trade board, similar to boards in operation in the United States, to control retail prices.

Advocate Public Control

The third motion, sponsored by the CCF, advocated public control—in effect price control — of retail prices where their regulation would be in the public interest. The motion was defeated 151 to 11.

In resuming the debate which prevented parliament from proroguing last weekend, Mr. Drew said the government's legislation was a "hoax" and a "fraud" on the people. It was a "half baked" bill which was calculated to give the government credit for price drops in traditional January sales.

John Diefenbaker (PC - Lake Centre) said legislation would benefit the consumer for the first month or two of its existence. The benefit would disappear as the small retailer was put out of business by his big competitor.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said the government does not believe that the legislation would harm 'any substantial" number of small retailers, but said, if it did the government would consider what further remedial steps it should recommend to parliament.

Mr. Garson suggested the Progressive Conservative argument that the legislation will lead to predatory price cutting doesn't hold water. If that was so, there would be predatory price cutting now on 85 percent of merchandise which is not under price maintenance.

CHICAGO BUTTER HIGHER

Chicago, Dec. 27 (AP) — Cash wholesale prices for butter jumped two to 2¾ cents a pound yesterday to reach the highest point since July, 1948. Top grade sold at 81½ cents.

Canada, United States Trying To Make Deal to Eliminate Tariffs on Arms Purchases

Ottawa, Dec. 28 (CP)—Canada is edging toward agreement with the United States on complete elimination of tariffs on arms purchases in Canada for the American fighting forces.

Roy G. Peers, Canada's arms salesman in Washington, said in an interview that discussions are under way to obtain from the United States army and navy the same tariff concessions Canada receives from the U.S. air force.

Last fall, through an exchange of notes, the two countries agreed American tariffs will not apply on any defence equipment—with the exception of food and clothing—purchased in Canada on behalf of the U.S. air force.

American tariffs have been one of the major stumbling blocks in Canada's drive to boost arms sales to the U.S. Customs duties sufficiently increase costs to make it tough for Canada to compete with American domestic manufacturers for U.S. defence orders.

Mr. Peers, a Montreal foreign-trade business man, was appointed to the Washington post a few months ago to "sell" the United States on the idea of making greater use of Canadian manufacturing capacity.

Returning to Ottawa for a conference with defence production officials, Mr. Peers stated:

1. Discussions to eliminate tariffs now are going on with the U.S. army and navy chiefs of staff.

2. The U.S. is growing more conscious of the need for establishment of "alternative sources of supply" in Canada for certain defence equipment.

Discussions Secret

3. Negotiations are being completed for the U.S. to purchase a number of new defence items from Canada. Discussions were secret and no details can be made public at this time.

The general trend, Mr. Peers added, is toward increased U.S. arms purchases in Canada, with the way being paved for a "freer flow" of U.S. contracts and subcontracts to Canadian industry.

Mr. Peers declined to hazard a guess as to how much in dollars the increased sales will total, but he pointed out that the U.S. this year raised the ceiling on arms purchases in Canada under the Buy American Act to $300,000,000.

That means the U.S. fighting forces can purchase up to $300,000,000 worth of Canadian arms without contravening the spirit of the legislation to prohibit purchases when the equipment is available at home.

So far in the post-war rearmament build-up, the flow of arms orders has been heavily-weighed in favor of the United States. Production Minister Howe disclosed in the Commons recently that Canada in the period April 1, 1950, to Oct. 31, 1951, placed $502,000,000 worth of armed orders in the U.S., compared with $158,000,000 placed by the U.S. in Canada.

Churchill Expected to Urge Free Exchange of Atomic Data in Talks With Truman

Washington, Dec. 28 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill probably will urge a greater exchange of atomic information between the United States and Britain during his far-reaching conference with President Truman.

Atomic energy is among the dozen topics he has told the American government he wants to take up on his arrival here late next week.

Both Britain and Canada, with which the United States had a partnership in atomic bomb development during the war, have long felt tight American restrictions on atomic secrets were hampering developments in that field.

Any change in these restrictions would require not only approval by the president but action by Congress. Whether either of these conditions will be met in the predictable future is something on which informed officials here will not even speculate.

More than two years ago the American, British and Canadian governments opened negotiations to see whether they could work out a formula for enlarging the interchange of atomic information and in a limited way, at least, revive the co-operative effort of the Second World War, when scientists of all three countries joined to produce the first atomic bomb.

Those negotiations were shelved after the Klaus Fuchs spy case broke in Britain in February 1950. Fuchs, one of Britain's top atomic experts, pleaded guilty to giving secrets to Russia. Since then, as far as is publicly known, there has been no serious effort to reopen the negotiations.

Churchill's suggested topics are believed to cover the general fields of foreign affairs, economic matters and defence of the west.

Churchill is due to reach Washington late next week, probably Friday. He will remain here until January 9, then spend two days in New York and four in Canada, returning to Washington about January 15 or 16 for an address to Congress and clean-up talks with the president, ending about January 19 or 20.

Report Being Probed

Vancouver, Dec. 28 — (CP)—A plane-crash report is being investigated today in British Columbia's interior although no aircraft are known to be missing.

The report was received yesterday by the R.C.M.P. at Golden some 40 miles west of the B. C.-Alberta border.

An unidentified party told police of seeing what looked like an RCAF plane flying over Parson, B. C., 23 miles south of Golden, with its navigation lights flashing.

Minutes later, the report said, two green flares were sighted 1½ miles east of the town.

Thirteen Seamen 7 Days Adrift In North Atlantic

St. John's Nfld., Dec. 28—(CP) —Thirteen haggard seamen walked ashore here last night after seven days adrift in the North Atlantic in their tiny disabled cargo vesel Mayfall.

Their arrival, in tow by the motorship Algerine, brought the first news that the vessel had been in difficulty. She was not equipped with wireless.

Scarcity of food, water and heat plagued the crew since last Friday when the ship's fuel pumps went out of order en route from Bonavista, Nfld., to St. John's.

Saturday the 521-ton craft was buffetted by a howling Atlantic storm and swept farther out to sea. Mess tables and furniture went into the furnaces in a vain attempt to raise steam. The boilers began to leak.

The tiny galley stove provided the only heat on board in northeast gales that brought freezing temperatures.

The helpless Mayfall was finally sighted and taken in tow by the Swedish liner Anna Salen 170 miles southeast of St. John's. She was taken over by the Algerine a few miles from port.

C.N.R. Orders 49 Diesel Electric Locomotives

Montreal, Dec. 28 — (CP) — In the largest single order to date, Canadian National Railways bought 49 diesel electric locomotives costing an estimated $8,000,000.

Orders were placed recently, C. N. R. officials announced today, for 24 long-distance freight locomotives and 20 switchers for use on Canadian lines and five switchers for use on Grand Trunk Western. Delivery will start next January.

Orders were placed with Montreal firms and General Motors Diesel, Ltd., in London, Ont., and General Motors Corp., at La Grange, Ill.

This brings to $95,432,054 the value of new rolling stock on order by the C.N.R.

THREE DYNAMITE CHARGES FAIL TO STIR ICE JAM

Engineers Recommend Ice be Bombed from Air

Montreal, Dec. 28— (CP) — Three five-pound dynamite charges today failed to stir an ice jam in the Back River which has caused flooding in Montreal's northern outskirts.

The charges were set off by civil engineers who immediately recommended that the ice be bombed from the air around the community of Bout de L'Ile. J. C. Chagon, chief engineer for the Quebec Streams Commission, said he was considering calling in the R.C.A.F. to do the job.

Meanwhile the flood waters which have inundated portions of the suburban towns of Riviere des Prairies, Montreal North and St. Vincent de Paul and forced some 500 to flee, were reported receding steadily.

Blasters prepared to use heavier dynamite charges later in the day.

The three experimental charges set off shortly before noon scooped six-foot pits in the 10-square mile field of ice in the river. But the ice mass itself held firm.

Mayor Rosario Fortin of Riviere Des Prairies has also appealed to Ottawa for assistance.

Meanwhile, Red Cross workers, aided by townspeople, have been evacuating families from threatened areas and providing food and shelter for the homeless.

Awash to Roof Tops

Of the 500 homes affected in both communities, 150 are reported "in bad shape"; almost 100 homes on small islands in the river are awash to roof tops.

Already 90 families have been evacuated in the two centres alone and 28 persons have been sent to hospitals. These are mainly ill, invalids and the aged.

Mayor Fortin says it is impossible at the moment to estimate damage but a "wild guess" would be anywhere from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Adding to the misery of the inundated district yesterday was a fire that damaged the flood-threatened home of Robert Pauze.

With water lapping at the back verandah, regular firemen and volunteers fought the blaze from nearby rooftops.

There were bright aspects too. The water has stopped its steady rise and even receded slightly. However, the water still is about 10 feet above normal.

LUCRATIVE YEAR

New York, Dec. 28—(AP)—This was the most lucrative year in history for the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, an official said yesterday. He said that 2,500 writer and 400 publisher members shared $14,000,000 for 1951. The previous high was $10,000,000 in 1950. The record year was attributed largely to television.

English-Speaking World Adopted Present Calendar 200 Years Ago

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 28—(AP) —The new year—1952—will mark the 200th anniversary of the calendar as it is known in North America.

It was in 1752 that the English-speaking world finally got in step with nearly everyone else by adopting the Gregorian system of keeping track of days, months and years.

Special note of the anniversary is being taken by the world's largest calendar firm, Brown and Bigelow, St. Paul.

Behind the calendar of today lies centuries of research, confusion, adventure and romance—all occasioned by man's countless attempts to nail down time to an accurate schedule of measurement.

Although Pope Gregory XIII had his scientists and astronomers work out a fairly-correct calendar in the 16th century, protesting England and her colonies was 11 leery of things emanating from Rome. As a result, they held out acceptance of the calendar for almost 200 years.

When parliament finally decided to get in step with most of the rest of the world by adopting the Gregorian calendar, the Julian calendar used up to his time by England and her colonies was 11 days behind the Gregorian count. To catch up in a hurry, 11 days had to be "wiped out" and it was ordered that the calendar for 1752 should skip from Sept. 2 to Sept. 14. This caused considerable confusion.

As early as 3,500 B.C., the Sumerians came up with a calendar. It was workable even if the year was only 354 days—11 days short of a true solar year.

The Egyptians, got the error down to a little over 11 minutes.

Astronomers worked constantly to try to reconcile the calendar with the heavenly movements, but meanwhile the 11-minute and 14-second shortage of the Egyptian calculation began to accumulate. By the 16th century, the year was 10 days out of kilter.

Pope Gregory began looking into the problem. Setting aside a room in the Vatican—still known as the "calendar room"—he put his best scientists to work. Here they toiled until they produced a calendar which, with an extra day every four years to take up the slack, worked out pretty well.

The margin of error in this computation, though small, will account for the loss of only one day in more than 3,000 years.

Hungary Releases Four U.S. Airmen After Fines Paid

Held 40 Days as 'Spies' For Violating Border Line

Nickelsdorf, Austria, Dec. 28—(CP) —Hungary today released four United States airmen after holding them 40 days as "spies" after their plane was forced down by Russian fighters.

The airmen crossed the Austrian border to freedom at 5.01 p.m., Austrian time and were sped on their way back to their base at Erding, Germany.

U.S. officials at the border kept the men under wraps, but as they were starting to drive to Tulln air base, outside Vienna, one of them was asked by a reporter how he was treated in Hungary.

"All right" was all that Sgt. Jess Duff, of Spokane, Wash., replied. He was the mechanic aboard the C-47 transport forced down on Hungarian soil by Soviet fighter planes Nov. 19.

Appeared Tired

The four men appeared through the mist of the raw, damp evening, looking tired. They were hustled into a room of the Austrian border police building. Eagerly they drank coffee and ate sandwiches provided by the welcoming party. Two stiff Russian officers and the American party joined in the snack.

Walter J. Donnelly, U.S. ambassador in Vienna, came to the Austrian frontier to greet the men. The U.S. government agreed to pay $120,000 in fines levied against the men on a charge of violating the Hungarian border, provided they were promptly released.

Donnelly announced in Vienna early today that the flyers would be released at 4 p.m. (10 a.m. EST). He then sped to the frontier, but it was not until 4:38 p.m. that he received Soviet permission to cross through the frontier barrier past Soviet guards.

The flyers were accompanied across the border by Lt.-Col. William Alden Somerby, U.S. air attache in the American legation at Budapest. Somerby wore civilian clothing.

Reporters Barred

Immediately upon reaching the Austrian side of the frontier, the flyers went into a police post building, accompanied by Donnelly, Col. John Guillett, commander of the U.S. air force base at Tulln and other members of the American welcoming party.

The four flyers went into a room from which photographers and reporters were barred.

Donnelly brought the men through the border barrier in his big automobile, bedecked with the American flag and his blue ambassador's banner.

The flyers are: Capt. John J. Swift of Glens Falls, N.Y., pilot; Capt. Dave H. Henderson of Shawnee, Okla., co-pilot; Top-Sgt. Jess A. Duff of Spokane, Wash., mechanic; Sgt. James A. Elam of Kingland, Ark., radio man.

Russia Agrees To Accept Kennan As Ambassador

Washington, Dec. 28—(AP)—Russia has agreed to accept George F. Kennan as the new United States Ambassador to Russia, almost at the same time denouncing him as a foe of the Soviets.

President Truman announced at Kansas City last night the selection of the 47-year-old career diplomat, who is credited with being a principal author of the present American policy of containment to counter the threat of communist aggression.

Kennan will succeed Rear Admiral Alan G. Kirk, whose request for retirement presidential secretary Joseph Short said Truman accepted with reluctance.

The announcement was made after the Kremlin said he would be acceptable. There had been some speculation that he would be turned down after attacks on him by both Pravda and radio Moscow, the latest only yesterday.

Kennan, former state department counsellor and recently chief of state Secretary Dean Acheson's policy planning staff, now is on leave with the Princeton University Institute for advanced studies. He is expected to take over the ambassadorship probably in April.

Short said his nomination would be submitted to the Senate for confirmation soon after Congress reconvenes. There has been no indication of opposition to Kennan.

St. Laurent to Give New Year's Broadcast

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent is to deliver his annual New Year's message Tuesday on both CBC networks.

The Trans-Canada network will carry the address at 7:45 p.m. EST in the east and 10 p.m. CST in the west. The Dominion chain will carry it at 7:45 p.m. EST.

Mayor McCallum Critical of Film

Toronto, Dec. 28—(CP)—Mayor Hiram McCallum said yesterday the National Film Board feature, "Royal Journey," on the visit of Princess Elizabeth to Canada "did not do Toronto justice."

The mayor said the film includes no part of the Toronto reception before city hall. The Toronto footage, Mayor McCallum said showed fleeting shots in some "factory districts" and then showed presentation of two children at Riverdale Park.

BUDGET INCREASED

Tokyo, Dec. 28 — (AP)—Finance Minister Hayato Ikeda yesterday submitted to a cabinet meeting a budget plan of 848,088,000,000 yen ($2,355,800,000) for the next fiscal year. It represented an increase of 54,381,000,000 yen ($1,510,508,300) over the current budget.

City and District News

FAILED TO MOVE CAR IN TIME

"He who hesitates", has to shovel his car from snowbanks. Such was the case with a motorist in the city a few days ago, who chatted with a friend, and failed to see the city snow-plow approaching.

When he looked at his car after the plow passed, it was neatly and effectively barricaded with a two-foot bank of snow.

That is the price people pay for not observing city ordinances which state streets must be kept clear of automobiles while snow removal is under way.

CHRISTMAS FARE AT COUNTY JAIL

Succulent roast pork, dressing mashed potatoes and vegetables topped off with mince pie formed the Christmas fare at the county jail on Tuesday.

Later the inmates were presented with gifts of nuts and candy by the Salvation Army, and also enjoyed a two-hour motion picture show presented by the "Sally Ann."

RISING TEMPERATURES PROMISED SATURDAY

Rising temperatures with a threat of snow is promised by the weatherman for tomorrow.

Sub-zero weather again visited the city and district last night with the lowest reading being four below zero. Temperatures will shoot up to between 20 and 30 degrees starting this evening.

FIRE CHIEF SUGGESTS THAT HOUSEHOLDERS CLEAR FIRE HYDRANTS

Snow covered fire hydrants in the outlying sections of the city are causing some concern on the part of Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

The chief advised householders that for their own protection it would be a fine gesture for residents with hydrants in front of their property to shovel them clear of snow so that firemen could get hose attached quickly if necessary in case of fire.

PARKED CARS TOWED FROM DOWNTOWN AREA

It's "no fooling" with the city police department where the all-night parking by-law is concerned.

Last night three cars were towed from the downtown district to local garages where the owners will have to go to pick them up. Police said the three vehicles were obstructing snow removal operations.

Former City Couple to Observe 60th Anniversary

Residents of this city until about two years ago, Mr. and Mrs. V. Perrie Hunt of Pittsburgh, Penn., on Monday will celebrate the 60th anniversary of their marriage.

Professor Hunt was director of music at Albert College for many years and was also supervisor of music in Belleville schools as well as organist at Bridge Street United Church. He is 92, while Mrs. Hunt is 90. Both are still enjoying good health.

Professor and Mrs. Hunt are now living with their daughter, Mrs. Richard Allen, in Pittsburgh, but spend their summers with their son, Harry K. Hunt in Toronto.

The staff of Superior Cleaners and their friends held their Christmas supper and dance at the Golden Acre Inn recently with Ray Clarke acting as emcee for the evening's entertainment.

Following the supper, William Strahan and Warren Jones, plant manager and owner respectively thanked everyone who attended and extended the greetings of the season. Mr. Jones digressed on the expansion of the plant and further expansions in the plant and staff in the coming year.

Music and entertainment were supplied by Cam Walsh, Nicholas Simmond and vocalist Ray Clarke.

Spot dance, mystery and door prize winners included Eva Simmond, Connie Bardgett, Cam Walsh, Jim Reppard, Ken Redding and June Ostrom.

Everyone reported a very enjoyable evening's entertainment.

Evidence of Night of Horror

This twisted wreckage is all that remains of the Old Coliseum in Tijuana, Mexico, after a fire roared through the five-storey building during a Christmas party, killing at least 34 persons and injuring about a hundred more. Many were trampled in the rush to escape as the scene of pre-Christmas gaiety turned into one of horror. The fire started shortly after midnight when a Yule tree was knocked over in a scuffle by two celebrants on the third floor of the iron-roofed concrete and wood structure. — Central Press Canadian.

Fred Croft, South African War Veteran, Has Old Paper Telling of That Conflict

The advance of scientific warfare is plainly evident in the war despatches of the modern newspaper and that of South Africa back in 1899.

Mr. Fred Croft, 153 West Moira Street, a South African war veteran has a copy of the "Standard and Diggers' News" published in Johannesburg, South Africa on December 12 of that year.

At that time the South African war was raging and the "Riggers' News" was published by a Boer publishing company. It related in brief despatches of the "severe losses" suffered by the British, and charges them with "atrocities", in that Boer wounded were allowed to go a week without medical aid.

The newspaper is in a fine state of preservation. It tells of "Cronje's Great Victory" at the Modder River, and of the siege of Ladysmith.

In an editorial it blasts the then Colonial Secretary, Joseph Chamberlain, calling him "Triple Alliance" with Russia and the United States and Great Britain "so much bunkem". It states that President McKinley of the United States "gave the lie direct" to Chamberlain calling the so-called Alliance "a beautiful house of cards erected by the Secretary with all the pompous flourish of rhetorical cocksureness" which collapsed at a single touch.

In its advertisements, the "Diggers' News" quotes a dentist as doing "all kinds of teeth filling". Shaves are advertised at sixpence and hair - cuts, one shilling. For ten shillings you could get all your tonsorial work done for a month, subscriber style. They called barber shops "Toilet Clubs" in those days. The police department advertised "Wanted, owners for six bicycles (one lady's)." The ads cost twelve cents a line. "Repeats, half-price". Another ad offers employment to "an honest white girl".

Groceries advertise goods but no prices are quoted. Everything is "moderately priced". Two American dentists "urged potential patience" now is the time to have your teeth put in order while you have the time".

Carried British Ads

A news item states "Three gentlemen left for Pretoria this morning with the same number of gold bars. Each of the lots was carefully sealed and guarded".

Oddly enough, while the country was at war with England, the "News" carries British advertising. Prices are quoted on liquors with "cape brandy quoted at eight shillings the gallon". Whisky is quoted at retail prices of 36 shillings the "case". So is rum.

A retail tobacconist advertises he is "turning out large quantities of cigarettes daily which are sold to the trade at prices which allow a good margin".

Blind of District Enjoy Hospitality Of Rotarians

An occasion that has become a happy holiday custom is the annual turkey dinner provided by the Rotary Club of Belleville for the blind persons in the district, and Thursday night marked the fifth of these events when about 30 guests and their escorts sat down to a sumptuous meal prepared and served in St. Andrew's church hall by Mrs. Gelsthorpe and her group of the Women's Guild. The Rotarians provided transportation to ensure the safe arrival of their guests.

Paper hats and crackers added a festive air to the occasion, and the Christmas motif was carried out in the decorations and serviettes. All the dishes that accompany a turkey dinner were served and enjoyed. Several members of the Rotary Club and the Hastings County Advisory Board were present to assist in the arrangements. Mr. George Wishart, chairman of the board was master of ceremonies and led the singing of favorite old songs.

Court Miller, president of Rotary, spoke on behalf of the club, expressing the hope that they would be able to have all those present with them again next year, and he wished them full measure of comfort and happiness in the ensuing year.

A contest was held using the names of the guests, the winners being Chas. Randall who won first prize and Mrs. Clarke and Mr. Shamberlau who tied for second place. The second contest was a game of guessing the number of candies in a jar and was won by Mr. Shamberlau and Mr. Yeteman.

Entertainment was provided by Ed. Brown who sang four solos, and Bruce Sills who played two selections on the musical saw. Mrs. G. Wright was the accompanist at the piano. Mary Lo Wishart gave two delightful readings.

Brief speeches were made by Chas. Randall, president of the White Cane Club; Preston Timmins, district supervisor from Kingston who expressed his appreciation for the generosity of the Rotary Club; Miss Rose Munro, home instructress for the blind; and Mrs. H. Rollins who was in charge of the arrangements for the dinner. Thanks were extended to the ladies of the guild for the excellent dinner, to those who entertained, and to the Rotary Club by Mrs. M. Ward on behalf of the County Advisory Board, and the evening came to a close with time for a friendly visit.

Gracie to Marry Radio Repair Man

Gracie Fields, internationally known British comedienne, has announced she will marry again, this time to a Romanian radio repair man. Living on the Isle of Capri, Italy, Gracie says it was love at first sight for her and admitted she tampered with her radio set just to have Abraham Morris Alberrovich come to repair it. He is 48.—Central Press Canadian.

Obituary

LATE MRS. ERNEST CRONKRIGHT

The funeral of Mrs. Ernest Cronkright, Plainfield, formerly Effie Jane Sharp, Mount Pleasant Rawdon, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp was held in Mount Pleasant Rawdon United Church on Friday afternoon.

Her former pastor, Rev. George Campbell of Wellington, based his message of comfort on the theme, "Greater love hath no one than this, that a person live their life for family and friends".

The new pastor of Plainfield Circuit, Rev. G. J. Tenzifthoff, assisted with the service.

A niece, Mrs. Marguerite McMullen, Mount Pleasant, sang "Beyond the Sunset" by special request of the deceased. The congregation sang "Abide With Me".

The bearers were Messrs. Kenneth Denyes, Bryant Casey, Harold Beatty, Lorne Brough, Arthur Sine, of Plainfield, and Mr. A. Stevenson, Stirling.

The interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery beside her daughter.

WILLIAM TAIT (Picton)

Picton—For 35 years manager of Picton Public Utilities, William Tait passed away early Thursday morning in Prince Edward County Hospital. He suffered a heart attack on December 8th.

The funeral is being held in the Church of St. Mary Magdalene Saturday afternoon with entombment in Glenwood vault.

Mr. Tait was born in Caithness, Scotland, coming to Canada when young. His primary education was secured at Wolfe Island. Later, he took a correspondence course in engineering. In 1912 he became associated with the Picton Public Utilities and four years later was named manager and he has held this position since that time. This period was one of development and expansion and Mr. Tait's progressiveness was in keeping with hydro's growth. There was also great progress in the waterworks department.

Mr. Tait was a member of the Anglican Church. A boating enthusiast, he was a member of Prince Edward Yacht Club. His hobby was gardening.

Mr. Tait is survived by his wife.

GEORGE HAROLD LEE (Madoc Twp.)

Madoc — George Harold Lee, Madoc township, died suddenly at his home on Thursday. He was in his 38th year.

The son of Elizabeth Lee and the late George Lee, he had lived all of his life in this locality.

He is survived by six sisters, Mrs. Greer (Bertha) Yearwood of Madoc, Mrs. Thomas (Mabel) Smith of Belleville, Mrs. Lloyd (Jean) Fleming of Crookston, Mrs. John (Irene) Martin of Madoc, and Misses Isobel and Florence at home. Also surviving is one brother, Donald, at home.

He was a member of St. John's Anglican Church.

Resting at his late residence, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Neighbors Meet Under Unhappy Circumstances

Neighbors sometimes meet under rather unhappy circumstances.

At least this was the case Thursday evening on Front St. when close neighbors on Lingham Street became involved in a motor accident that resulted in several hundred dollars damage, as well as riled tempers when traffic was tied up.

Lloyd Gilmer, R.R. 1, Belleville, was driving north followed by Robt. McFaul of 90½ Lingham Street, when near the city hall, Gilmer was forced to stop because of traffic. McFaul also braked his vehicle but a following Stapley-owned bus driven by Cuthbert Baragar, 90 Lingham Street, was unable to stop in time and bumped into the rear of the vehicle ahead. The McFaul car was then forced ahead crashing into the rear of the first car causing front-end damage amounting to over $400.

Ban Sidewalk Pumps

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Sidewalk gasoline pumps and glass tank pumps, long familiar to Ontario motorists, will disappear soon after the new year, J. D. Millar, deputy minister of highways, announced yesterday. He said the reason for the cancellations of licences for these pumps was the fire hazard and the traffic tie-up they occasioned.

Dogs in Pound

Three dogs were reported in the city pound this morning. The first is a female collie pup, light brown in color while the other two are both male, part hound and terrier dogs. One of these is sand in color while the other is black and has a harness.

Woman Editor Rescued by Sub

Sailors of the U.S. submarine Volador (top) tow magazine editor Charlotte Knight toward their ship in Korean waters after helicopter she was travelling in with two U.S. navy fliers crashed into the ocean. Below, sailors aboard the craft use a line to pull Miss Knight from the icy waters. The accident occurred while Miss Knight was being transferred from a ship to the submarine. —

Three in Family Narrowly Escape Asphyxiation by Furnace Gas

Overcome by coal gas fumes as they got out of bed this morning, a Burnham Street father and his small son and daughter had a close call from being asphyxiated. All three recovered after they were given oxygen from a fire department resuscitator.

Thomas Taylor, driver for Rawson Bus Lines arose about 7 o'clock, intending to pick up his bus before breakfast. Just as he was about to leave the house his son Donald, age 4, and daughter Barbara Ann, age 8, came downstairs both collapsing at the foot of the stairs.

Realizing his children must have been overcome with gas, Mr. Taylor carried them to the fresh air and called the fire department. Oxygen was given with the resuscitator and just as the two children recovered the father collapsed. Two tanks of oxygen were given Mr. Taylor before he recovered. He was later given a sedative by his physician.

The mother apparently was unaffected by the gas fumes.

"We can't understand what happened," Mrs. Taylor told the Ontario Intelligencer. "The furnace fire had burned up and was checked before we went to bed last night, and had not been touched this morning."

Firemen checked the furnace and reported everything in order.

At noon Mr. Taylor and his two children had completely recovered from the gas fumes with the exception "of a little headache."

Radio-Active Liquid Gold Proving Hopeful in Treatment

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Philadelphia, Dec. 28—(AP) — Radio-active liquid gold is showing many hopeful uses in cancer treatment.

All still are only hopes. But gold ranks third among four radio-active atoms now used on cancer. And it is moving ahead faster than the others. This year 47 cancer research institutions are trying gold.

These reports were made today to the American Association for the advancement of science in the first session of a symposium on how to discover cancer uses for radio-active isotopes. The association is conducting its 118th annual meeting here this week.

Dr. Gould A. Andrews of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Tenn., told the gold story.

This liquid is colloidal gold. Its particles are so heavy they tend to remain in the cancer into which they are injected.

It is difficult to get them to spread all through the malignant tissues. Because they stay in one place their rays are confined mostly to cancer and they burn away the malignant tissues.

But it spreads far enough to be dangerous and today's verdict on injection is "value unknown."

Another use for gold is to prevent some of the dread metasteses, the mysterious spread of cancers to other parts of the body.

Seems to Curb Spread

A new use for gold is for women with cancer of the cervix (mouth of the womb). Liquid gold in the soft tissues around the cervix seems to curb spread of this type cancer.

For men the gold does a similar job in stopping the spread of cancer of the prostate gland. It is used when surgery cannot complete the job.

The gold stops misery for many cancer patients whose internal body cavities fill with liquid due to cancers along the cavity linings. The reasons for this improvement is not known.

The gold liquid is injected directly into the blood where it concentrates in liver, spleen and bone marrow. That makes it an easy treatment for leukemia (blood cancer)—but it is no better than other treatments. None cures.

The three other cancer isotopes being used are iodine, phosphorous and cobalt. Phosphorous and iodine get the most use in the United States. Radio-active cobalt is produced in Canada and little of it is yet available. It will be a cheap substitute for radium and probably do everything radium does for cancer.

Chamber Opens Register Of Coming Events

The inauguration of a new service was announced this morning by James T. Davis, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, available to anyone in the city, who wished to make use of it.

'To prevent duplication or conflict of dates', Mr. Davis said, 'the Chamber is opening a register of coming events in which anyone may check to find out what dates are available in order to lay plans for their own social functions accordingly.

This service is free of charge and anyone wishing to make use of it may do so by writing, telephoning or otherwise contacting the office of the Chamber of Commerce.

Bowling Party By YPA Enjoyed

Over 80 members of the South Hastings Young Peoples Association of the United Church were in attendance at a bowling party and social evening on Thursday night.

Representatives were present from Bethany, Centenary, Gilead, Halloway, Melrose, Plainfield, Stirling, Scott, Thomasburg-Moira, Trenton, Bridge Street and Tabernacle United Churches.

The party began with bowling at the bowl-o-drome at eight o'clock following which everyone retired to the Sunday school room of Tabernacle United Church where a sing-song and general get-together was held.

Don Williams, president of the S.H.Y.P.A., addressed the gathering after which refreshments were served by the host club. Coffee and hot dogs were distributed by Mabel Chapman, Rosemary Hunter, Vivian Coon, Ruth McMullen and Earl Lashway.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 28—(CP)—Mixed mid-session support today checked moderate stock market advances.

Industrials opened irregularly following Thursday's late upswing but Drew renewed support during the first hour. Steels, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous industrials led the market with a scattered list of fractional gains. Agricultures, liquors and refining oils held firm support while papers, utilities, foods and retail stores showed gains and losses in balance. Textiles were unchanged but banks weakened.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,120,000 shares.

In western oils Calvan Consolidated, Central-Leduc, Devon-Leduc, Federated Petroleum, Mid-Continent and Western Homestead strengthened. Anglo-Canadian, North Canadian and Calmont weakened.

Base metal leaders edged upward but lower-priced issues were mixed. Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay, Noranda and Quemont climbed fractions while Barvue and Labrador posted advances ranging to about 20 cents.

In senior golds Malartic and Wright-Hargreaves pushed slightly higher but Kerr Addison, Lake Shore and Teck Hughes dipped. Secondary issues slipped.

Canadian Firms Can be Banned Says Official

Ottawa, Dec. 28—(CP) — Canadian firms found guilty of breaking United States regulations on shipment of strategic goods to communist countries will be banned from using Canadian export outlets, a trade department official said today.

The ban would apply on all American goods handled by the Canadian company. The company, however, could still ship non-strategic Canadian goods out of the country, and strategic goods, too, providing he complies with Canadian export licence restrictions, the official said.

The official made this general policy ruling in commenting on a Washington dispatch yesterday in which the U.S. commerce department ordered Canadian, Belgian and New York firms barred from U.S. export trade for secretly shipping strategic war chemicals to communist Hungary.

The order has been stayed pending an appeal to the department's appeals board. The Canadian company involved is Continental Pharma of Montreal.

The official said the charge is about 2½ years old. The Canadian trade department is not satisfied that the spirit of regulations were broken and for that reason has taken no action to bar export outlets to the companies involved.

If the U.S. commerce department appeals board finds them guilty, Canada will take action to prevent Canada being used as a "back door" to defeat the purpose of the U.S. ban, the official said.

New Tank for U.S. Army

Newest, biggest and hardest-punching tank ever made by the U.S. is still so secret that only its silhouette may be published. Although the exact date the tank, the T-43, will go into volume production cannot be revealed, authorities say construction is more than a month ahead of schedule. Ordnance officials have said that the new tank "will outslug any land-fighting machine ever built." It's supposed to be faster and more manoeuvrable than the Soviet army's Joseph Stalin III. — Central Press Canadian.

Added Term Given For Don Jail Break

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP) — William Jackson, 25, one of the three men who escaped from the Don jail Nov. 4, today was sentenced to two years on a charge of escaping custody. He was arrested in Montreal Dec. 18.

The sentence is in addition to one of nine years and 20 lashes for armed robbery, imposed before the jail break.

The other two men who escaped with Jackson, Alvin Boyd, 37, and Leonard Jackson, 29, no relation, are still at large.

Criminal Charges Laid Against 6 Discharged Men

Windsor, Dec. 28 (CP) — Criminal charges have been laid against six men in connection with the forced closing December 3 of the Ford Company of Canada powerhouse, police said today.

The six, all former Ford production men, were fired December 21 by the company. Their firings are said to have angered union leaders and to have resulted Monday in a breakoff of union-company grievance procedure talks. The talks were resumed today.

The six men are Connie Brooks and Norman Steers, both members of the negotiating committee of Local 200, the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.); Clayton Wood, an assistant plant chairman; Anthony Drouillard, Grant Shaw and Roy Hayes.

The charges were laid by Chief C. W. Farrow on the advice of the crown attorney, Bruce J. S. Macdonald. Police said that all six will be summoned to appear in court next week. The summonses will be delivered by constables.

Chicken Farmer Says Bad Vaccine Spread Disease

New Glasgow, N.S., Dec. 28—(CP)—John Proudfoot, prominent chicken farmer, said today bad vaccine from Dominion government laboratories at Ottawa is responsible for introducing Newcastle disease into Nova Scotia's chicken flocks.

He said the disease wiped out about one-third of the province's breeder stock.

Mr. Proudfoot and his brother James, the second largest breeding stock producers in the province, lost 7,000 birds, about half of those destroyed in Nova Scotia.

"Our birds were free from the disease until they were inoculated," Mr. Proudfoot said.

Producers, he said, would seek compensation and if necessary take legal steps.

The federal agriculture department reported Dec. 17 that some Nova Scotia poultry flocks which had been vaccinated against Newcastle disease had developed a form of the disease. The department said its health of animals division has specialists investigating the situation, and that while the outbreaks were serious in the individual flocks affected, "the situation as a whole is not considered alarming."

International Wheat Sales Decline Sharply

London, Dec. 28—(Reuters)—Wheat sales reported under the International Wheat Agreement during the week ended Dec. 21 fell sharply to 247,500 metric tons the previous week.

Canada sold 132,600 tons, the United States 103,500 and Australia 11,400 tons. France again made no sales.

Holland was the largest buyer, taking 75,000 tons from Canada and 20,600 from the United States, followed by Britain, with 55,600 tons from Canada, 32,500 from the United States and 3,000 from Australia.

U.S. sales also included 28,600 tons to India, 4,700 to Germany and 4,000 each to Belgium, Egypt and Italy.

Govt. Checking Into Foreign Textile 'Dumping'

Ottawa, Dec. 28 (CP) — The government is attempting to determine if textiles from iron-curtain countries are in fact being "dumped" in Canada, Revenue Minister McCann told the Commons today.

An examination of invoices covering such importations "does not disclose any evidence of dumping as defined by the customs tariff," Mr. McCann said. But the government is attempting to determine at which price the imported goods sell in such countries at Czecho-slovakia.

He was replying to a question by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre). He asked what was being done "to meet the unfair competition of countries behind the iron curtain, such as Czecho-slovakia, shipping into this country gloves and other textiles to the detriment of Canadians."

Dr. McCann said determination of home prices behind the iron curtain — a fact which must be known to establish if there is dumping — was "a somewhat difficult task."

But the government had been in discussion with Czech authorities "with a view to satisfying ourselves as to the proper values."

Second Canadian Cruiser Will Be Commissioned

Ottawa, Dec. 28 (CP) — A second Canadian cruiser, H.M.C.S. Quebec, will be commissioned at Esquimalt, B.C., January 14, the navy announced today.

Formerly H.M.C.S. Uganda, the Quebec will be sponsored by Mme. Gaspard Fauteux, wife of the lieutenant-governor of Quebec, who will also be present for the ceremony. The ship will eventually be stationed on the east coast, with Canada's other cruiser, H.M.C.S. Ontario, based at Esquimalt.

Her commanding officer will be Commander Patrick D. Budge, of Victoria and Halifax, who began his naval career in 1921 as a boy seaman and rose from the lower deck to commissioned rank.

The Quebec will carry out her trials and work-ups on the west coast, sailing for Halifax to arrive in the latter part of April. She will serve as a training ship for men of the R.C.N. who have completed the new entry training curriculum at H.M.C.S. Cornwallis.

Originally a royal navy ship, the Quebec was commissioned as H.M.S. Uganda late in 1942. One of her first assignments was as part of a naval force which escorted Prime Minister Churchill to the United States in 1943.

She was then sent to the Mediterranean, taking part in the invasions of Sicily and Italy, and was damaged by enemy aircraft in the allied landings at Salerno.

After retiring at Charleston, she was formally commissioned in the R.C.N. in October, 1944, under command of Capt. E. R. Mainguy, now a vice-admiral and chief of the naval staff.

She then served with distinction in the Pacific theatre, and after the war on training cruises out of Esquimalt. She was placed into the reserve fleet in August, 1947.

Extensive refitting and modernization followed her recall to active service this year.

Il Duce's Salute is Seen Again

Marshal Rodolfo Graziani was known as the "Lion of Africa" in the days when Mussolini was posing and roaring from a balcony in the days of Fascist regime in Italy. Later he was commander-in-chief of Mussolini's "Northern Italian Social Republic" in the closing days of the war and was still later sentenced to 19 years in prison, which was reduced to 14 months which he served while awaiting trial. Recently he returned to semi-public life when he addressed a national meeting of the Federation of Republican Veterans in Rome and was elected president of that organization. This photo was made on that occasion and it shows "The Lion of Africa" reviving the out-moded salute of the days of Il Duce. — Central Press Canadian.

U.N. Command Says 450 Have Died in Camps

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 28 — (AP) — The U.N. Command said today at least 450 United States soldiers have died in North Korean prison camps.

An official communique said that is 77 per cent of United Nations troops known to have been imprisoned in rear areas and not accounted for in last week's list of prisoners.

Simultaneously the communists indicated a complete list of living U.N. prisoners already is in Allied hands.

The 450 soldiers were not among those listed on the communist roster of 11,559 prisoners. They apparently were among 571 Americans the reds said Wednesday had died of disease or were killed by Allied air raids or artillery fire.

The U.N. Command said its announcement was based on a study of the reds' Wednesday report.

North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho hinted Friday at Panmunjom that the reds would report that many other Americans had died of disease or exposure in prison camps.

Rear Adm. R. E. Libby quoted Lee as saying "We must remember that Americans are not accustomed to this climate and are susceptible to local diseases, so it wouldn't be surprising if a large number died of disease."

Communist negotiators also offered no further accounting of some 50,000 captured soldiers the U.N. says have not been listed.

UNEMPLOYMENT GROWS

There were 74,500 unemployed in Ontario as of December 1, 1951, according to the Ontario Bureau of Statistics and Research, an agency of the Ontario government. There were 54,700 a month earlier, and only 48,200 on December 1, 1950. The 74,500 unemployed, the bureau says, represent about four per cent of Ontario's total labor force. Further, the bureau points out, the seasonal peak of unemployment in Ontario is not usually reached until February. It estimates that there will be about 100,000 more unemployed by February.

The bureau's publication states, in part: "This trend (the increase in unemployment) is continuing and further layoffs and curtailed working hours have occurred in the various industrial centres of the province. Coincident with this development is the growth of seasonal unemployment in farming, food processing, et cetera."

Here are the percentage increases in unemployment, compared with December 1 last year, in some of the major industrial centres of the province: Kitchener, 260; Oshawa, 188; Galt, 186; Chatham, 97; Guelph, 88; London, 82; Owen Sound, 79; Toronto, 79.

During the last year, the bureau says, employment has decreased in gold mining, leather, textiles, men's clothing, sheet metal, furniture and motor vehicles. These decreases have been partly offset by increases in employment in food, beverages, canned fruits, canned vegetables, rubber, paper products, primary iron and steel.

During the week ending December 8, department store sales, usually accepted as a good barometer of retail activity, were down two per cent in dollar value from the corresponding week of the preceding year. Without giving the figure, the bureau adds "in terms of physical volume, this decrease was considerably greater."

Here are some of the percentage decreases in retail sales for October, as compared with the corresponding month in the preceding year: motor vehicles, 38; appliances and radio, 19.3 and furniture, 14.3.

The foregoing figures do not indicate that Ontario is in the midst of a depression, but they do show that the province has a serious and growing unemploymnet problem, also that retail merchants are beginning to feel the pinch. Although the figures which have been quoted above deal with Ontario only, it is likely that conditions are as bad in other parts of the country, since it is well known that Ontario is at least as prosperous as the national average.

Those who govern this country's affairs are quick to claim the credit for any improvement in conditions which may develop. They must also assume responsibility for a deterioration such as that which we are enduring at the present time.

SARNIA GROWS FASTEST

Sarnia has enjoyed the largest percentage gain in population of any Ontario community, according to figures issued by the Ontario government. Sarnia's gain between 1941 and 1951 was 84 per cent, to a new total of 34,420.

Peel has been the fastest-growing of the counties. Peel's population is now 55,269, an increase of 75 per cent in the ten-year period.

A 60-CENT WORD

When the pharmaceutical people appeared before the joint parliamentary committee on combines legislation to oppose the proposed ban on resale price maintenance, it was submitted that the consumer has a choice between branded products to which this practice applies, and unbranded goods, to which it does not. One well known drug product was cited. The branded product, it seems, costs 79 cents at retail in Canada, while the "no brand" equivalent costs 19 cents.

Mr. Garson, the minister of justice, asked a witness: "In what percentage of drug stores in Canada is that 19-cent product available?" The answer: "100 percent."

As the evidence brought out, all the consumer needs in order to save himself 60 cents is to know a simple little word or two. He just asks for monoacetylacidester of salicylicacid. Nothing to it. — (Ottawa Citizen.)

WHY EXPORT LOGS?

We shouldn't export any more logs. If the authorities want to get the most for the citizens out of Ontario's forest wealth, one thing they should do is clamp a ban on the continuing export of unprocessed pulpwood logs. Altogether too many cords are slipping across the international boundary to the choppers of United States' mills, which are, in most instances, competing with out own pulp and paper mills, aside from newsprint, with all the tariff advantage on the side of the Americans. — (Sudbury Star.)

ANOTHER CHANCE WANTED

I'll have to start over! The outcome is clear.
With the same old regrets I am closing the year.
Notwithstanding the vows to improve that I made,
The man that I was when I started, I've stayed.

I promised myself that my friends soon would see A newly improved and a re-modelled me.
But I was too weak, or my habits too strong,
And I still am the chap I have been all along.

"Closed for Improvements!"
the sign I displayed,
"Under new management once they are made!"
Now we'll start a New Year in a day or two more,
And I am no better than I was before.

Old resolutions, worn tattered and frayed!
Nice when they're new but not durably made.
Pick up the pieces for New Year's, and then I'll stick them together and try once again!

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

POINT-OF-VIEW

We would all get along better, and be happier if we always tried to get the point-of-view of the other person. What a valuable amount of energy could then be diverted, to pleasant and profitable ends, instead of being wasted in arguments and disputes that lead to bitterness and an unhappy aftermath.

In the worldwide depression that followed the tragic and destructive world wars, there were many who gave up in despair, but there were others who had through their lives accumulated a philosophy of hope. This gave them courage to carry on and to take their losses and change of fortune with fortitude, and in many cases as a blessing.

If that other person, toward whom we may feel resentful, only had a door to his or her heart, and we could step up and open it and look to every corner in it, our viewpoint toward that one would be illuminated immediately, and all would be changed. Why can't we do a bit of imagining and always give the other person the benefit?

The true definition of success may hinge solely upon one's point-of-view. One of the most successful men I have ever known was a very poor minister (poor only financially) for I dare say he never lived a single day in which he had not done something to make another less discouraged and happier in heart. He literally gave himself away!

It's our point-of-view in life that influences our acts more than anything else, and which gives us friends or enemies, success or failure. Famous are those lines from Shakespeare where one of his characters exclaims: "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves that we are underlings." It's all in the way we look at things.

Turn two persons loose in the world at the same time, in the same place, and then, after a spell, interview them both. One will have come to the conclusion that life is all confusion, lacking in interest, just one long struggle not worth the effort. Beauty blank. Opportunity blank. Nothing good. But that other one will see miracles every day. Beauty will be everywhere, with wonder in the sky and all over the earth. Each morning an invitation to a new triumph. Everything is wound up in a point-of-view!

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE SERIOUS ONES

Among the passengers in the express-elevator to Toyland yesterday was a very small boy with straight yellow hair, wearing a dark blue snow suit and a sober expression.

"Here we go to see Sandy Claus", his mother said with forced gaiety as the car went up. The kid looked up at her blinking thoughtfully.

The mother smiled wanly at the elevator girl. "Is Sandy seeing little boys today?" she asked. "Nine to six," the elevator girl said. The little boy looked at her and wiped his nose with the back of his sleeve.

Then the doors of the elevator trundled open and all Toyland sprang into view, the posts decorated in peppermint-candy stripes, the counters heavy with red and green go-carts and in front of us a small silver boat sailed in slow circles around a galvanized washtub.

The boy took one step backward into the shelter of his mother's coat and peeked out at the dazzling sight. His mother reached down and took his hand and led him out of the safety of the elevator into the bright, dangerous world of toys.

They paused briefly to watch the boat in the tub. It was still circling, propelled mysteriously by vinegar and soda, and the small boy stood on his toes looking at it in silent fascination.

The manager of the department, who had volunteered to show me around, approached and I pointed to the small boy. "He looks terrified, doesn't he?" I said, "Some of them have to be dragged out of the elevator," the manager said.

On the Ride

The manager and I sauntered through the aisles, looking at the toys and studying the reaction of the kids, almost all of them deadly serious.

"I wouldn't be in any other department," the manager said. "Those fellows in staples and carpets! They don't know what they are missing. If you want to learn to love kids this is the place for it."

We paused to watch a small, dark girl with a Colleen Moore haircut. The clerk had brought down a doll in its cardboard box The little girl took it and the doll opened its pale blue eyes and stared at her. "Mama," it said.

We strolled by a merry-go-round which was carrying a capacity load of stoney-faced small fry and recognized my young friend of the elevator. He seemed a little flushed, but like the other small riders his face bore a look of intense concentration, a sedate, grave expression.

"Children have a curious dignity," the manager said. "You'd think they'd all be whooping and hollering in a place like this. Look at those boys watching the trains."

There were a half dozen of them peering in through the mesh of a screen at the electric trains, their faces impassive.

The manager bent down to one youngster. "How do you like those, sonny?" he asked.

The boy looked up, startled, then lowered his eyes shyly. He clearly didn't want any adults sharing his world at that moment.

With Santa

We walked through the festive aisles to an enclosure where Santa was sitting with a small girl on his knee. They were having their picture taken by a young woman. "Now smile, sweetie!" the woman sang out.

The little girl looked inquiringly at her mother, who was grimacing and waving her hands. Then she looked back with a ghost of a smile into the lens. "That's fine, sweetie," the woman photographer said. The little girl looked at her critically, then walked to a small wooden slide and joined a group of infants who were methodically climbing up and sliding down.

We were about to walk away when I noticed my friend of the elevator. It was now his turn to speak to Santa Claus.

The kid's mother gave him a little shove and he shuffled across to the Santa who boosted him on his knee. Santa said something to him and the boy looked him right in the eye for the first time. Then he raised his head and whispered something in Santa's ear. Santa nodded his head vigorously, obviously agreeing to some request.

The small boy looked at him for a second or two. It was a searching look. Then his eyes went back to his mother and for the first time a slow, wonderful grin came on his face.

It seemed to light up the whole of Toyland.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the press and in magazines lately there have been references to the "fireside skiers". It appears to be a term of mild derision.

Fireside skiers are extremely important members of the cult and should be encouraged. Fireside members of all the sports, from riding horses to badminton, from duck shooting to golf, are essential to the survival of the game. Imagine what skis would cost if the industry had for its clientele only those rugged individuals who actually get out and struggle and skid all over the hills! What sort of accommodation would be kept open all winter, if nobody but those lean-pursed, iron-legged experts took to the backwoods? What a frowsy lot those hillbillies would appear if there were no fireside skiers to keep the sports clothes industry hopping in the design and production of ever newer and more attractive garments.

If the only people who bought $100 hunting rifles were those who went hunting, a rifle would cost $300 nowadays. But many a man loves to own a great outfit of guns, tents, snowshoes, canvas coats, mackinaw pants, in the expectation of going to Alaska some day. He never goes.

But by the fireside, he does a kind of hunting that is far better for him than Alaska could ever be. He escapes from care. His blood tingles without moving a muscle. His deep breaths, as he climbs the mighty mountains, do his lungs good, even though it is fireside air.

And where will you find pleasanter firesides than in the skiing country, or the fishing country, or the hunting country?

Is it as much fun sitting around a ski-lodge fireside in a business suit as in a smart, easy ski outfit? The notion that one must fish when one goes fishing, shoot when one goes shooting, ride a horse every time one goes to the hunt club in britches, is most disturbing.

THE SCRUB TEAM

"If you want to see a good game, go and watch the scrub team this afternoon. They always play much better than the Varsity."

This statement, made to me on a well-known campus last fall, was amazing; yet when I thought it over a bit it seemed perfectly natural. The members of a varsity team have all arrived. Unless they get too bad, their position is more or less secure. But the members of a scrub team are still reaching out for something. They want to be in the Varsity. Accordingly, on the campus where the above statement was made, the scrubs throw themselves into the game with abandon, whereas the Varsity is more inclined to coast along.

We see this same disposition among the children of the wealthy. Some wealthy families turn out real geniuses and succeed in training their boys and girls in such a way that they grow up to be people with real purpose in life. But for the most part, children who do not have to "scratch" take life as it comes and make the most out of their opportunities for indulgence.

If you are on a scrub team in life or if your children have to play on the scrub team, consider yourself lucky. Most of us need the spur of necessity if we are going to do anything worth while. Both you and your children will probably play the game of life better if you are on the scrub team.

RECEIVE NEW RECORDS

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP) The Canadian National Institute for the Blind's Talking Book Library yesterday received 323 new records as a gift of the Avenue Road Lyons Club. Begun in 1934, the unique library has 46,000 records available to all of Canada's blind.

NOW EQUIPPED

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP)—Ontario Department of Lands and Forests bush planes are being equipped with water bombs and loudspeakers. The P. A. systems will be used to direct fire fighting crews. The water bombs have proven effective in fighting small outbreaks in inaccessible areas.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

WHAT CAN YOU DO AT MIDWAY?

Most people at midway (spelled with a small m) can't roll somersaults on the floor or ground (I warn you right here that you turn 'em Noah Webster's way at your own peril) and a good many do not dare to try.

The midway I mean is what a lot of you poor geeks wistfully call "middle age," although the mortality statistics show you are too optimistic. Middle age for men in America is 36 years, for women 38 or 39 years.

Now I ask you, is it not deplorable that a man 36 years of age or a woman 39 years of age has already grown so old and inelastic, so poor in calcium and so stiff in joints, that he or she can't roll somersaults and come up smiling?

I tossed in that allusion to calcium just to arouse your curiosity—if you are not beyond feeling curiosity. In a talk to follow I'll present some facts which every one should know about the physiology of calcium.

I have been rolling 'em every morning or nearly every morning for years and recommending them to readers of this column since Tony was a pup.

But like most of the good advice I give you here, this did not impress you much—you can't get somersaults in capsules or by "shots," so you dismisss the suggestion as one of my notions.

As some readers may be aware, I haven't much faith in digitalis and I don't believe in buttering every little ache, pain, discomfort or anxiety with a slug of aspirin. I advise all victims of heart disease to take graduated exercise, that is, physical activity in gradually increasing doses day by day, month after month, until they recover nearly if not quite their normal or original capacity to work, play or exercise. I believe and teach that the major operation known as tonsillectomy is not necessary and not justifiable except in rare cases of cancer. As a health expert I estimate that every sound or functionally efficient tooth is worth at least $1000 and if a tooth decays or becomes infected and your dentist can save it and keep it in functioning condition for a few years the dentist's fee is just about the best investment you can make.

These facts, beliefs or, if you will, notions aren't all new ideas, methods or discoveries "strange" to the old timers?—I promote in this column because I believe in them. Do you think I would have wasted even the fifteen seconds it takes to do six somersaults every morning all these years if I didn't feel sure the silly monkey business tends to keep my arteries soft and my body and mind pliable?

If you are already an old stiff —never mind your chronological age—don't give this strange notion another thought. But if you still retain or would like to retain some of the characteristics of youth send stamped, self-addressed envelope for the Somersault pamphlet.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Heredity

My fiance's grandfather and my grandmother were brother and sister. If our mothers are cousins, am I second cousin to my fiance? What effect would this have on children born to us? Has polio any hereditary effect on children? (T. R.)

Ans—Huh? I was lost as soon as we got in the woods. Your children will be as normal as you and your husband are. Effects of polio are not transmitted to children.

Yankee Stomach

This is to report the great relief I have experienced since I began using the ant-acid tablets recommended in your pamphlet Yankee Stomach. I have had a duodenal ulcer for ten years and never has any diet or medical treatment given such prolonged relief... (G. W. S.)

Answer—Thank you. The pamphlet Yankee Stomach is available on written request (not a clipping) if you provide stamped, self-addressed envelope. If you want also the booklet so you have Indigestion? inclose 25c for it.

Basic Health Reduction Diet

Understand you have a kind of basic diet which is also a reduction diet...(Mrs. W. F. S.)

Answer—It is given on p. 49 of the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite for which send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Churchill Wants To Talk About Dozen Subjects

Washington, Dec. 28—(AP) — Prime Minister Churchill has sent word that he wants to talk about a dozen broad subjects, including atomic energy, in his conferences with President Truman beginning here next week.

Diplomats familiar with Churchill's agenda said it is phrased in general topics and bears out the expectation of American officials that he is counting on a sweeping survey of all important Anglo-American world problems.

The prime minister is scheduled to arrive late next week. After five days of intensive conferences here, he is slated to visit New York for two days and Ottawa for about four days, returning to Washington about January 15 or 16.

Several weeks ago the prime minister advised American diplomats in London that he did not intend to take up in Washington the question of American aid for Britain and that he had no particular agenda for his talks. Since that time American officials have urged that he at least indicate the range of his topics.

The list he has now sent here is understood to cover the following subjects:

Foreign affairs, economic matters and defence of the west.

Heavy Damage In Toronto Fire

Toronto, Dec. 28—(CP)—Fire Thursday swept a row of shops on downtown Yonge Street, driving clerks and shoppers from the stores and causing damage estimated by firemen to "thousands and thousands of dollars." A passing pedestrian was cut by flying glass and two firemen were injured.

The fire started in Macy's Ladies' Wear store, one of a number of shops between Louisa and Albert Streets. Lilian Grisor, a clerk who lost a fur coat and her pay in an envelope, said it "just exploded in the fitting room." Then "we had to run to save our lives."

Smoke so dense that firemen said they had difficulty in finding the fire rose high above an adjacent six-storey building. For a time after the fire had been got under control it threatened to spread anew when mannequins in the dress shops burst into flame with minor explosions.

Capt. Howard Flannagan suffered an injured eye when struck by a hose nozzle. Fireman Stanley Edgerton suffered torn ligaments and cuts in his left arm while dragging a hose up a rear stairway.

For a time several persons were feared trapped in one store. They later were found on the sidewalk.

Thousands of spectators jammed Yonge Street at the height of the blaze.

Financial Crisis Major Problem Facing Churchill

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — The return to power of Winston Churchill's Conservative party provided the decisive event of Britain's political year in 1951. It marked the end of the first epoch of socialist majority rule and set new minds to work on another crisis in the country's financial fortunes.

In the Oct. 25 general election the Conservatives gained a majority over all other parties of nearly 20 seats in the House of Commons compared with a single-figure majority for labor in the pre-election parliament.

The Conservative margin was smaller than many observers had expected but the first weeks of the new parliament suggested it would prove enough for effective government. Thus ending the melancholy deadlock between the two big parties which had existed since the stalemate election Feb. 23, 1950.

Churchill, prime minister for the first time by the votes of the people — he was summoned by parliament to be wartime premier — moved swiftly to name a new cabinet in which Anthony Eden as foreign secretary was No. 2 man. A novel feature of the 16-member cabinet was the appointment to important coordinating posts of non-party men such as Lord Ismay, Lord Cherwell and Lord Leathers.

Dubbed "Overlords"

Lord Woolton, Lord Reading and Lord De La Warr were other prominent peers in the government, and promptly won the popular title of "overlords." Labor, in opposition for the first time since its 1945 victory at the polls, criticized the new Conservative cabinet as representing "government of the people, for big business, by the lords."

The Conservatives, who broadly dominated British politics in the years between the two world wars, came back to power at a time of financial crisis. At the opening of the 40th parliament Nov. 6, Churchill promised a "full and frank" statement on economic difficulties he described as worse than those encountered in the devaluation crisis of 1949 and in many ways worse than those of the convertibility crisis of 1947.

Next afternoon the 11-day-old Conservative administration announced drastic measures of austerity to ease the drain on her gold and dollar reserves — a reduction by nearly $1,000,000,000 in overseas spending, a curtailment of new building and strategic stockpiling, and fiscal steps to make money dearer for borrowers at home.

These were described as "first-aid" measures pending other plans for halting inflation which the government promised it would try to work out during a two-month adjournment of parliament, starting early in December.

Richard Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, grimly said that unless Britain quickly stops living beyond her means her people would find themselves "bankrupt, idle and hungry."

On the Spot

It was an ironic situation for the Conservatives. Churchill, who had long campaigned on a cry of "set the people free," found himself obliged as prime minister to continue and occasionally to extend the Socialist apparatus of control and restriction. The Socialists charged the new government with breaking its election pledges. They said the Tories had promised red meat and then cut off Christmas food bonuses.

The government replied that the Socialists had left such a mess there was no other course. One Conservative member said the country had averted financial catastrophe under the Labor government by only a "hair's-breadth."

The Socialists under former Prime Minister Clement Attlee, awarded the Order of Merit during the year, appeared generally to be biding their time in opposition. Although defeated in the October election, they had polled more votes than any other single party. Some supporters expressed hope their enforced absence from office would provide a breathing space in which to work out political theories replacing those which time and experience of political power had shown to be unworkable or inefficient.

There were two other decisive events for British Socialism in 1951. One was the death April 14 of former Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, who rose from obscurity to become one of Labor's great personalities. The other, which roughly coincided with Bevin's death, was the open schism within the party following the resignation of Aneurin (Nye) Bevan and two other ministers, Harold Wilson and John Freeman.

The three resigned in protest against the size of Britain's £4,700,000,000 three-year arms budget, which they said was too big. They become a focus for Labor's traditionally-restive left-wing members, with possibly fateful consequences for the party. Some forecast Bevan as a future Labor prime minister but at year's end the moderate right-wing leaders, such as Attlee and Herbert Morrison, still were in command.

Major Who Deserted Red Army Believes Only Blunder Could Set off East-West War in '52

Hamburg, Germany, Dec. 28.—(AP)— The stocky man with shrewd eyes was a major in the Russian army until two years ago.

At Potsdam, in the occupation area, he served on the staff of Russia's greatest military governors: Zhukov, Sokolovsky, and Culkov.

He recalls vividly the secret briefing which general of the army Vassily Chulkov, hero of Stalingrad, delivered at his headquarters in 1949 after the end of the Berlin blockade.

"Our present forces in Germany are strong enough to sweep to the English Channel. But we do not have the order," the general said.

The former major, V. M. Denisov, shrugs at the memory:

"I believe 1952 will be the most dangerous year of all," he says. "The tension is near the breaking point.

"But if war comes, it will be because of blunders. Soviet policy is not to launch a sudden attack —but to wait, to grow stronger, to let the west splurge into an economic catastrophe.

"Chulkov did not receive the order to attack in 1949.

I am convinced he will not receive it in 1952. But war may come. The tension is big."

Deserter and Traitor

Denisov, in the eyes of the Soviet government, is a deserter and traitor. In West Germany, he is tolerated as one of thousands of unwanted political refugees.

But it wasn't politics that drove him to forsake career and country.

He did it for a German woman. They fell in love during the conquest of Germany and were married secretly afterward in defiance of military command.

He saved her, their young daughter, and his German mother-in-law when he deserted. He smuggled them into the British sector of Berlin. Together, they were flown out to West Germany.

The Denisov family of four receives a dole of 96 marks ($22.84) a month from a little north German town, near Hamburg, where they have won refuge.

His new life is hard, but he has his loved ones and they are inseparable. He has guts. Most Soviet army deserters hid their identity and live underground for fear of red reprisals. Denisov knows about 70 in north Germany.

He is trying to organize them publicly. Then he intends to invite western authorities to assist in an economic program of assimilating these men without a country.

MARMORA

Churches Hold Christmas Services

Marmora — Church services in the village on Christmas Eve were well attended, the sacred edifices being beautifully adorned for the occasion with evergreens, chrysanthemums and other seasonal flowers. At St. Paul's a carol service preceded choral communion.

During the latter service, the choir rendered two anthems by Caleb Simper, "Glad Tidings" and "Arise and Shine". The rector, Canon J. M. Brownlie, who officiated, gave an appropriate address.

Sacred Heart Church

At Sacred Heart Church, the Rev. J. A. O'Neill celebrated midnight Mass and gave an appropriate address. The crib was decorated with evergreen and lights.

At St. Andrew's United Church, Rev. G. D. Young, B.A., B.D., conducted a Christmas Eve service in which Christmas hymns and readings were used and for the meditation of the congregation a pictorial interpretation of the Holy Child of Bethlehem was given.

More Eggs Produced

Ottawa, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Canadian hens are continuing to work overtime. The Bureau of Statistics reported last night that estimated production of eggs increased to 35,500,000 dozen in November from 31,600,000 in October and 22,300,000 in the corresponding month last year.

CONSERVATIVES

David Croll (L-Toronto Spadina) urged the Prime Minister to call a general election and place the issue before the people. The "Tories would not return enough members to occupy a telephone booth. . ."

No Evidence Given Claim

Hon. Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe) a cabinet minister in the last Conservative government, said the prime minister was playing with the government's legislation like a small boy with a shot-gun.

The prime minister did not know whether the gun would go off or what it would do if it did go off.

J.M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto-Greenwood) said no evidence had been given to show that the legislation would reduce prices.

Mr. St. Laurent said he still does not think the bill will have "very much" effect on the official cost-of-living index. But he does feel that any effect it will have will be "towards a reduction of some of those prices and toward the prevention of an upward surge of prices."

Mr. Garson said experience in the United States had shown that prices were lower in states where resale price maintenance was not permitted.

Mr. Drew said there should be some balance between rigid prices and unrestrained, cut-throat competition. Mr. St. Laurent replied that the legislation was a "concrete measure to free the retail trade of Canada from the shackles imposed upon them, not by parliament, not by a public authority, but by small groups of producers of the commodities they handle."

C. W. Hodgson (PC—Victoria, Ont.) said he had received only one letter in support of the government's legislation. It was from H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said the people, by and large, were opposed to manufacturers having the right to dictate the retail prices of their goods.

Against Closure Rule

In urging the prime minister to call a general election, Mr. Croll, one-time member of the Ontario cabinet, said the Progressive Conservatives had been guilty of a display of "delay filibuster and obstructionist tactics."

But he did not think it was wise to apply the rule of closure—the drastic parliamentary rule to cut off debate —as the prime minister had suggested last week It was better to "let them talk" because the people were becoming aware of the issue involved.

The consumer was aware that the Liberals were trying to do something for them and the Progressive Conservatives were trying to stop it.

"My own thought is that when we come back after New Year's the prime minister ought to make an issue of this bill. At that particular time, he ought to bring down a budget.

"There is nothing I would like better than to go to the country on this particular issue. . . this was the first clear issue I have seen in years."

Proposed Hydrogen-Bomb Plant in United States Will Be Modeled After Canada's

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of stories on Canada's atomic-energy project. It is written by an American reporter with an eye to the project's possible importance in relation to United States developments.)

By FRANK CAREY
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

Chalk River, Ont. — (AP) — There is circumstantial evidence that the model for the United States' proposed hydrogen-bomb plant is here in Canada.

Canada's own atomic project is described by Dominion scientists as concerned only with peacetime applications of the atom. But the heart of this 100-building project is a reactor — or atomic furnace — which is unique among all known atomic furnaces in the world.

American atomic officials have stated that "the reactor of most advanced design and performance is in Canada."

Key difference between Canada's "furnace" and the principal ones so far announced by the United States is:

The Canadian device employs "heavy water" as a material for sustaining a controlled chain reaction in a pile of uranium — thereby making possible the production of atomic energy by the uranium fuel.

In contrast, the principal known American reactors employ graphite, a form of carbon, for the same purpose. But heavy water does the job faster.

In any atomic furnace, you can make materials that could be used in A-bombs, and theoretically at least, in H-bombs.

A-bomb material would be plutonium, made from uranium 238.

H-bomb material would be tritium—a form of heavy hydrogen—which can be made by exposing lithium to atomic neutrons in an atomic furnace.

But, whether plutonium and tritium are made simultaneously, or separately in a furnace, each is made at the sacrifice of the other.

The production of each depends upon neutrons, or atomic rays, within the furnace. If you use a given number of neutrons to make plutonium, you have that many less for making tritium—and vice versa.

Canada's "heavy water" reactor has more neutrons available for doing certain atomic jobs than are available in any other known reactor in the world.

In a tour this reporter made of Canada's project, and in supplementary interviews with atomic officials at Ottawa, no Canadian intimated that the United States will concentrate on heavy water reactors at the H-bomb plant.

But there is suggestive evidence that Canada's device may be the model for the new American project.

Thus, for a given amount of uranium as your starting fuel, you could produce plutonium and tritium faster than you could with the same amount of uranium in a graphite pile.

Canada is making small quantities of plutonium in its existing reactor. But Canadian scientists say they have no plans to produce big quantities.

The United States has made it plain that its objective is to keep in the forefront in the production of materials useful in A-bombs, H-bombs and for potential power purposes.

Thus, Canada's fast-stepping reactor on the pine-studded shore of the Ottawa River may well be slated for duplication in the United States' hush-hush plant near South Carolina's Savannah River where the future of the H-bomb rests.

HOLLOWAY UNITED F.C.

The December meeting of the Fellowship Club of Holloway Street Church was held in the church parlor with Mrs. William Anderson, president, taking charge of the business portion.

Following this, the Young People's Auxiliary joined the Fellowship Club, taking the devotional period under the direction of Mrs. Regensburg's group with Mesdames C. Hitchon, T. A. Tucker, O. Wagar and G. McFarlane taking part.

A number of carols were sung, after which the auxiliary served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

WEDDINGS

HAWKSBEE—McMULLEN

Colborne United Church was the setting for the wedding of Lillian Yvonne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McMullen of Colborne, formerly of Belleville, to Mr. William Alexander Hawksbee, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hawksbee of Listowel. Rev. M. Redvers Brown officiated.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of chantilly lace over white satin, the tight bodice designed with a low scalloped neckline and long pointed sleeves. Her long trailing veil of illusion tulle was held by a matching headdress and she carried a cascade of red roses.

Mrs. Robert Otto attended her sister as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Misses June and Joan Byers, Barbara Babbit and Carolyn McMullen. They wore strapless gowns of green velvet, with matching caps, and carried white muffs trimmed with holly. The bride's brother, Mr. Teddy McMullen, was ring-bearer.

Groomsman was Mr. Arthur Brown of Toronto, and ushers were the bride's brothers, Messrs. Harvard and Robert McMullen, Kenneth House and Robert Otto.

The reception was at Loughbreeze, home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received the guests in a dress of royal blue, with black accessories, and the groom's mother was in navy, with accessories to match. Mr. and Mrs. Hawksbee will live in Toronto.

WANT MORE MONEY

Cairo, Dec. 28 — (AP) — The United Nations Relief Agency for Arab refugees is asking for additional $7,000,000 for its current year's budget, Director John B. Blanford said yesterday. To feed and house 800,000 refugees who lost their homes in the fighting between Israel and her Arab neighbors would cost a total of $27,000,000 for the year, he said.

ALL - CARGO SERVICE

London, Dec. 28 — (Reuters)— Pan American Airways will inaugurate the fastest Transatlantic all-cargo service Jan. 5 with a fleet of Douglas DC-6A Liftmasters, Vice-president R. Harris announced yesterday. The Liftmasters, which cruise at 300 miles an hour, will provide for the first time pressurized cargo aircraft capable of carrying shipments of animals and perishable goods.

Short Evening Dress Choice Of Smart Women

London, Dec. 28 (CP) — The party craze for smart women this festive season is the short evening dress.

Since Princess Elizabeth showed a preference for the shorter style during the Canadian tour and Princess Margaret followed suit on her recent trip to Paris, the seal has been set on ballet-length styles for chic, sophisticated wear.

Not only that, but Norman Hartnell is already designing a number of ballet-length dresses for Princess Elizabeth's tour of Australia and New Zealand next spring.

News available on spring styles to be shown in late January by London's Big Ten of fashion, gives indication that the short evening dress is the latest thing.

For those whose dress bill generally runs into the three-figure bracket for one number, short dresses make up for their lack of length and bulk in fabulously-rich brocades and exquisite jewel embroidery.

For the woman who often leaves the office already dressed for a date, short dresses save time and money. She can, for instance, turn up in a slim, dark grosgrain dress with a tiny, decorous bolero that can be removed to ensure a glamorous appearance.

These dresses costing about £8 have strapless tops with lace or embroidery trimmings.

Many of the latest top-rank couture designs have subtle, muted toning lighted by exquisite jewel embroidery, and a prominent feature is the undernote of numerous rustling petticoats that give a soft, frou-frou effect.

A foremost choice for a cool spring evening and cold winter nights is a wide, swing ballet skirt in gleaming quilted satin, combined with dark evening sweater in smooth wool with glamorous edging or embroidery.

The wide skirts and the feminine appeal of the new "petticoat era" bring their own fashion notes in accessories. Shoes must be light, composed entirely of narrow straps, or suitably bejewelled. The prim look to most of the double-purpose dresses gives rise to such ornaments as jewelled flowers at neck and wrist.

Fashion Flashes

SOFTENING touches that are very interesting mark many of the suits being readied for Spring. A light worsted is used for a pretty suit, the brief jacket marked by seaming on either side of the nipped-in waist and half circle overlaps on the arched, rounded hips. Double-breasted closing continues to be marked by buttons to below the waist. The high collar is hand-picked. Six-gored skirt.

Christmas Concerts

WHITE'S CHURCH S.S.

White's District — On Wednesday evening, the children of White's Sunday School put on a Christmas entertainment assisted by Miss Lillian Cunningham of Johnstown, who gave an entertaining reading and Mrs. Benson Bonisteel who contributed a Christmas reading.

Mr. Harold Gooding of Wesley Church showed three films of pictures which were enjoyed by young and old.

Program

The entertainment opened with the Rev. A. C. McCallum as chairman and with his usual Irish wit he introduced each number which consisted of choruses, readings, solos, and instrumentals as follows:

Chorus, "Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer"; recitation, "Christmas Thoughts of a Little Girl", by Marilyn Bowers; piano solo, Bruce Hunt; recitation, "Old Santa", by Bruce Duffee; duet, "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks" by Misses Barbara and Joan Shoemaker; recitation, "The Meaning of Christmas" by Donald Bowers; recitation by John Hunt; solo, "Dear Little Stranger" by Donald Bowers; recitation, "A Little Star" by Anne Blong; recitation, "Happy Thoughts" by Gail Gingras; recitation, "Twas the Night Before Christmas" by Heather MacKenzie; "Away in a Manger" and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" were sung by all; chorus, "Here Comes Santa", announced the arrival of Santa who with some of the boys as helpers distributed gifts for all the boys and girls and grown-ups as well. Even the minister was not forgotten. Old Santa remembered each child with a bag of goodies.

Attendance prizes were received by Sylvia Bilham and Marilyn Bowers. The gaily decorated tree added a festive touch. Old Santa departed and all joined in singing "God Save The King".

ST. PAUL'S ANGLICAN S.S.

Marmora — the annual Christmas party in connection with St. Paul's Anglican Sunday school was held in the parish hall on Friday evening. Ladies of the congregation donated and served an appetizing supper to the scholars and children of pre-Sunday school age with several parents also participating.

Following "musical chairs", an annual event at this party, some carols were sung. "Would Santa Claus come in such weather?" was the question of more than one child. But Santa arrived and received a warm greeting.

After a few little stunts he assisted Canon J. M. Brownlie and the teachers in the distribution of gifts, prizes, oranges and candy.

WHITE SCHOOL HOUSE

Marmora — The White school house in Marmora township on Friday evening, illuminated with the electricity installed this past year, was the scene of a fine Christmas entertainment rendered by its pupils.

Rarely has a teacher to face such eleventh hour handicaps as Miss Verna Black had confronting her the morning of the day. The heavy snow blocking the old Marmora-Madoc road presented a difficulty which later Louis Hulsmans, one of the parents of her scholars, kindly looked after with a plough and a team that had been enjoying a lengthy vacation. And there were also other adverse circumstances met by the teacher and her well-wishers.

As the program started, Miss Black felt some compensation for her many labors in seeing a nicely filled school.

Climaxing an appropriate and varied program was the arrival of Santa Claus who took over upon entering the portals. From a well-laden tree with the assistance of senior boy scholars, Santa superintended the distribution of gifts and special prizes and later the treats.

With real gusto the audience sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" in retaliation for which he had young and old alike singing "For She's a Jolly Good Teacher".

S.S. No. 17, TYENDINAGA

Recently 'mid beautiful Christmas decorations a very large crowd comprised of the parents and friends of the pupils, spent a most enjoyable evening at a Christmas program presented by the teacher and the pupils of S.S. No. 17 Tyndinaga.

Eyes were opened in amazement and wonder at the little children who played their parts like young men and women.

From the opening chorus of "O Come All Ye Faithful" to the closing number "Here Comes Santa Claus", all felt that Mrs. Reilly, the music teacher, must be giving the pupils a wonderful training in music.

The teacher, Miss Theresa Thompson, is to be congratulated for presenting a program so interesting and so well organized in her first year of teaching.

After a visit from St. Nick and the distribution of gifts and candy all left feeling that it had been a most enjoyable evening.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

Marmora — Marmora public school closed on Friday noon for the Christmas vacation. The primary room of which Mrs. E. Manchester is the teacher had a splendid program as befitting the age of the scholars.

Santa Claus appeared to contribute to the entertainment and to hear two choruses sung in his honor. He assisted with the distribution of gifts and that of candy and oranges which followed. He also made a brief appearance to another room in the school where scholars of other grades combined in the presentation of a fine program for which scholars had been trained by their respective teachers.

WALLBRIDGE P. SCHOOL

Wallbridge—Despite the stormy night and roads almost impossible to drive, the Christmas tree concert was held in the Orange hall last Thursday night with a large attendance of children and parents.

The hall was pretty with trimming of Christmas time ornaments, the large Christmas tree with its lights all aglow and loaded with gifts. The teacher, Mrs. G. Rikley, with her scholars put on an enjoyable program, all taking their parts real well.

After the program, Old Santa came bounding in and distributed the presents and candy to the children. The proceeds for the evening were $26.

BROOKDALE PUBLIC SCHOOL

In spite of the stormy weather, a goodly number of parents and friends of S.S. No. 12 Sidney came to the school last Thursday evening to hear the annual Christmas program put on by the students.

Mr. Elmer Smith capably acted as chairman, while Miss Maxine Houlden was pianist for the evening and the teacher, Mrs. Albert Clare directed the following numbers:

Program

Opening carols, "There's a Song in the Air" and "The First Noel" followed by a welcome by Carl Smith. After a brief address by the chairman, Andy Carr favored with a recitation, "I Don't Want Much for Christmas". The juniors sang "Silent Night", then followed a comic dialogue entitled, "The Truth-Telling Machine". The six senior boys sang "Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer" followed by a recitation by Johnny Dudgeon; school chorus, "When Santa Claus Gets Your Letter"; a dialogue entitled, "St. Peter at the Golden Gate" was put on.

During a short intermission two films were shown.

The senior girls sang "Carol, Sweetly Carol" and Marlen Houlden recited "A Visit From St. Nicholas"; Ann Farmer and Joanne Purvis sang as a duet "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas". A piano solo by Marilyn Phillips was followed by "The Christmas Story in Song and Verse".

In this number several recitations and carols told the story of Christ's birth.

A silver collection was taken.

The children saw Santa go by the window and started to sing "Here Comes Santa Claus". He stopped in for a while and distributed gifts and candy to all the children.

Those taking part were:

Grade VII — John Copeland, Glenn Houlden, Rinze de Haas, Cathie Donald (ill).

Grade VI—Howard Frost, Joanne Purvis, Ann Farmer, Pearl Dodds, Connie Elliott.

Grade V—Andy Carr, Sandra Purvis, Marlene Houlden, Dorothy Mae Carr, David Ross, Maria de Haas.

Grade IV—Francis Frost, Dorothy Brown, Marilyn Phillips, Gordon Smith, Gidi Van Will.

Grade III—Carl Smith, David Faul, Margaret Carr, John Van Will.

Grade II—Arlene Dodds, Johnny Dudgeon, Judy Hatfield, Arnold Dodds, Isobel Carr, Evan Jones.

Grade I—Helen Henry, Anne de Haas.

Teacher—D. Clare.

Marmora — Marmora Separate School and Deloro Separate School joined in presenting a pleasing Christmas concert in the Sacred Heart Hall on Thursday evening. Mr. Thomas Brawley of Deloro ably acted as chairman.

The teaching staffs responsible for the splendid training of the children were Mrs. Bernard Doyle and Miss F. Auger of Marmora Separate School and Miss Cecelia Townes of Deloro Separate School. Mrs. J. Black was accompanist for the musical numbers.

Following is the program:

"God Save the King"; chairman's address; "Welcome" by Barbara Brawley; play, "The Practical Test"; chorus, "Frosty the Snow Man"; play, "The Christmas Party" in two acts; star drill by Deloro school; recitation by Carol McCrodan; play, "What Happened to Brown"; piano selection, Theresa Clairmont; Rhythm Band; skit, "The Evil Men Do, Lives After Them"; chorus, Deloro school; acrostic, "The Wolf and the Seven Kids"; drill, Marmora school; song, Susan Callery; play, "Wanted, a Housekeeper"; The Christmas Star, Marmora school girls; guitar selection, Clayton Burke; recitation, Bernie Lajoie; song, "Old Black Joe", Jackie Black; play, "Sparkin' Mary Jane"; dance, the Highland Fling; play without words, "Too Short On One End"; song, "Sweet Bells of Christmas"; recitation, Danny Shannon; reading, "Tonight".

At the close of the program, Santa Claus arrived and gifts were distributed from the gaily decorated tree.

TRINITY CHURCH

Madoc—Trinity United Church Sunday School, Madoc, held their annual Sunday school tree and concert on Friday night with a full house of parents and friends. The following is the program:

Christmas carols, Mrs. Ida Hulin; word of welcome, W. E. Gordon, superintendent; opening chorus (everyone on stage), "Merry Bells"; "Tell the Sweet Old Story"; song by beginners class; "Frosty the Snow Man"; recitations by beginners, Charlotte Dafoe, Patsy Kincaid, Beverly Duffin, Margaret Murray and Brenda Taylor; songs by primary boys, "Thirty-two Feet and Eight Little Tails of White", "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer"; dialogue, junior boys, "The Boys' Rights"; carols, Mrs. Ida Hulin; dialogue, junior boys, "The Colored Santa"; piano solo, Donna Devolin; play, junior girls, "One Candle"; recitation, Carol Wilson, "This Year's Request"; play, junior girls, "Fairy Good Cheer"; recitation, Clifford Derry, "The Trail of the Rattler"; drum majorette drill, primary girls; play, senior girls, "Christmas at Woodchuck Hollow School"; a word of thanks to the teachers and all who helped, W. E. Gordon, superintendent; "God Save the King"; Santa arrives.

Rev. J. F. Lane and the audience showed their appreciation by a hearty hand-clap for the superintendent, teachers and assistants for the splendid entertainment.

WELLMAN'S SUNDAY SCHOOL

Wellman's United Church was nicely decorated with Christmas garlands and a pretty tree for the annual Sunday school concert. The superintendent, Mr. F. Beckett and the teachers of the various classes helped to make the evening a success. The pastor, Rev. R. R. Bonsteel, was master of ceremonies.

Mrs. G. Watson's class sang two choruses, "White Christmas" and "Deck the Hall"; Master Jimmie Chumbley recited "Christmas Customs in Other Lands" and Mr. Charles Nix was heard in the recitation of "The Night Before Christmas".

Misses Yvonne King and Mildred Morton gave a duet entitled "Christmas Bells" and each young lady wore a set of bells on her wrist and rang these at various intervals in tune with the music; Misses Janet and Jean Tompkins sang "Beautiful Christmas Star"; Misses Annie and Margaret Dracup were heard in "Silent Night"; Mrs. G. Watson and Mrs. L. Watson sang "A Christmas Melody".

Four girls of Miss Ruth Clancy's class delighted with "Jingle Bells" The girls were Misses Bonna Dracup, Carol Beckett, Lois Morton and Janet Heagle.

Piano Duet

Misses Muriel and Mildred Morton rendered a piano duet, and Miss Nancy Chumbley sang "The Christmas Story"; Mrs. B. Morton gave the story "Why the Chimes Rang."

Mr. J. Rainie conducted a quiz on Christmas between the students of two classes taught by Mrs. B. Morton and Mrs. L. Pollock and the latter group were pronounced the winner by a narrow margin.

Carol singing interspersed the program and Messrs. C. Watson and J. Rainie sang "We Three Kings of the Orient Are".

Mrs. L. Pollock gave the Christmas story of the birth of Christ on her View Master projector.

At the close of the concert each child was given a bag of candy and other treats and the gifts were distributed from the tree.

ST. GEORGE'S S.S.

The annual Christmas concert of St. George's Sunday School, Station Street, was well attended by parents, friends and children, with Canon J. B. Creeggan presiding as chairman.

The following program was greatly enjoyed, and well presented: "Christmas," by Marjorie Stapley's class; recitation by Karen Tebworth; recitation, "The Stars," by Patsy Scrymgeour; "Away in a Manger," by the kindergarten; two piano selections, by Karen Tebworth; "Frosty, the Snowman," by Rickey Adams; recitation by Judy Walt; "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer," by Sharon Patrick; "Frosty the Snowman," by Penny Simmons; "Here Comes Santa Claus," by Miss Stapley's class; "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," sung by Marjorie Stapley with Ken at the guitar; accordion solo by Grace Calvert; Mrs. Diment's class with two boys from Mrs. Markle's class singing "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer; "Deck the Halls," by Gloria Scotti; "Silent Night", by Lillian Stapley's class; solo "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by Jacqueline Bull; solo, "White Christmas," by Gloria Scotti.

A play entitled "Christmas Eve," was given by Marion Stapley's class, followed by two pupils of Barbara Diment, Gail Tremaine and Linda Lennox, who entertained with tap dancing including roller tap and toe tap; duet, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by Beryl Wagar and Pat Squires; duet "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks," by June Freeman and Betty Heslip; George Gulliver and his accordion; song medley by Ken Stapley and Marjorie Stapley; duet "Angels We Have Heard on High," by Marilyn Little and Gail Bowers; recitation by Gloria Scotti of the Christmas Story as told in the Bible; song "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by Joanne Atkinson's class, consisting of five girls who formed a star; "The Christmas Shoppers" by Mr. Arthur's class which depicted quite realistically the Christmas rush.

Following the completion of the program, Santa Claus arrived and distributed the many gifts, oranges and candy to the children.

STARS STOLEN

London, Dec. 28 — (AP) Three understudies were given a chance today to take top billing at the circus — and they hopped at it. The stars they replaced had been stolen along with their chariots, police reported. The flea circus proprietor has offered a £10 reward for the missing performers.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

New Year's Day . . . Let's give a party!

New Year's Day . . . and hospitality is in the air. It's Open House for friendliness to step in. Or it's an Eggnog Party, the traditional party for this day. Or it's a welcoming Tea-party. Very often it's the day for the big party of the year. . .bidding farewell to the old year, greeting the new year with a high-hearted salute. A wonderful reunion of the family's relatives and friends —neighbors too, perhaps. A grand way to pay off an accumulation of social indebtedness. . . to give a bright social start to the new year.

Going to give an Eggnog Party? If so, and you haven't an ancestral recipe for this delectable feature-of-the-party, you'll be able to find a friend or a cookbook to share a tried-and-true recipe with you. If you haven't time or inclination to dramatize this rite of making the eggnog, you can buy your supply from your grocer, and serve it as is or added-to, as your taste suggests.

With the eggnog please don't serve sweet accessories only. (Even though there is left so much of that fruit cake you got for Christmas!) Beaten biscuits are the traditional and most successful food-companions. Their blandness is perfect with the sweetness of the eggnog. You can make the beaten biscuits, or buy them packaged. For the traditional extra-added-attraction, split the biscuits, butter them thinly, oven-heat, and insert slivers of Virginia ham. Or, if you prefer, insert the slivers of ham in tiny hot (or thoroughly heated) tea-biscuits or finger rolls. Or serve very small, very slim bread-and-butter sandwiches, with or without the ham. Or heated crackers, definitely not sweet. Salted nuts are another appropriate accessory.

Eggnog Alternative

Thoughtful is the hostess who serves an alternative to eggnog. Most hostesses set a "double feature" table. The eggnog service . . . .punch bowl and small glasses on a large tray. . . at one end of the buffet table or tea table, and the tea or coffee service at the opposite end. For the tea or coffee enthusiasts, simple sandwiches, slices of fruit cake or plain cake, and/or festive Christmas cookies.

Or if an eggnog party is not your dish, invite your friends to "Open House" or "Tea" or just to a "New Year's Day Party". Have the tea service at one end of the table, the coffee service opposite. . . or, for either, substitute punch or whatever-is-your preference.

If it's a cold, cold day, you might follow the bright idea of some smart hostesses. . .set forth on the buffet table a large covered tureen of steaming-hot borsch soup (appropriately gala color, this) or delicious chicken or clam brother, to o be served in bouillon cups or tea cups. Plenty of salty crackers, thoroughly heated. (Or, if you prefer, serve the soup or broth in cups in the kitchen and pass these on a tray.)

Setting your New Year's table gives you a fine chance to express yourself glamorously—with imagination, ingenuity. Cover your table with your prettiest cloth; or use a simple cloth and sprinkle it generously withe glistening bits of Christmas sparkle. Red, green, gold, silver. Let your centrepiece sing with color. . . a hug dish of adiant, vari-colored (or all one color) Christmas tree balls or other ornaments will do the trick charmingly. Or a big cluster of gay balloons, later to be merrily released. Or a silver or white-glass or crystal bowl filled with holly and mistletoe or poissettia; the base surrounded with garlands of pert, rosy-cheeked lady apples. Or make a star-design by filling a big colored bowl with white popcorn balls with radiating ribbons of vari-colored metallic paper, starting from under the bowl and covering the top of the table. Arrange your serving-dishes on the table with a sure sense of orderly balance and convenience-to-the-guests. You'll save space and add to convenience if you move your table, either in dining-room or living-room, against a wall. And, if possible, have your table candle-lighted, glowing hospitable welcome to your guests. . .and to a "Happy New Year!"

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

(A recipe for Parsnip Wine was requested by telephone by one of our readers.)

ANSWER:

PARSNIP WINE
(Malmsley Wine)

Slice 4 lbs. pared fine sound parsnips into 1 gallon of boiling water and boil until tender. When cold strain and press. Measure strained liquid. To 1 gallon add one-half ounce cream of tartar, and 3 lbs. best quality white sugar. Allow this to ferment in loosely bunged wine cask, and when fermentation has ceased siphon wine off and add to 1 gallon, 8 ounces best quality brandy. Put into bottles which are perfectly clean, through funnel, and cork them and keep cool until needed for use. Wine should age at least 1 year to be at its best.

QUESTION:

I have a little girl who is 6 years of age. She weights 90 lbs. Would you please write out a diet for me for her.—Mrs. H. T.

ANSWER:

I hate to be disappointing, but what you need is the doctor's advice. Please go to the doctor at once with the overweight child to see if she has a glandular abnormality. It may mean that it can be treated while she is very young and give her a much happier girlhood. If she is overweight from overeating the doctor will tell you that. I am sending you my calorie chart. From it you can calculate how many calories she is eating at present. If the doctor says she is to reduce you can calculate what foods she can have that would reduce the calorie count. However be sure you do not stint on eggs, meat, fish or skim milk, and all of the fresh fruits and fresh vegetables. The doctor will probably tell you to cut out all cake, pie, pudding, cookies, fats, gravies, candy, ice cream ,gum. On a carefully planned protein fruit, and vegetable diet your daughter's health will doubtless flourish.

QUESTION:

I enjoy your column so much and have tried many of your recipes. Will you please print some of your savoury fillings suitable for Bouchees.—A. T. S.

ANSWER:

You may use any creamed meat or fish or fowl mixture in bouchees. The white sauce must be especially thick.

I like the following mixture and use it often for bouchees. Other interested readers might like to be reminded that bouchees are very small "cream puff" cases, made from the same "choux paste" that cream puffs are, but very small, and slit or scooped out at the top to receive the savoury meat mixture.

BOUCHEE FILLING

CHICKEN HOLLANDAISE

Saute 1 teaspoon finely chopped onion in 1 1-2 tablespoons butter until onion is soaked with the butter but not at all brown. Add 2 tablespoons cornstarch and 1 cup chicken stock (or canned bouillon or strained chicken soup), and stir until thick. Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 1-4 cup very finely chopped celery, 1-4 teaspoon salt, shake of paprika, 1 cup very finely diced cooked chicken; then stir in 1 beaten egg yolk. Stir over boiling water for about 2 minutes. Serve hot in bouchees which have been slit or from which a slice has been cut at top. (This mixture is delicious in puff pastry patties or on toast.)

When we were in Halifax we were served bouchees filled with two tiny oysters which had been friend in deep fat. They were piping hot and it was a delicious morsel.

Lobster, shrimp, crab and tuna, and of course turkey, could be made into a rich cream sauce; very thick, and well-flavored as the chicken hollandaise above is and used for variations.

Fashion Flashes

FIRMLY ENTRENCHED as a fine fashion is the ensemble, sometimes a coat, sometimes a jacket or cape, with dress or suit. Reader for Spring is a simple dress of thin woollen in light mauve, with a reversible cape stole of fleecy wool dyed the same tone and lined with the dress fabric.

ALL SET for a country house evening is a voluminous skirt of white felt with an apron effect in front described by black Chantilly-type lace and velvet ribbon. With it a black velvet top with brief sleeves and a neckline cut in point.

DAINTY trimming marks a series of hats designed to spice up Winter wardrobes. An off-white fur felt rocker bonnet is trimmed with a simple red velvet rose on which is perched a "butterfly" in gold thread and sequins. With it is a sheer veiling bordered with a tracery of gold thread butterflies.

WAITING for baby to arrivo finds mothers-to-be clothed in such pretty maternity fashions. A charming suit, made up of interesting separates, is a long, flared cream colored faille jacket with indented collar and cuffs of black or dark brown velveteen. Matching velveteen skirt is flared and has a kick pleat in front below a double line of stitching that ends with an embroidered arrow.

GOOD THEATRE is a dinner dress of antique silk taffeta in a deep Parma violet shade. It has a draped, portrait neckline; a sweep of diagonal folds at the snug midriff open into a loose panel over the short skirt.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Better wait till this man is free

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a widow, and recently happened to meet a man I had known for a long time. In the years since I had seen him, I knew he had been married and was divorced. He also knew that I was a widow. He asked me to go for a ride, and I went.

Shortly after that, his work took him away to another state, and I received two letters from him, which I answered. In his third letter, he told me that while he had married again after his divorce he wasn't living with his second wife. I didn't answer that letter, and he wrote again telling me that his wife was divorcing him and asking me to write.

Shall I write to him, or not bother answering his letters?—T. W.

Dear T.W.:—Whether or not you wish to keep in touch with this man would depend, first, I think, on how interested you are in him, and second, on how much you are in need of male acquaintances. He doesn't sound to me like a man about whom any woman would care to get serious very quickly.

If you feel you want to see him again, however, there would be no harm in your dropping him a note that would indicate this. I'd make it very casual, however, if I were you, simply saying that you are sorry he has had so much trouble, and that you hope things will straighten out for him eventually. This should let him know you have a friendly feeling toward him, in case he wants to get in touch with you again, but doesn't suggest that you are in a frantic rush to see more of him. To my way of thinking, the less you see of him the better until after he has settled his tangled affairs, at least.

Promote this friendship slowly or, better, not at all

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a man 43 years old while I'm still in my 20's. He tells me he's in love with me and that he wants to take me with him to another state as soon as he saves enough money.

Although I've only been out with him once, I've known him for seven months, and I've never felt this way about any other man. He works most of the time and says that's why he doesn't go out any more than he does.

Do you think that many years difference in our ages matters? —E. L.

Dear E.L.:—If I were your mother, I would not be nearly so concerned about the difference in your ages, as I would about whether or not this man's intentions towards you are all they should be.

What do you mean, he wants to take you to another state? Has he said he wants to marry you, and if so, why should he take you out of your own state to do so?

Having been out with this man just once, you're in no position to judge what sort of person he is. All I can say to you is that you had better be careful indeed about pursuing any friendship with this 43-year-old acquaintance, and if you want my frank opinion, you'd be wiser to decline any invitation of his to go out with him again.

Foundation Garment is a Figure Bracer

Those poor weak women — weak of will, we mean—who cannot resist the cream puffs, and the other good things of the table that put on the billows and the bulges, can find help in the selection of a well-fitted foundation garment. Designers of these body molders have a big bag of tricks and deserve a vote of thanks. But it takes an experienced corsetiere to select the right model.

Makers of modern corsets offer many items. A single manufacturer will produce as many as one hundred models a season The feminine frame comes in varied forms. Each one calls for a special harness. Even with many models from which to choose, there may be need of alterations. So, if you are a heavyweight and would hide your curves, seek out a specialist who knows her business.

One woman may need only a cleverly fitted girdle. Another will find no improvement in her lines unless the garment is heavily boned. Still others require wide girdles and brassieres instead of the one-piece garment, usually recommended for ladies who have taken on more weight than they should carry.

It often happens that women of normal weight and proportions develop a tummy shelf through incorrect posture and sloppy carriages. The abdominal muscles have gone slack. They should have support, since weak muscles in that area of the feminine frame may mean that the internal organs will drop out of place. A well-fitted girdle will not only make them look better but will contribute to a sense of well-being.

Physicians who give advice concerning the treatment of the pendulous abdomen frequently recommend the wearing of a surgical corset. It laces in the back. The strings can be so arranged that the muscles are lifted to the position where they naturally belong.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

If you can't resist cream puffs, you can find help in a well-fitted foundation garment

A writer in Hygeia, health magazine of the American Medical Association, says "Proper support from well-fitted foundation garments which tend to hold the abdomen in place, thus relieving the burden on the spine, enables a woman past 30 to keep her posture youthfully erect and to do physical work without tiring readily."

Of course, if women exercised daily, they would grow their own corsets. But exercise does not appeal to the majority. The homebody claims she gets more exercise than she needs. But drudgery isn't exercise, and housework is exactly that to many women.

PETES BACK TONIGHT!

Coach "Red" Doran of the Hawk squads hereabouts is keeping four sets of fingers crossed, an unspoken prayer on his lips, an eye on the calender and hoping that the injury gremlin that has parked on the senior squad's trailer the last three or four weeks has called it a day.

"It ain't funny, McGee". Jerry Desjardins is out with a triple fracture of a leg and is likely through for the season. Trumble is nursing a badly injured leg. There are various cuts, bruises and stitches adorning various parts of the anatomies of several other players — and a stiff schedule looming over the horizon.

Now, to add to the skull pains of the coach comes word that Lefort may not be in the nets tonight. The stocky goalkeeper, it appears, aggravated an old groin injury Wednesday night in Peterborough and yesterday he was not feeling so good. He did not turn out for practice last night.

The Hawks had only two defencemen in the Petes clash with Doran and Vern Geyer giving the regulars a breather. "Nobber" Day took a turn behind the blueline and turned in a creditable performance. But there was lack of reserve power and that may have told the tale. The Hawks put up a rousing fight despite injury-riddled ranks and they'll be out there tonight determined to get back the two points snatched by the Petes Wed. gloaming.

AT LAST:

Don't look now but the Kingston Essanays will be here to match sticks and strides with the Hawks come next Wednesday night. And pretty near time at that. Some veteran fans were beginning to wonder if this senior group had resolved itself into a strictly Belleville-Peterborough series since the last ten games both home and away have been strictly with both Peterborough teams. The Kingston laddybucks are as tough as either of the Peterborough teams and at the moment they're sitting rather prettily in third slot just two points behind the Hawks. They tangle with the Eagles tonight in Kingston and an Eagles win coupled with one for the Hawks will see two-way ties in both first and second slots. What a group. It's every man for himself with the divil takin' the hindmost from here in.

The Hawks actually face the harder toll since it looks from here as if both Tommy Schreider and Desjardins are lost to them for the season. And if Lefort goes under it may be a case for replacements. However Coach Doran is hoping that the husky "Maureese" will be back in action ce soir.

LONG WAY ROUND!

Some time ago Bill Lockyer, who always has an eye for the good of the sports kids, wrote Bob Feller inviting him to come here as a special guest for the baseball "do" last fall. Nothing came of it until yesterday when Bill received a card from the Cleveland Indians' star from far-off Honolulu. Seems as though Locker's letter addressed to the Cleveland Baseball Club followed Feller half-way across the world and just caught up with him a few days ago.

Feller said he had just received the letter and apologized for the mix-up. "Had I known at the time I would gladly have come to your city", he wrote.

LALONDE LEADS 'EM

According to the junior Hawk's demon statistician, young Master Hector Lalonde is quite a hockey player, taking the word for it's all-round meaning. The dapper youngster from North Bay, one of the smoothest players to show his wares in a Belleville uniform for some time, not only bangs 'em in, but knocks 'em down, if we read the figures correctly. He has piled up a point total of 28 composed of 14 goals and an equal number of assists, while his aggressive play and unwillingness to back up from a much more rugged player, or so it would seem have earned for him quite a lengthy session in the bin of atonement. Todate he has amassed 58 minutes in the hoosegow. As a matter of fact, Lalonde tops the junior "B" group in all departments.

Billy Strahan and George Jacklin, Lalonde's line - mates string along with him, both having acquired 21 points, which marks them as being one of the most effective lines in the group. It is doubtful if there is a line that is faster, or a better cooler stickhandler than Lalonde. It is extremely doubtful if the good-looking youngster is around these parts another year, in a hockey capacity at least.

The Hawks as a team have piled up an enviable record, scoring 78 goals in ten games or nearly eight goals per pastime. Not bad in any man's league. At the same time the team has spent 259 minutes in durance vile, and that is a record, or nearly one, in itself.

Defeats Vic Seixas of U.S. In Fifth and Deciding Match To Retain Cup by 3-2 Margin

By GAYLE TALBOT

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 28 — (AP)—In one of the most magnificent exhibitions of tennis ever seen in any country, Frank Sedgman today completed his job of crushing the United States Davis Cup team.

With issue still in balance in the fifth and deciding match of the challenge round, the young blonde Aussie ace sliced Vic Seixas into ribbons, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, to retain the coveted cup for his country, three matches to two.

Ted Schroeder had kept the challengers in the running by handing Mervyn Rose his second straight set defeat, 6-4, 13—11, 7-5. The Americans at least proved they are champions of Rose.

The third straight capacity crowd of 15,300 at the White City Stadium gave a five-minute roar of triumph after Sedgman nearly knocked Seixas' racquet from his hand with his unreturnable service for final point.

They remained standing for another 20 minutes while Prime Minister Robert Menzies presented the trophy to the winners in a midcourt ceremony. They [illegible] giving three cheers for both [illegible]

Australia was in the throes of a fine tennis binge tonight. Sedgman was the toast on every lip.

Not until they witnessed his flawless performances the last three days had the Australians quite realized what a truly great tennis player the Melbourne youngster has become.

Lost Only One Set

In defeating Schroeder on opening day, then joining Ken McGregor in the vital doubles victory over Schroeder and Tony Trabert yesterday and rending Seixas today, he lost only one set. That was to Schroeder after he led, two sets to none.

It appears certain Sedgman, called by the Prime Minister "one of the most complete champions any game ever produced" will turn professional sometime within the next year. If he does he will be worth anybody's money to see.

Seixas today played probably as good tennis as he ever played in 28 years. He fought valiantly for every point right to the end. Yet he never had a ghost of a chance against Sedgman.

Sedgman's service was terrific. He lost it only once in the opening set. His ground strokes were brilliant and so were his volleys. His sense of anticipation bordered on the occult.

He told the crowd through the microphone later "I surprised myself today. The ball just seemed to hit the lines without any help."

An hour and five minutes after the crowd settled itself tensely for the match that would decide the world team title, it was all over. The pattern was set in the first game when Seixas had to battle through five deuces to hold his service.

From there on he struggled in a lost cause.

Remember When

Dick Irvin, then captain of Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League, suffered a fractured skull in collision with Red Dutton or Montreal Maroons at Chicago 23 years ago tonight. That ended his playing career but the dean of Canadian N.H.L. coaches coached the Hawks in 1929, masterminded the Toronto Maple Leafs for 10 years and since 1941 has coached Montreal Canadiens.

Hurley Rejects Offer of I.B.C. For Title Fight

(By The Canadian Press)

Harry (Kid) Matthews' manager announced in Seattle last night his rejection of the International Boxing Club offer for a light-heavyweight title fight with Joey Maxim.

Manager Jack Hurley said he sent this wire to matchmaker Al Weill in New York:

"Date, terms and other dictates connected with Maxim offer rejected. Matthews will continue his independent campaign, your ultimatum notwithstanding."

Weill's "ultimatum" had been for Hurley to sign for the match by the end of this week or lose the chance.

Hurley, a canny man in the fight business, long has been at odds with the I.B.C. moguls who control big-time boxing in the east.

Weill announced Wednesday that he had jumped the terms of the offer to the Hurley-Matthews team to 20 per cent of the gate, from the original 15 per cent. He said the offer also included 20 per cent of any special television deal.

The board of directors of Philadelphia Athletics announced yesterday they have decided not to purchase the Ottawa franchise in the International League "at this time."

Marlene Stewart, 17-year-old golfing sensation from Fonthill, said yesterday she has accepted an invitation to play in the annual Tampa Women's Open championship in Florida next month.

Other golf notables who will participate include Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Patty Berg and the Bauer sisters.

Miss Stewart this year won the Ontario Junior, the Ontario Ladies', the Canadian Ladies' Closed and the Canadian Ladies' Open titles.

Cornelius V. Whitney, owner of Counterpoint, was named winner, yesterday, of the New York Turf Writers Association's award for service for the second time in 30 years the choice was unanimous.

The body of ruce Copeland, 63, formerly a sports writer of Boston and New York, was found in the grandstand area of the Idle Bay Meadows horse racing track yesterday at San Natio, Calif.

Deputy coroner Dan O'Connell said Copeland probably died of a heart attack, but an autopsy was to be performed.

H. P. Thompson, general manager of the Hamilton Tigers, said yesterday the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A club's attendance figures are 15 per cent above those of last season.

The Tigers are in third place in the six-team league after setting the pace throughout the opening part of the schedule.

Coach Frank Beisler led the 16 members of Syracuse Warriors professional hockey team off the ice in Syracuse yesterday to keep a date at Red Cross headquarters.

"They lost a little blood in losing to the Pittsburgh Hornets 4 to 3 last night, so they decided to give our corpuscles where they'd do some good," explained owner Eddie Shore.

Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League last night returned defenceman Jim Morrison to Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League. Morrison was brought up to fill in for the injured Murray Henderson and played 14 games for Boston.

Monte Irvin, top run producer for the pennant-winning New York Giants, yesterday signed his 1952 contract for an estimated $25,000 salary. The pay raise of almost 100 per cent is subject to approval by the wage stabilization board.

Hershey Bears Strengthen Hold On First Place

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears Thursday night strengthened their hold on top place in the American Hockey League's eastern division by defeating Providence Reds 4-2.

Indianapolis Capitals gave St. Louis Flyers their seventh straight setback by downing the Flyers 8-6 in the only other Thursday effort.

At Providence, Arnie Kullman paced the Hershey attack with two goals. Hershey led 2-1 in the first period, and after matching the Reds' tally in the second stanza, they went two up on Kullman's second goal early in the final.

Other Hershey scorers were Leo Labine and Frank Mario. Pete Kpusta and Jack Stoddard got the Providence goals.

At Indianapolis, Caps were leading 5-4 when forward Larry Wilson scored. St. Louis protested that the puck didn't enter the cage but referee Maurice Wals overruled it.

Indianapolis forward Bert Giesebrecht drew a major penalty just after the protested goal. He was charged with high sticking in the head, cutting off Cliff Simpson.

St. Louis defenceman Max Quackenbush drew a $25 misconduct fine for protesting another Walsh ruling. Indianapolis goalie Glenn Hall made a save and Quackenbush claimed it was a score.

Johnny Wilson, Lou Jankowski and Enio Sclisizzi each scored two goals for Indianapolis and Earl Reibel had one. Steve Wituik led the losers with three goals and Jackie Hamilton, Don Morrison and Gordie Pearson scored one each.

Russia and U.S. Meet First Time In Major Sports

New York, Dec. 28—(AP)—Russia and the United States moved closer today to their first major encounter in sports, but whether it would occur in the winter Olympic games in Oslo or not until the summer games at Helsinki are open to doubt.

Many world records have been claimed in Moscow but few athletes from behind the iron curtain have competed in the free world—and there have been some embarrassing desertions from the teams of Russia's satellites in such events as international tennis tournaments of the 1948 London Olympic games.

Russia has never competed in the Olympics, but it took another step in that direction when the Soviet Olympics committee decided in Moscow to inform Finland that a "preliminary agreement" had been reached to participate at Helsinki July 19-Aug. 3.

The Norwegians are generally convinced the Russians will show up for the games at Oslo Feb. 14-25. The United States is sending a team of 79 competitors to Oslo and the usual full Olympic team to Helsinki, probably 450.

Except for weight-lifting (in which the U. S. won the honors) and minor competition, Russia and America has never met head-on in athletics. Neither is rated with the Scandinavians in winter sports, but the United States has always dominated the summer games. Russia is strong in many branches of summer sports.

The strongest indication that the Russians mean to face the rest of the world in sports is given in newspaper editorials urging Soviet athletes to greater heights.

That means the Russians want to compete—and win.

Russia has until Jan. 1 to enter the winter games at Oslo, and probably even a belated entry would be accepted. The Soviets have some good speed skaters and possibly a few skiers.

Allan Stanley of Rangers Suffers Shoulder Separation And Poses Problem for Coach

(By The Canadian Press)

As if Frank Boucher and Bill Cook didn't have enough troubles with their New York Rangers' defence corps, now they have another. Who will they get to replace Allan Stanley?

The Blueshirt bodychecking association, one of the weakest departments on the fifth-place club throughout the opening sessions of the National Hockey League schedule, was just beginning to find itself during the team's last few games. They reached the top in stopping the league-leading Detroit Red Wings 1-0 Wednesday night, but in doing so lost the services of one of their stalwarts, Allan Stanley.

Stanley, a 25-year-old 185-pounder from Timmins, Ont., collided with the Wings' Bob Goldham midway through the second period and suffered a shoulder separation. He may be lost to the Blues for the remainder of the season.

Recently elected team captain, Stanley received emergency treatment in the Ranger dressing room and returned to the game. He was forced to call it quits after a minute of play and was taken to hospital where club physician Dr. Vincent Nardiello announced an operation would be necessary.

Stanley will be operated on tomorrow. Tissue will be taken from his leg and used to connect the separated bones in the shoulder. It could take 10 weeks to heal.

Tomorrow night the Rangers will use Lloyd Ailsby as a replacement for the injured Stanley. The 34-year-old veteran of the United States Hockey League St. Paul Saints will reinforce the Blues' defence for their game with the Canadiens in Montreal, but may not be able to appear in Sunday's New York game against Toronto Maple Leafs.

Currently Coaching

Ailsby has already appeared in two N. H. L. games this season and can play only three N. H. L. games to keep his amateur status. He is currently coaching the Rangers' New York Rover farm club which plays in the Eastern Hockey League.

Coach Bill Cook was despondent over the loss of Stanley, claiming he was the key to the whole outfit.

"He'll be hard to replace," he said. "We've got to get someone solid with major league experience."

In meeting Montreal tomorrow night, the Rangers will be facing a club which is at the moment in the midst of a red-hot streak. It will be a tough game for the weekend New Yorkers, but they may have an easier time against the Leafs Sunday.

Toronto, which entertains Boston Saturday before moving into New York, are in the midst of scenery changes. Johnny McLellan has been brought up from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League and Bob Solinger sent back to Pittsburgh.

Veteran goalie Turk Broda has also been ordered to get in playing shape and manager Conn Smythe intimated yesterday he was not satisfied with some of Al Rollins' recent games.

The only other weekend game will see last-place Chicago Black Hawks moving into Detroit for a Saturday-night game with the league-leading Red Wings.

Randy Turpin To Meet Buxton On February 12

London, Dec. 28 (AP)—Former world middleweight champion Randy Turpin will meet Alex Buxton of England, Feb. 12, in his first fight since losing the world crown to Sugar Ray Robinson.

The bout against Buxton, a 28-year-old Negro who has lost eight fights in six years, will be staged at London's Harringay arena, it was announced yesterday.

By signing for the Buxton match, Turpin risks losing his European middleweight title by forfeit.

The European Boxing Union has ordered him to defend against Laurent Dauthuille of France by the end of February.

Solinger Back To Pittsburgh

Toronto, Dec. 28 (CP)—Conn Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs, announced that Bobby Solinger is being returned to Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League.

He will be replaced by Johnny McLellan, former player with St. Michael's Majors and with Toronto Marlboros, Allan Cup winners in 1949.

McLellan will be used as an extra forward until Howie Meeker's knee is better.

GIVEN JAIL TERM

Niagara Falls, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Charles George Tann, alias G. G. Bradshaw, 21, of Ottawa, yesterday was sentenced to 2 ½ years in prison when he pleaded guilty to nine charges covering a one-man crime wave between here and Ottawa.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 28 (AP)—Probably it woudn't have affected the outcome of the Davis Cup matches, but if Bobby Riggs hadn't become so enthralled with golf, American tennis fans probably would see Frank Sedgman and Ken McGregor on the pro circuit this winter....Story, as we get it, was that Bobby reached a verbal agreement with the Australian stars last fall... They even decided on the opposition (Pancho Segura and Dick Gonzales), the guarantee ($55,000 for the pair) and the system of play (round robin)... Then suddenly Bobby decided there was more fun in chasing a golf ball around Florida courses than in promoting not-always-profitable tennis tours and let the whole matter drop . At least they managed to establish a competitive pattern for future Riggs tours, if any. Instead of just playing exhibitions, they'll follow the round-robin plan with a playoff percentage of each night's gate figured on how they finish.

..He Auto be Happy

Before he joined the U.S. army and went to Korea, (Gunzo) Humeniuk, former assistant trainer of the Detroit Red Wings, sold his automobile to pay for an operation for his sister... On Christmas eve in Windsor they held the drawing on a raffle for an expensive car and out came the number on a ticket Walter had bought last October before going overseas.. Now all he has to figure out is some way to get back and drive the thing.

Sports Before Your Eyes

Bobby Thomson will have to run from home to get away from that thrill-of-the-year home run in the National League playoff.. Bobby, who has been giving a lot of time to the polio fund in addition to making frequent banquet appearances, plans to head for Florida early in January to get some rest... Herm Wehmeier, the Reds' flinger, gives credit to outfielder Joe Adcock for his late-season winning streak last summer. Joe, sitting on the bench, discovered that Herm was tipping off his curve.

Heavily Fined

Toronto, Dec. 28 (CP) —William Knihnicki of Toronto, was fined $700 and costs or three months in jail yesterday for what Magistrate W. W. McKeown called "the most deliberate and barefaced attempt" to avoid rental regulators.

Knihnicki was charged with levying excess rent on an eight-room house. Evidence revealed he overcharged a total of $545 since April, 1947. The rentals board set the rent at $37.50 and Knihnicki charged his tenant, Frank Thomas, $50. He later boosted it to $55 when the legal rent was upped to $41.25.

Thomas told the court he was forced to buy $400 worth of furniture to get into the house in the first place.

Knihnicki pleaded guilty and was given three weeks to pay the fine.

The 1952 Studebaker Land Cruiser. Principal exterior changes of Studebaker's new models include entirely new front-end treatment, new wrap-around grilles and bumpers, re-designed trunk lid handles and tail lights. The latter, by appearing to be integral parts of the fenders rather than "added-on" assemblies, give the effect of extending the sweep of the fenders and the impression of a corresponding increase in body length. Gravel pads on the Land Cruiser, as well as on the State Commander, convertible and "Starliner," are of new design.

Pseudo-Psychology Gone Mad Description of New P.S. Report System by Federation Pres.

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP)— A leading educationist yesterday attacked "revisionists" who are "designing for us an education for juvenility — and education of youth, by novelty for immaturity." He termed Toronto's new public school report system "pseudo-psychology gone mad."

George L. Roberts of Oshawa, president of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, reported to the federation's annual meeting on what he termed some of the harmful influences working on Ontario education, particularly in secondary schools.

He said:

"Let us take for example the new report system in Toronto public schools—the O.S.U. reports. (Outstanding – satisfactory – unsatisfactory.)

"This is apparently the result of pseudo-psychology gone mad. It is completely out of touch with the realities of life let alone education. It is just the most recent evidence of a trend that I am decrying."

Mr. Roberts said the change this year from the grading system was an example of a doctrine popular in North America today—"a doctrine of avoidance of strain, tension, frustration and evasion of external standards—and that as a preparation for mid-20th century life".

He said this doctrine would leave decisions on principles of right and wrong, good and bad, self-indulgence and duty, privileges and responsibilities to the immature individual, rather than presenting, as inviolable, standards of excellence.

Continue to Peril Claim

"Here we see another characteristic of modern education—the preferment of the psychologist over the philosopher. We continue thus at our peril."

Mr. Roberts emphasized that his criticisms were not an attack on the "Porter plan" for revision of Ontario educational methods.

"The Porter plan has some good features and some bad. But it is not a plan and it is not Mr. Porter's. It is not a plan because it is a collection of changes or revisions. . ."

He said another popular practice of the "irresponsible revisionist" was to disparage factual knowledge.

These trends were promoting the rise "of the careerist and narrow specialist in influence, prestige and jurisdiction in our school system."

"There seems to be a growing emphasis on advanced methodology at the expense of sound general education as a background for teachers."

Sold Techniques

He said that in answer to the recognized challenge that human relations are one of the most difficult problems today "we are being sold techniques for 'winning friends and influencing people'—In place of the painful building of inner integrity to command respect and influence."

Another threat to the continued soundness of Ontario education was the establishment of senior elementary schools.

He criticized "experts" who claimed that all courses were of equal value and that there should be no differentiation between certificates issued at the end of Grade XII.

"... The only thing equal about them is the length of time spent within the school walls.

"We may be deluding the students and their parents for the moment, but the ultimate inevitable reaction when the sham proves its hollowness can be very painful to the schools."

Minister Says Defences Not In Right Place

Rome, Dec. 28 (AP)—Foreign Minister Mohamed Salah El Din Pasha of Egypt says the main defences of the Suez Canal should be on Turkey's frontier with Russia—not in the canal zone itself.

Salah El Din, on vacation here while the U.N. assembly in Paris suspended for the Christmas holidays, gave his views at a press conference yesterday.

His venture into military philosophy was linked with another argument against the continued British hold on the Suez canal zone in Egyptian territory.

When asked what would happen if the British refuse to leave the canal zone, he said: "We will make it impossible for them to stay."

Numerous bloody clashes have occurred in the canal zone between British forces and Egyptian civilians and police since Egypt's mid-October decision to scrap her treaties with Britain.

A military spokesman for the Egyptain embassy in Rome amplified the foreign minister's statement on remote defences. "You don't wait to start defending a canal until the enemy reaches the canal," the spokesman said.

He said that if Russia attacked toward the Middle East, the first defence would be where Turkey and Russia meet; the second the chain of mountains across Syria and Palestine, and the third the neck between the Gulf of Aqaba, a Red Sea arm, and the Mediterranean coast — across the Sinai Desert from the canal.

Christmas Hill Is Recaptured By Infantry

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 28 (AP)—Outnumbered American Sabre jets shot a communist jet out of Korean skies today while Allied infantry men recaptured Christmas Hill on the snow-covered battlefront.

The United States Fifth Air Force said U.S. Sabres came out unscathed from their 20-minute dogfight. The battle was between 24 Sabres and more than 70 MIG-15s.

The fight for Christmas Hill, scene of the fiercest fighting in 31 days of twilight war on the Korean front, was the only sizable ground action reported.

The hill, towering beside Mundung Valley not far from Heartbreak Ridge, is just an outpost on the eastern front. Put it has changed hands repeatedly since Christmas Day.

Attacking reds captured it twice Thursday and lost it. Once. United Nations infantrymen counter-attacked again Friday.

They scaled the slippery slopes under small arms fire and showers of grenades. The Chinese gave up after a 2 1-2 hour fight. Earlier reports said the hill was retaken without a battle.

South of U.N. lines, South Korean troops reported they had killed 207 guerrillas and captured 108 in 15 fights since Christmas.

'Bronco Charlie' 102 Years Old New Year's Day

New York, Dec. 28—(AP)—The last of the Pony Express riders will be 102 years old Jan. 1.

He is "Bronco Charlie" Miller. His recipe for a long life:

"Live right. Be friendly."

"Bronco Charlie", born to the saddle, spends quite a bit of his time in an easy chair these days although in general good health.

Age hasn't dimmed his memories of the days when he rode the Pony Express on the 172-mile run between Sacramento, Calif., and Carson City, Nev., with "18 changes of horses" on each trip.

His greatest delight now is in telling stories of olden days in the wild west to boys and girls.

After his Pony Express days, "Bronco Charlie" broke wild horses in the west and then joined Buffalo Bill's touring wild west show.

The Kibitzer

You may not be such a much by yourself. But you may be a great help to your partner. You may not have enough to bid before you hear from your partner. But you may have enough when he bids.

Keep working on this deal:

NORTH
♥ 7 5 2
♦ K J
♣ A K 10 9 8 7

WEST	EAST
♠ A Q 9 7	♠ K J 10 3
♥ A Q 10 8 4	♥ J 9
♦ 8 4	♦ 10 7
♣ Q J	♣ 6 5 4 3 2

SOUTH
♠ 6 5 2
♥ K 6 3
♦ A Q 9 6 5 3 2
♣ None

The bidding has gone this far

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 H	Pass	Pass
2 D	2 S

Up to now north had to pass, lacking enough to enter before with a bid. But now that his partner has shown something, north gets into the act. He has stuff for it.

The south defensive bid may have as few as two highs with one sure. So, game is not promising. So, if north comes into the act it is only to play the contract at his suit, or for tactical reasons.

Tactical reasons? He might try for a part score instead of letting opponents get a part score. He might take a sacrifice loss. He might interfere with opponent's exchange for information.

North has five tricks. He can expect south to furnish only two tricks, the high cards. So he may be defeated at three clubs, unless partner has unexpected tricks for him. But he should bid three clubs in this spot.

If partner has no club and an unusual diamond suit, south can rebid his diamonds. If south does not rebid his diamonds and the three club bid is doubled, north can go to three diamonds.

An ultimate bid of three diamonds could not be very costly, if at all, even if doubled for a penalty. South has promised six tricks. And the south diamond suit must be at least five cards long in that spot.

The K J of diamonds in north is almost support. The ace and two kings in north are powerful cards to team with. Roll out the barrel.

'A Streetcar Named Desire' Named Best Movie of 1951

Hollywood, Dec. 28—(AP) — New York critics have picked "A Streetcar Named Desire" as the best movie for 1951. And theatre men have selected rugged John Wayne as the top box-office star for the second successive year.

In the opinion of the critics, "Streetcar" also rated No. 1 for the best direction, best actress' performance and the second best actor's job.

Wayne, currently the movies' most manly hero, captured the top spot in the motion picture herald's 1951 poll of theatre men.

Two zanies who were voted "Stars of Tomorrow" only a year ago wound up in second place and in their case, television must rate an assist. Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis were known only to night club audiences before TV.

In third place was Betty Grable, unhurt by an eight-month suspension by her studio. Abbott and Costello were fourth, followed in order by such old favorites as Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Randolph Scott and Gary Cooper.

Roy Rogers was again voted King of the Cowboys, followed by Gene Autry. Among British exhibitors, Alec Guinness got the top English award, Bob Hope was tops internationally while John Wayne was the favorite cowboy.

The New York critics adjudged Elia Kazan as the best director for work on "Streetcar," and Vivien Leigh as the best actress for her role in the film.

The best acting job was considered done by Arthur Kennedy as the blind veteran in "Bright Victory."

A close second to "Streetcar" was "The River", the final balloting on the two pictures going 8 to 7 for the former.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 28 — (AP) — The crooner is on the decline, says John Carroll.

Of course, he could be prejudiced. He is one of those singers who could shatter windows if he opened up.

"Some of my best friends are crooners," he remarked. "And I'm sure they're still going to be around and making money. But as far as I can judge, there is a change going on in the kind of singing the public wants.

"I believe there are styles in singing, just as there are in music. I remember when jazz became the rage, since I was brought up in New Orleans where it was born. And I remember when crooning first became popular. Gene Austin was the first one. Then came Rudy Vallee, Bing Crosby and Russ Columbo.

"Lately there has been a new trend. It was started by the success of Ezio Pinza in 'South Pacific.' Then Mario Lanza made a big hit. The success of their records has brought a big demand for the kind of singing that requires the full voice. People are not only willing but eager to hear classical and semi-classical numbers, instead of pop tunes."

Carroll just returned from playing an engagement at Houston, Tex. The trend away from crooning was impressed on him at his opening night.

"I had a bad strep throat and fever of 102," he said. "But I jabbed myself full of wonder drugs and went on. I couldn't sing full voice and I thought I could get by with crooning. After the first number, the crowd started getting restless. After the third number, they were ready to throw things. The reviews in the papers the next day were brutal."

Carroll has his own methods of dealing with crowds. When he gets a noisy audience in Texas, he tells them, "All right, if you'll shut up now, I'll sing for you." He said the Texans don't mind being treated roughly.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking over all the Chrissmas cards hoping she hadn't forgotten anybody that remembered her, and she said to pop, Mrs. Woodbine's husband must really be an unusual man, William.

Yes, he seems to have something almost hypnotic about him, pop said. I can hardly keep awake while he's talking, he said, and ma said, Now William, he's a very successful bizzness man, and Mrs. Woodbine tells me he discusses all his bizzness affairs with her. She knows everything that goes on in his office, and I think that's very unusual and very wonderful. When it comes to the details of your office, William, I feel like a stranger in another land, she said.

You're lucky, my dear, I wish I'd never heard of a lot of the stuff that goes on down there, pop said. For instance, just to give you an idea of the kind of cooperation I get from the office force, I asked the filing clerk to bring me the John C. Ringer Company correspondence, he said, and ma said, Is your filing clerk a gerl?

Very mutch so, when she's not polishing her nails she's rouging her lips, pop said, and ma said, My recipee filing box is a perfect shambles, I really must straighten it out, if I ever get time.

Anyway, the filing clerk reported back that the Ringer correspondence seemed to be missterous, pop said, and ma said, I terous, pop said, and ma asid, I wonder if anybody still uses the old fashion washing machines, with wringers?

Yee gods, are we discussing washing mcahines? pop said, and ma said, Now William, you're the one who brawt up the subject of wringers, indirectly perhaps. So go on, she said.

It's too long a story for two to tell, pop said.

The result being he stopped telling it.

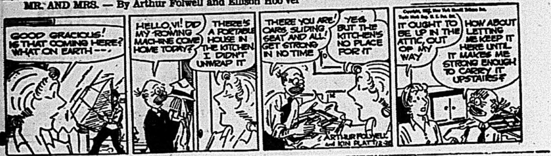
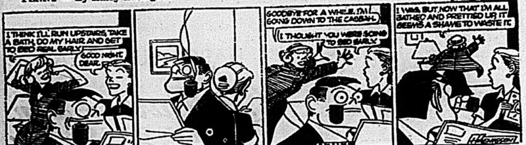
ONE LAST CIGARETTE WILL GIVE DR. ANTON TIME TO GET LAURE OUT OF THE STATION... AND THEN... TO ASSUME MY ROLE OF THE NAME LAURE!
THE DRUG WEARS OFF! SHE STIRS...
DON'T SCREAM, MY DEAR...
...OR I WILL TWIST THE BANDAGE AROUND YOUR NECK... THUS... AND YOU WILL NEVER SCREAM AGAIN!
12-28

MR. AND MRS. — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoo ver



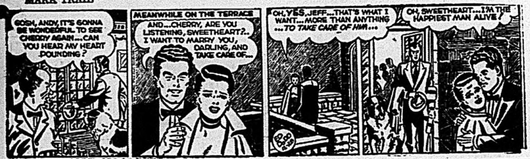
GOOD GRACIOUS! IS THAT COMING HERE? WHAT ON EARTH---
HELLO, VI! DID MY ROWING MACHINE COME HOME TODAY?
THERE'S A PORTABLE HOUSE IN THE KITCHEN. I DIDN'T UNWRAP IT
THERE YOU ARE! OARS, SLIDING SEAT AND ALL! GET STRONG IN NO TIME
YES. BUT THE KITCHEN'S NO PLACE FOR IT
IT OUGHT TO BE UP IN THE ATTIC, OUT OF MY WAY
HOW ABOUT LETTING ME KEEP IT HERE UNTIL IT MAKES ME STRONG ENOUGH TO CARRY IT UPSTAIRS?
ARTHUR FOLWELL and KIN PLATT 12-28

PENNY — By Harry Haenigsen



I THINK I'LL RUN UPSTAIRS, TAKE A BATH, DO MY HAIR AND GET TO BED REAL EARLY.
GOOD NIGHT, DEAR.
12-28
GOODBYE FOR A WHILE. I'M GOING DOWN TO THE CASBAH.
I THOUGHT YOU WERE GOING TO BED EARLY.
I WAS, BUT NOW THAT I'M ALL BATHED AND PRETTIED UP, IT SEEMS A SHAME TO WASTE IT.
HAENIGSEN

MARK TRAIL



GOSH, ANDY, IT'S GONNA BE WONDERFUL TO SEE CHERRY AGAIN... CAN YOU HEAR MY HEART POUNDING?
MEANWHILE ON THE TERRACE
AND... CHERRY, ARE YOU LISTENING, SWEETHEART?.. I WANT TO MARRY YOU, DARLING, AND TAKE CARE OF...
OH, YES, JEFF... THAT'S WHAT I WANT... MORE THAN ANYTHING ...TO TAKE CARE OF HIM...
OH, SWEETHEART... I'M THE HAPPIEST MAN ALIVE!
ED DODD 12-28

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, December 28

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Most planets today stress caution in procedure and how you deal with others. In business and finances recognize necessary economy. Day is splendid for alertness, study, teaching.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Avoid worry, moods. Better keep silent and observe than join contentious discussion. You can attain much through smart management, intelligent work, sound plans, and listening.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Your day with Mercury in very favorable position. On other hand other aspects warn against carelessness, a too-sure attitude. Be sensibly consistent in effort and obtain full returns.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—May have to use much will power now to overcome irritability, impatience, carelessness or feeling sorry for self. Keep mind and hands usefully busy, and gain much.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—All work and interests requiring keen planning, analysis, advertising, motion pictures, and general entertainment favored, but caution also is necessary. Don't overdo.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo)—You and Gemini today have your natal planet well aspected, but by the same token, more may be expected of you. Set and maintain good example; do your best without strain.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Your Venus advises against carelessness in personal habits, overindulgence of pleasures; Be your innately practical well-balanced self; tend to business and you'll come through fine.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Be forewarned that this may not be an easy day and you will double your guard to be sensible, attentive and usefully occupied when and where you should. Be gracious, kindly to put day over big.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)— Friendly Jupiter rays. The better the planning and management, the better day's results. Shun any moodiness, chaffing at annoyances, ill humor. A sincere, pleasant way will count.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Matters of study, clever handling, astute judgment should come through smoothly with your intelligent direction of co-operation. Research, journalism, medicine among top sponsored.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Tendency now may be toward impulsiveness, hasty moves, misjudgment, so be careful. Deal cautiously with all. Tact with opposite sex, Pursue good things diligently.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Artistic ability, imagination intuitiveness should be high now, but keep common sense and practicality also with you. Day tricky in ways; it needs clever, sensible handling.

YOU BORN TODAY: Are the upright, sturdy, and often profoundly intellectual type Ambitious, capable but may tend to think too much of temporal values and approbation. Correct this latter inclination lest it override your finer qualities. Always put spiritual development, true contentment and happiness above wordly gain. You can be an expert executive or skilled worker Don't grieve or become dissatis- in whatever field you choose. satisfied at setbacks or if unappreciated; strive on. Maintain good humor.

Birthdate: Woodrow Wilson, 28th U.S. president; Sir John Ervine, author playwright; Lou Ayres ,actor.

STRIKE ENDED

Barrie, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Don't hold it against the cops, Mayor Marjorie Hamilton told Barrie's public works employees in effect yesterday, thus ending a three-hour strike. The Public Works Department foreman was charged with driving while his ability was impaired Christmas Eve and the employees refused to remove snow from Barrie's streets until he was released. The foreman is still in jail.

National Labor Relations Board Ruling Upheld

Chicago, Dec. 28—(AP)— The United States district court of appeals yesterday upheld a national labor relations board ruling which had charged two printers' unions with violations of the Taft-Hartley Law.

The decision involved the 22-month strike against five Chicago papers which was ended in 1949.

The court issued an enforcement order against the international typographical Union and Local 16, Chicago Typographical Union (A.F.L.)

The N.L.R.B. unanimously held in October, 1949, that the I.T.U. was guilty of setting up a "bargaining strategy" which tried to impose closed-shop conditions in the newspaper publishing industry. Since the board's orders are not self-enforcing, the government agency petitioned the court for an enforcement order last January. Today's decree was the reply.

The Taft-Hartley Act bans the closed shop, which requires an employer to hire only union members.

The Local went on strike against five newspapers — The Tribune, Daily News, Herald-American, Sun-Times and the Journal of Commerce. Some 1,000 union members went on strike Nov. 24, 1947.

The strike ended Sept. 13, 1949. The printers received a $10 weekly raise and the unions agreed to abide by the Taft-Hartley Law.

Throughout the Chicago strike, the newspapers continued publishing.

Twin Husbands Want To Be Rid Of Twin Wives

Twin Falls, Idaho, Dec. 28 — (AP)—Twin brothers filed divorce suits in Twin Falls yesterday from the twin sisters they married six months ago.

Their reasons—identical. The twins said their wives declared they no longer loved them and left home.

Samuel David Alldritt married Lillie May Durham and Jonathan K. Alldritt married Betty Norene Durham June 12.

In their divorce complaints, the twin husbands said their twin wives were cross and quarrelsome during the brief marriages.

Gun Shoots Around Corners

Detroit, Dec. 28 (AP) — The United States army has perfected a sub-machine gun that shoots around corners.

Joseph C. Soma, project engineer at the Detroit arsenal, says the curved barrel is more accurate than a straight one.

Sights are secret, but the gun shoots a .45 calibre slug that can be deflected as much as 90 degrees and will pierce an inch-thick pine board at 100 yards. It will fire 450 rounds a minute.

The around-the-corner gun is made by attaching a curved barrel to the army's M-3 sub-machine gun.

The barrel can be set to fire left or right, up or down.

Tank crews in Korea asked for such a gun to shoot communists off the tops of tanks.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Watson of Whitby spent the weekend at Deloro with Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Drew.

Miss Isabel Hickey, Reg. N. of London spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hickey.

Mrs. R. G. Winters spent Christmas in London with her nephew, Mr. P. Birch and Mrs. Birch.

Miss Mary E. Byrnes of Notre Dame Convent, Kingston, spent the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Paquet.

While the business will still be carried on under the name Marmora Herald, Hogarth Sabine will be an equal partner and the firm will be registered as H. W. Sabine and Hogarth Sabine.

WILL DONATE EARNINGS

Beaver Dam, Ky., Dec. 28 — (AP)—All 20 coal miners employed at the Jess Sheffield mine six miles south of here will work Saturday, but not for themselves. The mine owner announced last night the miners, agreed to donate their Saturday earnings (about $450) to the families of the 119 men who lost their lives in the West Frankfort, Ill., mine explosion last week.

97 Homes Destroyed, 200 Families Homeless When Ice Jam Causes Quebec Flood

An aerial view of the Black River, on the northeast tip of Montreal Island, shows the river waters, jammed by ice, flooding houses on the banks. After a survey of the area by boat, Mayor Fortin of Riviere des Prairies said 97 houses were completely destroyed by water and ice and one by fire. He reported that in some cases the water was so high his boat passed over rooftops. — Central Press Canadian.

Army and Navy Chiefs Will Come With Churchill

London, Dec. 28 — (AP)— The Daily Telegram says today Prime Minister Churchill has added Britain's army and navy chiefs to the party of 36 accompanying him and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to Washington. Field Marshal Sir William Slim, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and the First Sea Lord, Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roderic McGrigor, will be in the party sailing for the United States on the Queen Mary Sunday.

The party also includes Lt.-Gen. Sir Kenneth G. McLean, Chief Staff Officer to the Defence ministry; Sir Norman Brook, secretary to the cabinet; Sir Roger Makins, chief of the economic department of the Foreign Office; Lord Ismay, Commonwealth Relations secretary; Lord Cherwell, atomic expert and Paymaster General, and Sid Leslie Rowan, who handles treasury overseas problems.

C.A.E. Shuckburgh, head of the Foreign Office department which deals with Atlantic Pact and Council of Europe affairs, and Lord Moran, Churchill's doctor, also will be aboard.

Many families are marooned but safe in the flood-stricken Riviere des Prairies area. Here inhabitants are aided by Red Cross worker as they leave their home for higher ground. Dynamite will be used to break up the ice jam which caused the floods. Trucks have proved virtually useless and canoes and rowboats are slowed by ice and slush.—Central Press Canadian.

Vernon Knowles, Outstanding Editor, Dies in Montreal in 62nd Year

Montreal, Dec. 28 (CP)—Vernon Knowles, 61, public relations adviser to the Canadian Bankers Association since 1937 and one of Canada's best known newspaper men, died early today.

Born in Nottingham, England, in 1890, he came to Canada with his parents when they migrated to a Saskatchewan homestead. He started to study for the ministry but after he lost his arm while working in a steel plant during a vacation, he gave up his studies and became a newspaper reporter.

He joined the old Saskatoon Capital, later incorporated with the Star-Phoenix, and was appointed city editor within a few months. From there he moved to the Vancouver Province as marine editor, then to Winnipeg, where he was successively city editor of the old Telegram and managing editor of the Tribune.

He was active in development of the Western Canadian Daily Newspapers Association and served as its chairman during the newsprint crisis of 1920.

Later he was a special writer covering the Manitoba legislature and the parliamentary press gallery at Ottawa.

Went to U.S.

In the mid-1920s he decided to try his ability in the United States and became city editor of the Miami Tribune. He left that job to join an advertising agency. Later he was appointed public relations director for the newly-built Coral Gables Development.

The breaking of a big news story sent him back into the newspaper work he loved. A hurricane raked Florida in 1929 and Mr. Knowles was caught in it and suffered a broken leg.

Despite his injury he commandeered an automobile, talked his way past police barricades and managed to reach a telegraph office. His reports from the hurricane area were carried by most major newspapers in the United States and Canada.

The Toronto Star brought him back to Canada as managing editor. However, he soon went to the Mail and Empire, which had just been bought by I. W. Killam of Montreal, and, as executive editor, helped to produce an objective and vigorous paper.

During the depression of the '30s he fought against pay cuts and conceived the idea of special editions to bolster revenues.

In 1935 he left the Mail and Empire to return to the Star as managing editor. His appointment to the Barkers Association position was announced late in December, 1936, and he took over his duties early in 1937.

During the Second World War he was consultant to the National War Finance Committee on Victory loans. For his work in that capacity, he was awarded the Order of the British Empire.

Surviving besides his widow, the former Beatrice Winters of Ottawa, are his father, John Knowles; a brother, John, and three daughters, Mrs. Peter MacLachlan of Buckingham, Que., and Mrs. John B. Drylie, Jr., and Mrs. John Gandier, both of Toronto.

Yugoslavia Will Devalue Dinar After January 1st

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 28—(AP)—Finance Minister Milentije Popovic told parliament today that the dinar will be drastically devalued effective Jan. 1.

The new value, he said, will be 300 dinars to the dollar instead of the present official rate of 50 to the dollar.

"This measure indicates a liquidation of the old system in our foreign economic relations," Popovic said.

Yugoslavia had steadfastly refused to devalue her currency despite her weakness in the free money market. Dinars could be purchased unofficially in some places for as little as 700 to the dollar.

The new move indicates much closer economic relations with the west and the necessity of bringing down the dinar to increase foreign trade.

Communist correspondent for a Paris newspaper, Wilfred Burchett (left) says this picture was taken when he interviewed U.S. Maj.-Gen. William F. Dean in Pyongyang prison camp. Burchett released the photo to a U.S. correspondent at Panmunjom, Korea. Dean was missing 17 months until his name appeared on red POW list. According to Burchett, Dean saved the last 12 pistol bullets for himself, preferring that fate to capture by the reds. The plan of the former commander of U.S. 24th Division was thwarted by a Korean betrayer, who received $10 for leading Dean into red hands. —Central Press Canadian.

Santa in Military Uniform

High Winds Aid Airliner Make Fast Crossing

London, Dec. 28 — (Reuters)—Gale winds of 100 miles-an-hour today blew a Transworld Constellation airliner across the Atlantic in near-record time.

The airliner completed the crossing to Shannon, Ireland, from St. John's, Nfld., in five hours, eight minutes. It was five minutes longer than the record set by Pan American Airways in January, 1948.

The aircraft with 26 passengers aboard, landed at London airport an hour ahead of schedule despite spending three hours at Shannon instead of the normal one.

Storms raced around the coasts of Britain throughout the night but abated slightly this morning. Winds are expected to remain strong for at least another day.

Yesterday's gales and torrential rains, worst of the winter played havoc with shipping and broke submarine cables linking Britain with Ireland and North and South America.

Two men were drowned and at least another four reported missing at points around the coast.

Will Hire 200 More

Hamilton, Dec. 28 (CP)—Copley Noyes and Randall Ltd., will hire 200 employees in the next few months to cope with orders worth $3,000,000 for military clothing.

M. E. Enkin, president of the firm said today that the new employees will be hired as soon as work starts on the orders. The company will turn out servicemen's overcoats, army drill jackets, navy trousers and navy jumpers.

MAN GETS ALIMONY

Red Wood City, Calif., Dec. 28—(AP)—A man who charged that his wife didn't give him enough money to spend was awarded $73 monthly alimony yesterday pending settlement of his separate maintenance suit. Judge Edmund Scott ordered the temporary payments made to Jacob Hal Solomon, 67. Rachael, Solomon's wife since 1904 and mother of his 6 children, has extensive business holdings.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Oshawa, Dec. 28 —(CP) Christmas celebrations of Gnr. Charles White of the London army camp resulted yesterday in a one-year suspended sentence and an order to pay $300 damages to a local hotel. White pleaded guilty to a charge of committing mischief.

CRITICAL OF GOVERNMENT

Almonte, Dec. 28 — (CP)— R. Kent Rowley, Canadian director of the United Textile Workers of America, charged last night that the federal government is encouraging dumping of foreign cloth on the Canadian textile market. He spoke at a meeting organized by U. T. W. A. officials to deal with growing unemployment in the textile industry in Ottawa Valley towns.

Forester's famous Saturday Evening Post novel comes coursing to the screen of the Belle Theatre today, in color by Technicolor. A special added attraction is "Royal Rodeo," pageant of beauty and fast-paced entertainment, in Technicolor.

No Survivors

By Will Henry

"That's enough," he broke in, blue eyes snapping mad. "I don't know what the Indian game is, sending you here, but—"

The name of the truce officer was Peyton, Colonel Green Peyton. You took the surrender from General J. B. Gordon. Fitzhugh Lee, Pendleton and Longstreet were active on your front.

I don't think he even heard the names. The man appeared obsessed.

"Sergeant Bates."

"Yes sir." The sergeant's face thrust in at the flap.

"Have the officers come in."

"Yes sir."

Bates withdrew and Custer's command filed in, a good-looking group of officers for the most part though several appeared to be well within the grip of "Indian nerves."

I repeated my story and these men listened. Several nodded as I went along. At the finish there were some of the same questions and challenges the general had made but the average feeling was by no means what Custer's was. These men were thinking and they were worried. Some of them quite clearly, believing my story or not, were ready to accept its burden: that they were vastly outnumbered, in great danger.

Reno phrased it well. "General it seems to me this man's identity the detail of his story, are unimportant. We can check them later. What he says about the Sioux strength is what counts. I can see no logical reason why they would want us to know that. We've been satisfied they want a fight. Why should they try to scare us off at the last moment. I don't like it."

Custer broke in impatiently. "I've told you what I think. They're trying to stampede us into an ambush or keep us squatting here for one."

If ever a man took a command into battle against the will, wish and better judgment of every officer under him, it was Custer. Professionally I was stumped by his attitude. In the five minutes of discussion which followed with his officers anent the plan of march and during which I was ignored, it developed he had not had scouts out other than immediately in the path of march, for the past 48 hours.

His resume of the situation and his subsequent orders were rapped out with all the assurance of a commander taking a brigade of regulars against 10 lodges of sick squaws.

"The idea, gentlemen, is this: the Sioux have sent their decoy in here to get us to do one of two things; either huddle down where we are or back up. What we shall do, of course, is exactly what they wouldn't dream we'd do. The last thing they'd want us to do. Go forward. Tonight."

"We'll divide up the regiment in two squadrons. Reno will take Companies A, G. and M, Captain Moyland, Lieutenant McIntosh, Captain French, respectively.

"Benteen will take the second squadron, with Lieutenant Godfrey and Captain Weir. I'll take the other five companies, with Keogh, Calhoun, Smith, Yates, and Tom Custer. B Company, under Captain McDougall, will convoy the pack train and ammunition." Tom was General Custer's brother.

"How about the prisoner, General?" Sergeant Bates wanted to know.

"Why not take him along?" suggested Reno, who I was beginning to suspect had the best head in camp.

Custer, whose enthusiasm was so high by this time as to strike me as purely boyish, thought this would be fine. "Why not?" He laughed. "We might have some fun with him, at that. Bates! Get him a mount. Tie his feet under its belly. He can ride with you, Reno, but don't lose him."

Sauntering over to me with that famous grin working for all it was worth, he drawled, "you see chief, one of those officers in here was with Carrington, at Kearney. He knew Clayton when he was scouting there. I meant to have him tell you. The real Clayton was killed by Crazy Horse's Oglala, at Lodge Trail Ridge, in the Fetterman Massacre."

At daybreak we were still some miles from the village but the bluffs of the Little Big Horn were clearly in view. We were following a tributary stream which came in below the camp. I judged we had 10 miles to go. It was 9.45 a.m.

At 2.15 a lone Sioux tipi was sighted. Around it were signs of a large number of lodges recently moved. Cooking fire ashes were still warm. The single tipi contained a dead warrior. When the soldiers ripped the skins from the tipi to reveal this warrior I knew him at once. I dug my hobbled heels into my pony's flanks, forcing him toward Custer.

"That's Black Wolf, General, the Cheyenne I told you I killed on my run to you. They've given him the honor of facing you first. That's his reward for "killing" me. If you'll pull off that hair shirt you'll find him slit open.

"Pull off that shirt," barked Custer. Two privates jumped to do so. The garment came off, sodden and crusted. A cloud of blowflies swarmed lazily away from beneath it.

"All right men. Cover him up." Wheeling his horse to face me, Custer continued, the sober tone of his words the only indication he gave of any change in attitude. "Now then, 'Clayton,' give us that camp lay-out again. Quick. Who's on this end?"

"Hunkpapa."

Oglala, Minniconjou, Sans Arc, Cheyenne."

Custer wasn't sold yet. "Seems to me that Cheyenne warrior being here might indicate we had the Cheyenne in front of us."

Within five minutes a towering cloud of dust became visible on our direct front, right where I had placed the hostile camp for them. I called to Custer. "They're milling the pony herds to throw up a dust cloud around the village."

"Let's take a look," cried Custer, spurring his horse up a hill in front. We followed him, accompanied by Fred Girard, his civilian scouts ad Sioux interpreter. It was a bad look.

Crazy Horse had 40 decoys waiting behind that hill and by dammnable luck alone, they were all Cheyennes. It was a bad break for my Hunkpapa story. The Indians simulated alarm, fanning their ponies off upstream, yelping and calling out as though in fear and warning.

"There's your Indians," yelled Girard. Running like devils."

"What are they? What band are they?" demanded Custer, eagerly.

"Cheyenne," echoed the interpreter.

Custer whirled on me. "You hear that chief! Marc, did you hear that? Cheyenne! Just what his nibs here said was on the other end of the camp." Before Reno had time to reply Custer rattled on. "He wanted us to keep our power down here and send a weak column up ahead to be wiped out."

Furious, Custer sent the order down to Reno which precipitated the action I had done everything in my power to prevent.

Cooke shouted at Reno "General Custer directs that you take as fast a gait as you deem prudent and charge afterward, and you will be supported by the whole outfit."

Reno blanched and I laughed in Cooke's face. "What whole outfit?" I demanded as if I had business to. "Benteen is 10 miles away, lost in those bluffs."

The adjutant wheeled away red-faced.

In 10 minutes we were at the edge of the dust. As it lifted, Reno saw in front of him more mounted Sioux than his scouts had placed in the whole camp. One look and he shouted to a nearby sergeant "cut that prisoner free and give him a gun. He's the only man in this valley who knows where he is and what he's doing!"

I was hustled to the rear, given a carbine with four belts, a service revolver with two. "Got another of these beauties?" I asked the supply sergeant as he handed me the gun.

"Chief, we ain't got nothin.' If McDougall don't git up here with ammunition we ain't gonna be in this fight long enough to warm up our barrels. I got 50 rounds a man over what they are carrin' After that we're gonna use rocks. And I'll tell ya somethin' else. Them there new carbines ain't worth a hoot. Fire 'em 10 times and they jam Pin swells up. Fire 'em five and blow 'em out."

Reno was not a cool man but he was nervy and smart. Still he was in a tight, cut to squeeze a bigger man than he. He had his command mounted and firing, that was about all.

Reno rode up to me. "Major" —I held my breath down so the men wouldn't hear—"we've got to get out of here. We can't take this. The Sioux are cooling down and getting their shots into us."

"Where can we go, man?" Reno's question was uttered in desperation.

"I say dismount. Get the men off the horses while we've got some men left. Then into those woods over there, on foot."

"McIntosh! Dismount. Everybody down. Off the horses."

The men tumbled to the ground, hanging to the cheek-straps of their terrified mounts.

"McIntosh!" Reno's commands were terse. "We're going out of here. Into that clump of woods in that bend, right there off the right flank. Is everybody down?" The young lieutenant signalled they were. "Now. Four horses to a man to lead. Every other man out front, on foot, firing. No cover on the rear.

We had 200 yards to make across open grass to the wooded river bend. We took six more casualties making it. Our refuge was a hick cottonwood grove in a very tight bend, water on three sides, the entire cover not over 75 yards wide, 100 long. Reno, McIntosh and I were the last three men in. The following Sioux were 40 yards off our tails. As we were almost to the trees a terrific shout went up from them.

Before starting from Custer's camp the nght before, Reno had gotten me an old uniform from supply. A faded sergeant's chevrons adorned the sleeves of the jacket. It had been a dark, hurried issue, the supply sergeant not caring whether he made me a corporal or a brigadier. This uniform had covered my identity at longer ranges but once the hawk-eyed Sioux got in close they spotted me.

"Cetan Mani!" The Ghost!"

The howls went up from them like a pack of blue-tick hounds belling a dog-coon in a swamp hollow at midnight. White Bull, one of Sitting Bull's nephews, and apparently in command on our front, lashed his pony forward.

Then the pistol was bucking in my right hand. Three empty ponies blundered on into the wood. McIntosh knocked one off his pony with a clubbed carbine and I put my last two shots into him as he fell.

BIG BUSINESS NOW

Tailoring did not become an important trade until form-fitting clothes were introduced about the 10th century.

WOOLER

Wooler—Rev. W. G. Fletcher and family spent Christmas in Oshawa with Rev. Dr. W. P. and Mrs. Fletcher.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Thompson of Toronto are holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Steinburg.

Mr. Wayne Tompkins is spending Christmas holidays at his home in Newburg.

Mrs. Burrill has returned from a visit with Hastings friends.

Miss Leona Sharpe of Toronto is spending Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Sharpe.

Mrs. A. Dorland and infant daughter have returned from the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Miss Aldythe Arthur of Belleville spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Arthur.

Mrs. S. L. Terrill went to Hastings to spend Christmas with her uncle, Dr. J. Hess. She will visit Peterborough and Lindsay friends before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper Peister of Codrington visited Wooler friends on Sunday.

After visiting Mrs. E. McMaster for a few days, Miss Annie Richards has gone to spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. R. Fairman, Huff's Island, Prince Edward County.

Teachers and pupils are enjoying a well-earned holiday.

Christmas Concert

A Christmas concert under the combined auspices of the Sunday school and public school was held in the town hall on Wednesday evening, the chairman being Rev. W. G. Fletcher. A fine program was given after which Santa appeared to distribute presents and treats to the children.

A special White Gift service was held in the United Church Sunday school on Sunday when over $13 was contributed by the pupils for overseas relief.

The annual Christmas service was held in the United Church on Sunday morning. The special choir music included a Christmas solo by Miss Donna McColl.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

The Strength of Democracy

By ROY L. SMITH

In the last analysis the strength of democracy depends upon the wisdom with which the people choose.

Strong men come and go, great leaders rise and fall, rich resources can be conserved or wasted, but a democratic nation survives on the basis of the judgment, discipline, and courage of the people.

Divinely Led

A more unpromising horde had probably never set out on the long and arduous way toward nationhood than those ignorant slaves who stumbled out of Egypt under the leadership of Moses.

It had been a crime punishable with death for any Egyptian to instruct them in any science, or induct them into any of the beliefs of Egyptian religion. Generation after generation they had been brutalized by the most degrading toil. There was not a single "first citizen" among them when they stopped at the Waters of Marah.

The fact that they survived the desert's terrible 40 years can be explained only on the basis of the fact that they were divinely led and protected. That they had been molded into a hard-fighting nation was due to the hardships of the desert. That they were able to gain a foothold in a well fortified land, against the opposition of a nation of trained militarists, is another evidence of their supernatural guidance.

The Uniform Sunday School esson for December 30: "The People Make Their Choice," Joshua 23-24.

There is always danger that any nation will blame God for its misfortunes and take credit for its own victories. Joshua knew this all very well, and was determined that Israel should not become conceited.

Three Strict Teachers

The Hebrews had been made ready for the hour of their triumph by three strict and stern teachers—Moses, Joshua, and the desert. These three, but the strictest of all was the desert.

They had not come to this high hour from the lush fields of the Nile, but from the barren wastes of Midian. They had been sifted by starvation, bronzed by exposure, and inured to hardships by the parsimonious wilderness which always gave grudgingly. There was not a man among them who had ever tasted luxury.

It Was Strong Wine

Victory has always been strong wine making small men heady and unruly.

The victory which the Hebrews had won had been spectacular. No nation of Bedouins had ever come in from the desert—and there had been many who had tried it—and won such a complete chance at fertile lands and rich valleys. There was very great danger then, as there is very great danger now, that superior privileges shall make common people feel superior. Joshua was greatly concerned lest the victory won by Jehovah would be wasted by Israel.

In the hour of their triumph the people had to decide the most important question they would ever face as a nation. They must choose their God.

Three classes of diminutive gods sought their favor. (1) The ancient gods of Ur of the Chaldees, (2) the petty pagan deities of Egypt, some of whose images they still carried secretly in their baggage, (3) the Canaanite gods they found already occupying the land. Each was able to make out a case for itself.

Then there was the God of Sinai, of whom Moses had taught them—the God to whom they owed their deliverance. But there were times when he seemed so unreal. Little clay images were so much easier to comprehend.

But their strength rested with their power to choose intelligently and worship steadfastly. A mistake there was fatal. The same is true to this day. We are still choosing, and not always wisely or well.

"ATTENTION FARMERS!"

At the request of various farmers in the County of Hastings, arrangements have been made, whereby the Agricultural Representative or his Assistant, will, when possible, be at SHIRE HALL in BELLEVILLE, each SATURDAY MORNING, from 9.30 to 12.00. Shire Hall is a part of the County Buildings, on Church Street, just opposite the Belleville Collegiate.

Any farmer wishing to discuss farming problems and finding it more convenient to go to Shire Hall, than to Stirling, will be welcome and should avail himself of this service.

These Saturday morning visits will only be continued provided the demand is sufficient to warrant the continuance of this service.

DRYOCOPUS PILEATUS
(Northern Pileated Woodpecker)

The Pileated Woodpecker is a startling bird. So spectacular is his appearance that he has long been a target for guns in the hands of thoughtless people. As a result he is becoming rare in many sections of Canada.

He should be protected. Besides being highly decorative and the largest Canadian woodpecker, the Pileated is extremely valuable. He destroys millions of wood insects and provides nesting sites for tree-dwelling ducks.

Get to know wildlife. You'll find a whole new world of interest—and you'll want to conserve our natural scene.

Bill to Outlaw Fixing of Retail Prices Approved

Commons Beats Down Four P-C Attempts to Defeat Act

Ottawa, Dec. 29—(CP) — The government's bill to outlaw the fixing of retail prices by manufacturers has finally won the approval of the Commons.

The bill to prevent manufacturers from setting the price at which retailers may sell their goods won third and final reading last night after the Commons beat down four Progressive Conservative attempts to defeat it or stall its progress.

The legislation now goes to the Senate.

These developments occurred yesterday as the bill moved through the final stages of a seven-day (interrupted - by-Christmas) debate:

1. Transport Minister Chevrier, putting a temporary halt to what he described as "delaying tactics" of the Progressive Conservatives, moved that "the question be now put." His motion, in effect cutting off debate on second reading, was carried by a vote of 135 to 30.

2. The bill itself then won second reading—approval in principle—by a vote of 131 to 31.

3. As the bill moved to third reading, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, moved his party's fourth proposal that the legislation be killed. It was defeated by a vote of 111 to 27.

4. A few minutes later, the bill was given third reading by a vote of 111 to 27.

May Prorogue Today

That left the chamber with little on its order paper and there were indications that parliament would prorogue sometime today.

The prices bill, target of a bitter Progressive Conservative campaign that forced parliament to return to work for this post-Christmas session, got a rough ride as it was considered by committee of the whole before receiving third and final reading.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) clashed with Justice Minister Garson over Mr. Diefenbaker's suggestion that the reason the government is not acting against "loss leaders" —selling to attract customers and destroy competition —is because "it might hurt their great and powerful friends."

Mr. Garson charged that Mr. Diefenbaker was not ::telling the Diefenbaker was not "telling the torted that the justice minister would retract that statement if he was "big enough". The exchange ended with neither withdrawing his charge.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested the legislation was a "sham" in that there was nothing in it to prevent a manufacturer from cutting off supplies to a retailer and without giving any reason for the action It would be impossible for the crown to prove that a manufacturer refused to deliver goods because a retailer declined to sell at fixed prices.

There was nothing to prevent a manufacturer from putting a retailer on a quota and alloting him only a small quantity of goods if he refused to sell at a fixed price.

Draft Call Came a Bit Late

Danville, Ill., Dec. 29 (AP)—Edward L. Weaver, 20, of Danville, who received his orders to report for a pre-induction physical examination, wrote his draft board that he'd love to.

In a letter received yesterday by the draft board, Weaver explained that he had applied unsuccessfully for an "emergency leave" from his duties as private, first class, in the air force.

He has been stationed on Okinawa, south of Japan, for the last six months wrote Weaver, adding "you have so graciously offered to pay for my food and transportation for my physical, but this would cost a tidy sum because Danville is 9,000 miles away."

At six cents mile, he figured, transportation alone would cost $540, and, he added, "I'm a big eater."

Claxton, Lapointe Arrive in Tokyo To Visit Troops

Tokio, Dec. 29 —(CP) — The sleek R.C.A.F. aircraft carrying Defence Minister Claxton and Veterans Minister Lapointe to Korea touched down at Tokyo's Haneda airport tonight after a long, bumpy trans-Pacific flight.

The Canadian ministers and their party, obviously tired warmed to enthusiastic greetings by Gen. Matthew Ridgway, United Nations Supreme Commander, who welcomed them. Several other high-ranking representatives of the U.N. command were also on hand.

Claxton told Japanese reporters he would continue on to Korea "shortly" and that he would visit Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida before returning to Canada.

Lapointe said he was "really tired" after the trip.

"I've so lost track of the time that I don't know whether it's today, yesterday or tomorrow in Canada now."

During their visit here Claxton and Lapointe will stay with A. R. Menzies, head of the Canadian military mission in Japan.

Tomorrow morning they will be briefed by Gen. Ridgway on the situation in Korea and then visit Lt.-Gen. William Bridgford, commander-in-chief of the Commonwealth forces. Later they will tour the U.N. cemetery at Yokohama.

Canadians Praised

Hannover, Germany, Dec. 29 (CP) — Gen. Sir John Harding, commander of the British army of the Rhine, yesterday paid his first visit to Canadian troops in the North Atlantic treaty organization force and had a few words of praise for the Canadians as a unit and as individuals.

I am honored to have this brigade under my command and I think it should also be inspiring for the people of western Europe that Canada has sent these troops over to be part of N.A.T.O., he said.

The general talked with several Canadians, including Sgt. John Granger of Toronto and Pte. S. K. Ryder of Hope, B.C.

Looking at the ruggedly built Ryder, Harding said:

CROWDS GIVE HEROES' WELCOME TO FOUR AIRMEN

Press Conference Called for Tonight

Erding, Germany, Dec. 29 (AP) —Four United States airmen gave American intelligence officers a full account today of their 40 days in the hands of communist Hungary. But their scheduled press conference to tell the world about it was delayed until a Washington state department official could arrive from Frankfurt.

Col. Park Holland, Erding air base commander, announced that the public would have to wait a while for the story of how Russian planes forced the fliers down and how they were tried and finally released yesterday after payment of $120,000 in fines.

Holland expressed confidence the airmen would be permitted to meet the press tonight.

Tired and Haggard

The four young fliers, happy enough to sob over freedom, were landed at their home base here near Munich shortly before midnight last night to a heroes' welcome from crowds of relatives and fellow airmen.

They were tired, haggard and nervous. But they appeared healthy and well-fed and were reported to have been "relatively-well treated" by their red captors.

They left Erding Nov. 19 in a C-47 cargo plane for a daylight "milk run" to Yugoslavia with a load of supplies for the U.S. embassy at Belgrade. They got lost, were shot at by Romanian and Hungarian border artillery, ran low on fuel and finally were forced down in Hungary by Russian fighter planes based in the former enemy satellite country.

Freedom came in the black mist of early dark at Nickelsdorf, on the Austro-Hungarian border, two hours after United States officials in Budapest counted out $120,000 worth of Hungarian forints to pay fines.

A Hungarian military court convicted them, in a quick one-day trial Dec. 23, of deliberately violating the border. It fined them $30,000 each, with the alternative of spending 90 days in a Hungarian jail, and confiscated their plane, valued at $97,500.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson closed Hungary's consulates in Cleveland and New York and banned all American travel in Hungary.

REACH PRODUCTION GOAL

Moscow, Dec. 29 — (AP) — Russia's oil industry announced today it has reached its 1951 production goal three days ahead of the deadline. In a telegram to Prime Minister Stalin, the oil industry minister reported that the production schedule had been completed yesterday.

New Chemical Discovery Makes Worn-Out Land Like Virgin Soil

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

Philadelphia, Dec. 29 (AP) — Worn-out land is changed into structurally virgin soil by a new chemical discovery announced to the American Association for the advancement of science today.

It is a yellow synthetic powder, which literally changes the soil itself. It is not a fertilizer, but crops grow from 20 to 100-percent higher yields.

It makes better baseball diamonds, stops erosion, and promises cheaper road-building.

This magic powder is made of the same stuff—acrilonitriles —which make the latest synthetic suits and dresses, the kind that won't wrinkle when wet.

The powder has an electrical attraction for clay in the soil. This attraction produces chains of little particles, which roll up like tiny sponges and hold their form regardless of rain. Muck, hard-baked soil, sandy soil all take on the structure of rich loam.

The increased production comes from a better soil, that holds much more water, more air, and is easy to cultivate.

This powder does the same thing as peat moss and composts. Unlike them bacteria don't eat it and it lasts many times longer. It is cheaper. Two pounds of powder does the soil work of 200 pounds of peat moss or 500 pounds of commercial compost.

The synthetic was made by a team of Monsanto Chemical Co. scientists, after years of study to solve a puzzle of an Indiana farm where one plot was much more fertile than others which had the same richness in fertilizers. Soil structure was the difference.

The Monsanto men tried this soil magic on a baseball infield. They said it changed the ground so that balls took no bad hops sliding to a base was easier and in rain the mud did not clog the players' spikes.

They showed a handful of it soaking wet. When the hand squeezed clear water ran out, and the wet material became spongy.

On highway banks, levees, and newly made lawns the powder prevented almost all erosion and speeded the growth of grasses to form a permanent sod.

They said it would lower irrigation costs, and probably reclaim alkali lands. It is good for home gardens, making spading easy, and for potted plants and greenhouses.

Not all the potential uses have been tried. The synthetic will not be offered for sale until 1953.

Canada Will Have Strong Demand for Labor in 1952 Says Labor Minister Gregg

Ottawa, Dec. 29 — (CP) — Canada will have a strong demand for labor in 1952, though there may be "spotty" unemployment through the year, Labor Minister Gregg predicted yesterday.

In his annual New Year statement, the minister said it is likely the main characteristics of the 1951 labor picture will carry into next year as defence industries speed up.

In a simultaneous New Year message, President Percy R. Bengough of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada was critical of the government for not stemming recent unemployment and for permitting continued winter immigration without enough jobs available.

A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, expressed regret at the "general feeling of fear and frustration" in the world but said Canadians may still be buoyed by hope for a better world.

The labor minister said that, for the first few months of 1952, there will be winter unemployment, followed by spotty unemployment later.

Economic Trend Firm

But, he added, the basic economic trend is firm. Defence industries would step up. It was expected consumer demand would reassert itself. The year would be a busy one in construction.

"Employment and wages were never higher, but at the same time consumer prices rose and small pockets of unemployment were produced by the shifts in labor demand that took place during the year.

"In general, however, supply and demand were fairly well in balance, and shortages of certain workers did not turn out to be as severe as had been anticipated."

Employment problems during the year were caused by a decline in consumer buying, Mr. Gregg said. An unusual employment situation was created by the fact there were labor surpluses in some parts of Quebec and Ontario while there were shortages in other areas.

Calls Situation Serious

President Bengough, calling the December unemployment serious, said two factors had contributed to it: "Restrictions on credit buying and the wholesale importation of goods from other countries to the detriment of Canadian business and its employees."

The government should have recognized this. "Instead of just drifting along haphazardly into confusion causing misery for an increasing number of people."

He added:

"Such recognition of the real factors at work and such desire for a correction of the trend of affairs is lacking in government circles, as is so well borne out by the fact that one department of government is busily bringing in new immigrants to look for work where there isn't any...

"Canada needs a far larger population to assist in its development ... But immigration schemes that add only to existing unemployment and encourage the spread of misery are not conducive to the making of good citizens or to the proper expansion of the country."

President Mosher said that, despite the world peace outlook, in many fields the present is better than the apst and there is justification for believing the future will be even better.

"There is still much to be done, and every one of us must accept his share of responsibility for whatever contribution he can make to human welfare, but the main thing, as we look into the new year, is that we may still feel that we are buoyed by hope and by the visible evidence all about us that progress is still possible, and a better world is in the making."

ELECTRIC POWER FROM A-ENERGY FOR FIRST TIME

U.S. Scientists Use Power to Operate Pumps

Chicago, Dec. 29—(AP)—Electric power has been produced from atomic energy by United States scientists for the first time, the Atomic Energy Commission said today.

The power—more than 100 kilowatts—was generated and used to operate pumps, reactor equipment, provide lights and electrical facilities at the national reactor testing station, Arco, Idaho.

A trial run Dec. 21 and 33, produced the power, the A. E. C. said.

The heat energy generated was removed from the reactor by a liquid metal at a temperature high enough to generate steam to drive a turbine, the commission added.

The tests were carried on an experimental basis, because of the breeder reactor can never generate large amounts of electrical power.

Cost was not an essential factor, and it was emphasized that no comparison should be made of the cost of producing electric power from this reactor with power from conventional sources.

The commission said the experiment was not intended to show that electrical power can be economically produced from nuclear sources. But the technical information gained by the experiment may be useful in the design of future reactors aimed generating electricity at a competitive cost, the A. E. C. said.

Allies Offer Compromise On Korean Truce Supervision

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Allies today agreed to abandon their demand for aerial inspection and to negotiate the question of troop rotation — if the communists accept completely a new compromise program for policing a Korean armistice.

"It is now clearly and unequivocably up to you. The future is in your hands," Maj.-Gen. Howard M. Turner told the communists.

The reds said they would study the United Nations proposal overnight and comment on it Sunday.

In an adjoining tent, the communists agreed to account for at least part of the 50,000 men the Allies claim were captured in Korea but were not listed on the reds' prisoner roster.

Communist sub-committee members said they would swap information the Allies have requested repeatedly on the list of red prisoners turned over by the U. N. Dec. 18.

U. N. negotiators have hinted that if the reds furnish a satisfactory accounting, they would consider an all-for-all prisoner exchange proposed by the communists. This would clear the major hurdles blocking agreement on agenda item four — exchange of prisoners.

Sub-committees on both prisoner exchange and truce supervision scheduled meetings for 11 a. m. Sunday (9 p. m. EST Saturday) in Panmunjom.

Turner told the reds the new six-point plan for policing a truce is the U. N. command's final of-

Many Provisions

It provides that "such rotation of military personnel as within the limits agreed upon by both sides shall be reported to the military armistice commission."

It also appears that "both sides undertake not to introduce into Korea any reinforcing military personnel, combat aircraft, armored vehicles, weapons and ammunition after the armistice is signed.

All previous United Nations proposals have said neither side should increase the numerical quantities of troops and equipment, and Chinese Maj.-Gen. Hsieh Fang asked for an exact definition of the word "reinforcing."

Duplessis' Order Puts Cover On Night Clubs

Montreal, Dec. 29—(CP)—Montrealers must turn night into day to celebrate New Year's eve.

Premier Duplessis' 10 p. m. bar-closing order has put the cover on the usual tumultuous welcome given the new year in Canada's biggest entertainment centre.

Local night clubs, already hard hit by the early closing on Christmas eve are juggling schedules in the hopes of getting the celebrant's dollar.

Some clubs will start their floor shows at 8:30 p. m. most of them will run the hour and a half until closing.

Other cafe owners don't think this is a good idea, because customers don't buy refreshments while watching entertainment.

Most of the major clubs will have shows booked for this week, and to get their money's worth from the high-priced American talent they imported, they'll have them perform, even if the bar sales suffer.

"It's so bad the way it is, it can't be much worse no matter what happens," one night club owner said.

Dances in many halls which do not have a liquor licence will remain open until 3 a. m.

The consensus, even of the police themselves, is that the ruling won't do anything to curb drunkenness.

One club owner said:

"How much will this ruling cost us? Who knows. We haven't recovered from the Christmas ruling and many of us will have a tough time making both ends meet at the end of this year."

COSTLY VACATION

Guelph, Dec. 28 — (CP)— A ten-day vacation in Florida will cost Harold Reimer, 16, a two-year term in reformatory, penalty imposed today on Reimer for breaking and entering a Guelph store Nov. 16 and stealing $435.

The boy spent the money on a trip to Florida.

43-Division European Army A Year Away

Paris, Dec. 29 (AP) —Formation of a 43-division European army is at least a year away, Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi indicated today.

Following a morning session of foreign ministers and finance ministers of France, west Germany, Italy and the Benelux nations, de Gasperi told reporters a compromise proposal was discussed.

The proposal would set up an assembly of delegates from the six nations, which would have six months to draw up an agreement on the army. Parliaments of those countries then would have three months to ratify this.

Delegates at the meeting said progress was made today, and that the atmosphere was better than yesterday, when the meeting was split over how to pay for the army, and what kind of supervisory body to set up to run it.

Vancouver, Dec. 28 — (CP) — The wife of Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of the 25th Canadian Brigade in Korea, will fly to Tokyo Monday to visit her husband.

Discovery of Ancient Greek Tombs Adds to Lore About Early Hellenes

Princeton, N.J., Dec. 29—(AP) —A new chapter in the history of the ancient world may be opened by the discovery of 13 tombs in the ruins of Athens an American archaeologist says.

Finding of the tombs, dug about 3,500 years ago, was reported yesterday by Homer A. Thompson, field director of the expedition restoring the market place, or agora, of the city which cradled Greek civilization.

The discoveries Thompson said, revise long accepted theories of a period of Greek history about which little is known.

Perfectly preserved skeletons were found in the tombs and burial ornaments which definitely change current concepts about the state of Athenian culture of the bronze age.

The graves contained vases, jewelry, bronze daggers and ivory combs.

Thompson told a meeting of the Archaeological Institute of America the evidence found makes possible extension of knowledge of the bronze age by as much as 200 years, possibly to 1600 BC.

The skill of the handiwork on the objects found in the graves makes it clear that the Athenians of this early period were well advanced culturally, contrary to accepted ideas, Thompson said.

Archaeologists discovered the graves last summer while they were clearing away ruins built on top of the famous Athenian market place.

The project got its start in 1896 under the direction of German archaeologists.

The current American excavations began in 1931 but were interrupted during the war.

Seven Ships Radio Frantic Calls For Assistance

Extensive Damage Caused In Britain and France

London, Dec. 29 — (AP) — Howling hurricane winds washed mountainous seas over sinking ships along Europe's Atlantic coast today and set off a series of frantic distress calls.

At least seven threatened vessels, including two American freighters, radioed S O S signals. One ship was driven aground. Others were taking water rapidly and in serious danger.

The 6,711-ton U.S. freighter Flying Enterprise, carrying a crew of 40 and 10 passengers out of Hamburg said she was listing 45 degrees and "still taking water." She was wallowing off the southwest tip of England.

Help was standing by the Flying Enterprise and was at hand or on the way to other threatened ships.

89 P.M.H Winds

Winds as high as 89 miles an hour whipped up the worst eastern Atlantic storm in many years.

Ports and airports closed in many planes. Coastal towns from Spain to Denmark were battered.

Hundreds of small boats were sunk at anchor on the French and English coasts. Tidal floods hit river mouths all along the shore.

Most Transatlantic air travel halted after the Shannon River washed out low-lying Shannon international airport. Authorities said the field would be unusable until tomorrow or Monday.

The Queen Mary finally docked at Southampton 72 hours late. Its captain Harry Grattidge, said the trip was the worst he had made since 1914. "There was no other word for the seas but 'terrific'" Grattidge said.

The Holland-Amerika liner Noordam stood by the Flying Enterprise part of the night. The New York Coast Guard said the Enterprise "has plenty of help if assistance can be carried out in heavy seas."

The Southland, a freighter of the South American Steamship Line and a British freighter, the 4,986-ton Sherborne, also went to the aid of the Flying Enterprise. The Noordam's captain decided adequate help was on hand and resumed his trip to Rotterdam.

The Flying Enterprise is owned by the Isbrandtsen Line of New York.

None of its rescuers indicated immediately whether they had been able to take off the crew and passengers. Earlier the Flying Enterprise had radioed she hoped to stay afloat until daylight and transfer her passengers then.

Worst hit was the area off Land's End, the southwestern tip of Britain.

The 7,256-ton freighter Buccaneer of Panamanian registry radioed it was powerless with a lost propellor and needed help. French and Dutch tugs went to the rescue.

In the same area, the 4,300 ton Henry Stevenson from New York messaged for aid saying, "Quick. unable to hold."

Another Panamanian ship, the 1,307-ton freighter Wear, radioed it was out of control off Land's End, with its engine room half-full of water. Later it reported rescuers were at hand.

The storm extended all along the European coast. Small coastal shipping was taking the worst beating. Off the Spanish coast the 400-ton Dutch coaster Gemma said it had lost its lifeboats after being battered among the rocks following an engine failure.

Of the Danish coast the Polish trawler Jorvis was driven aground by the violent winds during the night but its crew of 28 refused to be taken off by Coast Guard lifeboatmen.

Along the French coast, roofs were ripped off and trees blown down. Navigation at the big French port of Bordeaux was halted.

The high winds sent flood waters as high as four feet over some parts of England. Rail transport, too, was slowed by flood waters in southern England. Ballast on the main line tracks from London to Plymouth was washed out by the high seas, but railroad officials said trains still could move through the area at a 10-miles-an-hour speed limit.

Premier Frost Wishes Everyone Happy New Year

Lindsay, Dec. 29 (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario says 1952 will be a year that will test the material and spiritual resources of everyone.

In a New Year's message issued last night at his home here, he said:

"As we stand at the threshold of a new year, we, the thankful people of Ontario, count the many blessings that have been ours during the year.

"The year 1952 will be one of testing the material and spiritual resources of all; the problems of a growing nation, the need for expansion and development, the cost of armament for defence of our Canadian way of life, will impose heavy burdens upon everyone in the land.

"It will be for us to rearm ourselves spiritually, to realize that greater burdens must be met with greater effort.

"It will be a year in which we, the people, must highly resolve to drive out defeatism, intolerance and selfishness, to the end that the burdens that are ours may be shared in proportion to the ability of each and every one of us.

"In this spirit I wish one and all a happy and prosperous new year."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Dec. 29 (CP) Synopsis: The weather has become milder throughout the province. Early morning temperatures were 5 to 10 above in northern regions which is about 30 degrees higher than they were 24 hours previously. In southwestern Ontario readings were around 25 to 30 above. Light snow is still falling in eastern regions but is expected to end by this evening.

Mild weather today throughout the province will be followed by colder weather with snowflurries in northern Ontario tonight and in southern regions Sunday evening.

DAGGERS OF ICE HANG FROM EAVES

Needle-pointed daggers of ice are hanging from many eaves in the city constituting a dangerous hazard to those who pass beneath them.

The icicles in some cases reach large proportions and a blow from one of them could cause serious injury.

MAY HOLD SEED FAIR AT PERMANENT SITE

A proposal to establish Peterborough as a permanent site for the Quinte Seed Fair will be discussed by directors at a meeting to be held in Peterborough on January 7th. Tentative approval has been given by the directors and conditional assent has been granted by members of the Peterborough Exhibition Board. The seed fair was held in Belleville at one time, on a rotation basis.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE GIVEN YOUTH

Harold S. Brant, 16-year-old Deseronto youth, was given suspended sentence for one year and ordered to pay court costs of $9.50 after he pleaded guilty in magistrate's court yesterday to theft of money from a woman's purse.

The purse had been dropped on a bus and was picked up and turned in after the contents were emptied. The matter was reported at Belleville and the youth was taken off the bus at Shannonville by provincial police.

NO CARRIER DELIVERY ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

There will be no letter carrier delivery in the city on New Year's Day, according to post master J. C. Waddell. Neither will there be any delivery by rural mail carriers.

However, there will be one evening letter box collection. The post office lobby will remain closed all day but mails will be received and despatched and special delivery service will be given as usual.

Turkey Prices Ease Slightly After Holiday

Egg prices fell off on the local produce market today as vendors quoted 48c for firsts; 45c for mediums and 40c for pullets. This is a drop of from two to three cents from last week's market.

Turkey prices also eased slightly from last week's Christmas market. Turkeys were quoted at from 63c to 70c per lb for fully-drawn birds; geese were quoted at 60c and ducks at 65c per lb. The general price for chickens was 55c per lb.

Only a few farmers put in an appearance on the outside market. Beets, parsnips and carrots were quoted at 30c per half peck; onions were 60c per gallon and cabbages a dime to 15c each.

Potatoes sold generally at $1 per peck; $3.50 per hamper and up to $4.75 per 75-lb bag.

Top grade McIntosh, Talman Sweets and Delicious apples sold at $2.50 per hamper. Basket lots of Delicious sold at 60c with other varieties bringing 50c per basket.

YULE MAIL DAMAGED

Windsor, Ont., Dec. 29 — (CP) — Post office officials yesterday sorted 500 bags of Christmas mail damaged Sunday in a Canadian National Railways baggage car fire near Brantford. The mail, which includes letters and parcels from all parts of Canada and the United States, suffered fire and water damage.

Plenty of Entertainment to Suit All Classes, Purses and Tastes On New Year's Eve in City

If city residents who like to "let their hair down" on New Year's Eve, fail to do so, it won't be because of lack of entertainment.

For there is plenty to suit all classes, purses, and tastes.

Heading the social functions will be the formal ball and dinner of the officers of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA (AL) scheduled for the officers' mess on the "Eve."

Lieut. Col. G. C. MacGregor, MC, ED and Mrs. MacGregor with the regimental officers will be hosts to a gay crowd of members of the services and others. Featuring the party will be the traditional "March of the Pipers" at midnight when the Old Year is piped out. A turkey dinner will add to the festivities. Dancing will take place in the main lecture room.

The Belleville Club will be the scene of the annual gay party when members entertain their friends at the customary New Year's festivities.

At Tobe's County Gardens the Kinsmen Club will see the New Year in with the annual dance featured by a turkey dinner at 10.30.

Dinners Featured

Dances and dinners will feature New Year's Eve parties at the Royal Canadian Air Force stations at Trenton. Officers' sergeants and other messes will entertain guests while the sports hangar at No. 6 Repair Depot will be the scene of another gay party and dance.

On New Year's Day in the afternoon, officers of the RCAF will entertain guests at the annual reception held in the mess at the south station.

The Club Commodore will feature the evening with a turkey dinner followed by dancing embellished with hats, horns and other noise-making paraphernalia.

Many Private Parties

Typical observances will be under way in the city's suburban environs with dances and parties scheduled in many places. A number of private parties will take place in the city for those who prefer the comparative quiet of their homes to the more uproarious atmosphere of club and public entertainment spots.

Dances and frolics are scheduled for Wallbridge, Tweed, Shannonville, Wellington, Picton, Trenton and other places in the district.

Theatres of the city offer variable entertainment to those who desire to celebrate New Year's Eve with motion pictures. The Belle, McCarthy and Capitol will feature special entertainment starting a few minutes before midnight Monday.

All in all it looks like a "hot time in the old town" Monday night — and well into Tuesday morning.

Not desirous of throwing cold water on any party aspirations, it won't come amiss to remind celebrants that it is wise not to release the clutch on a bottle for that of a car. A number of people will be missing at family tables on New Year's Day, all because of a little carelessness. Accidents are bound to happen, but a lot of them can be avoided if people will show a little foresight and care and solicitude for the other fellow's well-being. It is always the other fellow that's wrong, and he could very well be you.

Many Kindly Folk Make Christmas Memorable One at County Home

A Santa Claus minus beard and the traditional "trimmings" actually existed for ten residents of the Hastings County Home on Christmas Day.

It looked like a rather dull Christmas for these ten elderly people what with their fellow residents receiving gifts through the mail besides others donated by home officials and outside organizations. It seemed as though Santa Claus had forgotten them each time the mail was distributed.

Then it happened.

A gentleman residing in the city, who wishes to remain anonymous, sent 10 large boxes crammed with all sorts of gifts to the Home to be distributed to those who would not receive anything through the mail, or from relatives.

The result? Ten elderly folks whose Christmas became a real one thanks to the generosity and foresight of an anonymous "Santa Claus".

Upwards of 120 residents of the home enjoyed the holiday in a manner that transcended any in the history of the institution. Practically every night for the last ten days one organization or another has visited the home and provided entertainment.

Today superintendent Kenneth Yorke and matron Mrs. Yorke paid appreciative tribute to many individuals and organizations who contributed tangibly or in an entertainment manner to the Christmas well-being of their elderly proteges.

They expressed appreciation to the First Brownie Pack, Belleville under Mrs. Tooth; the Eighth Belleville Cub Pack under Mrs. Lillian Ashley; Argyll and St. Julien Chapters, I.O.D.E.; Soroptimist Club; Zion and Phillipston W.I.; Women's Christian Association; Carmel W.I.; Salvation Army and individuals.

During the Christmas dinner of roast chicken and all the trimmings residents enjoyed a visit from mayor-elect A. McLean Haig who expressed the season's compliments.

Officers Agree On Six-Mile-Wide No-Man's-Land

Cairo, Dec. 29—(AP)— British and Egyptian commanders have agreed on a six-mile-wide no-man's-land between their respective troops along the Cairo-Suez road, it was announced today.

Gen. Saad El Din Sabour, Egyptian army liaison officer, said the arrangement was made to prevent possible clashes between the two forces.

Police authorities in the capital, meanwhile, got orders from the ministry of interior to disperse would-be demonstrators "by all means possible" as a move to prevent repetition of anti-British violence earlier this week.

The order went out; police officialsa said, after 3,200 girl students at four secondary schools walked out in protest against the government shutdown of all boy's schools.

The government closed the boys' universities and secondary schools following two days of student rioting Wednesday and Thursday over King Farouk's appointment of a pro-British adviser to head his royal cabinet.

REJECTS CLAIMS

Budapest, Dec. 29 — (AP) — Hungary — rejecting Yugoslav claims to an island in the Mura River — warned her Balkan neighbor last night to keep off the disputed territory. Hungary last week accused Yugoslav woodcutters of "occupying" the island on Dec. 19. Yugoslavia replied that the island belonged to her.

Bob Hope Faces $30,000 Income Tax Bill on Gift

London, Dec. 29 — (Reuters)— Comedian Bob Hope may face an income tax bill of up to $30,000 in Britain on a gift be made to a youth club in one of London's poorest districts last April.

He earned $42,000 with a two-week appearance at the Prince of Wales Theatre in London's West End. He gave the entire amount to Clubland, a youth centre in the poor Elephant and Castle district of South London, run by Rev. James Butterworth, a Methodist minister.

Now the income tax men have sent a claim for tax to the club.

Mr. Butterworth said the money was spent in restoring his club, severely damaged by bombs during the war.

A spokesman of the Inland Revenue said the onus normally would be on the earner and not on the receiver to pay the tax.

"A man can't avoid income tax just by giving his salary away," he said.

POLICE BLOTTER

Theft of his car at Shannonville was reported to provincial police by F. Haight of Corbyville. Police said the car was later found abandoned along the highway.

A mantel radio was reported stolen from Duffy's Service Station on Front Street. The radio was the property of one of the employees. There was no evidence of a break-in.

A George Street woman reported dropping her purse at a local hotel. The purse was later handed in at the hotel desk—minus the $22 it was said to have contained. The purse had been picked up in a nearby alleyway.

Will Celebrate 105th Birthday

Mrs. Jane Mitchell, of Wooler, who will be 105 years old on New Year's Day. Mrs. Mitchell will celebrate the anniversary at the home of her son, Milton, at Preston Hill. Mrs. Mitchell has lived on the farm which is her home since 1867.

Mrs. Jane Mitchell of Wooler Marks 105th Birthday January 1st

Wooler—Mrs. Jane Mitchell of Wooler will quietly celebrate her 105th birthday on Tuesday, Jan. 1, at the home of her son, Milton, Preston Hill. Despite her advanced years, Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the late Jesse Mitchell, a pioneer settler from England, is in better health now than she was last year. With assistance she is able to get up and sit in a chair where she still reads. Still mentally alert, she loves to recall and relate stories of the old days and the hardships of pioneering. Mrs. Mitchell has three sons with a combined age of 229 years. They are Milton 71, Isaac 78 and Henry 80, all of the Wooler district. Fourteen grandchildren and several great-grandchildren add to the history of this grand old lady.

A note of interest is that this centenarian reads the Bible and the newspapers daily.

Born and raised on a farm at the 8th concession of Murray, she moved to her present home after her marriage in 1867. This was the original homestead of the Mitchell family.

Owner Says Firemen Just 'Stood Around'

Sandwich West, Dec. 29 (CP) —Robert Mennenga Friday night charged that Windsor firemen "stood around warming their hands" while his home burned to the ground. The charge was made at a meeting of this Windsor suburb's council.

Mr. Mennenga indicated that the firefighters brought the wrong equipment to the fire. He said one truck arrived with only a small hose "the size of a garden hose" some 30 minutes after the initial alarm was turned in.

"They made no attempt to save anything," he said. "They just stood around warming their hands."

Windsor fire department will be asked by council for an explanation.

Neighbors Were Too Neighborly

Los Angeles, Dec. 29 (AP)— The battle of neighbors John Riley and Marvin Sasselli, charged with making advances to each other's wives, has been declared a draw.

It took a jury only 45 minutes yesterday to decide in favor of both defendants in the double lawsuit.

Mrs. Riley sought $23,570, charging Sasselli embraced her in the dark while she was getting him a can of beer.

While this was going on, Mrs. Sasselli charged, Riley was hugging her in the Sasselli home across the alley and suggesting they could be more than neighbors. She sued for $40,073.

No More Bare Knees For Canadian Soldiers

Ottawa, Dec. 29—CP—No more bare knees for Canadian soldiers. Army headquarters said yesterday that a year-old discussion on the merits of shorts for the troops in summer has ended with a decision to withdraw any existing authority for their wear.

DIES OF INJURIES

Montreal, Dec. 29 (CP)—Lionel d'Artois, 54-year-old electrician, died in hospitaal yesterday of injuries suffered when he was sucked into the intake of an F-86 jet engine Dec. 17 at an aircraft plant (Canadair) in suburban Cartierville.

Obituary

LATE WILLIAM SMITH
(Marmora)

St. Paul's Anglican Church was well filled on Thursday afternoon for the funeral service of William Smith under auspices of Marmora L.O.L. 319. Canon J. M. Brownlie officiated and gave an impressive address. The hymns sung were "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Abide with Me". Burial followed in the new Orange plot in Marmora Protestant Cemetery. Last rites of the Orange Order were conducted by W. M. Cecil Holland and Chaplain W. J. Cottrell. There were many beautiful floral emblems. Members of the Orange Order officiating as bearers were Herbert Wright, Fred Matthews, Stewart Vanty, Percy Gordon, Gordon Jones and Clayton Clemenger.

LATE MRS. ELIZABETH SAUNDERS and MISS BARBARA E. SAUNDERS

A double funeral was held Friday afternoon for the late Mrs. Elizabeth Saunders and her daughter, the late Miss Barbara Saunders. Service in the chapel at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home was conducted by Canon J. B. Creeggan of Christ Church. Interment was in Belleville Cemetery.

Bearers for Mrs. Saunders were Arthur Seymour, John Bell, Leonard Button, Ernest Turner, James Robinson, and Goldie Fitzgibbon. Bearers for Miss Saunders were Leslie Lennox, Michael Peperni, John Reppard, Harold Baker, Harold Young and Robert Button.

MRS. CATHARINE McMAHON
(Frankford)

The funeral of the late Mrs. Catharine McMahon, Frankford, was held from the Rowe Funeral Home, Friday, to St. Francis of Assissi Roman Catholic Church, Frankford, for Requiem Mass at 9.30 a. m. with Rev. Father O'Hearn of Stirling officiating.

The bearers were Bert Carter, Ross Turley, Thomas Murphy, Francis Armstrong, Clarence Finnegan and Jock Bashaw.

Interment was made in St. Francis Cemetery.

Funeral on Monday

Milan, Italy, Dec. 29—(AP)—A 30-year-old farmer bet his friends last night he could drink a pint of grappa (a strong alcoholic drink distilled from grapes) in one gulp.

His funeral will be held Monday.

BIRTHS

FRALICK. — Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fralick, 14 Lamoine Street, wish to announce the birth of a son, Dennis Howard, born at the Belleville General Hospital, Friday, December 28, 1951. D29

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Uriah Charles Wilson, who passed away December 29, 1950.

My lips cannot tell how I miss him,
My heart cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how I miss him,
In a home that is lonesome today.
—Sadly missed by wife May.
D29

WILSON. — In loving memory of our dear father, Uriah Charles Wilson, who passed away, December 29 1950.

So many things have happened, Dad
Since you were called away,
Things you would have enjoyed
Had you been left to stay.
We cannot bring the old days back
Your hand we cannot touch
But God has given us memories
Of a Dad we loved so much.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by Clara, Jack and June.
D29

WILSON. — In loving memory of our dear father, Uriah Charles Wilson, who passed away December 29 1950.

We who loved you, sadly miss you,
And as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of you are ever near.
—Sadly missed by daughter Audrey, son-in-law Fred and grandchildren Steven and David. D29

LUCAS. — In loving memory of a dear wife, Anne Martha Lucas, who passed away December 29, 1950.

God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine."
—Sadly missed by husband. D29

LUCAS. — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Anne Martha Lucas, who passed away December 29, 1950.

Sometimes it's hard to understand
Why some things have to be,
But in His wisdom God has planned
Beyond our powers to see.
God gave us strength to fight it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to part with her
No one will ever know.
—Ever remembered by granddaughter Bessie, Frank and grandchildren. D29

LUCAS. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Anne Martha Lucas, who passed away, December 29, 1950.

You can only have one mother,
Patient, kind and true:
No other friend in all the world
Will be as kind to you.
For all her loving kindness
She asks nothing in return:
If all the world deserted you,
To your mother you can turn.
So all we can do, dear mother,
Is to go and tend your grave
And leave behind a token of love
To the best mother God ever made.
So, you who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you'll never know the heartache
Till you see her vacant chair.
—Ever remembered by son Owen and daughter-in-law Sadie. D29

LUCAS. — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Anne Martha Lucas, who passed away December 29, 1950.

A tribute of love and remembrance
For a grandmother, one of the best;
The joys that she missed on life's journey,
May she find in God's garden of rest.
—Sadly missed by grandchildren, Bernice and Beatrice. D29

BURLEY. — In loving memory of a dear father, Harry Wesley Burley, who passed away December 22, 1948.

Sweet memories will linger forever,
Time cannot change them it's true;
Years that may come cannot sever
Our loving remembrance of you.
—Sadly missed by son Kenneth Laura, Bonnie Lee. D29

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

Holy Is The Lord

Holy, holy, holy is the Lord!
Sing, O ye people, gladly adore
Him;
Let the mountains tremble at His word,
Let the hills be joyful before
Him;
Mighty in wisdom, boundless
in mercy,
Great is Jehovah, King over all.

Praise Him, praise Him, shout aloud for joy,
Watchman of Zion, herald the story;
Sin and death His kingdom
shall destroy;
All the earth shall sing of His glory.
Praise Him, ye angels, ye who behold Him
Robed in His splendor, matchless, divine.

King eternal, blessed be His name!
So may His children gladly adore Him;
When in heav'n we join the happy strain,
When we cast our bright crowns
before Him;
There in His likeness joyful
awakening,
There we shall see Him, there
we shall sing.

Cho. Holy, holy, holy is the Lord!
Let the hills be joyful
before Him.

Fanny Crosby, the blind hymnist, wrote thousands of hymns to bless and cheer the world, and whenever she came up with a new one she found a composer ready to supply a magic tune.

She teamed up with William H. Doane to produce "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour." Robert Lowry, Philip Bliss, James McGranahan and Philip Phillips wrote the music for some of her other songs. And when she wrote "Holy Is The Lord," which turned out to be one of the favorites in her list, it was William Bradbury who supplied the hymntune.

Mr. Bradbury, a New York gospel song publisher, and Miss Crosby were hymn-writing partners on several other occasions. It was Mr. Bradbury who inspired the blind singer to attempt her first religious song and who, after she had written her verses, set them to music.

The two met for the first time in New York about 1860 and Mr. Bradbury asked the young writer if she would like to try a song for him. She was delighted and turning to her task she produced in three days the words which the New York composer later set to music and published.

Fanny Crosby wrote many, many hymns in the half century that followed, hymns which carried her name around the globe and won for her a place of everlasting fame among hymnists and hymn lovers of the world. But she never ceased to be fond and proud of those first simple lines:

"We are going, we are going
To a home beyond the skies,
Where the fields are robed in beauty,

fair,
We shall dwell in love together;
There will be no parting
there."

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

WINTER FIELD TRIPS

A winter field trip often brings the bird watcher a most unexpected thrill. It may be a flock of redpolls flying low in the sunshine, then coming to rest on a snowy road where weeds are poking up their heads; a pair of gorgeous cardinals at a feeding tray; a flock of golden-eyes resting on a pebbly shore beside fast-moving, blue water; or a majestic hawk soaring overhead.

Some fortunate people live in a locality where different types of country join; but rarely has anyone the opportunity on the excursion of seeing birds of the forest, birds of the meadow, and water birds. So today let us choose the uncleared land, and start off suitably equipped for a snowy walk. Let us enter the forest quietly, with eyes and ears alert. Pale sunshine slants between bare branches, but mixed in with elms and birch are some fir trees. We hardly reach the outskirts before we are greeted by a hoarse voice shouting, "Hello!" This is followed by a whining noise, as made by a dog. Just then we spy the fairly large bird, which by this time is saying to us in a confidential tone, "Kaya- Queck, queck, kwa-wa."

A front view presented to us, we fancy the bird is mostly white. Then, as it shifts its position on the low branch to come nearer us, we get a side view for a moment, and discover that it is mostly grey. The startling white, high forehead is off-set by black at the nape of the neck. Cheeks, collar, throat and breast are also pure white. Of course, this is the Canada jay, down from the north on a spree.

We hate to leave so unusual a visitor, but a nasal "yank-yank" announces that a nuthatch is not too far away. No sooner have we moved forward than a flash of brilliant blue crosses our path, and a blue jay shrieks, "Jay, jay," so close to us that we jump. This rumpus will never do, we must stand still until all is calm.

Then deep in the woods we come upon an old pine, and there twenty feet up, sits a large, dark object. As we gaze intently, the great horned owl opens one eye to look us over, and when we circle the tree that eye follows us. But we must leave him in peace and turn homeward before the sun begins to sink. In a few hours he will be lively enough — too lively to suit the neighboring squirrels. No wonder they run at the sound of his deep-toned voice. He is their deadly enemy.

SNOW REMOVAL COSTLY

Toronto, Dec. 28 — (CP) Snow removal here will cost more than $800,000 before the year is out, board of control was told yesterday. The board voted to spend $300,000 above its budgeted estimate of $500,000 for snow removal.

WILL STORE TOOLS

Washington, Dec. 28--(AP) — The United States army announced yesterday that a 14-acre air-conditioned cave near Atchison, Kansas, will soon be taken over for the storage of defence machine tools not yet needed in the mobilization program.

The Wine Industry in Portugal

(Article 50)

Lisbon, Portugal — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Once when I was on a train in Portugal I heard one person say to another, "Look over there. They're drinking tea." That indeed was worth commenting on, for it was a rare sight. A much commoner sight would have been a wine flask, for it seems that just about everyone drinks wine in both Spain and Portugal. I suspect that the reason why the Spanish trains stop so long at every station is to give the passengers a chance to fill their wine flasks.

The wine industry is highly developed in both countries and a list of the different wines produced would fill several pages. In Spain the most important wine-producing areas are Andalucia in the south, Estremadura in the west-central part and Cataluna in the northeast. In Portugal the industry is in the Douro River district, and it is this district which is perhaps the most famous, since it is from here that the well-known port wine comes.

High Production Costs

Perhaps the most important factor of viniculture in this area is the high cost of production and everything connected with it. The district is very mountainous and it is seldom that the owner is able to use machines instead of manual labor. The soil is poor and partly because of this the yield is very low.

The vines are planted on the steep mountain sides, but before the actual planting the ground must be dug up to a depth of about three feet. Supporting walls are then built several yards from one another, always conforming to the contour of the land so that the earth may be held in place during the winter rains and to enable the ground to be almost level. Then the American stock is planted, and the following year the Portuguese vine is grafted onto it.

The planting is done in two ways. Either a special two-pronged pick is used to make a hole several feet in depth and width, or a crowbar is used. By the first method none of the roots is damaged so that it is conductive to good and sturdy growth. This method is employed chiefly in good and level ground. When the crowbar method is used, the vine is stripped of almost all its roots in order to slip it into the hole. This method is much cheaper and is the one generally used in spite of the fact that it means a severe thinning of the roots.

Much Labor Required

Once the vineyard has been started, there is still much work to be done. First a hole is dug around the vine and any sprouts which have grown from the grafted stock must be cut away. Then the stocks are pruned and staked, after which fertilizer is spread throughout the vineyards. In March the ground is thoroughly hoed, followed by a spraying of the vines which lasts until early summer. In late September or in October comes finally the harvesting of the grapes.

Since the demand for laborers is high at this time of year, gangs of workers are brought in from other districts. Although the work is very hard, they seem to enter it in a festive spirit, for they arrive singing, shouting or playing musical instruments. Women and sometimes children and old men are employed at picking the grapes while the men do the other jobs, such as transferring or crushing the grapes.

The pickers put the grapes into small baskets and then transfer them to larger ones, after which they are transported to the stone tanks where they are to be fermented. Then comes one of the most interesting parts of the whole process. When the tank is full, the men, after thoroughly washing their hands and feet, get in on top of the grapes, and linking hands with their fellow-workers, they march up and down the tank until the grapes have been crushed. Then they separate and work independently.

Feet Treading Best

This treading of the grapes by human labor has been done for centuries, and although other methods have been tried, nothing has been found to equal it. The men's treading does not crush too strongly the skins or stalks, the whole process is even and continuous, and keeps the "must" in motion. This work is so strenuous that only the men from the surrounding mountains are fit to be employed.

During the period of fermentation the wine is closely watched by an expert and when he feels that the proper time has arrived the wine must is drawn off. At the same time a certain amount of brandy is added so that the fermentation is checked, and the natural sugars are preserved. This is important, for it was this addition of brandy that made Port wine have a distinctive taste when it was first made over two hundred years ago. With the addition of the brandy, the wine is known as "fortified wine."

The next step is to load the wine onto boats and take it down the Douro River to Oporto, the city from which the wine gets its name. It is then transferred to casks in a warehouse, where it is allowed to lie for many years, the length depending on the type of wine to be produced.

Several Factors Involved

The type of wine depends on several factors. If it has been made from red grapes, it will be the classic Port wine, which more or less keeps its deep color, and is heavier in body. The white grapes produce a wine lighter both in color and body.

The time allowed for the wine to mature is also important, for with time it tends to lose some of its color but takes on a finer taste so that it commands a much higher price when it finally is exported.

With such an important industry as this the Portuguese government exercises a rather rigid control over production, bottling and selling. Although this at times has caused some friction, it is in the long run the best system, for it offers protection to the trade.

The producers need not be afraid that substitutes will ruin their markets, for only by adhering to all the rules can they export a wine with the official stamp "Port Wine." By virtue of the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty in 1916 no other wine may be called Port in England today. Since the English seem to appreciate Port so much, the producers make doubly sure that the quality to which the consumers have become accustomed is always maintained.

SPUDS DESTROYED

Patten, Me., Dec. 28—(AP)—Fire last night destroyed two big potato storehouses and their contents—25,000 barrels of new spuds—with loss estimated unofficially at $150,000. Firemen, battling the flames in four-below-zero weather saved seven other potato houses in a string adjacent to the Bangor & Aroostook railroad tracks.

WHERE THE BEST CROPS GROW

Which of Ontario's counties is the biggest producer of farm crops? The monthly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture provides the answer.

Kent led in fall wheat — $4,651,000 worth of it during the last crop year. Lambton is second. Simcoe was tops in oats, its crop having been worth $3,985,000. Middlesex came second in oats. Huron led in barley, with a crop worth $1,251,400. Middlesex was second in barley. Dufferin was first in mixed grains, with a crop valued at $5,156,500. Grey was second in mixed grains. Kent led in shelling corn, with a crop valued at $8,499,200. Essex was second. In fodder corn, Middlesex led, with a crop worth $1,570,500. Lambton was second. Essex was tops for soy bean production, with a crop worth $4,289,700. Lambton was second. Essex led in potatoes, with a crop worth $2,870,000. Simcoe was second. Grey was tops in hay and clover, with a crop worth $3,900,000. Huron was second. Simcoe led in alfalfa, with a crop worth $1,811,900. Haldimand was second.

The foregoing figures do not provide a very accurate idea of the relative value of farm land in any of the counties mentioned, because there is a big variation in their size. Essex, for example, is one of the smallest counties, although it is usually near the top as a producer. Simcoe, also near the top as a producer, is much larger in area. Middlesex, Kent and Lambton are all of medium size.

AS OLD AS HISTORY

The decision of a Hungarian court to levy fines totalling $120,000 on four American flyers whose plane was forced down in Hungarian territory illustrates the true character of Communism more clearly than any indictment of that system of government which could be levelled by any of its enemies.

Those who were conducting the Communist-dominated Hungarian court knew that the four airmen were not carrying any such sum of money; they knew also that there was not one chance in ten thousand that any of the men, or all of them together, possessed any such amount at home. Even in a wealthy country like the United States, it is extremely unlikely that their families can raise $120,000.

The demand for $120,000 means, in effect, that the four airmen are being held for ransom. The only agency which is in a position to ransom them is the United States government. The United States government will probably pay the "fines," although with hesitation, because it will realize that in doing so it may be establishing a precedent.

Countries such as England and France, which call themselves civilized, used to hold captured princes and generals for ransom during the middle ages, but no country which can claim to be civilized has ever done so in modern times.

This latest action of Communism disproves Communism's claim that it is "new." It proves that Communism's methods and objectives are old — as old as barbarism, of which it is only a modern form.

NORTHERN FLYING

Northern flying requires the specialized knowledge and training that develops the hardy race of flyers known as bush pilots, and the time is approaching when air transport officials will have to give recognition to this fact.

The Peace River Record-Gazette agrees with this view in the contention that more control is needed over northern flying, and our contemporary lays special emphasis on flying in the Far North where lost planes and crews become matters of major concern.

Says the Record-Gazette:

"Aside from any experience gained by flying crews the matter must be written off after each search, with huge cost in time, effort and money. The only answer is more control over the departure of planes on flights without proper precautions and experienced personnel." — (Sudbury Star.)

"WISE" SPENDING

Any ordinary citizen who let himself in for $535 in court costs and legal fees over a $5.76 debt that had already been paid would be considered certifiable by the rest of community.

Yet that is what Ottawa bureaucrats in the Unemployment Insurance Commission did with smug righteousness in Manitoba recently. They brought a resident of this province into magistrate's court, county court and the Court of Appeal over $5.76 that the commission admitted had been paid before the charge was laid.

The commission lost the case in all three courts and now must pay costs and legal fees of about $535. — (Winnipeg Tribune.)

NEW YEAR THOUGHT

With the old year slipping out,
This is what I think about:
Will the man I'd like to be Ever substitute for me?

As we start another year
Will that better I, appear?
Should he visit for the day
How much longer will he stay?

Why so difficult should be
Plans I make for changing me?
And, why should it be so hard
Faults and follies to discard?

Is the man I'd be a sham,
Covered by the man I am?
Can the lack of courage be
Reason for the faults in me?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 29th., 1931.

The city police car, which was stolen from along the curb on Bridge Street about three o'clock on Christmas morning, has been located in Toronto, and an officer will go to Toronto to fetch it home.

Mr. Theodore Maraskas is home from Toronto to spend the holidays.

Miss Grace Embury, nurse-in-training at Kingston General Hospital, spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Embury.

Mrs. R. D. Aston and little daughter Betty of Saskatoon, Sask., are here to spend two months with her monther, Mrs. Tracey, North Front Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reynolds, Doris and Joan, have returned home after spending Christmas in Toronto with Mrs. M. R. Reynolds.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McPherson and three daughters, of this city, spent Christmas in Odessa with Mr. and Mrs. Shelly Denyes.

Thirty-seven men slept at the city lodge for transients last night. In addition to the meals served to the transients who passed the night there, the attendants also gave meals to 36 men during the day.

Mr. William Deroche is home from Osgoode Hall, Toronto, to spent the holidays with his parents, Judge and Mrs. Deroche.

Mr. Gordon Robertson, barrister, has returned to Windsor, Ontario, after spending Christmas at his home here.

30 YEARS AGO

December 29th., 1921.

The Farmers' Milk Producers' Association of Belleville District was formed at a meeting which was held at the Windsor Hotel here and the following officers were elected: President, W. M. Mitchell; Secretary, W. F. Osborne; Directors, Frank Miller, William Bennett, Frank Knight, Percy, Mott, Fred Parrott, B. Osborne and John Weese. Owing to the high price of feed the producers decided to raise the price to the vendors.

Chief Brown and the members of the city fire department desire to thank ex-mayor Charles N. Sulman and the manager of the Union Bank for gifts of cigars and also Mr. J. B. Ives for gifts of soft drinks.

An orchestra composed of Messrs. Lucas, Weese, Corham, Greenleaf and Ford furnished pleasing music.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAVE A SIDE LINE!

There is nothing like an interesting side line to keep the mind stimulated and relaxed at the same time. It can be a little door into a big new world! Many is the one who have entered that door and created a valuable side line to his regular duties in life.

Thomas A. Edison started out in life as a telegrapher, but he used his spare time in experimenting on things about him so as to improve them. This led to his remarkable career of invention. One of his first inventions was a copying device that saved the work of duplicating in a slow manner. Then from one invention to another he passed until he gained his highest crown in the invention of the electric light. But it all started by having a side line!

Writing about side lines the noted missionary to Africa, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, said this: "Do not be put off if you find that you have to wait and to experiment. Be sure that you will have disappointments to endure. But do not be satisfied without some side line in which you may give yourself out as a man to men. There is one waiting for you if only you are willing to take it up in the right spirit."

Recently I had an overhead door built for my home garage. The man who did the work interested me for he was a unique character. I got to talking to him and inquired how he happened to get into this line of work. He told me he was formerly a plumber but got to studying these doors, built a few and became so interested that he decided to make it his all-time job. His side line now pays out profitably because he loves his work and has all he can do.

I have a friend who liked to work at fixing things. Finally he started picking up discarded old furniture. Then he repaired and restored it, and today he has one of the most beautifully furnished homes I have ever been in, for he became an artist in this work. All started from a side line. A farmer, for whom I worked in my youth, loved to write poetry which he would send into the local newspaper. Also he would comment on the questions of the day. He got fun that way, and I am sure it all made him a better and happier farmer!

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

NEW WESTERNS

When we lived in the city we hardly ever went to the movies except when a highly recommended picture came along, but in the country it's become a kind of ritual to go every Friday night, whatever may be playing. We would doubtless go if they just ran old wallpaper through the projection machine.

They have the show in a hall heated with a large oil stove and it's a pleasant experience to sit around the stove and watch the picture. Last summer a large bat got in the hall (looking for a Bela Lugosi film, some said) and attacked the screen. You don't get that kind of entertainment in the city.

Many of the shows are veterans, none of them more than 10 years old, and I am becoming something of a reluctant authority on this kind of film.

Most Friday nights we totter away from the hall with our eardrums sagging from the sound of yodels, eyes fogged over with a cinecolor glaze.

The modern western goes in heavily for color and cowboy singers. The western picture as you and I knew it, back in the dear dead days beyond recall, is a thing of the past.

When I see these modern cowboy pictures I wonder what the younger generation is coming to. I often say this aloud to my daughter, who loves singing cowboys. She just rolls her eyes.

Let's consider the typical western picture of today. Last Friday's for instance, was called "The Cheyenne Trail" and it's more or less typical of the type. They're all pretty well from the same blueprint.

"The Cheyenne Trail" opened with a cowboy and a cowgirl riding along on horses that have clearly been groomed by Max Factor. They're supposed to be rounding up some cattle, but these are educated cows, probably members of Actors' Equity, and the herd is following the boy and girl.

The cowboy is all dressed up in a silk shirt and he's singing, accompanying himself on a guitar worth at least $800. Every once in awhile he gives the gal the acid-indigestion look that means love.

Well, bless my soul, what a way for a western to open!

In my day if a cowboy picture didn't start with a bunch of bad guys frantically chasing a stagecoach the entire audience would have stormed the box office demanding their 10-cent admission back.

In those days the hero was always a great big tough-looking hombre like Tom Mix or Hoot Gibson and they wouldn't have no truck with no females no how.

There was always the odd woman around, of course, decently covered in crinoline and looking at Tom or Hoot with yearning, but Tom or Hoot would just doff their ten-gallon hats at them politely and didn't waste their time with mushy stuff.

I remember Tom said "Howdy, Ma'am" in one picture and it was considered a pretty daring love scene.

They just didn't have the time for romance. They were too busy looking for high cliffs to leap their horses from, doors to bust in with their shoulders, lanterns to shoot out (setting fire to the whole saloon) or riding off alone into the setting sun (the signal for us all to get up and race for the exits before God Save The King could be played).

There's precious little of this kind of thing in the modern western.

In "The Cheyenne Trail", for example, the hero is so worried about how he's making out with the girl that he hasn't much time for anything else except singing.

At the drop of a Stetson he whips out a guitar, gets an agonized look and breaks into a falsetto howl, instantly accompanied by a full orchestra and chorus who have apparently crept up behind the cactus. The wide prairie, the lone gulch, the hidden valley— They're crawling with musicians.

In the whole movie there was only one little fight and it was broken up by an elderly female. At that she looked as if she could handle both the hero and the villain and take two out of three falls.

In the old days too, there was an incredible number of leaps. No hero went anywhere in those pictures without being ejected, as if from a cannon.

There were leaps off cliffs into water, out of unopened windows to the backs of horses named Trigger and Tony, leaps on and off the backs of villians from balconies to bars. No self-respecting western hero in those days would have dreamed of getting on a horse unless he vaulted aboard at a dead run.

Ah, but in "The Cheyenne Trail" the hero climbs up on a docile horse as if he were at a riding academy and had just rented the nag at a dollar an hour.

He couldn't leap if he wanted to because of all that guitar hanging around his neck.

No. 10 Downing Street

No 10 Downing Street is the official residence of the British prime minister and the BBC. London letter tells something of the history of the unobstrusive building which is known to so many millions of people simply as "No. 10". This trim, unadorned house in Downing Sreet, which lies just off Whitehall and almost opposite the Cenotaph, was offered as the official residence for the Crown's first Minister by George II. When he accepted it Sir Robert Walpole made one stipulation, that the house should be put at the disposal of all future First Lords of the Treasury. It is because the prime minister also holds this second office that he is able to live at No. 10, for the office of prime minister was merely a courtesy title with no place in the British constitution until the late Earl Balfour instituted a Royal warrant, setting forth and defining the prime minister's precedence.

Downing Street was named after Sir George Downing, a seventeenth-century citizen who by adroit shifting of his loyalty between king and parliamentarians enriched and advanced himself. The Whitehall district was at that time badly waterlogged by the nearby Thames and notorious for the gaming houses and great cockpit which stood close to the present site of No. 10 before Downing acquired the freehold of the land.

Many Notable Statesmen

Since Sir Robert Walpole moved into No. 10 in 1735 many notable statesmen have lived there although the house has many drawbacks. It was remodelled in 1820 by Sir John Soane and is today virtually as he left it, but many great premiers, amongst them Lord Derby, Lord Palmerston, Lord Beaconsfield, Mr. Gladstone and Lord Rosebery, preferred to live in their own homes rather than the official residence. Other premiers, such as Earl Balfour and the Duke of Wellington, have lived happily in the uncomfortable and somewhat inconvenient old house and some of its more recent occupants have provided strong constrasts in their mode of living. Campbell-Bannerman was stiff and socially correct, the late Earl of Oxford, when he was H. H. Asquith, created with his brilliant wife Margot an unusual atmosphere which shocked some people as much as it delighted others.

Lloyd George revived the custom of the breakfast social call and his No. 10 breakfasts became famous, while in the time of Ramsay Macdonald the house became a near-intellectual centre. Mr. Churchill made it a focus of world attention during the dark days of the war but under his successor, Mr. Attlee, it became sedate. Now that Mr. Churchill is premier once more the new tenant of No. 10 is also an old one who knows the place well.

British Private Named Winner Of Victoria Cross

Tokyo, Dec. 29—(CP)—A young British private was named winner of the Victoria Cross for his almost single-handed fight against hordes of attacking Chinese in Korea last month.

The soldier, Pte. William Speakman, will receive the commonwealth's highest award for valor Sunday from Maj.-Gen. A. J. H. Cassels, commander of the 1st commonwealth division.

It was the second V. C. won by a British soldier in Korea. The first was awarded posthumously last January to Maj. Kenneth Muir of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Speakman, whose unit is the 1st battalion of the King's Own Scottish Borderers, won the V. C. for his action last Nov. 4 when 6,000 fanatical Chinese flung themselves on three companies of the Borderers.

The citation told how Speakman, with grenades and a machine gun fought a one-man battle against the attacking reds. His repeated charges against the Chinese, urging his comrades along with him, were said to have saved many British lives and were the major factor in the Borderers' success.

Personal Health Talks

NOAH WEBSTER AND OL' DOC BRADY AGREE

In an article published in the Archives of Laryngology (that's a medical magazine dealing with throat diseases) Drs. Hansel and Chang estimated that 160,000 operations for removal of tonsils, out of (hold onto your hats, folks) 1,235,000 tonsillectomies in the United States in a year, are unnecessary, and indeed may make the condition of the victim worse than it was before the operation —that is, if the victim survives.

It is the routine practice of many physicians to ascribe frequent cri (kree), that is, common respiratory infections, or "colds" to ignorant folk, sinus trouble sore throat, bronchitis, to a presumptive septic focus in the tonsils, and to urge removal of the tonsils as the best way to prevent recurrence of such troubles.

In most instances, if the victim is subjected to tonsillectomy on such a questionable diagnosis, these attacks occur as frequently after the operation as they did before.

From the book, Children's Tonsils In and Out, by Dr. Albert D. Kaiser, Rochester, N. Y., (published by Lippincott and available in public library, if you would like to get the facts from the top authority), I quote this conclusion:

"Statistical studies on groups of children with control groups of like ages" (that is, some 2200 Rochester school children with enlarged tonsils whose tonsils were not removed, and 2200 whose tonsils were removed) "reveal only a slight benefit for the children whose tonsils and adenoids have been removed. . . . If, however, healthy tonsils and adenoids are removed, the child may become even more susceptible to colds."

University students whose tonsils have been removed in childhood are more subject to the cri than students whose tonsils have not been removed, according to the observation of Dr. D. F. Smiley at Cornell.

But, shucks, who cares about these statistics? Certainly not the misguided parents of school children and certainly not the ever ready operators who are dead set on removing enlarged tonsils whenever they can persuade parents to assent to the atrocity.

I use the word atrocity with premeditation. It tends at alert parents to the gravity of the tonsil quesion. The ever ready operators get away with murder —oh, oh, that one is accidental— too easily by persuading parents that tonsillectomy is a simple little operation although, as they well know, it is a major operation and a dangerous one, too often, indeed, a fatal operation.

Webster says an atrocity is something very bad. Such, I should say, as an attempt to remove every bit of tonsil tissue from a child's throat. Brutal is another word for it. Not that the doctor who attemps it or advises or approves the attempt has an evil or vicious intent, but I do maintain that the principle of tonsillectomy is wrong (except in rare instances of malignancy) and hence the operation is unjustifiable. And an unnecessary or unjustifiable operation is brutal—don't take my word for it, take Webster's: 2. Brutelike in want of reason.

Now if any reputable physician cares to dispute anything I have said here or elsewhere about tonsillectomy, I promise to print here his or her statement with his or her approval and keep his or her identity secret unless he or she gives me written consent to reveal it.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

REAL SECURITY

One evening a group of middle-aged and older educators were discussing the thing most to be sought in life. One of these men, host of the evening, declared that he believed the thing most necessary in life was security.

He must have had a restless night after making the statement for within a day everyone who had been present at the discussion received a letter from their erstwhile host saying that he was very sorry for the statement he had made and that, on thinking it over, he was sure that security was not the thing in life most to be desired.

Of course he was, at one and the same time, both right and wrong. There is no such thing in this world as financial or physical security. One wealthy family in this country a decade or two ago lost a million dollars a day for 120 days. Economically, we can be very easily easily shaken down to the bottom of the barrel. Nor is there any security physically. One of the richest men in the world died recently in the prime of life of an incurable disease. The King of England has in recent months undergone a serious operation.

Yet there is a security, namely, inner security of peace and the thrill that comes from participation in creative enterprise, which is indeed supremely desirable. The only real security we can have is spiritual security.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The competitive urge, the instinct to get ahead of other people, is the basic instinct of human nature, as it is of all nature. To it we owe nearly everything of value we have got in civilization. But to it we also owe nearly everything that is bad.

The attempt by organized labor to control the competitive urge within their membership is often criticized by management as being an unnatural thing. But labor does not entirely remove competition. They merely shift it, instead of competing with one another, the unionized workers compete with their employer. Good old competition is still there. It is competition between groups, a group of employees against a group of employers; the latter usually being in groups when you count in the banks, the trade associations and others involved.

In a socialist state, the reduction of competition leaves nobody to compete but the leaders, who get a lot of satisfaction, no doubt, out of feeling their natural instincts at work. But it must be very dull among the uncompeting masses. It amounts to being all dressed up with no place to go.

Uncontrolled competition, as in war or any other lawless enterprise, results in the kind of destruction that occurs in nature all the time—among all plants, all trees, all animals—the entire living world except man and the few animals and plants he has kindly taken under his protection.

Competition also accounts for crime and lust and the brutality to be seen on every hand. It governs our manners in traffic, on the street, boarding street cars or buses. Every time we step up to a counter in a store, we find somebody trying to horn in ahead of us. When competition dies, the second to last person on earth will have just passed away.

Acting Mayor Burtt Promises To Fight Cold Storage Firm Seeking $1,200 in Damages

Trenton (Special)—Councillor Ross Burtt, acting in the absence of Mayor Ken J. Couch, last night told storage manager Eben James that it was his intention to fight the Trenton Cold Storage's claim against the town for $1,200. The storage company is seeking damages to property caused by raw sewage from a sewer not hooked up to an extension out into deeper water in the bay. The sewer is an outlet to a septic tank in the Bayshore, Park area.

Mr. Burtt informed Mr. James that the condition has existed for years and that the Trenton storage company was the first to attract attention to it. He claimed that it was a personal matter "brought on by Eben and his uncle." (Mr. James is the nephew of Senator W. A. Fraser). Mr. Burtt pointed out that Mr. James first presented council with a damage bill for $500 and a month later the bill amounted to $1,200.

Mr. James said: "there is no connection at all between me and my uncle." He told councillor Burtt that the case was in his lawyer's hands and his lawyer was doing the talking for him.

"You're smart," retorted Councillor Burtt.

"Is that a compliment?" asked Mr. James.

"Use the least line of resistance," replied Councillor Burtt, turning to the press saying: "You can put that in your paper."

Town solicitor Ramsay Park advised council to either make a settlement with Mr. James or deny liability.

Councillor Claude Graham suggested the matter be laid over to the first of the year to be dealt with at a special meeting with Mayor Couch present. Town clerk O. W. Larry agreed. Councillor Burtt nodded his head in approval, saying the last time we took on something when the mayor wasn't here we lost $2,000." (Mr. Burtt referred to the time he was acting mayor and the Dominion Management Associates were hired to make a survey for $2,000.)

Councillor Burtt spent several minutes reminiscing about Mr. James' father. "I enlisted with your father, Major James," he said, "and I'm not ashamed of it." "There's no need for blushing, son" remarked Councillor Burtt. "I'm not blushing," said Mr. James.

A committee including Councillors Norman Benfield and Charles Allore and town engineer Riga will investigate the presence of a trailer on a property on Leopold street. A trailer dweller must first get permission and have adequate sewage and water installments, besides pay an annual tax of $50 before he can locate a trailer, according to a town by-law.

Burglary Suspect in Furniture Store Captured by Trenton Gendarmerie

Trenton — Three policemen wrestled for several minutes with a would-be thief early Christmas morning after he broke into Farrar's furniture store on Dundas Street East, Police Constable Max Gainsforth, had completed his inspection of the stores on the north side of Dundas Street East, when two men reported that they had heard someone breaking the glass in the furniture store.

Investigation disclosed that the glass door in the front had been smashed. Constable Gainsforth rushed inside and searched the premises but was unable to find the intruder. Sergeants G. Steenburg and D. Bradshaw were summoned and an extensive hunt was conducted with the aid of R. Cretney, the owner of the store, still no trace of the man was found. Minutes later, while the police were in the back of the store checking the office, Mrs. Cretney arrived at the scene and saw a man lying on the floor. The three policemen found the suspect who immediately grappled with them. They managed to subdue him and locked the handcuffs on him.

The man, Nicholas Attanassof, a transient was being watched earlier that evening when he was seen loitering near the store. Constable Gainsforth inspected the store at 12.25 that night and the break-in was reported at 1.09.

Atomic Energy Investigations Made by Canada Beginning To Pay Important Dividends

Editor's note: This is the fourth in a series of stories on Canada's atomic-energy project. It is written by an American reporter with an eye to the project's possible importance in relation to United States developments.

By FRANK CAREY

Associated Press Science Reporter

Chalk River, Ont., Dec. 29 (AP)—Canada had the chief stakes in a kind of safety side-bet made in the great wartime gamble which produced the first United States atomic bomb.

Now it's paying off in established and potential benefits to industry, agriculture and medicine in certain ways unmatched by any other country.

The side-bet was Canada's atomic project, established in 1943, to investigate the feasibility of producing plutonium — a potential bomb-material — by a process differing from the one chosen by the United States.

The idea was, Canadian scientists said, that if the method chosen by the American didn't pan out, the Canadian project might provide a back-stop.

The problem involved a choice of material to slow down neutrons in a pile of uranium and thus sustain a chain-reaction resulting in the production of plutonium.

Graphite Chosen

The American chose graphite, a form of carbon, because it was much more plentiful and readily available than the principal alternative substance — "heavy water."

Britain, Canada and the United States agreed on concentrating the heavy-water research project in Canada.

The United States furnished some of its scientists, and also supplied the heavy water — an undisclosed amount, but Canadian scientists told me it was all that was available to the allies at the time.

But Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, scientific head of Canada's project implied that America's participation in the project was reduced after the war.

"I think we are probably further advanced than if we had (full) co-operation from the United States because we were thrown on our own," he said.

Referring to the alternatives presented during the war, he declared:

"As it turned out, graphite did click, but the heavy-water project has also clicked in many different ways, some of them spectacular."

He was referring in part to the fact that in Canada's reactor, radio-active isotopes for use in medicine, agriculture and industrial applications, can be made "hotter and smaller" than in any other reactor. That is, superior "hotness" can be produced in smaller quantities of material.

Canada's first heavy-water reactor — a purely experimental device of low power called the "Zeep" — didn't go into operation until shortly after the Americans had dropped their first atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

Canada's second, and much larger, reactor — called "NRX" for "National Research Council Experimental" — didn't start operating until 1947.

But Canadian scientists say that one aspect of the pay-off is the finding that plutonium can be produced faster from a given amount of uranium in a heavy-water reactor than in a graphite device.

Canada's present "NRX" can produce only "small quantities" of plutonium. And in a larger reactor now under construction the Dominion does not plan large scale production.

FAMED CHOIR — The 62-voice male choir of the Cathedral Church of St. George, Kingston, Ont., will sing at special services in the Episcopalian Cathedral of St. John the Divine today and Sunday. The famed Canadian choir is the first visiting group ever invited to sing choral Eucharist in the New York church, largest Gothic Cathedral in the world and principal church in the Episcopalian Diocese of New York. T. Briarly Browne, right, dean of the Anglican Diocese of Ontario will accompany the choir to New York where it will sing today and Sunday at the Episcopalian Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Dean Browne will be guest preacher at choral Eucharist Sunday morning. This photo is by George Lilley. — (CP Photo.)

Kingston Male Choir Will Sing In Largest Cathedral in N.Y.

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 29 (CP)—Evensong at the largest Gothic cathedral in New York City will be sung this afternoon by a male choir from Kingston.

The 62-voice choir of St. George's Anglican Cathedral here are scheduled to sing Saturday and Sunday at the Episcopalian Cathedral of St. John the Divine, on the invitation of the Bishop of New York.

The choir, conducted by choirmaster George N. Maybee, is believed to be the first visiting choir ever invited to sing choral eucharist at St. John's. Very Rev. A. T. Briarly Browne, Dean of Ontario, will be guest preacher at the choral eucharist Sunday morning.

The St. George's choir, winners of the International Rotary Festival of Music Trophy in 1950 and 1951, will sing many Canadian compositions by Dr. Healey Willan and a Canadian Indian carol with words written by Father Breboeuf, 17th century missionary in the Georgian Bay region.

The 30 men in the choir are looking forward to seeing New Year's Eve in Times Square. Sightseeing and music tours have been arranged for the group, ending New Year's Day when they will return to Kingston.

Members of the choir range in age from nine-year-old Peter Maley to Dr. P. G. C. Campbell, 73-year-old Queen's University French professor.

SALEM

Mrs. Thos. Clements Heads W. Auxiliary

Salem—The annual meeting of Salem W.A. was recently held at the home of Mrs. Cecil Carter with 31 women present.

Mrs. Clements gave a reading, followed by the various reports from the several departments.

The January meeting will be held at the parsonage with Mesdames D. Sine, I. Sarles, H. Mayo, A. Ray on the program and lunch committee.

Mr. Beckel was in charge of the nominating of officers for 1952.

Mrs. E. Sine tendered a vote of thanks to the members of the executive for their efforts during the past year.

The officers for 1952 are as follows: president, Mrs. Thomas Clements; vice president, Mrs. Harry Mayo; secretary, Mrs. B. Heagle; treasurer, Mrs. Murney Johnston; pianist, Mrs. Hagerman; W.M.S. treasurer, Mrs. B. Beckel; card committee, Mrs. Lorne Hagerman.

Mrs. Clements thanked the women for their co-operation through the year.

The following program was prepared by Mrs. Frank McGee: Scripture reading by Mrs. W. Wickens and Mrs. D. Sine; an accordion selection by Mrs. Colden followed by readings by Mrs. Lorne Hagerman and Mrs. V. Hagerman.

Those taking part in the candlelighting service included Mrs. McGee, Mrs. H. Holden, Mrs. Murney Johnston, Mrs. I. Sarles, Mrs. A. Twiddy and Mrs. Everett Sine.

Mrs. George Sine rendered a solo with guitar accompaniment, and Donna and Bernice Dunsford sang, "Star of the East."

Following the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Canadians Given Same Rights As Other Forces

Bonn, Germany, Dec. 29 (AP)—Canada has demanded — and won — for its newly-arrived troops in western Germany the same rights as the Allied occupation forces, western officials disclosed today.

They said the Allied High Commission has quietly passed a new law granting the Canadian troops — who have no occupation duties — and their families the "rights and immunities" of American, French and British occupation troops.

The 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade arrived in Germany recently to reinforce the defence of western Europe.

The principal effect of the new law will be to guarantee the Canadians exemption from trial in German courts and certain facilities paid for by the Germans under "occupation costs," the officials said.

Exiled Premier Says Russia Getting Ready

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Poland's exiled premier, says Russia is speeding war preparations in her mid-European satellites.

He told a press conference yesterday that during the last six months he learned from the iron curtain underground:

1. There is an unexplained food shortage in middle Europe, whereas all these countries except Czechoslovakia normally produce food surpluses.

2. Gasoline is scarce in Romania, an oil producer.

3. Middle Europe's steel output has been increased and new foundaries opened in East Germany, Poland and Hungary.

4. Soviet Deputy Premier Molotov, at a July 22 meeting with mid-European leaders in Poland, demanded more military production.

5. "Unnecessary" people, that is, those cool to communism, are being moved out of larger cities.

Mikolajczyk said he suspects gasoline, meat and grain are being stored for use by the red army.

NAMED ACTING CHIEF

Port Arthur, Dec. 29—(CP) — Sgt. Tom Connor, 42, member of the Port Arthur police force for 14 years, was appointed acting chief constable for a probationary period of one year at a meeting of the police commission yesterday. Sgt. Connor will assume his duties Jan. 1 following retirement Dec. 31 of Chief George Taylor.

Single-Salary Plan Opposed By Federation

Toronto, Dec. 29—(CP)—The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation yesterday adopted a policy of opposition to equal salaries for elementary school teachers with a university education and secondary school teachers.

I. M. Robb, field secretary, said the single-salary plan was part of an "insidious movement" which "has the effect of depriving the O. S. S. T. F. of its right to bargain on salary exclusively for its own members."

Thursday, the first day of the federation's annual convention, George Roberts of Oshawa, president, said that university education for elementary school teachers is a liability because it makes their approach more complicated.

Until recently all school boards in Ontario paid secondary school teachers a higher salary, regardless of training, and elementary school teachers with university degree were given a bonus. Early this year, the Toronto Board of Education gave equal salaries for equal training and service.

High school teachers must have a university education and one year at Ontario College of Education. Public school teachers must finish high school and spend a year at normal school, but many also have university degrees.

The federation promised complete support of any local which rejects the single salary schedule.

Later, at the annual banquet, John R. Morgan, secondary school inspector, answered criticisms of the "single salary schedule."

He said 87 per cent of Toronto's secondary school teachers were in the highest pay category while only 22 elementary school teachers in 1,800 in the city were in the top category.
school teachers of 1,800 in the city were in the top category.

Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell, United States educationist who wrote the book "The Crisis in Education," said that senior public schools or junior colleges have proved their worth in the United States and he was surprised to hear anyone argue about them.

He said schools are neglecting proper discipline necessary to thought and failing to teach good manners.

To Take Inventory

Toronto, Dec. 29—(CP)—An inventory of electrical apliances to be converted for 60 cycle use in Stratford will start next week, Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, announced Friday.

The inventory will take about three months. Some customers of the Stratford Public Utility Commission will be using 60-cycle power by the middle of March.

Some 5,400 domestic and 650 commercial customers will be affected by the switch from 25-cycle power in Stratford.

THREE NEW COURSES

Port Arthur, Dec. 29—(CP)—Three new civil defence courses covering first aid, civil defence warden duties, and atomic-biological-chemical warfare, will be given here next year. Civil defence co-ordinator T. S. Jones said a general civil defence course to train area wardens will also be started.

73 ATTENDING COURSE

Kingston, Dec. 29 — (CP) — Seventy-three young farmers now are attending the annual Christmas short course at Queen's University arranged by the community program branch of the Ontario Education Department, the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and Queen's Extension Department.

All Canada Getting Ready To Mark New Year's Advent With Parties, Celebrations

(By The Canadian Press)

It will strike first in St. John's, last where the Pacific laps the Pacific laps the shores of Vancouver Island.

But whenever midnight strikes in Canada Monday, the resulting celebration of the first day of a new year promises to be gay.

For it wasn't a bad year in 1951 for most Canadians. Prices of almost everything — and that includes the prospective tab for Monday's New Year's Eve high jinks — were high. But so were wages and salaries. In general, Canadians had much to be thankful for in 1951 though, for many, the Korean war and its drain on the country's resources of men and materials brought sorrow.

A Canadian Press coast-to-coast look at what's lined up in the way of celebrations this New Year's Eve found that Montreal, traditionally Canada's gayest city, where people never go to bed December 31, may not sparkle as brightly as in other years. The bars must close at 10 p.m. That goes for Quebec City, too.

Toronto to be Gay

But Toronto, Canada's second largest city that once was viewed by many as the most staid, will keep its dining lounges running full blast until 2 a.m. Public parties may continue until three o'clock.

Throughout Quebec province, Les Canadiens will make a night of it, of course, at home. For French-speaking Canadians, New Year's traditionally is more festive than Christmas, regarded chiefly as a religious holiday in that province.

A male celebrant in Toronto can enjoy himself for as much as $100 or as little at $2, depending on where he goes. In one downtown hotel, the charge is $35 a couple —plus incidentals such as drinks, rooms, corsages, taxis and tips. White or black tie is required. In night clubs, the minimum charge is $2.00.

$25 in Edmonton

In booming Edmonton, $25 is estimated as the minimum for a good night out. Many formal functions are scheduled in that city this year as pre-war dinner jackets and white tie-and-tails are coming back.

Servicemen's parties are expected to be popular in Regina and Saskatoon, Saskatchewan's largest cities, with prices ranging from $6 to $11 a couple, but few cafes will remain open in those cities for that early-morning spot of coffee. Proprietors have found that New Year's Eve crowds are rowdy.

In Vancouver, where, as in most Canadian cities outside of Ontario and Quebec, there are no bars or cocktail lounges, some night spots are booked solid at from $5 to $15 a couple. As in other cities, baby sitters will be a problem for Vancouver's married couples.

In Winnipeg, big hotels will charge $12 a couple, dress optional, with a 3 a.m. closing hour. Dances with floor shows will cost about $4-$5 a couple and many of those are scheduled. Participants must carry —at their peril — their own alcoholic refreshments.

In the Maritimes, with Halifax setting the pace, a "big spender" can anticipate paying at least $25 for the larger parties with hotels charging from $12 to $15 a couple.

WEDDINGS

HERRINGTON—DELONG

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Dec. 8, at St. Alban's Church, Ameliasburg, when the Rev. Frank Beazel united in marriage Gladys Beryle DeLong, Reg.N., daughter of Mr. Frank DeLong, of Ameliasburg, and the late Mrs. Mable DeLong, to Allen Elgin Herrington, of Rossmore, son of Mrs. Allen Herrington.

The bride wore a navy blue travelling suit with navy accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Daniel Pope, of Palermo, Ontario, attended the bride, and Mr. Daniel Pope attended the bridegroom.

Upon returning from their wedding trip, the happy couple will reside in Belleville.

GAIRNS—KELLAR

St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty informal wedding on Friday afternoon, Dec. 14, at 2:30 o'clock, when Archdeacon Arthur Smith officiated at a double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Winifred Pearl Kellar, youngest daughter of Mrs. George Frederick Kellar, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Kellar, to Allan Kellas Gairns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alistair K. Gairns, Trail, B,C, Professor Ernest W. Wheatley, church organist, played the wedding music. Miss Barbara Joan Houston sang "O Perfect Love", before the ceremony, and "The Lord's Prayer", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. G. Arthur Kellar. She wore a two-piece street-length dress of white Chantilly lace over white moire taffeta and matching lace mitts. Her finger-tip veil was caught to a halo of white Chantilly lace. She carried a white prayer book with a mauve orchid and white streamers.

Mrs. Margaret Eagle, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a street-length dress of navy taffeta and lace with pink accessories and corsage of pink roses and carnations.

Mr. H. Merwin-Fenton, of R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, was groomsman. The ushers were Mr. Fred Donovan and Mr. R. T. Tiller, both of R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, who received in a street-length dress of hunter's green crepe and lace with matching felt hat and corsage of Talisman roses.

The bride's going-away costume was a black wool suit and muskrat coat with black accessories.

Out-of-town guests were from Trenton, Frankford and Lyndhurst.

Gracie Fields Hopes to Wed Next Month

Capri, Italy, Dec. 29 — (AP)— English commedienne Gracie Fields hopes to be married to her radio mechanic fiance next month at a Roman Catholic church ceremony by special dispensation of the Pope.

She is not a Catholic, but she has said she will become one because of her love for Abraham Boris Alberovic, 48, who left Romania 20 years ago and became a radio repair man on this island of romance. Gracie is 53. She disclosed their engagement Wednesday.

It was learned last night that she wants to be married without waiting to complete the arrangements for her entrance into the Catholic church. The action of her request is expected to be delayed for several days because of illness of the patriarch of the Capri Cathedral. However, Gracie hopes the documents required will reach Rome and be returned in time for a January wedding here.

BOWLS PERFECT SCORE

Stratford, Dec. 28 — (CP) — Mrs. S. G. Skinner realized every bowler's dream Thursday night, notching a perfect score of 450 while competing in the married couples' five-pin league. It was the first time a woman bowler had turned the trick here.

PASSENGERS JOSTLED

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 29 — (AP) — An oil truck collided with a loaded street car last night spewing flames over the trolley and jolting some 50 passengers—two of whom were treated for shock. Firemen extinguished the blaze in about 10 minutes.

AID ARAB REFUGEES

London, Dec. 29 — (AP) — A plan to spend about $250,000,000 over a three-year-period to aid 1,000,000 Arab refugees will be submitted to the United Nations General Assembly next month, Sir Henry Knight, British member of the advisory council of the U.N. relief and works agency, announced yesterday.

Annual Hospital Auxiliary Dance Featured by Lovely Costumes

Last evening at Club Commodore, a most enjoyable time was spent when about 250 participated in the Hospital Auxiliary dance which resembled a garden of flowers with the many delightfully lovely costumes displayed, backgrounded by the dark suits of their escorts.

Following the dances, which included 'spot' and 'balloon,' a buffet luncheon was served from attractively arranged trays by Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Bird; Dr. and Mrs. Jack Marshall; Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Kennedy; Dr. and Mrs. W. McCutcheon; Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Ross; Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Cronk; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Scott; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Buchan; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Taylor; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Clarke; and Mr. and Mrs. H. Alford.

Those in charge of the tickets included Mrs. G. A. Freeman and Miss Jean Timmerman, while those who attended to the sandwiches were Mrs. J. O'Flynn, Miss Potts and Miss Ivy Dickens; and of the relishes, Mrs. L. Langlois, with Mrs. H. Wray in charge of the cake.

The spot dance prize committee included: Mrs. P. C. McGuire, Mrs. A. E. Purdy and Mrs. T. Y. Wills with Mrs. H. Wray, Mrs. C. C. Clarke, Mrs. J. O'Flynn, Mrs. W. McCutcheon and Mrs. J. H. Forrester in charge of the dance. Mrs. George Faulkner provided the most attractive posters.

Winners of the various prizes, distributed by Dr. J. H. Forrester, were: door prize, Jack Tatham; other prizes, Miss June Reeves, Victor Kestler, Mrs. G. A. Freeman, Mrs. Quinn, Dr. Bateman, Miss Margaret Allen, Ronald Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Jack Kuntze, Miss Dorothy Locke, and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Scott.

The highlight of the evening was the drawing of the lucky ticket for the winter scene by Manly Macdonald. This was drawn by Mrs. George Stobie and won by Mrs. C. Bardgett, of 300 Charles street.

Women's Institute

STIRLING W.I.

Stirling—Mrs. W. C. West opened her home for the December meeting of the Stirling Women's Institute. Several visitors joined with the members for the Christmas program.

The president, Mrs. P. Bronson, opened the meeting with secretary Mrs. S. McMurray calling the roll.

Mrs. West was in charge of the program. Carol singing was enjoyed with the song leader, Mrs. H. Rodgers and Mrs. B. Woodbeck at the piano. Mrs. J. Morrison gave a reading, "How to Make Money"; Mrs. L. Rodgers gave the topic on home economics dealing with wool, with a variety of materials on display. Mrs. West put on two contests.

The highlight of the afternoon meeting was a cookie demonstration put on by Mrs. Clarence West using a shortbread dough.

A cake and icing tube were used bringing out Christmas trees, stars and other fancy shapes, then finished off with different trimmings. These were later served for refreshments.

Refreshments were served with fancy sandwiches, date loaf, pickles, plates of dainty cookies and home made candy and tea.

An educational meeting in sewing, cooking, and distinguishing the percentage of wool in materials followed.

At the close of the lunch hour Mrs. A. Gordanier moved a vote of thanks to the hostess, program committee and lunch committee and also thanks to Mrs. Clarence West who so cheerfully demonstrated and baked such a quantity of delicious cookies.

Shalom From Israel

By Leo H. Marcus

(Article 14)

Jerusalem, Israel — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — The third phase of our "tiyul"-hike took us southward along the coastal valley of Israel and finally into the northern Negev. The Negev is situated in the southern part of Israel and comprises the desert wasteland of the country.

Prior to entering the Negev we stopped at Kibbutz Negba. The word Negba means "to the Negev." The settlement was founded in 1939 and at that time it was the most southern Jewish settlement in Palestine. The name Negba is outstanding in the history of the Arab-Israeli war.

In 1948 when the army of Egypt was marching northward in the hope of capturing Tel Aviv, they surrounded Negba from three sides and although it is estimated that they shelled the settlement with some 30,000 shells, they were unable to capture it and continued northwards. The settlement at Negba suffered more than any other settlement during the war, eventually being completely destroyed.

Settlement Rebuilt

When I visited Negba I found it difficult to believe that a battle had ever been waged there because the settlement had been completely rebuilt. I saw young pine groves, citrus orchards, green fields, and I was convinced that Negba looked like one of the most flourishing settlements that I had seen in Israel. The only sign of war is the old water tower which is punctured with shell holes and the monument erected in memory of those citizens of Negba who died in its defence.

The next stop on our hike was the settlement of Nachal Aza and from there we could see the Gaza Strip and the city of Gaza. The Gaza Strip is a narrow piece of land on the southwestern coast of Israel, captured by the Egyptians during the war of liberation, and presently retained and occupied by an Egyptian force.

The word Gaza means "very strong" and the city of Gaza was one of the five main cities of the Philistines. From Gaza many of the stories connected with the Biblical Samson and his fights against the Philistines originated.

Before the construction of the Suez Canal, the port of Gaza was important because it connected the Indian Ocean with the Mediterranean Sea. Ships came from the Indian Ocean, through the Red Sea to the port of Elath. From Elath the ships' cargoes were carried across the Negev by caravan and brought to the port of Gaza from whence the goods were shipped to the countries on the Mediterranean Sea. The English word 'gauze' originated from the city of Gaza because gauze was originally exported from there.

"Gateway to Egypt"

The port of Gaza has always had some connection with Egypt. It has often been referred to as "The Gateway to Egypt" and throughout history Gaza was held by Egyptian forces in order to prevent any foreign army from entering or capturing it.

Today the port of Gaza is not suitably developed to meet the requirements of modern shipping and the port is only used to bring supplies to the Egyptian forces on the Gaza Strip. It is hoped that when final peace agreements have been reached between Egypt and Israel, the Gaza Strip will be again turned over to Israel so that Israel may develop the port of Gaza and make it once again a leading port of the Mediterranean Sea.

SISTERS ALL

By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY

Canadians should be very proud of one of their church choirs which is getting international recognition for its fine music. First Canadian church choir to sing in New York City, the boy choristers and men of St. George's Anglican Cathedral in Kingston, have been invited to sing over the New Year's festival in the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine. . . . Not only is this the largest Gothic cathedral in the world, but it has always been most particular about the excellence of its music.

This New York Episcopal cathedral maintains its own choir school where the choristers live-in and receive all their education. It is a similar system to the choir schools in England. This is the first time a visiting choir has ever been invited to sing a choral Eucharist in the old New York cathedral.

While the Kingston boy choristers practise their music almost daily at the cathedral the year round, they manage to get together for a few social activities frequently and have many other interests besides their singing. One of these is the Pen Guild they have formed with the choir boys who sing in Westminster Abbey. Twenty-two of the Kingston youngsters each have a pen pal in the Abbey choir and the boys exchange letters.

Malcolm MacPhee, a Kingston choir boy, has just received a letter from John Watts at the Abbey. It reads in part: "I will be 13 next year. What position are you in your choir? I am second head boy. Do you sing in the choir until your voice breaks?

"I have seen a picture of the royal couple's trip across Canada. Some of the buildings and stadiums in Canada are huge. The crowds that gathered to see them wherever they went, were enormous. They showed pictures of them at the Calgary Stampede. Some of the cowboys were marvelous. They could sit on any horse. Is this Stampede held once a year."

"Now I must say goodbye as I have to go to choir."

While there are many different groups corresponding with pen pals abroad, this is the first time we realized that letters are slipping back and forth across the Atlantic between choir boys. What a fine mutual friendship will grow between these English and Canadian young people. And it will be a permanent friendship cemented in mutual interests and tastes.

Are These Men?

What ever is happening to men's fashions isn't improving their appearance one little bit. When you realize that one shirt manufacturer alone, makes 20 different varieties of collars, you know that a man can no longer be the quietly conservative he-man he once was. New styles are making a sissy out of Pop and a jockey out of Big Brother.

Soft nylon shirts with girlish collars, broadcloth sport shirts with feminine blousiness, trousers with pleats, suits without vests may be more comfortable on a man than the old conventional masculine styles. But they certainly convert what might be an immaculate gentleman into a new kind of sack.

Gentlemen used to wear spats and fitted gloves. They were warm and more suited for business or a party than those big clodhopper snow boots.

A finely knotted "quiet" tie nestled into a conventional white collar is so seldom seen anymore that you must look twice at the man who wears it.

There was something rather fine is the old gold watch chain, the tie pins and the gold cuff links that came down from Pa and Uncle Hubert. They had a masculine charm and a lasting fineness which can't possibly be contained in any chromium tie clip or gilt expansion bracelet on a luminous wrist watch.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Suspicious Husband

Is jealousy in a husband to be excused on the ground that he loves his wife very much and so, of course, he would naturally be jealous of her?

I have a letter from one husband who seems to justify himself that way. He also apparently justifies the action he took in violently confronting the man with whom he suspected his wife had been over-friendly.

He tells the story this way:

"My wife and I have been married ten years, and we have three children. She is 31 and I am 35.

"She was very devoted to me until about six months ago, when I began to notice a strong reaction between her and the husband of a good friend of ours. I openly accused her of infidelity, which she denied, and then I proceeded to get after this man. One night about twelve o'clock I accosted him on the street with my hand in my pocket as if I had a gun. All he had to say in reply to my accusation was that he was sorry and didn't mean any harm. When I reported this to my wife, she tried to throw it off with the comment that he didn't know what he was saying because he was afraid of me.

"As a result of all this, my wife and I even went to consult a marriage counselor, and this counselor told me that I am very jealous. I know I am jealous because I love my wife and family so much. But in this case I am positive that something has been going on between my wife and this man for about three months. My children have mentioned different things to me that verify my suspicions.

Jealous Husband

"I still love my wife and children, and I don't know what to do."

Now first, let's go back to the question asked at the beginning and phrase it a little different. Is a man to be held blameless when he is jealous, purely because he is in love with his wife? Is he to be excused for tearing out and stirring up all the trouble he can because his jealousy has made him unbearably suspicious? I hardly think so. I think a distinction must be made here between what is justifiable and excusable, and what is understandable. In other words, it is readily understandable that any human being should feel the pangs of jealousy if the person he loves devotedly shows signs of transferring to someone else any of the attentions he believes should belong exclusively to himself. But for him to translate that jealousy into unjust suspicions and accusations, or rush impetuously into ill-considered action, is neither justifiable nor excusable.

Before he can even make a beginning of effectively tackling his problem, this husband will have to change his whole attitude toward it. If he cannot do this, or is unwilling to try to do so, he might as well walk out on his marriage right now. Only if he can bring himself to approach the matter in a spirit of reasonableness and sincerity, is there any hope that it can be saved.

Have Faith

What I think he will do, if he really means it when he says that he stills loves his wife, is to tell her that he is going to accept her statement that there was nothing between this other man and herself; that he has faith that she could never again refer to the episode, but act as though it had never happened. He will try harder than ever to be thoughtful of her, and tender with her; to be the kind of husband every normal woman wants and cherishes with such whole-souled devotion that she would rather die than disappoint him. If he adopts such tactics as these, and really puts his heart into it, the chances are that, even though she may have slipped a little this once, his love and his confidence will so win her loyalty that nothing of the sort could possibly occur again.

And what if the best effort he can make should fail? What if subsequent events should prove that his suspicions were correct? Then it might be time for him to take some other, more drastic step.

But first, he should give this plan a fair trial, going about it not half-heartedly, keeping his grievance warm in case of failure, but confidently, as though he were certain it would succeed.

BELATED HONEYMOON

Salem, N.H., Dec. 29 — (AP)— Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Hollinrake left here yesterday — their 25th wedding anniversary — in a pick-up truck on a belated honeymoon to Niagara Falls and Canada. Hollinrake, 47, and his wife, May, 45, said they couldn't afford a honeymoon when they were married 25 years ago in North Troy, Vt.

BENEFICIAL IN ONE WAY

Chicago, Dec. 29 — (AP) — Chicago's record and costly snowfall, a police official said today, had one benefit — no traffic fatalities in the last week. Chicago averages two traffic deaths every 24 hours.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Could you please give me the ingredients for a sweet pickle for pork. I had a recipe which called for water, salt, sugar, saltpetre, but lost it. Also a recipe for shortbread which calls for eggs and baking powder.—Mrs. F. F., Lake St.,

ANSWER:

SUGAR-CURED HAMS AND BACON

Trim all ragged edges from meat. Rub the pork thoroughly with salt, and pack it in a cool place overnight. The next day pack it in a clean barrel or earthen crock, with the heaviest hams and shoulders at bottom, the lighter hams and shoulders next, and bacons and tongues (if used) on top.

For every 100 pounds of meat weigh out 10 lbs. salt, 2 1-2 pounds of brown sugar, and 2 ounces of saltpetre. Rub these together thoroughly, taking care that the saltpetre is finely powdered. Dissolve the whole by stirring it into 4 gallons of boiling water. Allow this brine to cool for at least 4 hours until it is room temperature or colder, then pour it over the meat in barrel. If it does not quite cover the meat add more water. The brine should cover the meat at all times. If the brine is very low on the meat make another half batch—do not dilute the brine more than 10 per cent by the addition of water. Cover the meat with a cover which fits inside of the rim, not of metal, and weigh it down with a very heavy rock.

If the brine shows signs of fermenting it should be drawn off, boiled, cooled and poured back over meat. The bacons and tongues may take from 4 to 6 weeks, before smoking if you intend to smoke them. Lighter hams and shoulders require from 6 to 8 weeks, and heavy hams the full 8 weeks.

SHORTBREAD
(Another variation)

One cup butter, 3 1-3 cups bread flour (1 lb.), 7 tablespoons cornstarch (2 oz.), 1 small egg yolk, 1-2 cup sugar. Beat the butter to a soft and airy cream then beat in the yolk and sift in the remaining ingredients gradually. Divide into three sections.

Put each on a separate piece of clean paper, pat out square or round until about 1-2 inch thick. Pinch edges together to produce a fluted effect, and if desired, score top with fork. Prick well all over. Bake in slow oven of never over 325 deg. Fahr. until crisp feeling to the touch, but as little browned as possible.

Note: This variation of shortbread is especially good with finely chopped blanched almonds sprinkled over top just before baking. If you care to make these crisp and light you may add 1 or 1-2 teaspoon baking powder without changing the shortbread texture much.

QUESTION:

Am taking advantage of your offer and going to ask for some recipes on fancy Christmas cookies with dates, fruits, nuts in a drop cookie if you have any, or any of your own favorite ones. I know they will be good as your Christmas cake sounds very good and I am going to try it this year. I also like your other recipes. Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.—Mrs. Clarence D.

ANSWER:

Knowing that cookie recipes would be in great demand I printed in this column on Dec. 7 the recipes for Brownies and Hermits and on Dec. 13 the recipes for such traditional Christmas cookies as Lebkuchen, Scotch Shortbread (see above too), Kipferl and Swedish cookies. I hope you saw them. On Dec. 18 there were Ginger Creams, Plain White Cookies, and Filbert Cookies, and on Dec. 20 Fig Newtons, Porcupines and Teaball Doughnuts, Dec. 22.

I am sure from that list you will find some little gems that will please you. But there is one I have wanted to find room for and that is one of may favorites so I will take this opportunity to give it to you.

PECAN DREAMS

One-half cup best quality shortening or butter, 1-4 cup icing sugar, 1 cup sifted cake flour, 2 eggs, 1 1-2 cups firmly packed brown sugar, 2 tablespoons ordinary flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1 cup chopped pecans (or walnuts or almonds), 1-2 cup moist shredded cocoanut. Cream the shortening until airy then beat in the icing sugar and flour until perfectly mixed. Spread this on 2 greased pans about 8 x 8 x 2 inches. Spread it with the following mixture: beat the eggs well then beat the sugar into them. Add the ordinary flour and baking powder which have been sifted together. Stir in nuts and cocoanut. Spread over top of first mixture then bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 40 minutes. When removed from oven cut into 2-inch squares but let cool in pan.

Let me know when I can help again. Happy New Year to you and your loved ones.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton Voted Year's Outstanding Woman

(By The Canadian Press)

East and west share the honors in Canada's outstanding women of 1951.

Heading the four chosen in a Canadian Press poll by women's editors of Canadian daily papers is Miss Charlotte Whitton, dynamic Ottawa social worker and mayor of Canada's capital.

Others who took top honors are Marlene Stewart, Fonthill, Ont., teen-ager who won the Canadian women's open and closed golf titles; Gabrielle Roy, distinguished novelist of St. Boniface, Man., and Montreal; and Betty Jean Hagen, Edmonton-born violinist.

CP asked women's editors to choose the year's outstanding women—on a basis of news interest—in sport, a literature and art, music, and public affairs; and; in addition to pick as woman of the year, from these fields or others, the one woman most in the public eye.

The result: public affairs and woman of the year, Miss Whitton; sport, Miss Stewart; literature and art, Miss Roy; music, Miss Hagen.

Made Headlines

Charlotte Elizabeth Whitton, C.B.E., made headlines in October when she was chosen to fill out an unexpired term as mayor of Ottawa and thus became the first woman mayor of a Canadian city. But she had been prominent in Canadian life long before that. A glance at the history of her career shows her taking a master of arts degree at Queen's as a double medallist in English and history in 1917, after playing on championship hockey and basketball teams at the university. Her name has long been associated with social welfare in this country. She has been a delegate to the commission on social welfare of the League of Nations, a director of the Canadian Welfare Council, and an active writer in the welfare cause. Her activity in connection with adoption practices erupted in a series of libel charges against her and others by the Alberta government in 1948. They were subsequently dropped.

A contender in both the woman of the year and public affairs categories was Mrs. R. J. Marshall of Agincourt, Ont., a member of Canada's United Nations delegation and former president of the National Council of Women. Others mentioned in one or other of these categories included Ellen Fairclough, M.P. for Hamilton East Mme. L. de G. Beaubien, of Montreal; Kate Aitken; Celia Franca, the ballet-artiste, and Miss Stewart.

Wins Golfing Crown

Marlene Stewart, the 17-year-old who won the Canadian and Ontario women's open golf titles and the Canadian closed championship, had little competition as outstanding woman in sport. Others whose names found some support were Winnie Roach Leuzler, first Canadian woman to swim the English Channel, Barbara Ann Scott, and Mariette Laframboise, Montreal tennis player.

In literature and art, two distinguished French-language authors won general support. Second to Miss Roy, whose "Where Nests the Water Hen" appeared in English translation during the year, was Mrs. Germaine Guevremont, who won the governor-general's award with "The Outlander". Dr. Hilda Neatby, professor of history at the University of Saskatchewan and a member of the Massey Commission; Mazo de la Roche; Lilias T. Newton, Montreal portrait-painter; Lotta Dempsey, newly-appointed editor of Chatelaine; Lilian M. Beckwith of St. Andrews, N.B.; and Marie Raymond of Mnotreal were others who won votes.

Miss Hagen's achievements as a violinist were news last June when the 21-year-old Edmonton girl won the Pathe Marconi prize at the Thibaud international competition in Paris, the first Canadian to do so. Second in the voting was Gisele LaFleche, the St. Boniface, Man., girl who is making good as a Hollywood chanteuse. Others mentioned were Constance Lambert, Louise Roy, Donna Grescoe, Violet Archer, Greta de Kresz, June Kowalchuk and Gloria Agostini.

NEW NAME

Kenora in northwestern Ontario was named from the first two letters in Keewatin, the village of Norman and the former name, Rat Portage.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Please. . .don't ever send printed thank-you cards!

Don't stoop to sending ready-made cards of thanks. Avoid them as you would the plague . . .for that's just what they are. You can write, can't you? If so, don't cheat your friends out of your words of thanks by sending them a printer's words of thanks!

When you've forgotten to send a Christmas card

Alas, alas! It happens to most of us. . .in our Christmas mail we receive cards from some friends to whom we should have sent cards, but didn't. We're embarrassed because we were not as thoughtful as these kind friends were. And we're chagrined, because we really should have included them.

What to do. . .what to do? when there has been such a particularly thoughtful remembering, it surely seems particularly ungracious not to make some gesture to acknowledge it. Some people rush to dash off a "return" card. . .but the chances are that it will arrive too late for Christmas. A shabby give-away.

The most graceful gesture to make to these thoughtful friends is to write each a New Year's note. A bright little, brief little note of appreciation and good wishes. Written on your personal note-paper, or on plain semi-note paper, or on the inside pages of informals, or on attractive New Year's cards.

A sentence or two of high-hearted words will keep the friendship on the friendship-pathway, flourishing:

Dorothy, my dear:

Your lovely Christmas card with your friendly greetings made me so happy. Thank you for your message of remembering—it was wonderful to hear from you!

Happy days for your New Year, dear friend, and happy ways. And let's have a date soon; to talk "of old days and new".

Devotedly,
Rosita

A silver plate as a christening present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Within the next two months I'm to be a goodmother, and I would like to give a christening present of something in silver. I've been looking about, and I've been most attracted to a plain silver plate, about 6 1-2 inches in diameter. I've never heard of this type of present being given as a christening present, but our local jeweler assures me it would be correct. I like it better than the usual silver cup or bowl or spoon and so forth. Do you agree with the jeweler, or would it be better taste for me to give a regulation present?—Marcia T.

A silver plate is an excellent christening present, entirely proper and extremely convenient now, and particularly later. It is sometimes given as the underplate with a silver bowl, but this makes quite an expensive baby-present. The most suitable type of plate is an absolutely plain silver one, with no indentation unless you are also giving the bowl. Then, in the centre, you can have the marking, as you wish: the baby's name, your name as godmother, the date of the christening. This present makes a life-long treasure, always convenient for many uses.

MARSH HILL

Marsh Hill—Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Berson Mitts and Lois on Christmas day were, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Coulter and family, of Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Reilly and family and Miss Evelyn Olmstead of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Tice Clare of Toronto.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Improving on nature

If you don't believe that some women get better-looking as they get older, take a glimpse at photographs of some of the movie stars when they first appeared in pictures. They didn't get any raves. They developed beauty. Many run-of-the-mill women can do the same thing, even in their thirties and forties.

Every change is in favor of the cultivation of pulchritude. Fashions accent the fine lines of the figure. Make-up is more realistic and restrained. Coiffures are simple and chic. All these steps forward contribute toward the preservation of youthful appearance. When your great-great-grandmother was thirty she wore a bonnet and shawl, definitely considered herself on the shelf. A lot of water has run under the beauty bridge since then, and let us be glad!

Cosmetic chemists have come to the aid of their countrywomen, producing toiletries that are high grade and effective. If a girl hasn't a touch of rouge on her cheeks and a bit of brightening color on her lips, she doesn't blend with the times. No telling how many wallflowers have been saved from a sad and lonely fate by permanent wave and the lipstick. Today it is a pretty dumb woman who cannot improve upon nature, who can't retain her good looks and make faces at old Meanie Time.

Women are learning how to adapt make-up, hair-dos and clothes to type and personality. It isn't true that we run like a flock of sheep after every new fashion or beauty fad. We keep in step with the parade, but have our own ideas as to what choices we should make when selecting the items of the wardrobe.

A good sign is the restraint with which synthetic complexion blooms are applied. The idea is to impart the illusion of beauty. That cannot be done if the compact pad forms a picture of a bright red apple on each cheek. The rouge is carefully blended with powder, so there are no definite border lines. The purpose is to make the portrait a bit more vivid and therefore more interesting.

You seldom see bright red lips any more. The pigment used is the color of a healthy young child whose lips are delicately crimson.

Make-up can be divided into light, medium and dark, though there are a number of betwixt-and-between tones. Blondes, if they are smart, use delicate coloring on their fair skins—powder faintly pink or gold, rouge the color of the wild rose. Brunettes favor rachel powders and darker lip coloring. The redheads are the ones who have problems, having to consider their flaming thatches.

Events in Canada Capture World Attention in 1951

STORMY WEATHER — Alberta was plagued with one of the worst years of its weather history. Snowstorms isolated communities and even buried trains such as this passenger train near Oyen, Alta., in March. An ice and sleet storm in June caused millions of dollars damage to communication lines. In September, another unseasonal snow buried crops before they could be harvested. — (CP Photo.)

EAST WINS TITLE — Ottawa Rough Riders, eastern Canada football champions, defeated Saskatchewan Roughriders, western champions, 21-14 before a capacity crowd at Toronto Varsity Stadium on Nov. 24 to win the Grey Cup, emblem of Canadian football supremacy. The game was one of the biggest sports spectacles of the year. — (CP Photo.)

SEAWAY NEARS REALITY — The St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project moved a step nearer reality during 1951 with decision by the Canadian government to proceed with construction without aid of the United States. Legislation was passed by parliament and a power agreement was signed with Ontario. Here Prime Minister St. Laurent, right, and Premier Frost of Ontario sign the agreement while Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Commission, looks on. — (CP Photo.)

DIES ON GALLOWS — J. Albert Guay, 33, Quebec jeweler, was hanged Jan. 12 for murder of his wife who died with 28 others on Sept. 9, 1949, when an explosion wrecked the airliner over Saint aux Cochons, Que. Two other persons have been convicted of murder as a result of the tragedy: Genereaux Ruest is awaiting execution and Mrs. Arthur Pitre is awaiting result of an appeal. — (CP Photo.)

LOST IN NORTH — Bill Barilko, Toronto Maple Leafs hockey star, disappeared in the wilds of northern Quebec Aug. 24 while flying back from a fishing trip with Dr. Henry Hudson of Timmins. An extensive aerial search, one of many staged during the year for missing planes, failed to find any trace of the missing pair. R.C.A.F. search and rescue section spent $285,000 during this search as its planes flew 1,354,000 miles. — (CP Photo.)

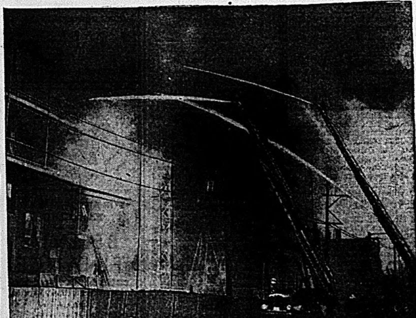
TERM EXTENDED—Viscount Alexander of Tunis, Canada's popular Governor-General, continued to endear himself to the people by his appearances at functions in all parts of the country. Here he tries his skill with a cross-cut saw. On Oct. 26, his term of office was extended until the fall of 1952. — (CP Photo.)

DAREDEVIL DIES — William (Red) Hill, Jr., veteran Niagara riverman and son of another famous riverman, tried to conquer Niagara Falls in a rubber-tube-and-netting contraption on Aug. 5 His body was recovered from below the falls the next day. — (CP Photo.)

BRIDGE COLLAPSES — In the early hours of Jan. 31, residents of Three Rivers, Que., thought they heard an earthquake. Four big spans of the Duplessis Bridge over the St. Maurice River had crashed into the water taking with them four men crossing in cars at the time. Here are shown the bare concrete piers and debris lying on the river ice. An inquiry commission report failed to determine the cause of the collapse. — (CP Photo.)

COUNT DEPORTED — Count Jacques de Bernonville, under sentence of death as a wartime collaborator in his native France, ended four years of illegal residence in Canada Aug. 17 when he left Montreal by air for Rio de Janeiro. The count entered Canada in 1948 under an assumed name and since then had been fighting against return to France. —(CP Photo.)

STIRS CONTROVERSY — A month after Kurt Meyer, German SS commander, was flown from a Canadian to a German prison, he was found "on leave" at his home in Offleben when CP staff writer Doug How dropped by in November. Reports revived that Meyer, sentenced to life imprisonment in connection with the cold-blooded killing of Canadian prisoners, expected to be released to serve in a West German army. —(CP Photo.)



MONTREAL DISASTER — Tragedy struck in Montreal June 15 when fire swept Hospice Ste. Cunegonde in the centre of the city. The death toll was 35. The institution was a home for the aged and for orphaned children. Here firemen pour water into the burning structure, scene of many acts of bravery by nuns who sought to save their young and aged charges. — (CP Photo.)

CANADIANS IN EUROPE — Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, supreme commander of North Atlantic Treaty Organization troops in Europe, inspects the first Canadian troops, part of the 27th Brigade, to arrive in Europe in November to serve under his command. In addition to these ground troops, units of the R.C.A.F. are operating in Europe and the first R.C.A.F. base outside Canada was opened at North Luffenham, England, as part of Canada's commitment to NATO. — (CP Photo.)

Peterborough Petes Extend Lead With 7-5 Overtime Victory Over Hawks

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

LOSE A TOUGHIE!

It had to come sooner or later. Last night two overtime games went into the senior "B" group records for the first time this season. The pesky Petes downed the Hawks 7-5 in an overtime session while down Kingston way the Peterborough Eagles and Kingston Essanays battled to an eight-all draw also in overtime. The results stretch the standing out for the first time this year with the Petes sitting pretty on top of the roost, Hawks in second slot, Kingston in third place, one point behind and the Eagles in the cellar position.

Vern Goyer came up with a four-goal exploit last night while his mates battled in a cause that with a little more Hawk reserve strength might have ended differently. The injury-riddled Birds, however, put up a good battle against the high-flying Petes led by Goyer and Doran, and with a little more luck would have copped the gonfalon. The Petes earned the nod on the night's play and this unpredictable senior group enters the New Year with all four squads vastly improved; a stiff schedule ahead and some tough clashes for all before the playoffs.

LOOKING BACK AT '51!

Sport in general took a big upsurge in the city and district during 1951. Hockey, baseball, softball, soccer, tennis, in fact all major sports enjoyed one of the best years in history. Accent was on youth especially in baseball, softball and hockey, and many city organizations deserve a big pat on the back for easing the way for the moppets to play and enjoy, under organized leagues, their favorite recreation.

HOCKEY

The 1950-51 Redmen came within an ace of winning the senior "B" group title, dropping the finals series against Kingston Nylons after a sensational seven-game series. The new Kingston Memorial Centre, the scene of the playoffs, was packed to capacity during the Redmen - Nylon games. The Redmen hugged fourth place in the group standing practically all season, then went on to eliminate the Peterborough Eagles in the semi-finals.

The junior "B" group was one of the best ever played in the district with the lead see-sawing all season between Peterborough, Belleville Rockets and Lindsay. Oshawa, who occupied the cellar nearly all season finished strongly to eliminate the Rockets and win the group title.

BASEBALL

The city's first entry in years in senior baseball saw a fine season from a playing point of view if not financially, with the Belleville team under the coaching of Pat Wilson fighting its way to the finals against the champion Brockville Memoes. It was a dog-eat-dog battle all the way with the Redmen staging a brilliant stand to ward off elimination by beating the Batawa Shoemen in two straight games of a special playoff series. They eliminated the Kingston Disney Leafs in the semi-finals but bowed to the starry Memoes in the titular series.

SOFTBALL

The Commercial Softball League under the presidency of Don Lee and a capable executive enjoyed the best year since its inception. Competition was keen in both sections of the league with the brand of softball being the best since the thirties. Glen Roys won the city senior section title also the right to enter the OASA playdowns. They were eliminated in two straight games by the Kingston Alcans. Cleaners Combines, "A" section winners, also were a credit to the league and the city but fell by the wayside in their first try for a provincial title. Belleville Motors won the city championship under the able coaching of "Warpy" O'Brien. Fine season all round.

SOCCER

Fitba' also took a turn for the better this year under the direction of Les Digby and his able assistants. Teams from the city were entered in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League and the Eastern Ontario Soccer League, coming through with highly creditable performances. Junior leagues were formed in the city and district and got away to a splendid start.

GOLF

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club had another successful year on the links with the club golfers winning the Bay of Quinte golfing title. T. A. Carruthers was again named the mens' champion while club players acquitted themselves creditably in inter-club tournaments with Kingston, Watertown, N. Y. and other clubs.

LAWN BOWLING

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club saw some fine play on its spacious well-kept greens with the famous Corbin Gold Trophy Tournament attracting the cream of the province's keglers as well as a number from Quebec and the United States. Morley Gault, and his Kingston rink were the winners of the trophy for the year.

MINOR SPORTS

1951 was probably the greatest year in the history of minor sports in the city. Hockey, softball and baseball as well as soccer enjoyed flourishing seasons and all indications point to an even greater year for the kiddies in 1952. Softball received a tremendous boost thanks to the unselfish efforts of the Commercial Softball League and Fire Chief Gerald Vance and the City Fire Department. Bantam, midget, peewee and a girls league went into operation under properly organized authority for the first time and the result was a resounding success. Baseball, under the aegis of the Belleville Baseball Association also catered to the youngsters and a large number of teams were organized thanks to untiring officials and merchants and business men sponsors. Soccer was enjoyed by a number of juvenile teams in the city and district. Hockey was carried on by the Belleville Hockey Association and bantam, midget, juvenile and peewee teams saw action. This winter will see even greater activity along minor hockey lines.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Pancho Villa, then United States flyweight champion, went out of his class to defeat bantomweight Terry Martin in 15 torrid rounds at New York, 29 years ago tonight. Pancho shortly after beat Jimmy Wilde, the English champion, for the world flyweight title and held it until his death in 1925.

Vern Goyer Scores Four Goals In Hard-Fought Senior Battle; Kingston, Eagles Tie 8-All

A trickling puck shot by Fred Garvey, that trickled in off Lefort's skate, proved to be the winning marker as the Peterborough Petes defeated the Belleville Hawks in the first Belleville overtime game of the season at the Memorial Arena last night by a 7-5 score.

With just two minutes left in the overtime period, the Petes drove into the Belleville end of the ice. Wade took the puck across the left side and passed behind the net to Garvey who, in attempting to centre out, bounced the puck off Lefort's skate and it dribbled on its side across the goal line.

Shortly after that, Dugan and Fryia scored another marker against a disillusioned Hawk crew, an anti climax to a keenly contested fray.

Got Four In First

The Petes came out in full swing in the first period to outscore the locals by four goals to two and were full measure for the count. They missed several other golden opportunities, with only lady luck or Maurice Lefort standing in their way. Mortimer, Fryia, Garvey, all had their chance at practically an open net but missed the payoff.

Big Vern Goyer put the Hawks into a temporary lead shortly after the opening whistle but the passing plays of the visitors paid off for three counters in little over seven minutes against a disorganized Belleville team. Mason, Dugan and Garvey were the marksmen. Goals by Goyer and Mortimer left the count at four to two at the bell.

Goyer picked up his third of four goals at 1.04 as the Hawks put on a concentrated rush. Several shots were kicked aside by Harding when finally Bastedo fired a screened shot, just off the corner, that Goyer deflected into the webbing.

The prettiest play of the night was made on a rush by Doran and Wardhaugh. With the Hawks playing a man short, they broke from their own end, outskated a pair of Petes, leaving only one man back. Doran drew the defenceman over to one side and passed to Wardhaugh. The latter made no mistake as he pulled Harding out and found the corner with a foot-high shot. This knotted the score at four goals each.

Peterborough took the lead again just before the end of the period as Wade pulled the same trick on Lefort and Fryia banging home the rubber.

Tie It In Third

A clever three-man rush by Goyer, Jones and Bastedo paid off with the tying goal shortly after the resumption of play for the only score of the third frame. Both teams missed chances to sew the game up in regulation time with both Harding and Lefort making some good stops.

Hawks pressed hard in the last five minutes of play but to no avail. They carried a decided edge in play in the final minutes of regulation time.

Both teams were cautious in the overtime with play being methodical and clean. Again it was a matter of the breaks as both teams checked closely and neither team played all of their men up. Garvey's trickler seemed to break the fight in the homesters' play with the result that they tallied again before the bell.

Goyer and Fryia stood out for their respective teams, each picking up four points. The Belleville centre scored four goals while Fryia obtained two goals and a like number of assists. Fred Garvey tallied twice for the winners, Dugan got a goal and an assist while defenceman Jake Wade assisted on a pair. Doug Bastedo of the Hawks also helped on two goals.

Aside from Goyer, Doran turned in another smooth performance, playing heady hockey, checking both ways and taking advantage of every opportunity offered him. Wardhaugh and MacDonald also played well.

Hamilton Takes Basket Title

Kitchener, Dec. 29 (CP) — Hamilton Melrose Tri-M's last night took senior honors at eighth annual Silver Ball basketball tournament by beating Kitchener Tamroth Homes 34-26.

In the intermediate final, London South Collegiate rolled to a 36-22 victory over Brantford YMCA.

Hamilton Delta Colts beat Elmira High School 18-8 to win the junior series.

In the consolation series, Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate won the junior section with a 28-20 victory over Kitchener Kappa Sultans; Kitchener - Waterloo Collegiate Scarlet Raiders downed Hamilton Delta Colts 57-24 to take the intermediate honors; and Hamilton Central won the senior final 34-23 over University of Toronto Dents.

Guelph Bilts Bury Waterloo Under 19-0 Score

(By The Canadian Press)

The Waterloo City Council has shelled out $10,000 to keep their Ontario Hockey Association junior A Hurricanes from folding before the end of the season, but maybe they should have thrown in a few players. From the looks of their showing in Guelph last night, the eighth place Waterloo aggregation needs some.

Biltmores gave 3,500 Guelph fans a potent scoring display to take a 19-0 victory over the hapless Hurricanes. The win moved the second-place Biltmores to within two points of the league-leading Toronto Marlboros, who bowed 2-0 to Kitchener Greenshirts.

The only other junior game scheduled saw St. Catharines Teepees lash tail-end Windsor Spitfires 12-4 in St. Catharines.

Adding insult to injury in the Waterloo defeat was the fact that they faced the Biltmores' sub goalie, 16-year-old Doug Lessor. He wasn't overworked in chalking up his first shutout and handled only two shots during the second period.

Tigers Win

In senior OHA play, Hamilton Tigers moved to within one point of the second-place Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen when they handed them a 3-2 set-back in Hamilton. Owen Sound Mercurys tallied once in overtime to gain fourth spot in the six-team standings with a 6-5 win over Brantford Redmen.

The Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds stretched their Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A league lead with a 3-2 victory over Sudbury Wolves.

Ronnie Murphy, the junior circuit's top goal-getter, led Guelph with four big goals. Ken Laufman and Bill. McCreary added three each and pairs went to Harry Howell and Ray Ross. Chick Chalmers, Danny Blair, Chuck Henderson, Jim Connelly and Dean Prentice tallied singletons.

St. Mike's Buzzers To Play Hawks Here January 5th

St. Michael's Buzzers, starry squad of the Toronto junior "B" group will play the Belleville junior Hawks an exhibition game in Memorial Arena on Saturday evening, January 5th, Belleville Hockey Association secretary Dick Beare announced yesterday.

The Buzzers are regarded as one of the better junior "B" squads in their group and it will be interesting to see how the Hawks stack up against such brilliant company.

Beare said that Gary Schreider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Schreider formerly of this city and now of Toronto, will make an appearance in a Buzzer's uniform. Gary, who starred as a juvenile goalie here has played two or three games in the nets for the collegians thus far this season.

Father Flanagan, coach of the Buzzers, informed Beare he will have Gary in uniform to play against some of his former ice-lane buddies.

Queens-Varsity Hockey Seniors Bow to Forts

Fort William, Dec. 29 (CP) — Fort William All-Stars edged the Queen's-Toronto University team 8-7 in an exciting senior hockey exhibition game here last night.

The teams ended the first period with three goals apiece. The Forts swept into the lead with a pair of goals in the second period while the visitors were held scoreless. The Q-T team held a 4-3 scoring lead in the third period.

The easterners rapped in three goals in the first eight minutes of play without a return and seemed victory-bound but the Forts came back strong to tie the count before the period ended. Facing a two-goal deficit in the last frame, the university men tallied within 40 seconds but could not close the final goal gap.

Rope was the top scorer for the students, counting three. The other scorers were McKelvey, McCaughy, McKenzie and Wheldrake.

For the Forts, Polowski rapped in three goals, Kuanpa two, the others being scored by Nistico, Irving and Danyluk.

Lineups:

Queen's-Toronto Universities—Goal, Ross; defence, Rudiak and Wherrett; forwards, Rope, Adams, Wheldrake; subs, Wagar, McKelvey, Keenleyside, Sliter, Brown, Fasan, McGaughey, Conboy.

Fort William All-Stars — Goal, Chabot; defence, Danyluk, H. Nistico; forwards, Polowski, Carlson, L. Nistico; subs, Saplywy, R. McKenzie, Irving, J. Kosolowski, Kuanpa, Corness, Fedori, Brayshaw, Forslund.

Boston Out to Humble Leafs; Les Habs Harried by Injuries

(By The Canadian Press)

Last Saturday night Boston's fourth-place Bruins played some pretty fancy hockey before a packed Maple Leaf Gardens in a National Hockey League game. They bowed 3-2 to the Maple Leafs.

Tonight those same Bruins figure to belt their way to a win over the second-place Toronto club. They've got to do plenty of it though. The Smythemen revel in that sort of play.

If the Bruins are successful there'll be no happier guy than Boston coach Lynn Patrick. Now in his fourth season at National Hockey League coaching, the former Ranger star has yet to win a league game on Toronto ice.

Rocket Won't Play

Last weekend he came close. Leading 2-1 going into the final period, his Bruins let the Leafians tally twice for a victory. Maybe this time he'll kill the Toronto jinx.

At Montreal, the third-place Canadiens are entertaining fifth-place New York. The Rangers, minus rearguard Allan Stanley are weak along the blue line, but the Habs have their injured players as well.

Doctors have sent Dick Irvin reaching for the crying towel with the news that Maurice Richard is still unable to play. A groin injury has sidelined the Hab star.

Gerry McNeil will be back in the Canadiens' nets, but Kenny Mosdell will still be missing. McNeil's mother is sick, but well enough to allow Gerry to leave her for tonight's tussle. Mosdell is recovering from a shoulder separation suffered a few games ago.

Tonight's other game will see Chicago Black Hawks playing in Detroit. The only tussle scheduled for Sunday has Toronto visiting in New York.

Kennedy Twins Eye Olympic Skating Title

Seattle, Dec. 29 (AP)—Determined to capture the one title which has eluded them, the Kennedy kids have added a spectacular lift and a startling spin to the routine they'll skate in the February Olympics.

The two Colorado College students have held the world crown, still hold the North American championship and have ranked for four years as the finest amateur skating pair in the United States. This month they won the American Olympic tryouts.

Home for the holidays, the youngsters are making this one a vacation on ice. They practise the tough new routine daily under the critical eyes of their father, Dr. Michael Kennedy, a Seattle dentist.

Karol and Peter Kennedy skate this program to Norwegian music, adopted to please the crowds at the winter Olympics in Norway. Especially for the benefit of the judges, the routine has two extremely difficult moments.

This will be the Kennedys' second bid for the Olympic title. Korol was injured before the 1948 Olympics and the kids, although they made the U.S. team, were not a title threat.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Gil Turner, unbeaten Philadelphia youngster, last night overwhelmed courageous Vic Cardell of Hartford to win his 27th straight pro fight with a unanimous 10-round decision at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Turner weighed 145 3-4, Cardell 146.

Time after time Cardell, a willing but outmatched underdog drew cheers from the crowd by tagging the 21-year-old Negro with looping rights. Except for the third round when he slowed up Turner, he never was able to stop the relentless attack.

Apparently a little over-anxious to make a good showing in his New York and television debut, Turner often missed fire with his wild rallies. But he kept on coming, wearing down his slender foe with the fury of his attack.

Lebaron Reid, president of Moncton Hawks of the Maritime major hockey league said early today the Hawks are "still in business and we hope to stay in business." Reid made the statement in reply to rumors that the team would not drop out of the league after tonight's game in Saint John against the Beavers.

Stunned by the news of Don Newcombe's acceptance by the army, the bereaved Brooklyn Dodgers' front office was prepared today to venture into the open mart to seek a replacement for the 20-game winner.

Newcombe's acceptance for military service, announced yesterday from Washington after weeks of delay and speculation, took the Dodgers completely by surprise.

Sugar Ray Robinson, world middleweight champion, left New York yesterday for his training camp at Greenwood Lake, N.Y., to prepare for his title defence Jan. 24 against Bobo Olson at San Francisco.

The bout, originally scheduled for Dec. 20 was rescheduled after Robinson suffered a back injury.

Chet Nichols, 20-year-old Boston Braves southpaw who led the National League with an earned run average of 2.88, received notice in Pawtucket, R.I., yesterday to report for his army physical examination Jan. 22. Nichols is regarded as one of the greatest prospects the Braves have had in years.

The Western Interprovincial Football Union will receive a $25,000 good-faith bond from the proposed Vancouver entry as soon as confirmation arrives "as to where it is to be posted," director Orville Burke said last night in Vancouver.

He was commenting on a report by Bob Gillies of Regina, W.I.F.U. secretary, that a letter from Vancouver football interests asking the status of their proposed entry was not accompanied by the bond, which the W.I.F.U. wants posted by Jan. 1.

Murph Chamberlain, coach of Vancouver Canucks Pacific Coast Hockey League team, may become coach of Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League. He left Vancouver by plane yesterday for Buffalo and merely said he was going east on personal business. But Erwin Swangard, sports editor of the Vancouver Sun, reported Chamberlain left for Buffalo "with a one-way ticket in his pocket."

Rangers, Hawks Bruins Victors In Peewee Games

Rangers, Hawks and Bruins were victors in the weekly Peewee Hockey League triple-header played at Memorial Arena this morning.

Rangers set back the Red Wings by a 2-0 score while Hawks defeated the Leafs 3-1. Bruins went on a scoring splurge to defeat the Canadiens by a 6-3 count.

Bruins now lead the league with three wins and no losses. Rangers are in second place with three wins and one defeat; Wings are third with two wins and a tie, Hawks, fourth with two wins, a tie and a loss; Leafs are next with no wins, a tie and two defeats, with the Canadiens in the cellar with four losses.

Frankie Howard scored both Ranger goals in their 2-0 win over the Red Wings.

Bob Garrison fired home a pair in the Hawks defeat of the Leafs with Dougie Morrow getting the third. Bob Franklin got the Leafs lone marker.

Melvil Alyea led the Bruins to their 6-3 win over Canadiens, scoring two goals. Elmer Alyea, J. Caddock, Ray Vanalstine and Ian Cooper got the rest. For the losers Jimmie Potts, Ron Hall and Larry Rowbotham were the snipers.

Cleveland Barons Outplay Flyers

St. Louis, Dec. 29 (AP) — Cleveland Barons outplayed the listless St. Louis Flyers by a wide margin in the second period last night for a 4-2 American Hockey League victory.

The triumph increased the Barons' second-place lead over the Flyers to six points in the Western Division of the league. It was the eighth straightsetback for St. Louis.

After Glen Sonmor put the Flyers ahead in the first period, Ike Holdebrand tied it for the Barons. In the second Vic Lynn and Ed Reigle scored for Cleveland for a 3-1 lead.

A quick goal by Steve Wochy after just 23 seconds of the final period was the clincher. Eric Pogue then tallied for the Flyers.

Sports Roundup

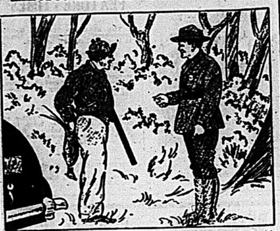
By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 29 (AP) — Monte Irvin, who received a 100-percent salary increase when he signed his 1952 contract with New York Giants, figures he was ready to play major-league baseball as soon as he got out of high school. . . . It didn't even sound like boasting when Monte said he could have stuck in the big leagues a dozen years ago. . . . "I could run, hit and throw better then," Irvin said. "I wasn't as smart or experienced as I am now but I didn't have to be then. I did things naturally."

Sportsmention

Charley Weinert, the heavyweight "Newark Adonis" who beat such guys as Luis Firpo and Jack Sharkey, now is running a lending library in Newark. . . . Rip Sewell, who broke up the threatened baseball players' strike in Pittsburgh a few years ago, received so little consideration from the Pirates this year that he was still waiting to hear from Branch Rickey about the post-season training camp when he got a wire that he was out as New Orleans manager.

Enforcement of Game Laws



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

The vast acreage of shooting lands and the countless miles of lakes, ponds and streams in these United States of ours make adequate enforcement of our game laws a difficult task indeed. At first glance it seems to be an impossibility.

Here in Pennsylvania, for example, over one million guns annually take the field during the hunting season. It seems impossible to supervise such an armada yet each year our wardens handle the job and handle it well.

While the problem is a serious one, there are some aspects of it which simplify it greatly. Human nature being what it is, the wardens find many short-cuts which make their jobs easier.

In the first place it must be remembered that most sportsmen are law-abiding citizens, honest men and women. With most of them a breach of the fish and game laws is an exception, something honestly to be regretted.

They don't enjoy that lawless feeling. A guilty conscience is its own worst accuser. Even though they "get away with it" they are not likely to repeat the experience. To do so simply is not worth the price they pay in the disturbance of peace of mind.

Two Classes

Thus the wardens can divide the "sportsmen" (a regrettable word at best) into two classes—the once-in-a-while' violators, about whom they don't worry too much, and the habitual violators, about whom they worry a great deal.

Fortunately this latter group is composed of a relatively small number of individuals in any community. Almost invariably these men take pride in their misdemeanors and brag about them. Soon their fellow sportsmen know who the habitual violators are. It isn't long until the wardens know them also. That, of itself, narrows the scope of their operations.

Since my return in 1940 to my boyhood home in central Pennsylvania I have been an active woodcock hunter each fall. The shooting season for these birds comes in about a month ahead of the regular open season on upland game.

Only once in all those woodcock seasons have I been stopped by a warden and then only for a casual chat about the luck I was having and the number of birds in the covers.

I spoke of this one day to a warden who is a friend of mine.

"Don't worry," he said, "you have been looked over more times than you can count on your fingers and toes. Often when you return to your car you have had high-powered glasses trained on you. Try hiding some extra birds under the hub caps some day and see what happens."

Many Afraid of Woods

The great majority of the hunters are not outdoorsmen. If they venture too far from the beaten paths they are quite likely to get lost, and they know it. For this reason, and the fact that office workers do not like to walk too far, most of the hunting is done within a mile of the roads which can be travelled by automobile.

Transportation to and from the hunting field is effected by automobile. In this way the warden's field of operations is considerably narrowed. Many a violator has had an unpleasant surprise after he has stowed his illegal game by having a warden step out of the brush beside his car.

There is one class of violator that makes the warden's life miserable now and then — that is the once-in-a-whiler who has political "connections." These fellows, when caught, always have elaborate excuses. They write or phone to their political friends in the effort to have their prosecutions set aside.

Then the wardens must take time out from more important duties to have long talks with their superiors and to write full reports. Usually the arrests result in convictions but the attendant noise and political confusion is a nuisance.

The habitual violator takes up less of a warden's time than is popularly imagined. Every warden has his own private source of information. While he goes about the daily chores of his job these agencies are at work for him. Then, when the time is ripe, he steps in for the kill.

Violators Checked Quickly

Present-day mobility and ease of communication is a lethal combination against the game-law violator. No longer is it necessary for a warden to risk his neck in the pursuit and capture of a violator. Once he has on-the-spot information, the nearest phone will enable him to block all roads in that area. Often a violator, who is congratulating himself on the successful outwitting of the local wardens, finds himself confronted by a determined array of armed uniforms which block further progress.

Special attention is given to juvenile violators. Each year a good many youngsters fall afoul of the law. It is all too easy to shoot a hen pheasant or to kill more than the legal limit of trout when the fishing is good. Then a warden shows up and the youngster is in trouble.

First offenders usually are not prosecuted but they are restricted in their activities and made to realize that continued lawlessness will not be tolerated. In addition, they are given literature which explains the reasons for the game laws. There are meetings with the parents and, in flagrant cases, sound talkings-to by the judges themselves.

Now and then a warden comes by information of game-law violations entirely by accident. One warden I know was being shaved in a barber shop. While his face was covered with lather and then a hot towel he listened to another customer recount the killing of double the limit of birds the day before.

Time was when a game warden was an outcast and walked alone. People resented the game laws and "conservation" was merely a word in the dictionary.

Aware of Situation

Today this is not true. Our modern hunter and fisherman knows that the rod and gun pressure on our outdoors always exceeds the available supply of fish and game. No longer does he condone the fact that one man takes more than his share.

Most men have no hesitation about reporting violations to their local wardens just as they would report a burglary to the police. Youngsters are being taught conservation in our public schools. Thus, law enforcement on our lakes, streams, fields and woodlands is not the hopeless muddle that it could be. In fact, the enforcement agencies have matters quite well under control.

West Favored Over East In Grid Classic

New York, Dec. 29 (CP)—The final fling of the United States college football season got under way today as a flock of the best players clashed in the annual East-West charity game at San Francisco.

By New Year's Day, many of the top football clubs will have appeared in the annual bowl games—the glamor wind-up of the long college season.

Not all the best teams participate in post-season play. Many colleges keep their footballers out of the contests as a matter of policy. More are likely to follow suit in the de-emphasis program which is growing in the wake of growing opposition to big-money college athletics.

The 27th annual East-West classic played at San Francisco for the benefit of the Crippled Children's Hospital brought together college seniors from many sections of the United States. The kickoff was set for 1:30 PST (4:30 EST) with millions watching on a national television hook-up.

All-American names and other gridiron greats filled the line-ups. The array of talent was the most imposing ever assembled for this contest, which will net upwards of $100,000 for the rehabilitation of crippled children.

The West, with giant linemen and heavier and faster backs, took the field favored over the East by 6½ points.

Thirty-Four Records Made or Tied In Major Baseball Leagues in 1951

Chicago, Dec. 29 — (AP) — Thirty-four major-league and American League records were broken or tied during the 1951 baseball season—33 fewer than last year.

High spot in the new A.L. marks was provided by Chico Carrasquel, Chicago White Sox shortstop. Official statistics today credited Chico with handling 297 consecutive errorless chances, erasing the previous mark of 288 set by New York's Phil Rizzuto during the 1949 and 1950 campaigns.

Four other individual stars tied major-league batting records. New York's rookie of the year, Gil McDougald, batted in six runs in one inning. Gil Coan of Washington belted two triples in one inning. Philadelphia's Gus Zernial slammed six homers in three consecutive games. Cleveland's Al Rosen hit four grand-slam homers during the season.

Other High Marks

Major-league records broken—

Most years leading in home runs—29, New York

Most years 100 or more home runs—28, New York.

Most pennants won by one club—18 New York.

Successive home runs in first two Major League at bats—Bob Nieman.

Fewest unplayed games season, league—10 years.

Major League Records Tied

Most unassisted double plays by first baseman in a game—2, Lou Limmer, Philadelphia.

Most double plays at second base in a game—5, Gerry Priddy, Detroit.

Most putouts by a pitcher in a game—5, Steve Gromek, Cleveland.

Most bases on balls by pitcher in a game—16, Tom Byrne, St. Louis.

Williams Takes American League Slugging Honors

Chicago, Dec. 29 (AP)—Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox maintained his habit of winning American League slugging honors by taking the 1951 title with .556.

The percentage, based on 531 times at bat and 295 total bases, was far under Williams' 1950 figure of .647.

Cleeland's Larry Doby was second in the slugging department with .512. Gus Zernial of Philadelphia and Detroit's Vic Wertz shared third with .511 each.

Official league statistics released today certified Zernial as runs-batted-in champion with 129 in 143 games. It was the first time in three years that an undisputed RBI champ was crowned in the A. L.

Williams and Vern Stephens split the honors in 1949 with 159, and in 1950 the RBI race ended with a 144 deadlock between Stephens and his Boston teammate, Walt Dropo.

Zernial, who also was first in home-run production with 33, was followed on the 1951 RBI list by Williams with 126, Chicago's Eddie Robinson with 117, Cleveland's Luke Easter with 103 and Al Rosen, also of Cleveland, with 102.

Williams drew the most walks, 143, while Zernial repeated as the No. 1 strikeout victim, being whiffed 101 times.

Giants' Secretary To Get Award

New York, Dec. 29—(AP) — Edward T. (Eddie) Brannick, popular secretary of the New York Giants, will be presented with the Bill Slocum Memorial award at the New York Baseball Writers' 29th annual dinner and show Feb. 3, it was announced today.

The award, originated by the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in 1929, is presented annually to one who has made a high contribution to baseball over a long period of years.

Brannick who will be 59 July 22, has been with the Giants since 1905. He started as an office boy, rose rapidly to traffic manager, assistant road secretary and finally to secretary.

Waterloo Council Grants $10,000 To Hockey Club

Waterloo, Dec. 29 —(CP) — Thanks to city council, Waterloo Hurricanes of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior 'A' League will finish out the season.

Sponsored by the Waterloo Arena Commission, the Hurricanes have been having a bad season financially and faced the prospect of folding. To keep them going council Thursday night voted to include $10,000 in the arena's 1952 budget and will let the commission draw on the funds now.

Hurricanes are in eighth place in the 10-team loop.

FISHING STARTS

Fort Erie, Dec. 29—(CP) — Fishing through the ice has started in Lake Erie. The recent cold snap has formed ice thick enough to hold fishermen a short distance off shore and catches of blue and yellow pike are reported fairly good off nearby Cresent Beach.

The bidding has gone this far.

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 H	Pass	Pass
2 D	2 S	3 C

The first pass by east showed lack of some quality for a true normal response. He now bids three spades. Now, that he assists the spades with a raise he admits support and tricks enough. So, what lack does he admit? The lack of high card quality.

Armed with such information, west has sufficient warning. He knows that he should not go on with the bidding unless he can do so with the help of only one high card in east. This is how sound partners reveal themselves to each other.

South is not interested in going to game. So south should pass. West has been warned to be content. So west should pass. North should not get ambitious except to take a possible sacrifice.

So the bidding should correctly end at three spades with west as declarer. But when this hand was played at a party, the players were spirited in their bidding.

In blind faith or fury, south finally became the declarer at a contract of seven diamonds, doubled by west. West hoped to make more by not leading the aces at once.

So the opening lead from west was a trump and south sluffed all losing major suit cards on the north clubs. It made a grand slam. How can you prove anything to such people?

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Dec. 29 (AP) — Joseph Cotten used to think making long-run pictures was a bore. Now he's not so sure.

Cotten has probably been in more long-run pictures than any other actor. That is because he has worked for David O. Selznick, who makes and remakes movies until they suit him. The actor doubtless yearns for such leisurely filming after "Untamed", a slam-bang affair in which he suffered a painful back injury.

"Citizen Kane" was Cotten's first picture. It was a good omen of what was to come, since it was made in easy-going style by the boy genius, Orson Welles. Later, Cotten appeared in "Since You Went Away", "Duel in the Sun" and "Portrait of Jenny", which averaged around two years in production.

plained the actor. "Even the author of the book, Robert Nathan, wasn't sure. David (Selznick) would say, 'now I know what it means', and proceed to

"Nobody quite knew what 'Portrait of Jenny' was about," ex-re-film whole sequences."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, December 29

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Lack of progressive influence warn against going out "on the limb" or trying things beyond your capacity. Respect daily duties, routine matters; do them well.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Stars say better go easy, be on guard for circumstances that might prove dangerous. Don't be too sure but have due confidence. Make inquiries, note what others are doing.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Your home and very personal affairs have prominent place on day's agenda. Straighten things out so your mind will be prepared to act as you will need to this interesting day. Be tactful.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Some adverse tendencies. Don't be irritable or lose temper if things don't click promptly or as you wish. Take all sensibly, be ready to apologize and do whatever will mend situations.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—You may need some assistance, a little prodding. Be keyed to what is happening, who is doing what, and how well. Learn from their successes or failures.

..August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Perhaps dull day, maybe in spots unfriendly. Adhere to rules made for good of all. Be wisely conservative. Watch budget, job, answers, strange ways can tempt.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Some past mistakes could crop up; don't let them. Be yourself and not confused over anything. Keep mind on important matters and you can bridge difficulties.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—If you are wide-awake you may ride through day winning newer laurels. Get maximum results through extra effort.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Stars in only fairly auspicious configurations. May-be not a full-time day. In spots you can make certain gains. in other, none. But keep trying, have faith.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Planetary vibrations argue for extra care, calm action, especially with money, in business. Personal affairs—those with opposite sex—need gentle, considerate dealings.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)— Protect private affairs, study details. Laxness, unscrupulous action may injure. Push when needed but restrain in matters that hold doubt in your mind.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Mild configurations in your chart this Saturday. Show some extra interest in others' doings, their especial activities. Maintain calm demeanor, let others have the floor also.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately practical, self-reliant, also self-conscious. Are deep thinkers, usually on the placid side. You are able and deliberate in method and don't make a fuss over your accomplishments. You have fine organizing ability, mind always working. Often do best work when alone. Don't let ridicule hurt you or it will slacken your progress. You thrive under encouraging conditions, but this cannot always be, so prepare for any unpleasant times.

By Will Henry

Reno, either dazed or just too slow a man with a gun, got belted out of his saddle by an ax-blow from White Bull.

We pulled Reno in and bandaged his head. It had been a glancing blow but had laid the scalp open to the skull. From that moment he was a blown man, and though he fought his command through to the blufftops, he was sick with pain the whole time.

"Clayton, listen," he rasped, as McIntosh left to fetch Moylan, the senior captain. "I can scarcely hear or see. Don't tell French or Moylan. You stay here with me, you hear?"

I nodded, smiling. Then, my lips to his good ear, I shouted, "you've picked an aide. Got my degree under Jeb Stuart. Post-graduate with Fitzhugh Lee."

He bobbed his head, dark pain stabbing his eyes at the movement. "I believe you. You took us into this cover like a professional."

We waited for Moylan and McIntosh, the Sioux meanwhile slacking fire as they moved their forces into new positions.

"All right, Major," Moylan said. "Where do we go from here?"

"God knows. But I say up to those bluffs is our only chance Get up there and stay there. What do you say, eh?"

"We can't make it!"

"Well, we've got to, Captain." I talked fast, before he could worry too much about my qualifications. "If we stay here they'll get the horses. I know Indians and their thinking. Right now they'll be seeping in around French's flank over there on the right, trying to get in and stampede the horses. We can't handle the mounts if they get panicky. Not and have any men left to keep up a fire. If the Sioux get us afoot down here on the flat, we're dead."

"Oh, where is Custer?" broke in Reno, querulously.

"And Benteen," added McIntosh.

"God knows about Benteen," I hurried on, "but I think Custer's tried to go around. He was convinced the Hunkpapa and Oglala were down south. He's gone around to hit them. We can't wait any longer, anyhow." I had to shout over the rising Sioux fire. "We've got to mount up and make a run for those west bluffs."

"Give the command, Moylan." Reno's instruction was decisive.

When we reached the bluff, we had been in the fight only 45 minutes and taken more than two score casualties. It took no mathematician to figure our future at that rate. Almost a man a minute. We had less than a hour to go.

"Where do you suppose Benteen is?" Moylan asked, joining me where I was directing the fire of G Company downhill on the advancing Sioux. I didn't get a chance to answer, for a trooper rushed up waving his carbine excitedly.

"Captain, there's a million of 'em comin' up that north ravine on our side. We can't stop 'em."

"You think you've got Indians? Look down there." I joshed him, gesturing to the slopes below, up which three or four hundred braves were belly-snaking and hip-firing their way. "What do you think those are?"

"Darned if I know," answered the trooper, a wild grin lighting up his dirty face. "But I sure know what those are!" His words and cross-valley pointing arm were exclamation-marked by the sweetest sound this side of Gabriel's trumpet—a U.S. army bugle blowing the charge.

Across the valley down out of the bluffs overlooking the grove we had just evacuated, came Benteen's wanderers. They'd seen us trapped below and had started down at once but by the time their mounts drummed past that grove it was silent as a graveyard at midnight.

Reno, out of his head by now, jumped to his feet, started to run down the slope toward Benteen before we could stop him, yelling and waving his arms hysterically. "For God's sake, Benteen! Halt your command and help me. I've lost half my men!"

A minute later and Benteen's battalion had joined the remnant of Reno's on top of the bluff.

A fine officer and a cool one, he at once took command. Far from questioning my new status he singled me out at once. "What do you suppose ails those Indians? They split off to let me through and now they're running off up the valley. I don't get it."

It was oddly true. The Sioux were streaming south up the Little Big Horn by the Hundreds.

"Well, they've got us up a stump and we'll keep. My idea is they've got their eye on bigger game."

Benteen looked at me sharply as I spoke. "The general!"

To the south, upstream, out of the strange lull which had palled the whole valley for the past five minutes, a heavy, continuous rifle fire began. Through the barking, cracking rattle of the general wild Indian firing, rolled a cadence terrifying familiar to every soldier among us—the repeated, controlled volleys of men firing on command.

Captain Weir, commanding D Company under Benteen, leaped to his feet. "That's Custer for sure."

His lieutenant, Edgerly, seconded him. "It's got to be him, and we've got to go down there."

"I'll get the company mounted up," Edgerly replied eagerly. "We'll be ready to move when you signal." With that he ran, low-bent over to the lines across the blufftop where D Company was firing.

"Fred," Weir addressed Benteen, his senior, "have I your permission to go along if I get his?"

"Captain, if you've got the guts to go down there, I haven't the guts to stop you."

Weir ran for Reno, but not alone. "Need an orderly, Captain?" I grinned, falling into stridestride beside him. He looked at me irritably, then panted. "No. Go on back."

Two more volleys rolled down the valley as we reached Reno.

"Major, that's Custer firing. I want permission to take D Company and go down there to join him."

Reno had recovered somewhat his answer indicating near rationality. "We're hear and we stay here. With luck we might last till Gibbon gets up. Down there—no chance. If that's Custer, he's already beyond help. I won't sacrifice these men."

Weir knew he had no time to argue. "Then somebody is leaving without your orders. And it's I" Turning he started angrily for his horse, in doing so nearly running me down. "Still feel like playing orderly?" he challenged, his tone implying his certainty I would not. "What's the first order sir?" I threw him a Johnny salute and a grin.

"Get a horse and come on. Reno refused, I can't take the company but I can take myself and you. If you want to go."

We went in silence a few minutes, riding hard. But 40 men and horses trying to keep company formation over terrain as rough as a porcupine's back don't make the kind of speed I knew was necessary. I drove my mount in alongside Weir's.

"Captain, I'm going ahead. I know a gully route that short-cuts up to where I think they've got him cornered. A man can get through but not a company. All right?"

"Go on. Tell him to hold on We're coming."

As I topped the last rise before plunging into the gully which was to take me to Custer and the end of the trail for Cetan Mani, I had a last clear view of the blufftops we had just quitted.

I found Custer where I thought I would, caught in the flat of the broad trail leading from the east hills down to the ford across the Little Big Horn at Beaver Creek. This put him precisely between and in front of Oglala and Minniconjou camps, these being the very boys who now had him fronted, flanked and hamstrung as I topped out on a ridge 400 yards north of the battle.

It was 4 p.m. when I got my first sight of Custer.

The scene was one of the wildest pandemonium. Sioux swarmed everywhere. The shrill outcries of dying men and animals carried clearly to my position. The volume of fire from the hostiles was deafening, that of the Seventh, though still under command-volleys already ragged and disintegrating. The sum total of the battle noise was frightening now. Thirty minutes later not a single rifle shot echoed within ear's reach of the Little Big Horn.

Custer, with his Gray Horse troop was in position on the hillside. What was left of the other companies was strung in a half-mile line along the top of the last ridge fronting the river, an advance force being on the slopes in front of the ridge itself. This placed the whole force of them in Custer's immediate front.

They had apparently just advanced to these positions for the field between them and the Gray Horse Troop was littered with kicking, dying cavalry mounts, and the twisted still forms of their riders.

A long deep gulch led from the river up into the heart of the defending ridge. Into the mouth of this I could see hundreds of mounted Sioux galloping. Its walls gave them perfect protection from the fire of the troops, who could not even see them entering the gully.

To Custer's south the hills were covered with Indians, more of them pouring out of the gully which skirted that flank, by the minute. Even at my distance I recognized a lone figure momentarily outlined against the sky directing the assault. Tashunka Witko, Crazy Horse, was tearing at Yellow Hair Custer's bleeding right flank.

Below me spread the line of hostiles trapping him on the north, his left. With a good wind I could have split them. Riding their lines, firing, yelling orders, issuing warhoops, wholesale, raced another familiar red man: squat, ugly capable Gall.

Between me and the dying Seventh lay 400 yards of open ground. I got a good grip on the reins with my hand, a better one of my lip with my teeth, slammed the spurs into the good horse under me, laid the barrel of my colt flat aslant his haunch and fired one shot.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, Dec. 30

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Grand influences from planets this benefic Sunday. Useful activities and interests very favored. Do thank God for blessings, privileges, and shoulder responsibilities cheerfully.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—You should be happy, ambitious and successful today. Many blessings available to all, and for these we should be ever grateful. Help others, aid our country's cause.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Opportune day for necessary work, especially if that and your other interests better living conditions. Start day at church, of course.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Each individual and all collectively is better for prayer, good deeds, following God's teachings, His sensible laws. Ask Him for guidance this holy season.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Control any desire to do unnecsary time-wasting things or enter activities not in accordance with sensible interests. Day is stimulating, favorable for worthy matters, prayer, rest.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo) — Encouraging Mercury (and other planets') rays now offer a variety of wholesome opportunities for entertainment, restful pleasures, health and children's interests. Pray and work for peace.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Fine aspects. Religious services good deeds should be a must and for these we all receive blessings. Necessary added responsibilities can benefit us. Have faith, confidence.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)— Stimulating, helpful rays from planets now should make you happy, encourage you to attain spiritually as well as to gain temporal benefits.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Promising for wholesome activities healthy hobbies, artistic professions, for hard work that is urgent. Pray for our armed forces; God be with them always, and bring the world peace soon.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— A peak day, make the most of every wise advantage and favorable opportunity, and withal remember your spiritual and health needs. Good days should inspire us to greater charity.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Although day is generally auspicious, your planet Uranus aspect warns against hasty decisions or unthinking procedure. Protect well-running affairs. Pray.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—A happy outlock if you consider real values. Essential tasks, all worthy undertakings rate high. The arts, music, study, good reading among our blessings—enjoy them. Prayer a first!

YOU BORN TODAY: Fine intellect, versatile talents, an abundance of energy and industry are among your God-given gifts. Develop and use them well daily if you would attain the happiness and success that can be yours. An agreeable, likeable disposition, if living up ti your best. Do not permit your generosity or sympathetic nature to be imposed upon by unscrupulous people. You can do well as executive, manager of many people on large projects. Could be skilled workman at a trade. Seek only companions of high ideals.

Birthdate: Alfred E. Smith, statesman; Rudyard Kipling, noted author.

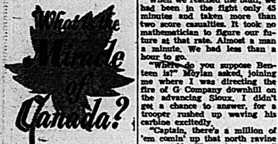
RECEIVES BIG BILL

Los Angeles, Dec. 29 — (AP)—Thrice married actor Errol Flynn has received a bill for $62,396, from his first wife, French actress Lily Damita. Miss Damita filed suit yesterday claiming $25,774 in back alimony, $34,462 for income taxes she says he promised to pay and $2,159 school bills for their son, Sean, 10.

74 P.C. FOR DEFENCE

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 29—(AP) —The Yugoslav parliament was handed a federal budget for 1952 today which would devote 74 per cent of the federal income to military expenses and defence industries. The total budget for Premier Marshal Tito's government was set at 282,150,600,000 dinars.



What is the Miracle of Canada?

The miracle of Canada is the reward of its thrifty people; it is a standard of living wrought by men and women who believe in spending and saving wisely. The average Canadian, for example, owns his own car and his own home. He pays his bills when due. His pattern of living is excellent.

When the pattern breaks

But unexpected emergencies do break the pattern. Usually the emergency requires more money than he has available. This can happen to anyone. Then help must come from a dependable outside service.

"ATTENTION FARMERS!"

At the request of various farmers in the County of Hastings, arrangements have been made, whereby the Agricultural Representative or his Assistant, will, when possible, be at SHIRE HALL in BELLEVILLE, each SATURDAY MORNING, from 9.30 to 12.00. Shire Hall is a part of the County Buildings, on Church Street, just opposite the Belleville Collegiate.

Any farmer wishing to discuss farming problems and finding it more convenient to go to Shire Hall, than to Stirling, will be welcome and should avail himself of this service.

These Saturday morning visits will only be continued provided the demand is sufficient to warrant the continuance of this service.

TWO SOLDIERS SHOT TO DEATH AT PETAWAWA

Airliner With 40 Aboard Vanishes Near Great Lakes

Air, Water and Ground Forces Join in Search

Pittsburgh, Dec. 31—(AP) — Murky weather hindered a great land-air-water search today for a missing transport plane with 40 occupants which disappeared Saturday.

The twin-engined C-46, owned by Continental Charters, Inc. of Miami, left Pittsburgh Saturday night at 9:47 p.m. EST on a non-scheduled flight to Buffalo, N.Y., with seven crew members and 33 passengers.

The plane, purchased from the U.S. government about six months ago, had a three-hour gasoline supply for a 190-mile trip expected to take one hour.

Capt. Alexander Wozniak of the U.S. Air Force, is in charge of the aerial search. He had 180 planes at his disposal.

Capt. Wozniak directed planes to cover a 100-mile wide path, 50 miles on each side of the intended route. R.C.A.F. planes were ordered to scour Canadian territory near the U.S. border. A U.S. coast guard plane from Salem, Mass., and coast guard boats covered Lake Erie in case the missing aircraft went down in those chill, choppy waters.

Weather Delays Start

Bad weather conditions delayed the start of some phases of the air search.

More than 300 persons aided state, police and foresters in a ground search of the area at the southern tip of the Allegheny National Forest about 18 miles north of Brookville, Pa., and 100 miles north of Pittsburgh.

Continental Charters was ordered to halt all takeoffs from Buffalo airport.

Parks Commissioner James F. Hanlon announced the ban "in the interest of the flying public."

Rumors that the plane had been found hampered search parties. Hundreds of the curious jammed roads about 100 miles north of Pittsburgh after one report.

The latest clue being investigated was provided by Robert Hawthorne of Titusville, Pa. He reported seeing the lights of a low-flying plane at 11 p. m. Saturday six miles north of Sheffield, Pa., only a few miles from the New York State border and the general aerial route from Pittsburgh to Buffalo.

Most of the 33 passengers aboard the ship from Pittsburgh. Included are three children, one only 14 months old.

Aboard was Mrs. Dorothy Berman Bruce, 23, the wife of Angus Bruce of Kingston. She was flying for a New Year's reunion with her mother, Mrs. Betty Berman of Toronto, now living temporarily in Buffalo.

Seven of Crew

Mrs. Bruce planned to join her husband, a mining engineer, in Kingston, where he had opened a business. They had spent two years in Nicaragua and had arrived in Miami only a month ago.

Besides the passengers there are two pilots, two co-pilots and three stewardesses aboard.

Three of the crew members were "deadheading" to Syracuse, N. Y., to pick up another plane.

The flight originated at Miami. The plane was to have returned there after its stop at Buffalo.

Not a word was heard from the ship after pilot J. C. Webber of Miami reported his takeoff time from Pittsburgh at 9.47 p. m. EST Saturday.

Visibility Good

Visibility was good on the take-off but fog closed in on the mountainous route to Buffalo.

The airliner was the same type of craft which crashed and killed all 56 aboard at Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 16. It, too, was on a non-scheduled flight.

Non-scheduled airlines have no regular schedules. Generally, they take off when they have a load of passengers.

Officials of the Continental, who said they hadn't had a crash in five years of flying, came to Pittsburgh to help in the search.

Veteran airmen say the plane could have plummeted into either Lake Ontario or Lake Erie. Both are only a short distance from the route the plane would take near Buffalo.

Hamilton, London Agree on Plans For New Housing

Ottawa, Dec. 31 (CP)—The Federal and Ontario governments have agreed on plans for a $5,000,000 rental-housing project in Hamilton, Ont., it was announced today by the resources department.

The project will provide for 500 homes on the site of the old Hamilton airport, now owned by the city. Date for the start of construction has not been set. The homes, to cost approximately $10,200 each, are expected to rent for between $65 and $70 a month.

The federal government will bear 75 per cent of the cost of the project, with Ontario and Hamilton sharing the remainder. The completed houses will be administered by a local housing authority.

The department also announced that a loan of $361,800 has been granted to a private company in Hamilton for the construction of 50 family housing units to rent for between $54 and $60 a month.

A third announcement said the Federal and Ontario governments have agreed on plans for a land-assembly project at London, Ont. Approximately 89 acres will be acquired and serviced for home construction.

Policeman Shoots Man on Rampage

Baltimore, Dec. 31 — (CP) — The one-man gang who went on the rampage and damaged 11 houses with his bare hands died today of bullet wounds inflicted when a policeman shot him to halt the mad spree.

Albert J. Tibbs, 26, whose arms were strong enough to rip bricks from chimneys, died in hospital at 2.15 a.m. E.T.

Tibbs shattered the afternoon quiet yesterday when he slipped through the window of his third-floor room to the roof and began a reign of destruction that was stopped by a slug from a policeman's revolver.

Police said Tibbs ripped with his bare hands big chunks out of chimneys on the 11 houses, kicked in nine skylights, uprooted a television aerial, fell through the roof of one house where he wrecked two bedrooms, tore out the plumbing and caused a minor flood, then did battle with a policeman.

FIRE DESTROYS CHURCH

Smooth Rock Falls, Ont., Dec. 31 (CP)—Fire today destroyed St. Gertrude's Roman Catholic Church. The adjoining convent and rectory also were burned. Smooth Rock Falls is 50 miles north of Timmins.

California Clergyman Is Awarded Prize for Telling Year's Biggest Lie

Burlington, Wisc., Dec. 31 (AP) — Flabbergasted judges of the Burlington Liars' Club today pinned the title of the world's champion liar on a member of the clergy — Rev. Arthur R. Kirk of Biggs, Calif.

President O. C. Hulett said the judges came to a unanimous decision on the winner "and then almost fainted when they looked at the name signed at the bottom of the letter."

Here's what the pastor wrote:

"A man living west of town tried to raise watermelons this summer. He had very bad luck. The soil was too rich. The watermelon vines grew so fast that they wore the watermelons out, dragging them along on the ground.

"One of the boys from town went out one night to swipe a melon. He got the melon all right, but the vines were growing so fast that warm night that the boy had to be taken to the hospital. Before he could break the melon off the vine, it had dragged him half a mile and he was in bad shape."

Mrs. Faith B. Fourre of Minneapolis won honorable mention with a yarn about mosquitoes which ate her cow — then were heard ringing its cowbell to coax her calf out of the brush where they could get at him.

This fishy tale won honorable mention for Oswald J. Solheim of Hudson, Wis.:

"Down in Arizona last summer the rivers were so dry that when the fish swam up-stream, all you could see was a cloud of dust. Some of the older fish, who had had two or three years of practice, would blow "smoke rings" of alkali through their gills."

HOUSE CLOSES, NEXT SESSION IN FEBRUARY

Ratifies Entry Greece, Turkey Into NATO

Ottawa, Dec. 31 (CP) — The fifth session of Canada's 21st parliament, called primarily to deal with domestic legislation, ended Saturday on an international note.

One of the last acts of members was to ratify a resolution endorsing the entry of Greece and Turkey into the North Atlantic alliance.

The measure won unanimous approval—a sharp contrast to the treatment given many of the bills at the 79-day session, marked by lengthy and at times heated and acrimonious debate.

The session was prorogued at 6:50 p.m. EST by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, deputy governor-general. Date for opening of the regular 1952 session was tentatively set for Feb. 7, but that date can and probably will be changed later by the government.

Some members expect the opening will not come until late February.

The 800-word Speech from the Throne, read by Chief Justice Rinfret, reviewed the legislation passed during the session, including three bills adopted in the dwindling minutes before prorogation.

One measure provided for crop-failure payments to farmers in settlements on the prairies and British Columbia; another authorized the government to award contracts of less than $15,000 in cases of emergency without calling tenders; the third granted certain privileges to Atlantic Pact troops training in Canada.

Ratification of the Greece-Turkey entry into N.A.T.O. gave rise to a debate on foreign affairs.

External Affairs Minister Pearson reported that he had returned recently from Europe with the feeling that there had been "no deterioration" in the situation there. The gap between east and west had not widened and "we are holding our own".

Put Power Behind Peace

But, he said, the west would not continue to hold its own unless it built up its collective strength. The North Atlantic Treaty organization would be strengthened by the inclusion of Turkey and Greece. In effect, N.A.T.O. was putting "power behind peace."

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said it frequently was stated that Canada is a great arsenal of democracy, but government reports indicate that proper arms are not available even for Canada's own forces.

Canada should be producing the guns, rifles and other equipment which she had shown she could produce so effectively in the last war.

At Least 54 Killed, 17 Lost As Worst Storm of Century Lashes West Europe Waters

London, Dec. 31 — (AP) — At least 54 persons were killed and 17 missing as raging winds swept the coasts and waters of western Europe today for the fourth day running.

The latest known victims of perhaps this area's worst storm of the 20th century were 13 sailors whose bodies were reported washed ashore near Borkum, in west Germany.

In Britain, where winds hit 100 miles an hour, at least 12 persons were dead and damage was counted into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. Flooding streams added to the havoc.

Another 10 persons, most of them fishermen, were killed in Irish coastal areas and at least 15 Spanish fishermen died in the mountainous seas.

Two Norwegian sailors went overboard to their deaths when a huge sea in the Bay of Biscay washed the bridge off their tanker. The body of one seaman was recovered and 17 other persons were missing in the wrecking of a Dutch tanker and a Norwegian steamer in the same area.

Seaman Killed

One seaman was killed in the disabling of the 6,711-ton American steamer Flying Enterprise. Rescue vessels took 40 crew members — including the dead man — and 10 passengers off the crippled ship as she wallowed with a 60 degree list 250 miles southwest of Ireland.

Captain Kurt Carlsen grimly stuck to his bridge alone while two U.S. Navy ships — a destroyer and a troop transport — raced to his aid.

The 17 missing persons were aboard the Dutch tanker Gemma and the Norwegian steamer Oesthav, broken in two in the wild Bay of Biscay. Nine members of the Oesthav's crew, including a woman, were reported by rescue vessels to have drifted away in the stern half. Eight were missing from the Gemma and a rescue vessel reported it had taken aboard the lifeless body of a ninth crew member.

The Spanish schooner Mina Entegro radioed its home port of Santander it had picked up and was towing the forward half of a Norwegian ship which broke in two in the same area.

The Mina Entegro identified the ship as a 14,000 ton tanker named Testka and said eight men and a woman were believed to be on the missing half.

Same Vessel

Because of the coincidence it appeared likely that this was the same vessel as the one identified by other rescue vessels as the Oesthav.

Recent maritime reference books do not list a tanker Testka.

Latest deaths reported were three men who died of exposure after losing their way on the bleak Inverness moors. Searchers hunted for the body of a fourth member of the party.

Two deckhands were blown off their vessel near Hull and drowned. At Dysart a 13-year-old boy was killed when a light pole fell on his hut. A man who tried to rescue him collapsed and died.

At Sr. Ives in Cornwall, winds piled mountainous sand drifts which reached the rooftops. Entire streets were impassable.

Many Ships In Trouble

Two more U.S. ships, the destroyer John W. Weeks and the transport Golden Eagle, were ordered to travel at high speed to the Flying Enterprise.

There were numerous other reports of ships in trouble.

West German marine police at Borkum Island reported the recovery of 13 bodies from the wrecked German cargo ship Irene Oldendorff.

Finding of the bodies raised to almost 40 the number of deaths caused by the storm which swept the North Atlantic.

West German police at Borkum, westernmost of the East Frisian Islands, said part of a lifeboat from the 1,494-ton cargo ship Irene Oldendorff was washed ashore. The ship had left Emden this morning for Sweden with a cargo of coke.

May Have Struck Mine

There was speculation the ship may have struck a wartime mine.

Rescue ships were also searching for eight men aboard the forward half of the Norwegian tanker Ostav, which broke in two about 50 miles northwest of Santander, Spain, last night.

The Swedish shop Gunny rescued 34 men from the stern section of the 8,525-ton tanker.

The 400-ton Dutch tanker Gemma was wrecked yesterday after the storm flung her on the rocks at Guethary, a small seaside resort near Bayonne, France. Two bodies washed up on nearby beaches are believed to be members of the missing crew of eight.

The 6,219-ton Norwegian tanker Strix limped into the shelter of Falmouth harbor today with two men missing and five injured after a severe buffeting in the Bay or Biscay.

Skipper William Pappe and Third Officer Sven Solnningsen were washed overboard with part of the bridge in the storm.

Retail Price Maintenance Law Expected to Have Little Effect In Changing Cost of Living

Ottawa, Dec. 31 — (CP) — The man behind the retail counter now has full freedom in setting prices for the customer.

It is against the law for minimum prices to be dictated to him otherwise than by the law of consumer demand.

Parliament's action Saturday in giving royal assent to the government's anti-price-fix bill means that each handler, down the line from the manufacturer to the final buyer, may name his own prices independently on each article he sells.

The practice of some manufacturers or intermediate dealers setting prices for the retail trade on a variety of articles is outlawed. The legislation specifies particularly that sellers refusing to meet set prive levels are not to be shut off from supplies.

The penalties for violation range up to two years' imprisonment for individuals and to $25,000 in cash fines for corporations.

The measure is not expected to make a big dent in the cost of living. That is conceded by the government, which sponsored it, and emphasized by its opponents.

Terms Simple

The terms of the 500-word measure are simple, despite the hundreds of thousands of words that have exploded over it in the stormy debate that started Dec. 17 and resulted in the fall session of parliament spilling over beyond Christmas.

No Land Has Better Chances Than Canada

-- Drew

Ottawa, Dec. 31—(CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said in a year-end message last night that no people have greater opportunities than Canadians, given peace and international stability.

Mr. Drew's message, issued as a press statement, said much has happened in Canada to give Canadians encouragement. Agricultural production was up. Labor and management were co-operating.

"Although the cost of living has reached the highest level in our history," Mr. Drew said, "Canadians have left no doubt that they are ready to support all effective measures for the preservation of peace."

Development of Canada's vast resources "is not only going to mean greater opportunity, larger population and a higher average income, but it will also increase our ability to play a key role in keeping peace."

WEIGHT OF SNOW CAUSES TWEED RINK COLLAPSE

200 Children Escorted From Rink by Legion

Tweed, Dec. 31—Just a matter of minutes after 200 unsuspecting children were herded out of the Tweed skating rink Saturday night, the 24-year-old building collapsed and crashed down, burying the ice under tons of debris.

The omnious sound of cracking timbers overhead was the warning that probably saved many lives. Members of the local Canadian Legion branch, who were supervising the skating session, quickly escorted the youngsters and some adults out.

The building was vacant when the cracking grew to a roar and the entire rink, except for one wall, buckled under the weight of the winter's snow and crumbled. Fred Geraldi, the caretaker was the last to leave. The concussion of the collapse sent him spinning through the front door.

The skating crowd was the largest of the season.

"If it hadn't been for some pretty quick thinking this could have been a terrible tragedy," said Reeve Clarence Graham.

The night before a large crowd filled the rink for a hockey game between Tweed and Tamworth.

Geraldi, Tom Beatty, secretary of the Tweed Amusements Ltd., owners of the rink, Harry Leal, Ellard Clark and Len Taylor of the Legion, were credited with averting a disaster.

They hustled the 200 children off the ice and out of the rink in less than three minutes after the heavy timber supports began to creak and crack.

Beatty gave the order to have the rink evacuated. Most of the children, he said later, didn't realize the danger when they were leaving the arena. Some hung back, but they were quickly rounded up and escorted out.

When the rink collapsed the fire department was called immediately because it was feared that fallen tension wires and smouldering coals in the dressing room stoves might set fire to the wreckage. Power was shut off by hydro employees.

The main wall where the gallery and dressing-rooms were located, did not collapse. Children's shoes and clothing were recoverel from the building and sorted out in the municipal hall.

The Legion took over management of the rink only two weeks ago. Today there was talk of rebuilding it. Beatty said a meeting of shareholders would be called immediately. He said the rink was insured.

Dies of Gas Poisoning

Kingston, Dec. 31. (CP)—Lena Peters, 17, of Gibson's Hill, died in hospital early today, two weeks after she was found in a carbon monoxide-filled car, on a district side road.

Her companion, Merill Hamilton, 20, of Verona, was released from hospital Dec. 24.

It was believed they were parked in the car for several hours before a passer-by found them, early Dec. 16.

The engine of the car was running.

Midget George Day Protests Bitterly He's Overcharged for Everything

New York, Dec. 31—(AP) — Ever stop to think about the high cost of living for a midget?

A midget eats less wears less, accupies less valuable space in this world of carefully-apportioned spaces, but it frequently costs the little fellow more to maintain himself than it does the average man.

True, a family-man midget who eats at home will spend less on food. But a bachelor midget, like 40-year-old George Day, a native Briton who eats out, always pays for more than he can eat. Too embarrassed to order children's portions, he has the full blue-plate special, eats only half, pays full price.

Day, who stands three feet, seven inches, and weighs 79 pounds, must have all his suits tailor made.

"I never get by for less than $125 or $140 a suit these days," he says. "The tailor and I always have the same argument. I argue that he uses less material—about 2½ yards for me, about 4½ for the normal-size man—but it never does me any good."

Because he wants to dress like an adult not like a child, Day wears custom-made shirts costing between $6 and $10 and custom-made shoes between $13 and $30. He wears boys' socks, boys' underwear, boys' gloves, hats and ties.

Day has to pay full price for cleaning a suit, getting a haircut, travelling on trains, planes or buses. At home, he requires custom-made chairs; children's furniture is too uncomfortable.

Welland Soldier Being Questioned ByProvincialPolice

Argument Believed Cause Of Double Shooting in Camp

Pembroke, Ont., Dec. 31—(CP) —Two soldiers were cut down by revolver bullets at nearby Petawawa military camp Sunday night and police said they are holding another soldier for questioning.

Killed were Spr. J. M. Caufield, 21, of Pine Falls, Man., and Craftman C. E. Johannson, 19, of Saskatoon. Caufield was with the 59th Field Squadron, Royal Canadian Engineers, and Johannson was a member of the 23rd Bridge Workshop, R.C.E.M.E.

The army said that Spr. Joseph Lanoie, 35, of Welland, Ont., a member of the 59th Field Squadron, R.C.E. is being questioned by provincial police.

No charge has been laid against Lanoie. Police declined to give details until they complete their investigation.

An army spokesman said information about the shooting was sketchy. First reports indicated that the three men were talking together in one of the barracks at the big military camp when an argument developed.

One of the trio left the room and came back a few minutes later brandishing a service revolver and the shooting started. Both soldiers died instantly.

The two victims were employed at the headquarters mess at the camp.

Camp Commandant Col. Duncan Douglas had no statement to make on the shooting, but released to the provincial police the soldier who did the shooting.

All three men involved were single.

The army camp is the training ground for thousands of troops and part of Canada's 25th Brigade, now in Korea, received initial training there.

Pembroke is 110 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Shooting Follows Farmhouse Party, One Man Held

Yorkton, Sask., Dec. 31—(CP) —James Rapchuk, 50-year-old farmer, Saturday was charged with attempted murder in connection with a shooting which followed a farmhouse party in the Wroxton district about 140 miles northeast of Regina.

Rapchuk was charged in connection with the shooting of James Malaniey, 32, and his cousin, Alex, about 40.

Hospital attendants at Yorkton reported that James Malaniey still is in critical condition from stomach and chest wounds and a ruptured spleen. Alex, who had a bullet lodged in a lung, was reported slightly improved, but still in only fair condition.

Persons attending a party at the James Malaniey home said Rapcuhk went home following a dispute over a gambling debt and returned later carrying a pistol.

Troubled World Greets New Year

(By The Canadian Press)

A troubled world greets the new year tonight with a mixture of merry celebration and prayer.

Infant 1952 will inherit the cold and hot war cares of old 1951, but for this one evening at least these cares will be briefly forgotten by many indulging in traditional merry-making.

Almost anywhere, whether in Europe or North America, it will cost more to welcome this 366-day new year.

Topping the list in New York is a $27.50-per-person charge at the Hotel Pierre's Cotillion Room. Times Square, as usual, will be jammed with throngs cheering in the new year at the stroke of midnight.

Britons will jam London's Piccadilly Circus. Frenchmen will flock to their all-night parties, the traditional "Reveillons".

Even behind the iron curtain, subdued for Christmas, revels for the new year were expected.

For soldiers in Korea, it will be just another night with continued hope for peace.

United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie, in a new year's message from Paris, expressed the world's desire for a word of "cheer and confidence at this season".

"The danger of a third world war continues to haunt the hearts and minds of people," he said, adding that there "is a way out . . . to make the United Nations work as it was intended to work.

Two Persons Die, Three Injured In Flash Fire

Ste. Marguerite Stations, Que., Dec. 31 — (CP) — Despite the frantic rescue efforts of a young Montrealer, two persons died and three others of a skiing party were injured when fire swept through a two-storey wooden building Saturday.

The heroic attempt of Jack Shackleton of Montreal almost cost him his life. Badly burned, he tried to fight his way back into the flaming house and finally had to be knocked out by a neighbor.

Dead are: Ann Hryciw, 22, Montreal; Joan Warner, 20, Montreal.

Injured, also from Montreal, were Shackleton, 29; June Redwood, 19; and Barbara Dendy, 19.

The three injured were taken to hospital, Shackleton suffering from serious burns and Misses Redwood and Dendy from minor burns.

CHRISTMAS TREE CONSIGNED TO RIVER

It was a short life but a gay one. Coming from the backwoods for the first time in its life it had a merry holiday.

Lit up every night, its gay apparel the cynosure of many eyes, it had no rest from the time of arrival until today.

Now its fun is over. Shorn of its gay holiday tinsel, its limbs adroop and a sorrowful wreck of its former self, it had been relegated to the limbo of forgotten things.

It lay stretched on the ice of the Moira River, a bedraggled wreck. Passersby did not deign a glance. Its usefulness was over.

But such is the fate every year of the family Christmas tree.

THREE APPREHENDED BY PROVINCIAL POLICE

Three young men, none of them with any fixed abode, were apprehended by provincial police over the weekend in charge of a car which had been reported stolen in Toronto. Constable Cusler, patrolling on No. 2 Highway near Deseronto, noted the licence number of the car and flagged the driver down. The men, who gave their names as Robert Dionne, 29; Gordon Corbett, 29; and Hugh Pearce, 22, offered no resistance and were lodged in jail at Belleville.

SNOW-SHOVELLING CITIZENS GIVEN BREAK

The weather man gave a snow-shovelling citizenry something of a break over the weekend, aiding snow-weary residents with a warmish rain that aided immeasurably in the clearing of the now dirty mass.

One-tenth of an inch of rain fell, not much perhaps, but it did a fairish job in reducing snowbanks and drifts, and aiding in clearing of pavements.

Tonight and tomorrow the weather predictions are "milder, getting colder towards New Year's night."

100,000 ACRES DESTROYED BY FIRES

A summary of the 1951 fire season just released by the Department of Lands and Forests shows that 904 fires were extinguished in the provincial fire district, burning over 100,000 acres.

The record in the Bay of Quinte district showed a significant improvement over the preceding season. Acreage amounting to 364 was burned by 46 fires, an average of 7.9 acres per fire. Careless campers and smokers were again the chief offenders.

DRIVERS MUST PAY CLEANING BILLS

In direct contrast to street conditions prevailing during the past week, puddles of muddy water were in evidence on Sunday with more than one pedestrian complaining to police that they had been "splashed" by passing autos. Licence numbers in each case were noted and police stated the offending drivers would be called upon to pay dry cleaning bills.

SHORT CIRCUITING OF ALARM SYSTEM CAUSES RUN

Short circuiting of the fire alarm system caused by damp weather was responsible for a run for the local fire department to the Belleville General Hospital Sunday evening. Shorting of the equipment caused the alarm bell to ring in at the fire hall and firemen made a quick run only to find no fire in progress. The fire chief said the dampness apparently had been responsible for the false alarm.

'If You Drive Don't Drink' Police Warning to Motorists

The timely warning that intoxicating liquors and gasoline do not mix was repeated today by heads of both city and provincial police in the city.

Many citizens will attend the numerous public and private New Year's parties this evening and celebrations are apt to be toasted in conventional style but police noted the old warning, "If you drink don't drive, and if you drive don't drink" still holds good.

Police will be especially on the alert to check drivers whose ability to drive has been impaired by drink and their removal from the streets or highway will undoubtedly save accidents.

"If our splendid Christmas record holds good over the New Year holidays, we will be satisfied," stated Police Chief Walter Probert.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance added a word of warning asking party goers and others to be careful of fire.

Junior Farmers Attend Course At Queen's

About 25 Belleville district junior farmers and rural delegates were among 80 young people who ended a three-day leadership short course at Queen's University on Saturday afternoon.

Among Belleville delegates were Marilyn Barber, Edith Foster, Mrs. Bessie Hubble all of Belleville; Norman Bell, Moscow, one of the leaders; Leafa H. Drew, Moscow, a group chairman; Mrs. Janet Edwards, W. E. Edwards, Gladys Henshilwood, Tom Henshilwood, one of the leaders; Hellen Milligan, and Robert Waddingham, all of Napanee; Arnold Empey, Madoc; Ronald Hutchinson, Corbyville; Doug. Ketcheson, Foxboro; Mrs. Ross Ketcheson, Moira; Mrs. Albert Martin, Tweed; Keith McCracken, Selby; Helen McCullough, Lonsdale; Franklin Ray, Holloway; Gaynor Rendall, Deseronto, one of the leaders; Janet Rikley, Foxboro; Eloise Sine, Frankford; and Meredith Wilson Enterprise, Burton Hubble, Belleville.

The course was sponsored by Queen's University, assisted by Ontario Federation of Agriculture, and community programs branch of Ontario Department of Education.

Essentials of good programs were described by inspector R. H. Macklem of Belleville in an address which highlighted the concluding session of the Christmas short course on Saturday.

To secure and hold interest and attention, he urged use of the principle of movement or change, of novelty, of challenge through presentation of a problem, and of emphatic portrayal by use of contrasts.

Woman Convinced Bird is Member Of Eagle Family

Owl or eagle? Not one of the small crowd of curious spectators who saw the strange feathered visitor to the home of Mrs. J. D. Johnson, 11 Charlotte street Saturday afternoon, seemed to know.

The large hook-beaked bird with patches of white on a dark body came out of nowhere to roost in the top of a large tree on the Johnson property. Sized between that of a large chicken and a turkey, and "too big for an owl" according to one spectator, the feathered visitor warily eyed pieces of suet placed in the tree for others of the bird family, but made no effort to descend to the meal.

Occasionally it stretched its wings, as though tired. Its round head with sharp beady eyes kept a constant watch on its human audience. It had a "huge" wingspread.

After a somewhat lengthy stay the bird "took off" in what seemed to be an effort after being subjected to a few snowballs tossed by a prankish onlooker. It circled the Johnson property, then lazily flew over nearby housetops out of sight.

Mrs. Johnson, who keeps an "outdoor all-winter" table for the birds said today she has seen many strange members of the feathered flocks but none like her latest visitor. She, and others, who saw it, are convinced it was a member of the eagle family.

Careless Driving Charge Proves Costly to Driver

Running into a police car can prove costly it was learned today by Joseph M. Scrimshaw, South George Street, who on a careless driving charge today was fined $15 and ordered to pay $27 court costs by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Last November 11th, Scrimshaw drove out of a laneway on No. 2 Highway east of the city and collided with a passing provincial police car causing considerable damage. In addition to the fine and costs, Scrimshaw's licence was suspended for three months.

Western Europe Still Disagrees On United Army

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Dec. 31. (CP)—Western unity planners are racing against a Feb. 2 deadline, when their defence plans are supposed to be jelled enough for setting a pattern of military and economic cooperation.

The deadline is the opening of the council meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—a meeting already heralded in some official quarters as decisive for the future of western unity.

The big problems are the setup of the projected European army and the question of Germany's integration into the western defence force. Interlocked with these problems are various economic factors, including the dividing of rearmament costs among the 12-member countries and the fate of the Schuman plan for pooling coal and steel production.

None of the proposed plans has been fulfilled yet, although all have shown some progress. But even while officials express hope they will be able to come up with definitive blueprints in February, alternatives for western defence arrangements are being formulated.

The idea for a European army still has some hurdles to leap before it becomes a reality. This force, made up of soldiers from France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg and Germany, would form one unit standing alongside the separate units of United States, British and Canadian forces.

The main difficulties holding up the European army now are political.

In both France and Germany the extreme nationalists threaten the chances of ratification by parliaments in their objections to giving up any sovereignty—the plan is to merge national units into larger groups of mixed nationalities. And on the economic side, the Benelux countries are making strong objections to a common military budget for the countries involved in the European army.

POSSIBLY FIVE KILLED

Hong Kong, Dec. 31 — (AP)—A United States navy courier plane crashed in Hong Kong harbor today. Four, and possibly five, of those aboard were killed. Four others were rescued, but one is reported in critical condition.

Wreckage of the big seaplane was under 30 feet of water. British naval divers were trying to recover the bodies.

The plane crashed while taking off on a combination test hop and sightseeing flight.

JOHN WARICK FRANKLIN FROST

John Warick Franklin Frost, 21, Foundry street, died Sunday at the Belleville General Hospital following a lengthy illness. He was in his 80th year.

Born in Belleville son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Frost, he had lived in the city all his life where during his active life he had followed his trade as a cabinet maker.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Fred Cook, Belleville, and Mrs. Rose Abrams, Toronto; and two brothers, Charles F. Frost of this city, and William H. Frost of Woodstock, N.Y.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement appears in this edition.

MRS. MERCY (WICKETT) EGGLETON
(Foxboro)

Resident of Foxboro all her life, Mrs. Mercy Eggleton, of Foxboro, wife of the late John W. Eggleton, died at her home on Sunday. She was in her 88th year.

Mrs. Eggleton was born at Foxboro, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wickett. She was a member of the Foxboro United Church. Her husband died fifteen years ago.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Fred (Flossie) Rose of Trenton, and one son Frank Eggleton of Foxboro. There are seven grandchildren.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MISS ANNABELLA LOUNSBERRY

Stricken with a heart attack after shovelling snow at her home, Miss Annabella Lounsberry, 22 Moodie Street, died suddenly at her home Sunday. She was in her 68th year.

A retired public school teacher, Miss Lounsberry was born at Jarvis, Ont., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Lounsberry and had lived in Belleville for the past 47 years. For many years she was a teacher at King George School in this city.

Miss Lounsberry was very active in welfare work and was recording secretary for the Children's Aid Society, and was a member of the Juvenile and Family Court Committee. She was a member of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church and Financial Secretary.

Surviving are one brother, Orville A. Lounsberry of Foxboro, and two nephews, James and Francis, both of Stirling.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Memory Honored As Wreath Placed On Hall Plaque

Menton, France, Dec. 31—(CP)—The United States army pushed through this French Riviera town in 1944, but its inhabitants say now that it was the Canadians who liberated them.

They have placed a plague beside the door of their city hall honoring the memory of a French-Canadian lieutenant who died leading a reconnaissance patrol of the 1st Canadian Special Battalion attached to the 1st U.S. Airborne Task Force.

Lieut. Paul Gatien Laporte of St. Michel des Saints, Que., was struck down by German fire on the outskirts of this ancient Mediterranean town, beside the Italian border, Sept. 9, 1944, the day Menton was liberated.

The memory of Laporte who is buried in Canada, was honored again Dec. 27, when a wreath was placed at the plaque by a Canadian girl who is among a group of United Nations journalists from 17 countries, touring the French Riviera as guests of the French government.

Dorothy Fletcher of Toronto, CBC supervisor of broadcasts from the United Nations in Paris, was escorted to the plaque by Rene Beaudoin Liberal member of parliament for the Quebec constituency of Vaudreuil-Soulanges.

Beaudoin is on a brief holiday in France on his way to Ceylon for a general conference of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association.

Windshield Stamps, Permits, Drivers' Licences Ready Wed.

Over 7,000 windshield stamps, motor vehicles permits and drivers' licences have arrived at the office of Issuer Fred Symons, Front street and will go on sale Wednesday, Jan. 2 at nine a.m.

The Ontario government's decision to issue windshield stamps instead of plates this year is going to cost many motorists an additional one dollar.

In 1952 cars must be equipped with 1951 plates as well as stamps and these plates must be in good condition. If they are defaced in any way, the car owner must buy a new set of 1951 plates as well as his stamp and this will cost the "extra buck".

It is a traffic act offence to have defaced, dirty or obstructed markers with a fine of $5 to $50 on conviction.

Trailer plates have a yellow background with black figures and letters and the crown which has been shown on Ontario plates for many years until this year.

Placed On Windshields

The new 3 by 5-inch windshield stickers have yellow backgrounds with red lettering and border. The Ontario crest is in the upper left hand corner and vehicle classification and licence number are printed at the bottom. The stamps are to be placed on the inside of the windshield at the lower right corner.

Car owners are warned not to lose these stickers. If they are lost, a replacement will cost $1.00 and a form must be filled out with the signature of the commissioner of oaths.

Passenger car owners will pay as low as two dollars for their 1952 stamp (a four-cylinder car) and as high as $35 (a sixteen-cylinder job). Commercial vehicle licences range from a low of $7.50 to a high of $148.50.

Trenton Airmen Aid in Hunt For Missing American Plane

Trenton (Special) — With bad weather hampering the searchers, the Trenton branch of the R.C.A.F. Search Rescue threw another aircraft into the hunt for the missing American C-46 Commando with 37 persons on board. The big plane disappeared on a one hour flight from Pittsburgh to Buffalo on Saturday night.

The Canadian search rescue service went into the operation on a request from the United States Air Force searching the Lake Ontario shoreline.

Yesterday Canadian planes covered the entire lake area north of the international boundary and today the search centres on the remainder of the lake south of the line in American territory. Two Mitchell aircraft from advanced flying school and a Dakota carrying para-rescue men from Trenton have been detailed to help find the missing transport.

At 10 a.m. this morning searchmaster Flying Officer Peter Harbottle of Kaslo, B.C., said searchers had found no trace of the aircraft and that an earlier report that the plane had been located 50 miles north of Philadelphia was unfounded. Reason for searching Lake Ontario, he said, was to investigate a theory that the airliner overshot Buffalo in the storm. Another theory, he said, is that the aircraft went down in the mountains in the rough country south of Buffalo. It must have crashed, he said, or there would have been a report from it by now.

The missing aircraft is identical to the American airliner that made the spectacular forced landing just west of Cobourg last week.

Trenton R.C.A.F. personnel taking part in the hunt are: F/O. J. Schroeder, F/L. R. Cannon, F/O. Bill Mason of Oshawa, F/O. J. F. Gordon of Toronto and a para-rescue team including Sgt. Bill Farr, Cpl. D. Dawson, LAC. C. L. Hegadoren.

Airman Hamilton Unscathed In Plane Crash

Trenton (Special) — Flying officer D. G. Hamilton of instructors' flying school at Trenton Air Station had a lucky escape on Saturday afternoon when the Harvard aircraft he was landing struck a snowbank and flipped over on its back.

The aircraft had touched down when it suddenly veered to the right into a pile of snow and turned upside down. The crash tender and fire truck rushed to the scene to find the pilot shaken but unhurt. The plane was damaged only slightly.

A large crane was employed to right the aircraft and it was towed off the field to one of the hangars.

Checked over in the hospital, Hamilton was released for duty the same night.

NEW YORK

U. S. Steel	40

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Dec. 31 — (CP)—Pre-holiday stock market prices made little headway today in brisk early afternoon trading.

Industrials opened irregularly to break Saturday's sharp upswing and developed little trend as the session progressed.

Papers, manufacturing companies and steels led the market with a majority of fractional increases. Utilities and liquors drew firm support while foods, textiles, retail stores and miscellaneous industrials held gains and losses in balance. Agricultures and refining oils weakened.

Activity picked up with increased speculation in penny golds. Volume was 1,548,000 shares.

Senior golds showed few changes. Juniors, however, weakened from early strength while prospects surged ahead. Campbell, Sullivan and Bulolo were among strong issues.

In western oils Calvan Consolidated, Central-Leduc, Jupiter and Trans Empire dipped. Federated Petroleum and General Petroleum A, posted strong gains.

Base metals traded irregularly Falconbridge climbed fractions while Cassiar, East Sullivan, Mindemar and Steep Rock added pennies. Labrador and Quebec Manitou eased.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Dec. 31 — (CP) — Trading was active and prices generally steady at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: cattle 1,500; calves 110; hogs 402; sheep and lambs 70. The leftover from last week was 50 cattle.

Good to choice weighty steers sold for $35-$36 with one load bringing $36.25. Common to medium light steers and heifers made $26-$32.50 with good heifers up to $33-$33.50. Medium to good cows were $24-$27.50 while good bulls brought $27-$27.50. Fed yearlings sold from $34-$38 according to quality. A few stockers were selling at $28-$31.50.

Calves sold steady at $37-$38 for choice vealers and from $26-$35 for common to medium.

No hog prices established.

Lambs sold steady to 50 cents higher at $32.50-$33. Medium to good light sheep made $16-$21 with common downward to $10.

RETAIL

It says that resale price maintenance — the practice of a manufacturer or dealer telling anyone the prices at which his goods are to be sold — is illegal. It applies to the fixing of set prices, minimum prices, mark-ups or discounts.

A person breaking the new law is subject to a fine of $10,000 or two years in jail. A corporation may be fined $25,000.

The enforcement is in the hands of officers of the Combines Commission, which deals with violations of the Combines Investigation Act. The newly-passed measure is an amendment to that act.

Under the act as it stood before Saturday, there could be prosecutions against "horizontal" combines, those in the same level, such as manufacturers. The change now outlaws a "vertical" combine — one in which the price may be sent down from the manufacturer at the top to the retailer at the bottom of the distribution line.

Impact Uncertain

While advocates and opponents of the new law are agreed that its direct effects on the cost of living will not amount to much immediately, they disagree on the long-term impact on the economy.

The government in the Commons advanced the idea that resale price maintenance tends to hold up prices at higher levels than would prevail under conditions of pure competition. The Progressive Conservatives, who led the long fight against the bill, held it will leave small retailers vulnerable to cut-throat competition from price-slashing by big outlets.

Justice Minister Garson, who sponsored the bill, said the size of mark-ups in many price-fixed lines leaves room for efficient retailers to pass on to consumers the savings from their efficiency. Opponents replied the bill will open the little business man to take it on the chin from the larger stores' use of "loss leaders"—the selling of items at abnormally-low prices to draw in customers.

Wife of Kingston Mining Engineer On Missing Plane

Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 31—(CP)—The wife of a Kingston gold mining engineer on her way to a New Year's reunion with her mother in Buffalo, was among the 40 persons missing Saturday night aboard a Miami-to-Buffalo airliner.

She was Mrs. Dorothy Berman Bruce, 23, wife of Angus Bruce of (164 King St.) Kingston. Her mother is Mrs. Betty Berman, a Toronto hairdreser, temporarily residing at a Buffalo hotel.

Mrs. Berman, whose home address is the Ford Hotel, Toronto, said she expected her daughter here to spend New Year's Day.

Mrs. Bruce and her husband recently returned from two years in Nicaragua, where he was employed as a mining engineer, the mother said.

They arrived in Miami, Fla., about a month ago, Mrs. Berman said, and Bruce went on to his home in Kingston to set up a business with his brother.

Mrs. Bruce remained in Miami to take a course in switchboard operating and planned to join her husband in Kingston after the holidays.

Informed of his wife's failure to arrive in Buffalo, Bruce immediately set out from Kingston by automobile for the Brookville, Pa., area where a rumor—which later proved false — had placed the missing plane.

Mrs. Bruce's name had been carried on the plane's passenger list as D. Bruce, but it gave an erroneous Ontario address.

In Kingston, Mrs. Angus Bruce, the husband's mother, said the husband had expected a phone call from his wife after her scheduled arrival in Buffalo Saturday night. He became alarmed when the call was not made. Sunday morning his mother-in-law phoned with word that Mrs. Bruce was aboard the missing plane.

The young couple flew home from Nicaragua in July on holidays.

Mrs. Bruce said her son recently quit his job in Nicaragua and flew with his wife to Miami. After a holiday there, he travelled to Kingston about two weeks ago. His wife remained behind in Miami for a few days but planned to rejoin him here after spending New Year's in Buffalo with her mother.

The husband, 31, is a former student at Queen's University in Kingston and an R.C.A.F. veteran.

Churchill, Party Leave Today For Washington

Southampton, England, Dec. 31—(AP)—The liner Queen Mary, carrying Prime Minister Winston Churchill to the United States for talks with President Truman, put out to sea today—three days late.

Delayed first by the heaviest Atlantic storms in years and then by a balky anchor, the 81,000-ton luxury vessel finally got away at 11:58 a. m. (6:58 a. m. EST).

She originally had been scheduled to sail with her 1,104 passengers last Friday.

Churchill and his party of 35, including Foreign Scretary Anthony Eden, had been waiting on board since 45 minutes after Saturday midnight.

Hope of sailing yesterday was dashed when the port anchor became jammed in its housing. Workmen cut through a plate into the housing to release the jammed fluke, then replaced the plate.

Final tests on the anchor were complete in mid-morning. Even then, fog in the harbor raised doubt whether the big ship could get underway with the tide. Not until 10.30 a. m. did a Cunard official announce:

"The Queen Mary will sail at noon."

Harbor Calm

By that time the fog had lifted and the harbor was calm.

Passengers gathered in the main lounge of the promenade deck last night to hear carols sung by 20 choristers from Winchester Cathedral.

Churchill dined with Earl Mountbatten, fourth lord of the admiralty, who has been appointed commander-in-chief of the British Mediterranean fleet effective next May.

In a New Year's message to the Primrose League, a group of Conservative party leaders, Churchill said 1952 "presents us with momentous challenges and opportunities." He added:

"Abroad our first task must be to win peace through a policy of strength. The liberties which we prize, and which our ancestors won for us in the struggles of many centuries, are threatened by an alien doctrine, which is quick to exploit weakness but pauses before strength."

The task at home, Churchill said, is "to rebuild the material wealth which we sacrificed in the defence of freedom in two world wars."

Couple Worth $35,000 in 1947 Die Penniless in Toronto Hotel

Toronto, Dec. 31 (CP)—In 1947, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hodson were established farmers worth $35,000.

When they died Saturday in a small Toronto hotel, their assets were $5.37. A week ago, they appealed to the Salvation Army to pay a $6 debt.

Police said their deaths apparently were the result of a double suicide poison pact. On a table in the room were two empty glasses. In a waste basket, an empty poison bottle.

The story of the couple—he was 65, she 64—was learned today.

Born on a farm near Brooklyn, 40 miles northwest of Toronto, Hodson attended the Ontario Agriculture College at Guelph from 1906 to 1908.

He married the daughter of a professor and later became deputy minister of agriculture in British Columbia. For several years he was listed in "who's who" along with his father, F. W. Hodson, Canada's first livestock commissioner.

Time to Splurge

"Farming isn't my trade," Hodson was quoted as telling friends when he sold the family farm in 1947. "The time has come to splurge."

For 150 years, the Hodsons had tilled the farm and built it up until it became a show place. Trout streams snaked amid the spruce-clad hills and prize Holstein cattle grazed on the rolling meadows. The farm was held by four generations of Hodsons and flourished, neighbors said, until the death of Will Kitchen, a hired hand, in 1947. For 25 years, Kitchen actually had run the property. He came from England when he was 14 and never worked for anyone else.

A son-in-law of Hodson, Frank Brown of Oshawa, said of Kitchen:

"They were inseparable and as far as my father-in-law was concerned, Will was a son. When Will died, Mr. Hodson . . . didn't know where to turn or what to do."

Travel by Taxi

In a short while, the couple began travelling the 40 miles to Toronto, spending several hours drinking before returning home. They went by taxi. Fare was $20.

Barney Harding, the taxi driver, said: "I once tried to reason with Mr. Hodson but was cut short. He told me to do as he said and I would be paid . . . in fact, he overpaid. Last summer, he and Mrs. Hodson were spending money so quickly I took everything offered."

The couple travelled to Toronto on 12 different occasions, Harding recalled:

"They never travelled by bus because they said that was cheap and common. They once took a cab to the Laurentians for a week. Another time they hired a taxi and stayed several days in the Chateau Laurier (at Ottawa.)"

The man who purchased the farm in 1947 did not complete the deal, losing $1,000 deposit, and several subsequent attempts were made to sell the property. It finally was sold last year to Albert Cooper for $11,000. Of this, Hodson received $3,800 cash.

On March 15, the couple left the farm for good.

10 Days at Oshawa

They spent ten days in a suite at an Oshawa hotel and then moved on to Toronto.

For nine weeks they stayed at the Queen Street hotel where they later died.

In August the couple went to Crystal Beach on Lake Erie. Then and also by taxi, they went to a lodge at Wasaga Beach, later returning to Toronto.

On Dec. 18, their luggage was impounded at the Toronto hotel when they were unable to pay their bill.

The Salvation Army helped them redeem their luggage and Hodson made several other attempts in Toronto to borrow money.

Taxi-driver Harding said Hodson once told him:

"There is no God and no after life. . .when the time comes, I'll give a pill to May (Mrs. Hodson) and take one myself."

Nurse Missing

Kingston, Dec. 31 — (CP) — Civil and military police yesterday sought a pretty, 26-year-old army nurse who had not been seen since she left Kingston Military Hospital Dec. 24 on Christmas leave. Hospital officials said that Lieut. Louise Elizabeth Sanson of Stanley, N.B., intended to spend her leave with an aunt. Mrs. A. A. Savage at Sherbrooks, Que., but did not arrive there.

FIVE GIRLS MISSING

Fort Erie, Ont., Dec. 31 (CP)—Border police were asked today to held locate five girls missing from the Mohawk Indian school at Brantford.

The five, believed somewhere in the Niagara peninsula area, are: Joan Crow, 11, Shirley King, 13, Dian Patterson, 14, Beatrice Deep 14, and Patsy Morris, 15.

Three Planes With 68 Persons Aboard Disappear

(By The Associated Press)

The disappearance of three planes with 68 persons aboard Sunday and Saturday gave the United States one of its grimmest aviation weekends. At the same time, a search continued for another craft lost earlier with eight men aboard.

In addition, a fifth airplane limped 300 miles into San Francisco after it reported engine trouble on a flight from Honolulu.

Forty persons were aboard a non-scheduled C-46 transport which disappeared Saturday night on a Pittsburgh-to-Buffalo flight. The plane, owned by Continental Charters Inc., became the object of a wide land-water-air search over its route and the Great Lakes.

An air force C - 47, with 27 aboard, has not been heard from since yesterday afternoon when it was 20 miles west of Phoenix, Ariz. The last contact was a radio request for landing instructions during rain and mist.

The C-47 was en route from Hamilton Air Force base, Calif., to Goodfellow Air Force base, Tex. An aerial search was to start at dawn.

In another Arizona air incident, an air force F-51 Mustang was reported missing. The F-51 pilot, believed to be the only person aboard, was last heard from yesterday as he sought permission to land at Tucson.

Meanwhile, at Red Bluff, Calif., 60 air force and civilian planes made a futile search yesterday for a C-47 military craft which vanished Wednesday on a flight from Spokane, Wash., to Travis A. F. base, north of San Francisco. It was the first time weather permitted an extensive air hunt for the C-47 and its eight passengers.

Ten men were aboard a military C-97 when it reported two engines in trouble on a Honolulu-to-San Francisco flight yesterday. An air force rescue plane escorted the C-97 to the Travis base after it radioed for assistance.

Rangers Obtain Leading Scorer American Loop

New York, Dec. 31 — (CP) — New York Rangers have acquired Jack Stoddard, American Hockey League leading scorer, from Providence Reds in a four-for-one player trade, it was announced today. No cash was involved.

The deal will send defenceman Pat Egan, right wingers Jean Paul Denis and Zellio Toppazzini and an unnamed player to the Reds.

Egan and Denis are currently with Cincinnati Mohawks, New York's A.H.L. farm club, while Toppazzini has been with the National League Rangers. Toppazzini's trade is subject to the stipulation that Rangers may buy him back at the end of this season. The unnamed player will be delivered by next season.

Stoddard, 25-year-old right winger and a native of Stoney Creek, Ont., has scored 20 goals and had 28 assists with the Reds so far this season.

Standing six feet, three inches and weighing 180 pounds, he probably will be the tallest forward in the N.H.L.

Defence Minister Arrives at Korean Air Base

Tokyo, Dec. 31 — (CP) Defence Minister Brooke Claxton of Canada today reached an advance Korean air base.

Claxton, on his way to visit Canadian forces in Korea, made good time against strong headwinds on his trip from Tokyo in a plane borrowed from the United States Air Force.

The RCAF plane in which he made the trip from Canada to Tokyo was grounded yesterday in Japan because of engine trouble. A new engine has been ordered from Ottawa and will be flown to Japan. The Canadian plane will be in time to take Claxton and his party back to Canada.

The defence minister was met at the Korean airfield by Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, and Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the U. S. Eighth Army. Then he headed for the front.

DIES OF BURNS

Chatham, Dec. 31 (CP)—Joseph Kapsa, 8, of Eberts, died today of burns suffered when he tipped a pot of boiling water over himself. Everts is 10 miles north of here.

Russians Chief Inquisitors Say Four American Fliers Released After 40 Days Behind Curtain

Erding, Germany, Dec. 31 (CP) — The dramatic story of 40 days' imprisonment behind the Iron Curtain and a Communist - style "trial" was related here Saturday night by four American airmen.

Seated at a bare wooden table covered with microphones and under the glare of photographers' arc lights, the men told more than 100 reporters that when they landed in Hungary they thought they were in Yugoslavia.

Acting as spokesman for the group, Capt. Dave Henderson of Shawnee, Okla., said the plane became lost in the clouds while he was piloting it on a routine flight from Erding to Belgrade, Nov. 19.

"Just as our gas was running low I sent out SOS signals," said Henderson in a quiet, often nearly inaudible voice. "Then a fighter plane appeared in front of me and indicated that I should land at an airport ahead."

Released Friday

The airmen, released Friday after payment of $120,000 in fines by the U. S., said they were never mistreated physically and were never accused of being spies, but were "interrogated and interrogated and interrogated" during their 39 days of solitary confinement.

They were tried before a Hungarian Military Court Dec. 23 and convicted of intentionally violating the Hungarian border. They were fined $30,000 apiece or 90 days in prison.

Henderson said the Russians questioned them for 14 days before Hungarians took over. He said the Russians tried to extract military information from them. A U. S. Air Force officer cautioned Henderson not to elaborate on this phase of the interrogation during the press conference.

Henderson said the airmen were represented by lawyers, but there was no thought of any defence against the charges. He said his lawyer, for one, did not "seem to know what that word (defence) meant."

Admit Crossing Border

The men admitted they crossed the Hungarian border, but insisted to their lawyers that they did not do it knowingly.

The trial lasted about three hours. After sentence was pronounced they were taken back to solitary confinement and questioning continued up to the time of their release. Before they were freed, they were fingerprinted and photographed from all sides.

Henderson said they did not destroy equipment or documents when they landed because they thought they were in Yugoslavia.

He said that while in prison he tried to throw notes out the window. In one case he wrote a note on a dollar bill, asking the finder to telephone the United States Embassy. The note fell into Russian hands.

Other members of the crew were Capt. John Swift, 34, of Glen Falls, N.Y., now en route to see his sick father; Sgt. Jess Duff of Spokane, Wash., and Sgt. James Elam of Kingsland, Ark.

Duff said none of the four had been asked specifically to plead guilty or not guilty at the trial.

"We were asked whether we were guilty or not guilty of the charge of violating the Hungarian border. We were in Hungary so what could I do? I pleaded guilty. But my plea did not imply any international border violation."

CRASHES INTO SEA

Hong Kong, Dec. 31 (Reuters) —A United States Navy PBM Mariner flying boat crashed into the sea while taking off from Kowloon Bay for the Philippines today. First reports said five of the crew of nine were rescued. R.A.F. crash boats raced to the flying boat's aid.

MORE LIGHT WANTED

From Washington comes a report that the United States Department of Commerce has barred a New York exporter, a Belgian firm and a Canadian firm from all U.S. export trade for secretely shipping strategic war chemicals to Communist Hungary.

The strategic war chemical involved was aluminum oxide. The material apparently originated in the United States, was sold to a Canadian firm in Montreal, then sold again to a Belgian company and finally sold to the Hungarian Heavy Industries Foreign Trade Company, an agency of the Communist-dominated Hungarian government.

The order issued by the American Department of Commerce has been temporarily stayed, because the American exporter of the aluminum oxide claims he was "duped" by the Canadian and Belgian organizations. "I had no knowledge of the Hungarian destination of this material," the New York exporter was quoted as saying. Questioned by The Canadian Press in Montreal, the head of the Canadian firm involved in this transaction said he had "no immediate comment."

The American Department of Commerce statement said that aluminum oxide is "a strategic material usable in the manufacture of machinery for war purposes."

Perhaps the most interesting feature of this deal is that none of the heads of the business firms connected with it has denied that the aluminum oxide did find its way to Hungary—in other words, into the hands of people who are reported to be preparing to make war against Western Europe and North America.

We venture the opinion that there are a good many people in this country who will be interested in learning more about this aluminum oxide transaction. Perhaps other and similar strategic materials are being shipped from Canada and eventually reaching Communist-controlled countries.

It would appear that federal authorities must be constantly on guard against traffic of this kind. There must be no loopholes whereby countries behind the Iron Curtain can obtain any advantages through our neglect.

PEARKES IN CRITICAL MOOD

Major General G. R. Pearkes, V.C., who is Canada's delegate to the United Nations and who also should know something about military affairs, is far from favorably impressed by that military preparedness program about which we read so much in our newspapers and hear so much over the radio.

Interview by The Canadian Press in Paris, Major General Pearkes said the sending of infantry troops to Europe was "unwarranted." It would have been better to send technicians than combat troops, he said.

Major General Pearkes also said: "I do not believe that the money spent by Canadian taxpayers is getting anything like the return in defence assistance to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that the Canadian people have a right to expect."

He added: "I feel that the Canadian government had not fully informed itself or the Canadian people as to actual conditions in Europe before sending the 27th Brigade and committing Canada to a long-term policy which to my mind is unwarranted and extremely expensive."

By exporting men, Major General Pearkes added, Canada was exporting her most valuable asset. He pointed out that Canadian manpower was being sent to countries where manpower was the least of problems.

It is possible that Major General Pearkes is mistaken or misinformed. It is also possible that there are many Canadians who will agree with him.

WINNIPEG WARS ON TREES

When the Winnipeg Public Works Committee endorses a plan to remove 10,954 trees from the city streets, it certainly highlights the changes that have taken place on the lone prairie. It doesn't seem many years ago that Winnipeg was doing all in its power to encourage trees.

Winnipeg, like many other cities, planted the trees much too close together and the project to spent $109,000 over ten years in taking out one-quarter of the trees on the streets is the result of overcrowding.

Opposition led by the Winnipeg Citizen is already objecting to the deforestation of the city. It is probably the first time that any Canadian centre has come forward with a plan to make up for the lack of planning in tree planting. Trees with room to spread are so much more beautiful than trees crowded together and some time parks departments will appreciate this when small trees are set out. — (Editorial in Saturday Night.)

CELEBRANT

Get for me a paper
hat—
I'm still young enough for that—
And I'll welcome New Year's morn
Tooting on a ten-cent horn;
Kiss some lady on the spot,
Whether we're acquainted or not.
That I'm young enough to do,
Greeting Nineteen-fifty-
two.

I'll let no one think I can't Be a New Year
celebrant.
If I'm tempted, I admit
I may even dance a bit,
And before the evening's through Try to sing a song or two.
Though my hair has long been gray,
I'm still young enough to play.

As the old one passes out,
"Happy New Year!" I will shout.
And, right now I'll guarantee,
Mine the loudest voice will be.
"Just an old fool," did you say?
Well, I'll be one New Year's Day,
With a horn and paper
hat—
I'm still young enough for
that.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 31st., 1931.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen of Toronto will spend tomorrow here with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Greatrix and little daughter, Doreen, of Cherry Valley are the guests of the former's brother, Mr. Charles Greatrix and Mrs. Greatrix, Yeomans Street.

Miss Helen Cather is spending this week in Montreal and will attend the McGill University New Year's dance.

Mr. and Mrs. K. C. VanAllen have returned to their home in Athens, Ontario, after spending the Christmas vacation here. Miss Blanche Coulter accompanied them to spend a month with her sister, Mrs. VanAllen.

The New Year's market was well attended and prices showed a decline from the Christmas prices. Turkeys brought 25 cents per pound; geese 22 cents to 23 cents per pound; ducks $1 each and up; butter 25 cents per pound; eggs 30 cents per dozen; potatoes 60 cents per bag.

Miss Helen Short has returned to Toronto after spending the Christmas vacation at her home here.

Dr. and Mrs. I. B. Irwin have returned to Montreal after spending the holidays with the latter's sister, Mrs. Aselstine, Murney Street.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 31st., 1921.

Following are the candidates in the municipal elections to be held here on Jan. 2nd.: for mayor Charles Hanna and Geo. A. Bennett; for aldermen: James Raymond Carr, Bernard Joseph Conway, George William Dawes, John William Day, William Donohue, Sidney James Fisher, George Edward Foster, Gilbert Hall French, Thomas Edward George, Harry Wilbur Greenleaf, William James Hogan, Edwin Alfred Kellaway, Joseph John Cyril Manley, William Ritchie McCreary, George Frederick Ostrom, Walter Hugh Patterson, A. Robinson, Benjamin O. Sanford, Harry Alexander Thompson, Samuel Henry Treverton, William James Tyers, William Rufus Tobias Wensley, William Albert Woodley, Raymond L'Roy Zufelt.

40 YEARS AGO

Dec. 31st., 1911.

Mr. Robert Rollins of Lake, Sask., was in town today en route to visit relatives in Madoc and vicinity.

Mr. William Day of Lucky Lake, Sask., is visiting relatives in Wallbridge.

Mr. Geo. H. Pope of Winnipeg, formerly of this city, is spending a few days in town.

Mr. Charles A. Lingham of Lockport, N. Y., formerly of this city, is spending a few days in town.

At the municipal elections here on Jan. 2nd a by-law will be voted on to reduce the number of aldermen from 21 to 10.

50 YEARS AGO

Dec. 31st., 1901.

Nominations for mayor, aldermen and water commissioners took place at the city hall yesterday. Ald. George Denmark, who was nominated for mayor by Mr. Nelson Lingham and Mr. John Taylor, withdrew and Mayor R. J. Graham, who was nominated for re-election by Mr. J. W. Johnson and Mr. F. M. Clarke, was declared elected by acclamation. For water commissioners Mr. J. W. Johnson and Mr. W. R. Aylsworth were the only ones nominated and as only two are to be elected, they were declared elected by acclamation. Twenty-six were nominated for aldermen, but many of them will, no doubt, retire.

The last regular meeting of the city council for this year was held last evening and the business transacted was of a routine nature. The following were present; Mayor Graham and Aldermen Denmark, Falkiner, Doyle, McFee, Bogart, Panter, and Lattimer. City Clerk D. B. Robertson favored the council with a song, "Maggie by my Side."

The singing of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.

REACH PRODUCTION GOAL

Moscow, Dec. 31 — (AP) — Russia's oil industry announced Sat., it has reached its 1951 production goal three days ahead of the deadline. In a telegram to Prime Minister Stalin, the oil industry minister reported that the production schedule had been completed yesterday.

CHILD DROWNED

Toronto, Dec. 31—(CP)—David Philp, 7, was drowned Saturday when he fell through an open manhole at Toronto Sewage Disposal plant. A second boy at the scene ran for help and returned with two passing motorists who pulled David's body from the sewer. Efforts to revive the child with an inhalator failed.

Increasing Prices Counteract Canadians' Greater Earnings During Last Twelve Months

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP) — Canada's expanded labor force boosted its earnings by about $1,000,000,000 in 1951, but inflation fattened itself on part of the increased purchasing power.

The era of prosperity and increased economic activity brought with it one of the most rapid increases in prices and one of the most discouraging climbs in living costs.

Inflation, developing on the sudden, sharp speed-up in world rearmament, boosted the cost-of-living index by about 10 per cent. The index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, in December hovered close to the 200 mark, the highest in history.

The 10-per-cent increase was almost triple the 3.5 per cent increase during 1950, and Canadians, wondering when the rise in prices would end, besieged the government with requests for anti-inflationary measures.

Steps were taken by the government to stiffen restrictions on consumer credit, to cut down bank loans and increase interest rates to discourage borrowing — but still the price climb continued.

The government brought in legislation with a view to ending the practice of manufacturers or suppliers setting the price at which their goods are sold to the general public. It was hoped this would stimulate competition among retailers and tend to lower some prices.

Gloomy Outlook

But at the year-end the prospects of coping with inflation appeared as gloomy as they did at the start of the year.

While inflation ate at some of the purchasing power, business generally was buoyant with the exception of reduced sales of cigarets, some household goods such as refrigerators, washing machines and electric stoves and automobiles, caused partly by the government's increased tax.

Earnings by the labor force during the year increased to an estimated record $9,200,000,000 from $8,200,000,000 in 1950. Income by factory workers rose to $3,198,000,000 from $2,753,000,000.

Retail sales soared. They climbed to $10,200,000,000 for the year — a billion dollar gain from $9,100,000,000 in 1950.

The total value of all goods and services for the year jumped $3,000,000,000 to a record of $21,000,000,000 from $17,000,000,000.

Foreign trade, stimulated by the world demand for Canadian strategic goods, expanded by more than $2,000,000,000 to a record $8,500,000,000. Exports, however, failed to keep pace with imports, and Canada ended with a deficit of about $250,000,000.

Influx of Capital

This was more than offset, however, by the powerful flow of foreign capital to share in Canada's economic expansion. The value of the Canadian dollar, cast free more than a year ago, strengthened on the world market and Canada's reserves of gold and United States dollars totalled about a near-record $1,700,000,000.

Hard-hit by the inflationary forces and the fixed price of their product were Canada's gold producers. They urged the government to seek a better price than $35 per ounce (U.S.) which Canada obtained from official markets.

The U.S., however, refused to increase the price, and Canada, finally, obtained permission to allow her producers to sell gold on the world's unofficial or industrial markets where the price sometimes was $5 and $10 per ounce higher. But those who agreed to sell on the free market were cut off from government subsidies to aid marginal gold producers. Not many producers were willing to sacrifice federal aid and at the year-end the bulk of them still were selling to the government at the fixed official price.

Canadians, during the year, complained of the high taxes, imposed to help pay for Canada's three-year, $5,000,000,000 rearmament program, and the complaints grew as the year-end showed that the government's budgetary surplus would be far greater than estimated by Finance Minister Abbott.

He had estimated a surplus of about $30,000,000 for the year and by December the surplus was closer to $600,000,000. Mr. Abbott admitted that he had miscalculated and estimated that by the end of the fiscal year next April the surplus may total about $300,000,000 or $350,000,000.

However, with the mounting number of complaints, the outlook appeared bright for slightly reduced taxation when the next budget was brought down, sometime next March.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Train travel has been greatly improved in recent years by the introduction of much new equipment, such as comfortable coaches, diesel engines, and other evidences of a modern trend in the old Casey Jones, roundhouse tradition of railroaders in general.

The holiday season now closing exposes one of the worst defects in railroad service, which is the entirely inadequate arrangements for the sale of tickets.

Most retail business—and that is what a railway ticket office is—have long ago wakened up to the fact that Christmas comes but once a year, but it always comes. And in stores great and small, up-to-date arrangements are made to accommodate the greatly increased traffic. Not merely are extra hands employed; but extra space, larger counters are provided; and the businessmen of the country go to a lot of trouble and expense to afford every possible convenience to the customer.

No doubt the railroad ticket offices hire extra help for the holiday rush. But the number of wickets remains stolidly the same. And invariably you find the weary line-ups before them. A railroad ticket office is one of the last places in the modern world where you find such dejected queues.

Despite the complicated nature of a railroad ticket office, temporary wickets could be set up in the broad spaces in the average railway station or office; the solution of complicated problems has for some years been required of all other lines of business.

When you are after a simple, straightforward little piece of pasteboard, the price of which you know, and have the cash in hand, you invariably find yourself in the queue behind a gentleman who is thinking of going to Timbuctoo, and wants the ticket agent to get out a bunch of those four pound railway guides, from which, after much pencil biting, he will figure him out a ticket five feet long.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HOW TO GET OVER HURTS

It is a sad commentary on human nature to say that there are those who would make you believe they actually get some sort of satisfaction out of hurting the feelings of some one else. Of course this hurting is not always intentional. Often it is ignorance and a wrong appraisement of facts that create this damage to the mind or heart of another.

Many people have sorely hurt me, and for a long time it puzzled me, as to how I should handle these hurts. Then I decided I would try and learn the art of forgiving easily! Some people never forgive, so they carry open wounds about with them wherever they go, and it seriously affects their mental attitude toward life, and actually their health in general. One of the surest ways to live happily is to forgive easily!

Even Christ upon the cross cried: "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." We ought to be very careful about what we say and not say anything that would leave a hurt behind in some one's heart. If we could form a habit of only saying to others what we wish they might say to us, these hurts that are so easily rendered would grow less and less. I am glad it is so easy for me to forgive. I attribute much of my happiness to this trait, learned from experience long ago.

Saying unpleasant things about another, or distributing idle and harmful gossip, never leaves a trail of trust behind. The light of Heaven abides with that one who has dismissed all resentments from his mind and heart, and from whose speech no sayings mean or base are heard. What a one to have as a friend!

Most of the hurts we experience are not intentional ones, so that if we are quick to overlook and forgive them, they melt away very quickly. To harbor them is what does the damage, and to do so makes them get bigger. Forgive easily and you will have an easy mind, and lots of room left in which to love!

HYSTERIA IN HIGH SCHOOL

John Doe, let us call him here, is president of the Booster's commitee, a group of parents which planned a banquet and special awards to members of the high school football team for its undefeated season.

Whether the banquet came off the newspaper story does not say. John Doe, Jr., however, made the front page the day after the game. John Junior played halfback in the last three periods of the game. Late in the fourth period he complained of a headache. In the bus with the team on the way home after the game the coach noticed John Junior holding his head in his hands. The coach said he asked the boy if is head hurt. From the letters I have received from coaches of schoolboy football teams I imagine the coach expressed his solicitude like this:

"What's the matter, kid, can't you take it?"

The halfback confessed he felt a little dizzy. The sissy!

The coach took no chances—in the coaching profession one must be ever mindful of unfavorable criticism by crackpots, sourpuss doctors and even misguided parents. So he advised the boy's father to take the boy to the school physician.

The father, believe it or not, did so. Now, you wishy-washy parents, there's a man who considers his child's welfare first.

The school physician played only a walk-on part in this episode.

A few hours later another physician attended the boy briefly.

Along toward midnight still a third doctor was called, but at 1.30 a. m. the boy died.

Well, what does the life of one boy matter? What about the honor and glory of the school? Where's your team spirit, your love for alma mater?

Let us courageous parents firmly resolve, here at this banquet table, that nothing shall stop us from winning the State Conference championship, no matter how many children we may have to sacrifice under the inspiring leadership of our great coach.

May God forgive me if this harangue adds to the grief of this boy's parents. I hate to think of their remorse.

Besides recording the brief biography of this fifteen-year-old boy the newspaper report mentioned that another member of the team, aged 16, was recovering in hospital after removal of a kidney punctured in a game two week earlier; and still a third player, aged 17, who had been taken to the hospital with head injuries in yesterday's game.

But are we brave parents downhearted? Do we want our sons to be sissies or men?

Well, how about that, wishy washies? If there are, say, 100 boys in the local high school, and 25 of them get to play on the team or at least to appear in costume as substitutes, are the other 75 boys sissies, yellow, mama's boys or whatever the coach pleases to call them?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Diabetes in the Family

Please send me literature on diabetes and what foods should be eliminated . . . (G. F.)

Answer—Sorry, but it isn't that simple, Ma'am. It depends on (1) inherited tendency, (2) the amount of activity—work, play, exercise—in your way of life and (3) the degree to which you accept or reject over-refined, devitalized food. Send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope booklet Training For Diabetes.

Pediculi

A nurse claims crabs can be caught only by contact. I claim they can be caught from toilet . . . (———, R. N.)

Answer—You are right. Lice are lice, head, body or pubic. They may be caught through direct contact or indirectly through contact with clothing, articles or furniture handled or used by the host. Pubic lice are larger than body or head lice and hence commonly called "crabs." Being more or less translucent and attached close to the base of the hair filament pubic lice are difficult to detect. Pediculous pubic, pediculus corporis and pediculus capitis are the $5 names for crabs, body lice and head lice. Don't say "lousy," be refined and say pediculous, which rhymes with ridiculous.

Strength for the Day

-DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHERE IS OUR HOPE?

In days like this people are asking where they can put their feet down and find solid ground, or where they can lay hold on something that will not run like sand through their fingers.

A better disposed generation than our own has probably never lived on the face of the earth. Even the people in war-torn countries are not belligerent by nature but are made so because they are pressed into a prevailing mode. All over the world today men and women are asking, What is the ultimate solution for all human problems?

There are millions of us who believe that the ultimate solution is religion. If we read the signs of the times aright, the world has got into the state it has because man has come to consider himself an economic factor rather than a child of God. He has believed that he is responsible only to the laws of supply and demand and not to great spiritual requirements laid down by a Heavenly Father. And because of this, he has found himself involved in all possible types of social dislocations. To use a theological term, he has fallen from grace.

When John Knox, the famous Scotch reformer, was lying on his death bed, one of his associates who was standing by called to him and said: "John Knox, hast thou hope?" He slowly lifted his finger and pointed upwards. That was all, but it was enough.

If our hope does not lie there, then indeed we are headed toward despair.

Awarded Victoria Cross

Seoul, Korea, Dec. 31—(AP)—A six-foot, six-inch Briton, Pte. William Speakman, yesterday received the second Victoria Cross to be awarded in Korea.

Maj.-Gen. A. J. H. Cassels, commander of the 1st Commonwealth Division, pinned the ribbon, symbol of the Commonwealth's highest decoration for gallantry, on Speakman's chest.

Early in November, Speakman led a series of suicidal grenade charges against withering enemy machine-gun fire. He continued to lead the attacks even after he was wounded.

HUNTERS GET 'KILL'

Fort Erie, Dec. 31—(CP)—A rare gray fox, three red foxes and a 45-pound brush wolf were killed by hunters near here during the weekend. Five hunters bagged the wolf after an eight-hour chase.

HOUSE CLOSES

Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel,) foreign affairs spokesman for his party, supported the addition of Greece and Turkey to N.A.T.O. and said that uncertainty and hesitancy only serves as an "open invitation" to aggression. The risk of the new step was not too great.

Move Essential

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said the move was essential even though it extended Canada's N.A.T.O. commitments.

S. Low, Social Credit leader, said there is no doubt that risks are involved in the inclusion of Greece and Turkey into N.A.T.O. because both countries occupy key and strategic positions. Anything that happened in that area now might send Canada to war.

Mr. Pearson said the inclusion of Greese and Turkey was "not provocative" and threatened no one "except the aggressor". The move did not extend the "nature" of Canada's obligations under the Atlantic Pact, though it did extend the "area" of those obligations.

He said it is hoped that Germany can be associated with western European and North Atlantic defence through the creation of a European defence force. Progress already has been made in that direction.

May Finalize Rifle to Use

As for Mr. Drew's request for rifle production, Mr. Pearson said Canada has been doing all she could to achieve a standardization of weapons. It would not be sensible to embark on a program of rifle production only to find that weapon was not the one finally agreed upon.

A "good deal" of progress of standardization might result from Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Washington next month.

To suggestions that N.A.T.O. had not moved quickly enough, Mr. Pearson said he felt that much progress had been made in the two years since the organization first was founded. It had a military force and a supreme commander.

Canada was meeting her commitments under the Atlantic Pact and would continue to do so.

As for non-military co-operation, that was one of the prime objects of Canadian participation in the pact. One of the difficulties was to make sure that in building up co-operation within the pact, there was no over-lapping co-operation outside of N.A.T.O.

The Speech from the Throne referred briefly to the fact that the Canadian troops in Korea are fighting with "valor and distinction" and to the dispatch of an army brigade to Europe.

Reference also was made to the gratification of the Canadian people at the King's recovery and to the transcontinental tour of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Listed among the measures passed was the government's measure to outlaw the fixing of retail prices by manufacturers. It was adopted by the Commons Friday after the Progressive Conservatives called an end to a seven-day fight against the measure that sent the session beyond the expected Christmas adjournment.

P.C. Senator Supports

The measure, described by the Progressive Conservatives as one that would drive small merchants out of business, was passed by the senate Saturday. The lone Progressive Conservative present — Senator Arthur Marcotte of Manitoba — supported the legislation while two Liberal senators opposed it. The two Liberals were Senator Lomer Gouin, Quebec, and Senator Norman Patterson, Ontario.

Among the major measures passed during the session was one providing pensions of $40 a month for all 70 and over regardless of means. The pensions become effective Jan. 1.

Other measures provided for establishment of a St. Lawrence Seaway authority, for development by Ontario of power on the St. Lawrence, for equalization of freight rates, for higher pensions for veterans and for grants of $6,250,000 a year to the CBC for the next five years.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Please help me to help you!

Ninety-nine one-hundredths of the time this column is devoted exclusively to answering letters. Today is going to be the other one-hundredth, when instead of answering letters I write one of my own, addressed to all my readers.

Here goes:

"Dear Everybody:

"I am most anxious to answer, either in my column or by personal letter, just as many letters from you as I possibly can. But it happens quite frequently that I am unable to reply to somebody for any one of a number of reasons. So if there is anyone reading this who has written me and failed to receive an answer, pay careful attention to what follows and maybe you'll find out why.

"Some of my correspondents, after writing me a long letter about a problem, put this request at the end: 'Please do not publish my letter; just print your answer to it.' This simply means that I cannot answer them at all, much as I would like to because a great many people read this column, and you can understand that it would hardly be fair to print something in it that would make sense to only one of them. So, if your problem is of such a personal nature, or if you are apprehensive lest it should be recognized by someone who might see it in the column, then enclose a stamped addressed envelope in your letter for my reply.

"Another reason why some letters don't get answered is because their writers ask to have them printed in the next day's paper, or on some other specified day within a very short space of time. The questions asked in such letters usually concern some event that is just about to take place—'I will be moving away from this town in a few days and want your answer before I go, so please put it in the paper tomorrow'; 'I will be seeing him this week-end, so I must know what to tell him by then'—that sort of thing. Since my column appears in may different newspapers and must be written several weeks in advance of publication so that all papers will have it at the same time, you can see how impossible it is for me to comply with such requests. If you must have an answer immediately, send me that stamped addressed envelope.

Not Appropriate

"Then there are people who write to ask me questions of such an intimate nature that they are not appropriate for publication in a newspaper. Here again a stamped addressed envelope is indicated for personal reply.

"Every once in awhile somebody is good enough to write and tell me that he or she took my advice and that things worked out well. Or just to say that they enjoy reading my column. I'd like to drop them a word of appreciation, but so often they never give me their names and addresses and I can't. I'm thinking specially right now about a girl who wrote that my answer to her letter, printed in the column, helped her so much in solving her problem that she gave her new baby my name. I was tremenoously touched and wanted her to know it. Also, I would have liked so much to send the baby a little gift. But again—no address. If she's reading this, she should recognize herself, and won't she please supply the address so I can send her a letter—and the gift for the baby?

'And something else: it will greatly facilitate replying to you if you will keep your letter as brief as is consistent with the nature of your problem. Not infrequently, letters are so long, so full of unnecessary details that only confuse the real issue, that it requires more time than I have available to read and unravel them.

"On the other hand, where the problem involves a number of different angles, each of which has a very direct and important bearing on working out a possible solution, don't leave them out. In that case, it's like trying to put together a picure puzzle from which several pieces are missing and what's the good of that?

Put in all necessary facts, as concisely as you can, then stop there.

"Recognize anything that might account for a letter of yours not having been answered? If so, write again, and make it possible for me to do so."

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Reducing isn't so terrible.

You might say that the plumpies belong to the same sorority—the Alibi Girls. According to what they have to say, they don't eat enough to keep a bird alive. Just a couple of lettuce leaves a day! It is to laugh. Any member of the medical profession will tell them that overweight is caused by overeating or consuming fat-forming foods, and for no other reasons. Only rare cases are caused by glandular disturbances of one kind or another.

Much, of course, depends upon the kind of life one lives. If a woman does hard work she will burn up her calories, escape adipose panniers and the expanded waistline. If she loves her soft cushions, sits around most of the time, she is bound to take on weight.

Let every candidate for slenderness realize that a tablespoonful of butter amounts to 100 calories. So spread it thinly on bread. Cream is an enemy; so is sugar. If a woman uses both excessively, in coffee, she's in for further increases in measurements. Cake contains all the ingredients she should avoid—sugar, butter, starches.

Excess weight is a menace to the health. Human suet, packed around the heart and other internal organs, may eventually interfere with their functioning. Insurance companies say that the skinnies are the ones they like; they are the best risks. It is better to be a little under normal weight than overweight.

Because of the health hazards, any physician will listen to the walls of a fat individual, will plan a simple routine that will snake off adipose tissue. Instead of trusting to one's own ideas, it is best to have a medical check-up before going on the diet wagon.

Your doctor will give you menus for three meals a day, seven days a week. There will be variety and you won't starve. He will cut down on sweets, fats and starches, but, as these are energy-creating foods, you will be permitted a small amount now and then.

You can have lean meat, fish that is not fat, poultry, fruit, eggs. Vegetables that grow above ground are better than those that are dug out of it—like potatoes, turnips and beets. Half a head of lettuce once a day will provide bulk, make you think you are getting more to eat. Cottage cheese is your dish. Unsweetened lemonade and buttermilk are recommended.

Food for Thought

A Rash of Resolutions

By Mary Moore

A rash of resolutions broke out in this house last night. Pete vowed he would study every night instead of cramming on the weekends. Marianne resolved she would learn to cook meat—after overbaking some smoked sausages I had paid $1.60 for. If I had been cross I think she could have stood it. But I grinned and ate bravely on, she said—"As if I were a child". I was surprised at this little show of spirited resentment.

So I resolved to leave the cooking of meat to her, and laying my plans for these lessons with that in mind I fixed on this tentative system: Let her start with something glamorous like a roast, and when the next cooking lesson comes up teach her how to make low-cost meat into a high-class dish.

How would you like to go along with us on these lessons? How would you like to start the new year with a course in meat cooking—for those who are not sure or who do not know already?

I'll see what response I get from you on this, but meanwhile will carry on. Marianne loves roast pork so we had

ROAST LOIN OF PORK

Thank goodness it's cheaper too! You know—it's amazing how fond I've become of pork myself—since the price came down!

If you take the meat directly from the refrigerator these are the roasting times: 3-lb. roast 35 minutes to pound; 6-lb. roast 40 minutes to pound. Preheat oven to 325 deg. Fahr. Do not increase heat; do not add water; do not cover; do not baste. Dredge all surfaces with salt and paprika and pepper if desired, and roast fat side up.

BREADED PORK CHOPS

Dip chops in beaten egg mixed with a little milk. Let drain then cover with sifted dry breadcrumbs. Cook in shallow or deep fat until done through or bake at 325 deg. Fahr. These breading instructions will do for veal and lambs chops too.

PORK CHOP AND POTATO CASSEROLE

A great favorite with our friends the Maxwells.

Eight small potatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 cups whole or skim milk, 8 1-2 or 3-4 inch pork chops. Wash and pare potatoes and slice thin as for scalloped potatoes. Place layer of potatoes in buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour and dot with butter or not as you wish. Repeat until all potatoes are used. Pour the milk down the side of the dish to prevent washing salt away. Place pork chops on top. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. until potatoes are tender—about 1 1-2 hours. A slice of unpared apple may be placed on top of each chop 15 minutes before baking time is finished.

I wish you the best of health and happiness and cooking in the new year. I hope that at your parties tonight the food is beautiful, the driving safe, and that friendships are strengthened.

Happy New Year!

Royal Junior Choir Presents Special Musical Service

Rawdon—Children from Wellman's and Bethel on the Rawdon circuit and from Carmel United churches with their parents were in attendance at St. Paul's special Sunday evening service given by St. Paul's Royal junior choir. This choir has a membership of around 60 children and several came from the three churches in town, St. Andrew's Presbyterian, Grace Chapel and Church of England. There are also members from Eggleton United Church.

Presentation Made

Mr. R. A. Patterson led in a sing song of Christmas carols after which Miss F. Warren presented Mrs. A. E. Baker A.R.C.T. choir leader and organist with two lovely gifts from the senior and junior choirs.

The whole program consisted of a lovely array of German, French, English, Dutch, Welsh and other carols, some old favorites and others new to many of the worshipers in attendance at this service.

The candlelight service was safe from the fear of fire as each child carried a flashlight in the processional and recessional while sets of three electrically lighted candles were in each window with two additional sets at the front of altar.

At the close of this unique service, the children sang "We Wish You a Merry Christmas." The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker presided and read the names of the children taking solo and duet parts.

The youngsters meet once weekly for choir rpactice and it is marvellous to note how their voices are improving with the constant training.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

She wants to enjoy using her service plates

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be absolutely incorrect for me to use my lovely service plates when serving a late supper (after bridge) to eight ladies? This is to be an important anniversary for our group. I am going to serve a very special salad with hot finger rolls, a dessert that is my own "speciality", and coffee. When serving these items, I should like not to remove the service plates at all—and they could be so decorative! What say you, Mrs. Beeckman?—C.M.

Of course you know as well as I do that this formality wouldn't be "really proper". But why quibble with such conventions these days. . . why not have a joyous time using as we can such beautiful things as we happen to have? Certainly there aren't many formal dinners these days at which to display lovely service plates! So I suggest you give yourself and your guests the delight of seeing these plates as a decorative background for your supper table.

I'm a great believer in being gaily forthright about doing something which ones knows is not "the" thing to do, but which is harmless and adds a pleasant albeit an unconventional note to the "proceedings". So, if I were you, I'd say to your guests (intimate friends of yours, thus making the explanation easier), when they have taken their places at tables, "Now ladies, don't expect to have a formal dinner. But I just thought it would be fun to use my service plates. . .they've been hidden away so long I thought they'd like to come out to say 'hello' to you dear friends!"

Their "wedding trip" will be the drive from reception to their new house

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Bob and I are to be married in two months—an informal wedding in the church to which we both belong—and a reception at my parents' home, with everyone who is invited to the ceremony also invited to the reception. Bob, a few months ago, bought a new 4-room house for us, and in the months since, we have been scrimping like mad to buy the furniture. Now it is practically all ready. But we have no money left for a wedding trip! Would it be permissible for us not to "set forth" on a wedding trip after the reception, but instead drive directly to our new house?—Bride-to-be.

Certainly this would be permissible. . .and quite in the procedure of the most ancient of wedding customs. And, Tip to the Bridegroom: be sure to plan to carry your bride over the threshold of the charming new "home of your dreams"!

The question of lighted candles on daytime bridal table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are being married in the morning, the ceremony to be followed by a wedding breakfast in a private suite in the club to which my mother belongs. I would like to ask the caterer to use lighted candles, on our bridal table, but I am not sure this would be correct at this time of day. Would it be?—Marion.

Lighted candles would not be correct to use on the bridal table if the room is lighted by daylight. But usually in the winter months the blinds or shades in the room (or rooms) in which the wedding breakfast is served, are pulled down to darken the room so that there can be lighted candles to add their festive glow to the occasion.

DON'T MISS THIS BIG EVENT

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Your partner has a great idea of the partner his partner is playing with. So, when your side goes sour after starting a bid in defence, you are always the one to blame in his eyes.

Experts give you a long-winded song and dance about what you show with a defensive bid. Trying to remember all their words, the real meanings drift away from you.

Be dumb like a fox. The two defensive calls that come up most often are simple overcalls and takeout doubles. Know their basics and you can keep your self-respect with any good player.

Give yourself a break by reducing the whole story to this easy formula: Takeout double shows as good as an opening one bid; simple overcall has as many tricks but maybe only two highs with a sure.

The takeout double orders partner to bid if no bid intervenes. The simple overcall asks partner to pass unless he can support your suit; or has a much better suit of his own.

Your opponent in south has opened the bidding with one club. If you are sitting in the west you look to see whether you pass or simple overcall or double for takeout. This is your west hand:

♠K J 7 4
♦A K 9 8 2
♣J 7 5

You have two sures (AK), three highs (aces, kings, queens), five tricks (three highs and two shorts). You are short one high for a true takeout double. So, do not double.

A simple overcall needs only two highs of which only one need be sure. Providing you have a count of five tricks and a biddable suit of at least five cards. All of which you can promise.

So, your defensive bid right here is a simple overcall of one diamond. Having simple overcalled you deny having some quality that would correctly promise what it takes for a takeout double.

Good bids need no apology.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NEW YEAR'S WISHES

To all our friends, and others too,
The best of everything to you,
May Fortune's frown turn not your way,
And good luck greet you day by day.
To sportsmen all, within our sphere
Good luck, good fun for this New Year.
May winning all be not your aim,
In losing, fellas, play the game,
A sportsman true is he who grins
When'er the other fellow wins,
May hockey, baseball, all sports soar
To lofty heights not reached before.

* * *

To softball maestro, Donald Lee,
Provincial titles, two or three,
To Carson's Jack a big loud yell
And baseball's crown, COBL,
May Digby's chest expand still more, he Deserves more well-earned soccer glory.
In tennis, too, the bloke's a wiz
He's made it what today it is,
To sorrel-top coach Doran; "Red"
The hockey trail lies straight ahead.
In losing, you'll have many squawks
Anent your junior, senior Hawks;
To turn deaf ear is null advice
You know the score; both on the ice
And off it, too — it's plenty tough
But you'll come through — they've got the stuff.
And while the best we wish for you,
The Hawks — and Grace and Deidra, too,
We can't forget some other guys
Who help to make this town sports-wise.

* * *

Those grand old sweats with aging hearts,
And young ones too — who toss the darts—
Those gallant yachtsmen, Boyce and "Crock"
And Lloyd and Burrows, plus the "Doc".
George Foster's C.N.R.A.A.
The industries—Y.M.C.A.
The Parks Commission, Firemen, too,
A special season's wish for you,
To Picknell, Stanton, Cook and Beare,
McNab, and Lloyd, a Glad New Year,
To Holway, Barrett, Bill Green, too
The best of everything to you.

* * *

Of Albert's "Beach" and Homer "Red"
St. Michael's "Jack" may it be said
When New-Year's '53 comes home,
"They brought the gridiron bacon home"
To Don McNevin's proud Glen Roy's
Marty, Jim and all the boys,
To Northern's Jerry and his pals,
Including those smart softball gals,
To Schwab and Lattimer and Bent
May all good things to you be sent.
May Jack Devine "the sporting voice"
Have every reason to rejoice.

* * *

To service clubs and others too,
Who sponsored kiddies, not a few,
To city council, county "dads",
Who rule the roosts "Let's have no fads".
To Red Cross workers—V.O.N.,
The Children's Aid—the "Sally Ann",
The Hospital—St. John's Brigade,
The Old Folks' Home—the Nurses' Aid,
To Fire Chief Vance—his merry men,
To Police Chief Probert, once again
The best—and thanks for what you've done,
You reached the tops in '51.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 31 (AP)—The first North American hockey team to play in Japan was a North Battleford, Sask., club which went over 15 or more years. . . . Upon arrival, the Canadian players were surrounded by a group of young men with notebooks and a wide assortment of questions. . . . In the first game they discovered that the interviewers, who had asked so much about their style of play, weren't newspaper men, but members of the opposing team. . . . Today a bunch of kids from New York's Metropolitan League will leave San Francisco for the second hockey invasion of Japan and no doubt they'll encounter a few surprises. . . . They're mostly Manhattan and Brooklyn kids who seldom have played hockey anywhere but on the Garden rink. . . . Two of them, Richard Svoboda and Eugene Scott, are products of the local "Pee Wee" program. . . . The other night when the Rangers game was delayed, Tom Lockhart rounded up the Japan-bound squad to play an exhibition period against Manhattan Arrows. . . . One of the boys broke a finger in this clash and burst out crying because he thought he couldn't play in Japan. . . . "What the heck?" growled Lockhart. "He'll be able to hold a stick in about a week and we couldn't take the trip away from him because he tried to help out."

Dot's All Brothers

Jess Petty, the old Cleveland pitcher who retired from baseball in 1936, will return to action next spring as a coach for Rollie Hemsley at Toledo. . . . Bob Brumblay, one-time athletic director at Washington State, now is probation officer for the county juvenile court in Spokane. . . .

Whip Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 While Maple Leafs Win, Tie; Canadiens Drub Rangers 7-2

(By The Canadian Press)

The half-way mark of the 1951-52 National Hockey League season reached New Year's eve and it's becoming increasingly evident there isn't a club to stop Detroit Red Wings from winning their fourth straight league title.

The Wings go into tonight's game at home against Montreal Canadiens 12 points ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs who were able to gain only one point on Detroit in weekend games.

It was a standoff in the pennant race Saturday night as both Detroit and Toronto came up with victories. The Red Wings whipped their "cousins," Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 and Leafs made it 4-0 over Boston Bruins.

New York's Big Crowd

Toronto had a good chance to bridge the gap Sunday at New York but the Rangers, playing before a crowd of 15,603—largest of the season at Medison Square Garden—scored a goal with five minutes left to play to salvage a 2-2 tie. Rangers were drubbed 7-2 by Montreal Canadiens Saturday, the only other weekend game.

Don Raleigh pierced a tight Toronto defence to score the tying goal. Leafs lead 2-0 on goals by Ted Kennedy and Max Bentley but the Rangers roared back to gain the split in points on markers by Hy Buller and Raleigh.

The third-place Canadiens went wild against the Rangers before a 14,270 crowd at Montreal Saturday. Maurice (Rocket) Richard and rookie Paul Meger led the scoring parade with two goals each and the others went to freshmen Dick Gamble, Dollard St. Laurent and Dickie Moore.

Howe Gets Pair

Paul Ronty and Steve Kraftcheck notched the Ranger goals.

Gordie Howe scored two third-period goals in Detroit's 3-1 victory over the Hawks—their sixth straight triumph at home and the sixth in seven starts against Chicago. Marty Pavelich netted the other for the Wings while rookie Steve Hyrmnak scored for Chicago.

The Boston-Toronto game was a bruiser with referee Bill Storey handing out 10 minor and four major penalties—all in the second and third periods. Boston's Ed Kryzanowski and Toronto's Jimmy Thomson provided the fireworks with a couple of clashes.

The hockey was provided by Bentley and Danny Lewicki. Bentley scored a pair and Lewicki received credit for three assists.

The other Toronto goals were scored by Sid Smith and Gus Mortson.

Geo. Senick Scores Three In Quaker Win

(By The Canadian Press)

George Senick, a problem child when he played for Seattle Ironmen, proved an even greater thorn in their side last night by scoring three goals, including the winner, to pace Saskatoon Quakers to an 8-5 Pacific Coast Hockey League victory over the host Ironmen.

It was Seattle's third straight licking at the hands of the prairie men. The win stretched Saskatoon's second-place margin over Seattle to five points in the league standings.

The last-place Calgary Stampeders played inhospitable hosts to Edmonton Flyers Saturday night and licked the team from the oil country 5-4. Jack Miller led the Calgary attack with two goals.

In another Saturday night fixture the Royals were at home in New Westminster to Vancouver Canucks. The visitors got licked 4-2.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe Yosurak, pitcher for Waterloo Tigers of the Intercounty Baseball Association senior circuit for the last two seasons, has signed a contract with the team for 1952. Last year he was credited with 13 victories.

Allie Reynolds, double no-hit righthander of the world champion New York Yankees, Saturday in New York was named player of the year by the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Halifax Sea Gulls outstanding Pee-Wee hockey team in the Maritimes successfully launched a three-game United States tour yesterday by coming from behind Rovers 5-3 at Madison Square to defeat New York Pee-Wee Garden in New York.

A total of 37 runners so far have entered the 31st annual New Year's Day road races in Hamilton, Chick Taylor, Y.M.C.A. physical director, announced yesterday.

The 20 runners now entered in the 10-mile race will not have to compete with last year's winner Selwin Jones of Hamilton, who said he will not be running.

Frank Sedgman To Stay Amateur Another Year

Sydney, Australia, Dec. 31 (AP)—Frank Sedgman hinted Saturday night that he will remain an amateur for at least another year. This is a distinct piece of bad news to the Americans whose hopes of gaining the Davis Cup next year are dim enough even if they don't have to battle Sedgman.

"I hope to play for Australia in next year's Davis Cup competition," said Sedgman in responding to a toast at a dinner given by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia for the Aussie and American teams.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Georges Vezina perhaps the greatest goalie in professional hockey, played his first pro game with Montreal Canadiens 41 years ago today. His last game was on Nov. 28 1925 when illness forced him to quit during the game at Montreal against Pittsburgh, ending an N.H.L. career of 15 years. He died at Chicoutimi on March 24, 1926.

WEEKEND STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

DON RALEIGH, New York, whose goal late in the third period Sunday gave the Rangers a 2-2 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

AL ROLLINS, Toronto, who racked up his third shutout of the year Saturday as the Leafs blanked Boston Bruins 4-0.

MAURICE RICHARD AND PAUL MEGER, Montreal, who each scored 2 goals Saturday to pace the Canadiens to a 7-2 victory over New York.

GORDIE HOWE, Detroit, whose two goals gave the Red Wings a 3-1 decision Saturday over Chicago.

Glasgow Rangers To Tour Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Glasgow Rangers, glamor team of the Scottish Football League, have been invited to tour Canada in 1952. The tour, it was reported in Vancouver Saturday, would involve 10 matches from Montreal to Victoria, B.C. The invitation was sent the Rangers by the Canadian Football Association.

Murph Chamberlain New Bison Coach

(By The Canadian Press)

Murphy Chamberlain, deposed coach of the Vancouver Canucks, will succeed Leroy Goldsworthy as coach of the Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League.

Canucks' owner Coley Hall reported in Vancouver that general manager Art Chapman of the Bisons has agreed to hire Chamberlain.

Chamberlain left here for Buffalo by plane last Friday. He ended his job with the Canucks Christmas day. Hugh Currie was named acting coach.

Goldsworthy will come to Vancover where he will be pro at the Point Grey golf club.

Marlies Trim Bilts to Extend Lead Spitfires Win Fourth in 27 Starts

(By The Canadian Press)

It's not very often the tail-end Windsor Spitfires win a game. In fact up until Saturday night they had been able to collect only three victories in no less than 29 Ontario Hockey Association junior A appearances.

Saturday they chalked up their fourth win of the season. It was a 4-3 affair over ninth-place Oshawa Generals, all on the strength of forward Jimmy Robertson's two last-period goals.

The Spits were one goal down midway through the final session when Don McBeth and Al Arbour drew majors for fighting. A minute later Robertson rapped home his first tally to knot the count at 3-3.

With 63 seconds left to play in the game Robertson split the Oshawa defence to notch the final marker. It gave Windsor its 4-3 win and put them in a tie with the Generals in the victory department. Both teams have collected but four this season.

Six ties gives Oshawa four-point edge in the standings. Windsor has but two deadlocks.

Hurcs Lose 10-0

In the only other junior O. H. A. game played Saturday, those hapless Waterloo Hurricanes absorbed their second white-washing in as many nights. Fourth-place Galt Black Hawks handed them a 10-0 setback.

The Hurcs, languishing in eighth place, have allowed 29 goals past them in their last two games. Friday night Guelph Biltmores drubbed them 19-0 at Guelph.

Sunday afternoon, Toronto Marlboros went four points up in their fight for first place in the 10-team standings when they downed second-place Guelph Biltmores 6-2 before 10,000 Maple Leaf Garden fans. St. Michael's consolidated third place with a 6-2 victory over Kitchener Greenshirts.

The tail-end North Bay Black Hawks came up with their most impressive display of the season here Saturday night to hand the pace-setting Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds a 7-3 thumping in a northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A fixture.

It was the revived Bay Hawks third win in their last four starts and left them just two points back of third-place Sudbury Miners in the league standing.

The North Bay scoring was distributed around evenly with Aub Percival, Vic Jackson, Bill Kurceba, Chick Cecchini, Rick Hogg, Fred Valenti, and newcomer Don Hogan firing singles. Former ex-pro Hec Pozzo sank two of the Sault markers with the other going to young Johnny Offidani.

Saturday night's senior O. H. A. play saw Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen move three points up on Hamilton in their fight for second place with an 8-4 tussle over the Tigers. Owen Sound edged Brantford Redmen 4-3 in the only other senior game. It was the third straight win for the Mercurys.

In the senior game at Kitchener, Jim Pernfuss, Bobby Schnurr and Mike Dzuira all counted twice for the 8-4 win by the Dutchmen. Singletons went to Scotty Mair and Bill Mitchell. Murray Comfort scored three of the Tiger goals with the fourth going to Ron Kemp.

Mike Bukacheski, Andy Grant, Roy Leckie and Ray McCallum fired the Mercury markers at Owen Sound. Bob Bragagnola, Don Oberholtzer and Bill Schill scored for Brantford as the Redmen bowed 4-3.

Roy McElroy scored twice for Marlboros 6-2 win in Toronto Sunday, with Chuck Lumsden, Gus Karrys, Parker MacDonald and Wally Maxwell accounting for the others. Charles Henderson and Dean Prentice tallied for Guelph.

St. Mike's Bill Lee and Mike Ratchford each scored twice and Bob Sabourin and Jim Logan scored singletons in the college crew's 6-2 win over the Greenshirts. Kitchener goals went to Frank Toyota and Dino Candido.

Glen Roys Meet Trenton In Valley Opener

According to unofficial sources, the Trent Valley Hockey League will swing into action Wednesday night, weather permitting, with the Belleville Glen Roys meeting Trenton; Norwood playing at Marmora; Lakefield at Havelock and Frankford at Wellington.

Friday night sees Marmora at Hastings; Havelock at Norwood; Trenton at Frankford and Wellington at Trenton RCAF (at Brighton).

This season ten teams will form the league with Belleville, Trenton, Frankford, Wellington and Trenton RCAF forming the southern division and Marmora, Hastings, Havelock, Lakefield and Norwood operating in the northern division.

Hornets, Bears Set Pace In American League

(By The Canadian Press)

The American Hockey League had another weekend schedule and Pittsburgh Hornets and Hershey Bears continue to set the pace in their respective divisions.

At Buffalo, Leo Labine's goal with but 40 seconds left in the third period gave Hershey a 7-6 victory over Buffalo's Bisons.

Jerry Brown and Norm Corcoran each scored two goals for the Bears and Sid McNabney led the losers with three goals.

At Cincinnati, the Mohawks completed a weekend sweep of games with the league's top teams, downing Hershey Saturday night and Pittsburgh Sunday. Sunday's score was 4-2.

The Mohawks never were behind after defenceman Pat Egan scored at 3:06 of the opening period.

Chuck Blair evened the count for Pittsburgh in the second period but Jackie McLeod hit for two goals and Bill Wylie got another before Bob Solinger tallied for the Hornets while Cincinnati was shorthanded.

At Providence the Reds regained second place in the eastern division by defeating Syracuse Warriors 3-2.

The Reds crowded all their scoring into the first 10 minutes with Barry Sullivan, Pete Kapusta and Ken Smith hitting the twine.

Kelly Burnett scored Syracuse's first goal in the second period. Armand Lemieux got Syracuse's second goal in the third.

At Indianapolis Gerry Reid scored his first goal of the season, broke a 2-2 tie and gave Cleveland a 3-2 victory over Indianapolis.

Cal Stearns and Eddie Busch scored for Cleveland. Other Indianapolis marksmen were Enio Sclisizzi and Earl Reibel.

Scores in Saturday's games were: Cincinnati 3 Hershey 1; Buffalo 4 Syracuse 3; Indianapolis 1 Cleveland 5; Providence 1 Pittsburgh 7.

BANCROFT

Pontiacs Defeat Madoc 10-6 In Loop Opener

Bancroft (Special)—Seven assists by Elwood Brough highlighted the 10 to 6 victory that Bancroft Pontiacs won from Madoc in the curtain-raiser of the Hastings-Addington Hockey League in Bancroft Arena Friday night. In making this record for organized hockey here in post-war years Elwood, a 20-year-old centre, did not score himself but consistently passed to his teammates with mid-season smoothness.

About 400 fans attended the game, a wide-open affair that featured consistent attacks by three to five men and lack of practice and condition by all the defensive forces. It was a regular field day for forwards and a nightmare for goal-tenders.

From the time that Bill Delyea scored the first goal for the Pontiacs when they started their scoring in the dying minutes of the first period "Toar" Ross in the Madoc net was trying to block an almost continuous flow of pucks. The spark plug work of Glen Nickle of Madoc prevented the contest from becoming a one-sided affair.

The other half of the Brough combination, Norman, Elwood's elder brother scored four of Bancroft's goals. Other Pontiac marksmen were Bill Delyea 2, Joe Kavanagh 2, Ted Maxwell and Jim Bruce. For Madoc Glen Nickle got 3, Reynolds 2 and Hayworth 1.

Lineups:

Bancroft Pontiacs — Goal, Young; defence, Stringer and McAlpine; centre, E. Brough; wings, N. Brough and Kavanagh; alternates, E. Maxwell, J. Maxwell, Bruce, Dugald, Hatin, Delyea, Fox, D. Maxwell and G. Maxwell; manager, B. Shapiro; coach, Don Tanner.

Madoc — Goal, Ross; defence, Crawford and Lavender; centre, G. Nickle; wings, Carswell and Tufts; alternates, Lister, Shadbolt, F. Nickle, Reynolds, Thompson, Reynolds; manager, Harry Tufts; coach, Arnold Ross.

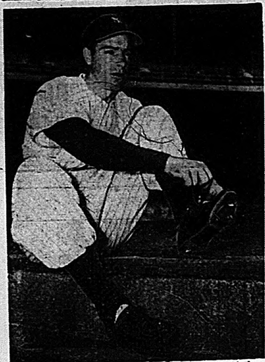
Referees—Goyer of Belleville and Carpenter of St. Catharines.

Timekeepers — J. Hatch, M. Gawley, L. Flagler, M. Brough.

HIDING ARMS

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Dec 31 — (Reuters) — Police yesterday arrested a man on charges of hiding arms in readiness for a revolt against Britain. Police claimed to have found 1,250 rounds of machine-gun ammunition and 8 hand grenades.

GREAT CAREER ENDS WITH RETIREMENT OF DI MAGGIO



Joe DiMaggio, one of the greatest baseball players ever to lace on a pair of spiked shoes, has hung 'em up for good. "When baseball is no longer fun," said the internationally famous 37-year-old Yankee in a press interview in New York, "it is no longer a game. And so I have played my last ball game." Listing "physical injuries" as the chief reason for his retirement after 13 fabulous years in the major leagues, all of which were spent with New York club, the Yankee Clipper said he has not decided on his future plans, but admitted "leaning toward television." Since reporting to the Yankees from San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League in 1936, DiMaggio compiled a major league lifetime average of .325, took part in 10 World Series and earned an estimated $700,000 in salaries and series' bonuses. He was voted the American league's most valuable player in 1939, 1941 and 1947, also leading the circuit in batting twice and putting together a record 56-consecutive game hitting streak in 1941.—Central Press Canadian.

CONGRATULATIONS WERE IN ORDER

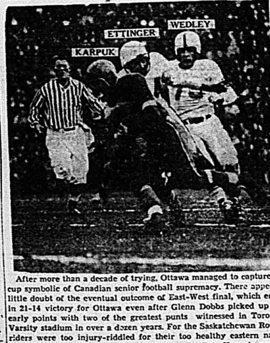
OTTAWA WINS RICHEST GREY CUP CLASSIC IN HISTORY



After more than a decade of trying, Ottawa managed to capture the cup symbolic of Canadian senior football supremacy. There appeared little doubt of the eventual outcome of East-West final, which ended in 21-14 victory for Ottawa even after Glenn Dobbs picked up two early points with two of the greatest punts witnessed in Toronto's Varsity stadium in over a dozen years. For the Saskatchewan Roughriders were too injury-riddled for their too healthy eastern namesakes from Ottawa, ably represented above by Pete Karpuk, seen as he ran for a gain before he was pulled down by opposition. Thus another national hysterical sports event passes into history with the East and West enriched by the biggest gate ever paid by the biggest crowd (composed of 27,326 football fans) ever.—Central Press Canadian.

Sunderland Hands Mighty Arsenal 4-1 Defeat

London, Dec. 31 (Reuters) — Sunderland, lowly east coast team at eighteenth place in the English League, Division One, Saturday dealt out a smashing 4-1 defeat to Arsenal, wealthiest soccer club in Britain and joint leader of the division.

Arsenal, London glamor team, level until Saturday with Manchester United and Portsmouth, dropped to third place in the division.

Manchester United's 1-0 home victory over Bolton Wanderers put it on top of the ladder of Division One with 34 points, one point ahead of Portsmouth, which tied 1-1 with Chelsea in an away game.

Cardiff, which last week shared top place in Division Two with Sheffield Wednesday and Birmingham, dropped out of the three-way fight for leadership after a 1-1 tie with Brentford.

Sheffield Wednesday and Birmingham won their games and head the division with 32 points each. Sheffield Wednesday scored a crashing 4-1 victory at Southampton and Birmingham beat Nottingham Forest, 1-0.

Plymouth Argyle, with 34 points reached top place with Brighton in the Southern Section of Division Three beating Shrewsbury, 6-1. Brighton lost, 3-1, to Bournemouth. Third in the division is Norwich City, which reached the best score of the day—eight goals to Walsall's nil.

The first three places in the Northern Section of Division Three remain unchanged. Lincoln City are at the top with 34 points followed by Stockport County, with 33, and Oldham Athletic with 31.

East Trims West In Shrine Game

San Francisco, Dec. 31 (AP)—Ohio State's Vic Janowicz, Michigan State's Al Dorow and Princeton's Dick Kazmaier blended their talents Saturday to give the East a spectacular 15-14 triumph over the West in the Shrine's annual charity football classic.

A capacity crowd of more than 60,000, saw the East score a field goal in the first quarter, a touchdown in the second, and another in the third. The West counted in the third and fourth quarters.

Janowicz, kicking a 32-yard field goal, put the East into a lead that was never relinquished. Janowicz also scored the third-quarter touchdown.

Dorow and two-time All-American Kazmaier alternated in a pass-throwing and catching combination such as seldom has been equalled in the 27 East-West games that have netted more than $1,000,000 for the Shrine's hospital fund for crippled children.

Nearly Half-Million Will See New Year's Day Bowl Games

By JOHN CHANDLER

New York, Dec. 31 (AP)—College football in the United States may be in the process of de-emphasis, but not for some 435,000 fans scattered from Florida to California and points between who will jam into the New Year's Day bowl games tomorrow.

Eleven bowl games are scheduled but the main interest will be centred around the five big ones—the Rose, Sugar, Orange, Cotton and 'Gator Bowls.

The day's biggest crowd, about 100,000, is expected for the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., where Illinois, the Big Ten champion, meets Stanford, the Pacific Coast Conference winner. Illinois remains a 6½-point favorite to continue the six-year Big Ten domination over the coast teams, which have lost five Rose Bowls in a row. Ohio State tied Illinois, and only California beat Stanford in the regular 1951 season.

Illinois "Wet Or Dry"

Rain has soaked the Los Angeles area, and officials are hoping for clear skies by tomorrow.

"It makes no difference, wet or dry," said Chuck Taylor, Stanford coach. Coach Ray Eliot of Illinois would prefer a dry, fast field. In 1947, the last time Illinois played at Pasadena, they won 45-14 over U.C.L.A.

The Rose Bowl game will be televised nationally.

New Orleans reports rain is possible for the clash between Tennessee, voted the country's No. 1 team in 1951, and Maryland. But even moisture from above won't keep 85,000 out of the Sugar Bowl, the only Bowl game boasting two unbeaten and untied elevens. Tennessee is favored by seven points.

The weatherman in Miami forecast partly cloudy and mild for the Orange Bowl battle between Baylor and Georgia Tech, to be seen by 65,000. The pricemakers here set the odds at 6 to 5 and take your pick—Baylor which lost only to Texas Christian and tied Texas A. and M., or Georgia Tech, unbeaten but tied by Duke.

Good weather and the same odds, 6 to 5 and take your pick, rule for the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex., between Kentucky and Texas Christian — both beaten four times during the season. The game's a 75,349 sellout.

Kentucky, 13-7 winner over Oklahoma in the 1951 Sugar Bowl, reports eight players down with virus infection.

Clemson and Miami (Fla.) renew their New Year's rivalry in the 'Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., before 38,500. Last year Clemson eked out a 15-14 win over Miami in the Orange Bowl.

Doug Bentley Named Coach Sasky Quakers

(By The Canadian Press)

Doug Bentley, newly-appointed playing-coach of Saskatoon Quakers of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, will take over the team for the first time when Quakers play Calgary in Saskatoon Jan. 5.

Frankie Eddolls, currently coaching Quakers, will remain with the team for their Jan. 3 game here and will then fly to New York to rejoin New York Rangers of the National League.

Recovered from a groin injury, Bentley, whose appointment was announced in New York last night, expects to do "quite a lot of playing" for the Quakers. He said he might try himself on defence after Eddolls' departure and if that scheme does not work out, he will get another defenceman and move up to the forward line.

CANADIAN GOLF CHAMP TO COMPETE IN FIRST U. S. TOURNEY

Marlene Stewart, 17-year-old Canadian golfing sensation from Fonthill near Welland, Ont., has accepted an invitation to play in the Tampa annual women's open golf championship which gets underway in Florida next month. In competing in her first American tourney, the 1951 Canadian women's open (seen above), closed and Ontario open golf champion will be up against such veterans as Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Patty Berg and the Bauer sisters.—Central Press Canadian.

Grim Year for Crashes

Toronto, Dec. 29 — (CP)—This year has been a grim one for motor accidents in Ontario.

Throughout Ontario there were 7,953 more highway mishaps during the first nine months of 1951 than during the same period in 1950.

The provincial death toll to the end of September was 676 in comparison to 549 in the same period last year. Toronto's traffic toll was down. To Dec. 28 there has been 56 deaths as compared with 58 in 1950.

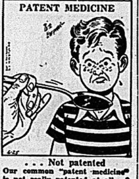
WHY WE SAY By Pete Hoffman Bob Morgan



. . . Not patented

Our common "patent medicine" is not really patented at all. A mixture cannot be patented. It is called "patent" because the medicine's name can be . . . and is often patented.

A Sad Note

Southampton, England, Dec. 31—A sad note was added to the last-minute confusion surrounding Winston Churchill's belated departure for the United States today by the death of a messenger bringing papers to the prime minister from London.

The messenger, Frederick May, handed the documents to Churchill aboard the Queen Mary after a hurried trip from London and then collapsed and died apparently of a heart attack.

To Carry Canada's Olympic Hopes to Norway

Four glamor gals — one of them Rhoda Furtele Eaves, seen above, a hold-over from 1948 Olympic ski-team — will represent Canada at 1952 Olympics which gets underway at Norway, Sweden, Feb. 15. Now training in the Laurentians at St. Jovite, the ski belles have two months in which to prepare for downhill and slalom events before they compete against representatives from 35 other countries, including crack Austrian squad. Nine men will complete team which will be the largest Olympic ski squad in Canada's history. — Central Press Canadian.

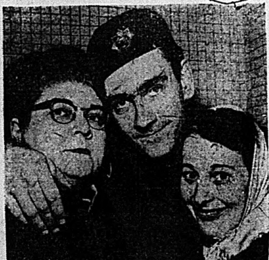
To Join Canadian Unit in Korea

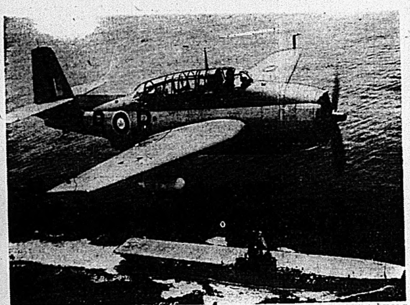


Bidding good-by to his mother, left, and wife, Pte. Ed O'Reilly, of Toronto, joined 200 reinforcements from Ontario training centres for Canadian units in Korea on their journey west where they will team up with men who volunteered for the Canadian Special Force at Edmonton for a group movement to Japan in January. The total draft consists largely of infantrymen but includes a number of service replacements. — Central Press Canadian.

Atlantic is Hit by One of Worst Gales in Two Decades

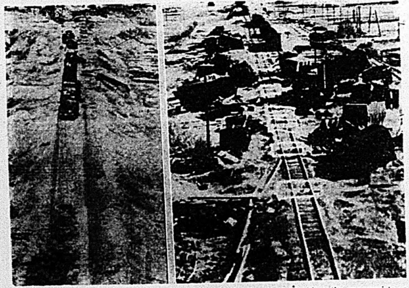
This photo, taken somewhere at sea aboard the French luxury liner Ile de France, en route to New York, shows the British freighter "Chiswick" wallowing in heavy seas during mid-Atlantic gales that set off a series of frantic distress calls by ships in serious danger off Europe's Atlantic coast. Standing by to take off smaller ship's crew of 45 if need arose, Ile de France waited for more than 11 hours until storm abated temporarily. Howling hurricane winds have stirred up seas to mountainous proportions in one of worst gales in over two decades. — Central Press Canadian.

Submarine Chaser Comes Well Equipped!



An Avenger plane, equipped for anti-submarine service, is shown hovering over the H.M.C.S. Magnificent during exercises off Halifax, N.S. The modified Avenger joined the Canadian fleet in 1951 and has since proved its effectiveness in practical exercises with submarines.—Central Press Canadian.

Camera's Eye Sees Through Red Camouflage



In an attempt to foil U.S. aerial reconnaissance and subsequent bombing, the communists camouflaged this stretch of track between Pyongyang and Sariwon (left) with dun-colored straw. But low-flying planes exposed the trick, and at right you see the red's labor lost. Both sides of the track are strewn with wrecked cars which were blasted on the camouflaged track. The wreckage was moved off the permanent way by red wrecking crews.—Central Press Canadian.

St. Laurent Says Free Nations Far From Security

Ottawa, Dec. 31—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said last night the free nations are still a long way from security but are in a better position to resist aggression than a year ago.

Mr. St. Laurent issued his annual New Year's message to Canadians. It will be broadcast over the CBC's French network tonight and over English networks Tuesday night.

"The free nations", the prime minister said, "are in a better position to resist aggression than they were a year ago, but we still have a long way to go before our people can feel really secure. The nations which want peace must continue to build up their strength and to maintain their unity."

Dealing with the Korean War, he said that "we are still hoping for a successful end to the hostilities in that desolate land, where the peace-loving nations have banded together to stop aggression and enforce respect for the rule of law."

Of Canada's internal affairs, he said:

"I know there are many families where the cost of living has caused real concern and even some hardship. But we can be thankful that most Canadians are gainfully employed.

"Compared with all other nations but one, we enjoy a very high standard of living, indeed. And that good fortune has enabled us to help the less fortunate in our midst."

STIRLING

Stirling—Stirling L.O.B.A. No. 655 held a successful euchre party in the Orange Hall last Wednesday evening. The winners were: ladies', Mrs. Louise Anderson of Carmel; men's, Mr. Everett Grills also of Carmel; consolation prizes went to Eileen Cooke, of Stirling and Keith Bates of Carmel. Refreshments were served and a social evening followed.

The annual "White Gift" service was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning under the auspices of the Sunday School.

The choir sang "The Dawn of Christmas", and Miss Heather Rodgers rendered very sweetly an appropriate solo.

The white gifts were placed at the altar during the singing of the hymn, "The Wise May Bring Their Learning," and the prayer of dedication was given by the pastor, Rev. W. H. V. Walker.

The church was beautifully decorated with everygreen trees and colored lights. A large congregation enjoyed a helpful service.

By Will Henry

The scene was one of the wildest pandemonium. Sioux swarmed everywhere. The shrill outcries of crazed and dying men and animals carried clearly to my position. The volume of fire from the hostiles was deafening, that of the Seventh, though still under command-volleys, already ragged and disintegrating. The sum total of the battle noise was frightening, now. Thirty minutes later not a single rifle shot echoed within ear's-reach of the Little Big Horn.

Custer, with his Gray Horse Troop, was in position on the hillside. What was left of the other companies was strung in a half-mile line along the top of the last ride fronting the river, an advance force being on the slopes in front of the ridge itself. This placed the whole force of them in Custer's immediate front.

They had apparently just advanced to these positions, for the field between them and the Gray Horse Troop was littered with kicking, dying cavalry mounts, and the twisted, still forms of their riders.

A long deep gulch led from the river up into the heart of the defending ridge into the mouth of this I could see hundreds of mounted Sioux galloping. Its walls gave them perfect protection from the fire of the troops, who could not even see them entering the gully.

To Custer's south the hills were covered with Indians, more of them pouring out of the gully which skirted that flank, by the minute. Even at my distance I recognized a lone figure momentarily outlined against the sky directing the assault. Tashunka Witko, Crazy Horse, was tearing at Yellow Hair Custer's bleeding right flank.

Below me spread the line of hostiles trapping him on the north, his left. With a good wind I could have spit on them. Riding their lines,, firing, yelling orders, issuing warwhoops wholesale, raced another familiar red man: squat, ugly, capable Gall.

Between me and the dying Seventh lay 400 yards of open ground. I got a good grip on the reins with my hand, a better one of my lip with my teeth, slammed the spurs into the good horse under me, laid the barrel of my Colt flat a slant his haunch and fired one shot.

The lead ploughed a shallow furrow across the beast's rump and this, with the spurs and my war-whooping, sent him bursting down into that ravine full of Gall's Sioux.

Then they came after me with a rush. But not quite rush enough. I cut down the slope for the troops on the ridge, hoping to reach them before the Sioux came into their midst out of that centre gully. I lay over my horse's off-side, Oglala-style.

The troops, seeing a lone sergeant on a cavalry horse tearing up, gave me covering fire as I came in. The Sioux sheered away.

"Who's in command, here?" I yelled, sliding off my horse into the midst of a group of enlisted men. A pickerel-jawed non-com spoke up in a voice as calm as though he were directing the general's wife.

"Captain Keogh. Over there on that claybank sorrel." This sergeant proved the finest fighting soldier I ever knew. I won't forget his name and hope history doesn't either: Sergeant Butler.

As I ran hunched and dodging to Keogh's position, I constantly had to leap the prostrate, frequently still struggling bodies of downed horses and troopers. Nobody was attending the wounded.

"Keogh! Get your command back at once.. Pull them in. Get those men on the other side of the gully back over here at once. Pull them in. Pull them in!"

"Who are you?" gasped Keogh, getting shot out of his saddle the minute he spoke, a Sioux slug low through both lungs. I pulled him back of a dead horse and flopped on my belly beside him as I answered.

"Runner, from Reno. He and Benteen are coming. But so are a thousand Sioux. But Captain Myles Keogh wasn't listening to me. He wasn't listening to anybody. He was bleeding to death.

"Trumpeter! Hey, trumpeter!"

"Here, sir." A boy, not over 17, his right ear shot away, answered. "What's the call?"

"Retreat. Blow your lungs out, boy!" I was on Keogh's horse now, riding the lines, bellowing heavily. "Back! Get back. Get away from that gully. It's full of Indians. Fall back. Run!"

The men needed no further invitation. Most of those who still had mounts under them streamed up the hill, making it to Custer safely. The others began to run for it on foot. Captain Yates, Sergeant Butler, two corporals and myself, all mounted, stayed with the men on foot, giving them what cover we could.

Even in the wierd disorder of that broken rout I couldn't fail to note Butler. He was everywhere, riding and firing with amazing rapidity. He was the best shot with a carbine I ever saw.

The last man away from the ridge wasn't 50 feet from the gully-head when Sioux began to vomit out of it by the score.

The fire from our five carbines was just enough to hold them up for a couple of minutes, then they came on, anyway.

As the final inundation of Sioux broke from the gully, Gall and Crazy Horse came in from both flanks. There was no stopping them. They knifed, lanced, shot and clubbed our fleeing troopers. Yates went down, knocked out of his saddle by a collision with Crazy Horse's black stallion. I saw the war chief fire down into his fallen foe's body, then an Indian voice was howling, "Get him. Get the Hawk!"

Down on the ridge I had picked up another Colt from the dozens lying around on the ground, so had both hands full. I shot my way through them, headed for the only white man standing short of Custer's hillside—Sergeant Butler. He was still horsed, still firing. He had two Colts, also, and the way he snapped and rolled them was sheer magic.

We had a second of respite as we came together, for no Indian likes well-directed belly-fire on the intimate basis we'd been pouring it to them—say from about pony-lengths. Butler gestured up toward Custer, said, laconically, "Let's go."

We made it up to Custer who still had sufficient organization to give us enough of a covering volley to knock the redskins off our tails.

We had left the ridge with about 70 men, arrived on the hill with 35. The retreat took five minutes. It was now 4:15. Custer had 115 actives left.

The general was a sight to stir the heart and pride of any soldier. His shoulder and chest were soaked with the blood which still ran from a deep head wound. His left arm was in a torn-scarf sling, shattered by a large-calibre ball. He sat on the hot, bare ground, his bare back to a small boulder. The Gray Horse colors and the red and silver regimentals of the Seventh, with its big, red "7" on the lower half of the pennant, flanked him. On the ground to his right hand lay a stack of loaded carbines. Two Colts were strapped around his waist. In all that welter of bare-headed, naked-waisted, shot-torn men, he alone held to dress; hat, gauntlet, blouse, sash. No history book could possibly gild the truth of his appearance there and then.

His mind was as clear as a piece of glass. He knew me at once and no words were wasted.

"Where are they?"

"Both coming. Benteen with Reno. They've caught hell, too. Reno lost 50 men. Benteen not so many. Reno's out of his head with a bad scalp wound."

"How close?"

"Forty-five minutes, maybe 30." I saw the shadow flick his eyes.

"Cooke!" Custer raised his voice, calling in his adjutant. "Take this down. I'm going to talk fast. It's a statement of responsibility." Cooke squatted by his side and the general began talking, his voice low, swift. Other than Cooke, I was the only immediate witness to the whole story.

"Get this straight. If any of us get out of here, I want it known I take full responsibility, not only for my own position but for that of Reno and Benteen. I pulled out from under Reno on a hunch. I've always played hunches, but this one played me."
